HAVE YOU SMOKED A TURRET LATELY?

WE try to be modest in what we say about Turret cigarettes. After all, the purpose of a cigarette is to give you smoking satisfaction—nothing else. Turrets will do that. For Turrets are made from an original and unique blend of fine Virginia tobaccos. And you can always be certain of finding Turrets well-filled, firmly rolled and the same unvarying high quality. But, instead of our talking about Turrets, let them speak for themselves. In other words, if you haven't smoked a Turret lately, try a package today!

Are you one of the 200,000?

THAT'S the approximate number of men and women who come of age every year in Canada.

Some start work at fourteen, sixteen or twenty; some go to college; some graduate from the school of hard knocks, and some never graduate from it.

But there is one common ground on which all can meet, and that is the habit of saving money and putting it in the bank regularly. A good habit, from which all conditions of men and women will benefit.

Money in the bank is far more than a reserve for "rainy" days. To each of this year's 200,000 a bank account will mean confidence, so essential to youth's success; and when opportunity comes along, a fund of ready cash to provide a means to grasp it.

MEDICAL SCIENCE AND CRIME CURE

Medical science does not fulfill the promises made for it in cure of crime, a Yale Law School professor, George H. Dession, states after a study of a six-year clinic. That is that many maladjustments defy the available techniques. Prof. Dession says: "One must venture beyond the realm of medical science and of psychology and seek sanctions or justifications which they cannot supply, in an effort to determine not merely what an be done with a given offender as a practical matter of the moment but even what should be done with him under more satisfactory hypothetical conditions. The psychiatrist may be able to describe a certain offender, he may shed considerable light on the factors which conditioned his development and his present state. It is within his province to indicate to what extent the offender may prove amenable to treatment and to what kind of treatment.

"But there existing science stops. What varieties of personality, the community shall take the trouble to maladjusted though they have demonstrated their inability to get along with the group; what individuals it shall undertake to rehabilitate at public expense; what forms of treatment shall be made available; what types of special equipment shall be evolved for the purpose, and how any given program shall be set up, are primarily questions of social values and of politics, very much akin to such major issues of recent years as those raised by unemployment and the care of the aged."

"The most stubborn fact in the situation, Professor Dession says, is that the maladjustments of many offenders are found to be too complicated or deep-rooted to yield to any generally available educational or therapeutic regime. Clear-cut "cures" comparable to those produced within a short time by the application of the more familiar medical procedures to ordinary and better understood ailments are still beyond the reach of available techniques.

"The psychiatrist entering into the administration of the criminal law, and representing as he does in the popular mind a symbol of the more exacting new penal expectations and of current dissatisfaction, must take care lest he find himself unwittingly sponsoring a psychopathic culture pattern, Professor Dession adds. He asserts that there has been a disinclination toward close study of the contributing role of this fresh ingredient and in his article, "Psychiatry and Criminal Justice," urges the beginning of a process of appraisal."

A BROADCAST FROM 4700 B. C.

When Cheops, the Pharaoh, had the Great Pyramid erected in 4700 B.C. he could have had no notion of what would one day be heard—a broadcast from his tomb, bearing on the life of ancient Egypt. This was arranged by the National Broadcasting Company. The Pharaohs of old had their voices carried in another way, through their daily tasks, masters and officials, and hot through the ether. On the radio program were a native chant and a story told from hieroglyphics of one of the queens of the land of mystery.

Both spoke of this present age's wealth of scientific inventions in our day; human beings remain very much the same as in Cheops' day, though the development of the consciousness of the brotherhood of man, the ideal program of the modern world and the idea of the unity and equality of all men separate us from Cheops. He lived under a progressive form of theocracy in the world's infancy. We live later and believe that the present time with all its faults is a bigger day with the hope of one still more glorious as men and women the world over leave behind vestiges of barbarism. One of the last to go is war. Slowly this new spirit seems to be gaining ground just as men banded together in old days for protection, leading the way to organized society. Civilization's way upward is a torturous and hard one. Cheops' day was well on the path of progress though he lived nearly 6000 years ago. Yet a week today seems an age, and times almost a nightmare. Let us not forget that progress is really slow. The pace seems to have been speeded up in this inventive era in accord with scientific progress. Unfortunately their remain some who look upon the older methods of warfare as not outworn, thought those races which have liberty under democracy feel that war is a reversion to the "brutal" and have confident hope that ultimately mankind will get the war method out of his political system.

The King of Memphis, Egypt, built his great pyramid at suffering of immense number of men and cast burden on the people, construction lasting ten years. Men of today do not build such colossal private sepulchres at such pain and at the cost of grinding the people. The spirit of modern man would not permit that today for another age is here.

LEGEND

Whoever started it, none can tell—
Calling the place a wishing well!
Maybe a witch or a sighing swain,
Or a lovelorn maid with a moon-touched brain.
For it isn't a well but an innocent spring
In a pasture lot; a bubbly thing
Blessed for its cover and shaded drink
And the peppery watercress round its brink.
But a drink and a wish by night, and lo!
Water spiced with a star or so
Becomes enchanted (or so they say,
Though I don't believe it) and anyway
My mouth chilled numb in the broad day light
With the self-same taste as it did at night.

THE STATE OF NEVADA IS ADVERTISING FOR NEW CITIZENS, millionaires preferred. Attractions to millionaire immigrants include low taxation, absence of all nuisance taxes and income taxes, wide open spaces with plenty room to turn around and breathe freely, raise cain, or horses or cattle. Nevada has produced plenty gold and still has plenty of good prospecting ground which the millionaire colonists can pick over. Other minerals show promising indications, and large tracts of land are being bought up by wealthy retired business men, with mineral rights and all. Nevada's big attraction, however, is its freedom from debt and many bothersome taxes, having practically only one tax which covers everything and that a low one. The policy of the state is Pay-as-you-go, and municipalities are not permitted to plunge helter-skelter into debt with the reckoning twenty,thirty years ahead. Nevada also boasts of Reno where mismated marriages are renovated while you wait a few months, all kinds of entertainment being provided to while away the time, principally gambling on the green with the sky the limit.

MORE TALC DEPOSITS HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED IN HASTINGS COUNTY and interest has been renewed in the talc mining business. Madoc has been the center of extensive talc mining operations for a number of years and many tons of talc have been shipped to an eager market. All of which recalls the legend of talc mining in Hastings County. The tale concerns a prosperous farming family with three grown sons. One son left the farm for the city bright lights and was more or less content with a liability. The other two sons stuck to the farm and were hard workers. When the father died the farm was divided into three parts with the two best portions at either end going to the sons and right, to the two hard working lads who had stuck by the farm and helped to make it one of the best in the district. In the centre was a barren rocky area which would hardly afford sustenance to a few sheep. This was willed to the prodigal son who left for distant scenes and the bright lights of the city. He didn't care much as he had no desire to farm anyway. At long last, however, or before, prospectors found promising deposits of talc on the barren section, and the prodigal disposed of the mining rights for a substantial sum of varmint howling down the road pelted with cream puffs and gilt edged doughnuts. The other two lads have good-farms and plenty of hard work—the prodigal lives like a lord on the fat of the land and toils not neither does he spin but he reaps, all right, reaps right royal royalties from the talc deposits on his humble and despised acres. Such is the story which old-timers continue to tell in connection with the beginning of the talc mining industry in Hastings County while the band plays "There ain't no justice."

NEW THOUSAND ISLAND BRIDGE IS ATTRACTING MUCH INTERESTED ATTENTION in the United States. New York Times describes it as the shortest route between New York to Montreal, Toronto and other Canadian points of interest, besides being in the heart of the Thousand Islands region. It is expected that the bridge will be opened August 1 and from the rate the construction is being carried forward at present it looks quite possible. The attraction of this bridge will bring thousands of motorists this way and all of Ontario should benefit.

Wilmington, N. C. Beaches

(ED. NOTE: This is the seventh in a series of articles written by Mr. A. Jones who is now in the South.)

Wilmington, N.C. Beaches

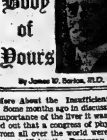
To Wilmington, N.C., belongs the distinction of being the first south southern city on U. S. Highway No. 17—Tidewater Sea Level or Ocean Highway route across the south. We admire coming south to turn east at Richmond Va., thereby having the wonderful opportunity of passing through Williamsburg, Va., where the restoration of this once capital town is being carried on. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has spent thirteen million dollars and more is to be spent. The Tidewater route is a splendid drive across Virginia can drive as fast as they care to.

Wilmington is a lovely city of about 40,000 with four ocean beaches within a short distance. We had the pleasure of inspecting all the beaches, being driven to them by a Boy Scout and also by a Mr. King who introduced me to surf casting and pier fishing. At Fort Fisher Beach we were met by Fort Fisher Winner, superintendent of the Fort Fisher Fishing Piers.

Fort Fisher was the last fort to fall in the Civil War and the pier is built in an opening in the reef of rock starting at Carolina Beach and reaching to Charleston, S.C. This reef is some fifteen to twenty miles off shore but runs close to shore at Fort Fisher forming a narrow channel about a mile wide. The fishing pier will be about 1500 feet long and 900 feet from the waters edge when completed. It is built on southern pine piles 60 feet long, creosoted and driven seventeen feet through the ocean bottom. 565 feet are now finished and open to the public and when completed will cost $50,000. We would hesitate to say that as a fishing pier it is subject to bad storms.

An astonishing thing turned up here—we asked for a drink of water and were ordered by attendant, who went to an iron pump not forty yards from the beach ates and brought us filtered fresh water which he handed to me.

The water was perfectly fresh with not a bit of salty flavor as one might expect.



Sheepshead, sea trout, slice fish, pig fish (fine for table use), king mackerel, spanish mackerel, bluefish and flounders are caught from the pier while surf fishing is good for the latter. Many fishers are going to build an "L" over the pier such as English Mockads there, the Modern Greece. Four other varieties of these types of ships are within a mile. The captains of these ships on being checked by Wilmington fishers that ships achore in this channel between Rock Hard to have the hides of the cattle dressed and caped ashore leaving their ships to their fate.

The fishing rates are 50c per person and supply your own tackle and bait. The catch rod per day while bait is 25c. Mr. Winner informed me that fishing for sheepshead is the best here on the entire coast around the wreck of the Modern Greece where these fish, highly prized for the table, collect in large numbers to feast on the barnacles attached to the wreck, believe it or not.

More About the Insufficient Liver

Some months ago in discussing the importance of the liver it was pointed out that a congress of physicians from all over the world were meeting at Vichy the European health resort, and would spend three days on the one subject, The Insufficient Liver". The congress met in September 1937 and 1600 physicians were present. A report of the programme is reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The various tests to learn how well the liver was doing its work were discussed and how the insufficient liver could interfere with the condition of the blood and this in turn could cause certain skin eruptions and disorders. Thus a liver that is not doing its work properly was known to be the direct cause of pruritis (itching), urticaria (hives), eczema, and that other dreaded skin ailment—impetigo. In impetigo there ar, little blisters on the skin which break, run, crust, form and leave yellowish scabs. There is no question in my mind but that they "look as if they were stuck on the skin with gum".

It was pointed out that these skin ailments can, in turn, give rise to complications. Impetigo is such disease as bronze diabetes, the skin and liver changes go hand in hand.

Another body disturbance due to an insufficient liver is that of swelling, this swelling being due to the liver not removing enough fluid from the blood. As you know, one of the most important parts of the blood is the fluid part in it is known as lymph. This fluid part is to remove poisons and harmful substances from the blood. If these substances are not removed they set up trouble in various parts of the body.

Another disturbance caused by the insufficient liver is that of the nervous system. It upsets the proper balance and there is too much or too little in the disposition and actions of our friends and acquaintances may be due to the fact that their liver is "out of tish".

Altogether, attacks of 130 papers on this one subject—the insufficient liver—were presented during the three days' session.

It fails to work properly in most cases because we are too much for one time of fat and starch foods, and take little or no exercise to stimulate the circulation of the blood through the liver.

New Bank Manager An Ardent Angler

Thos. H. Dredge is Delighted to be Located in Good Fishing District

ENJOYS GOLF ALSO

Smiling eyes that twinkled behind a pair of gold-rimmed glasses; iron grey hair sprinkled with silver and a firm but kindly mouth—detailed touch to his appearance and a cordial clasp of the hand long enough with the public as exemplified in the hearty handshake, greeted a representative of The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday morning when he entered the office of Thomas H. Dredge, recently appointed manager of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Dredge succeeds Mr. N. T. W. Lewers, who is retiring from the service of the Bank.

Mr. Dredge proved to be an excellent conversationalist. With his pleasant personality and affable manner place one at his ease immediately. He preferred to have his cigarette case before he consented to talk.

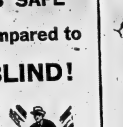
"In the first place," he smiled, "I would impress upon you that my views are my own and not 'drudge' or scow. I have often been reproached by my friends for it," he laughed.

Just past middle age, Mr. Dredge has been born in Aylmer, Ont., and received his education there and in Toronto. He entered the service of the bank in Trenton in 1902.

"Fine place," he smiled. "Let me see, that gives me thirty-six years in the service doesn't it?"

Of national and international tendencies, Mr. Dredge soon forged ahead with Belleville and district. Since he was appointed to his first managership as head of the Merchants Bank of Canada in London, Ont.

During the years that followed he filled the managerial chairs at Wilmington, Delhi and Bloomfield, coming to Belleville from the latter place.



"Oh, yes, I am married", he smilingly answered a query, "my wife was born and raised in Bloomfield of Aylmer. . . No there are no little 'Dredges'."

As an ardent fisherman, Mr. Dredge thinks the gods of fortune smiled upon him when he was transferred to the Belleville office. "There is nothing I like better than to be out in a boat on a lake all day and angle for the finny beauties. Bay of Quinte, Stony Lake, Rice Lake and other places told me of the lovely fishing grounds in this vicinity. It looks as though I am in for an enjoyable summer."

"Golf? Yes, I play a little. But if I can get around in less than a hundred, I go around bragging about it," he laughed. "I am afraid I am a little too far at good golfing yet, but I do derive a great deal of enjoyment from it."

SPRING SUITS LOOK VERY NEW

"Skirt" colored Molyneux ensemble of Courtesy Bonwit-Teller borders of self-cucking applied in flower pattern down front of coat and dress.

Clever Details Give Them the 1938 Hallmark

By LISBETH

THERE'S MANY a new wrinkle in the suits for the spring of 1938. There are new materials or materials that look new; new whimsical little details that make one sit up and take notice, new trimmings. Stylings have a new look.

The Molyneux model at the left of this picture is in "honeycomb wool", and is suggested as the perfect costume suit in which to enter the 1938 spring fashion contests.

It is developed in "string", the newest, smartest and most adaptable neutral. It is a soft, whitish beige tone, with a cool, refreshing look. And it is an excellent foil for practically any accessory color.

The tone of the amber clips at the neck and belt of the dress are repeated in the accessories of blonde calf, a natural harness shade that is one of the newest accessory colors.

Schiaparelli's saucy hat pin bored, calf bag, gloves and shoes are all in the new chic shade.

Wide borders of self ruching are applied in a lovely flower pattern down the tuxedo front of the full-length coat and are repeated in a neck to hem dress band. Sunburst tucks at the sides of the dress give it a perfect fit and are repeated at the neck.

Gibson Girl Suit

The spirit of O. Henry is captured in the Gibson Girl costume, pictured right. This slick-as-a-whistle suit will feel comfortable under a top coat or fur coat now, and will freshen your spirits, and make you feel like a heroine out of one of O. Henry's stories.

The suit is from Altz, of imported cpongo, amusingly edged with shiny braid which even slips in the waist, and fastened with little candy buttons.

Wear it with a fron frou blouse of imported organdie, its stand-up collar and triple ruselle band edged with val lace. Add one of the 1920 hat pins stuck in your lapel for a new 1938 note. Then top it off with a feminine version of the dicvogue hat, its rolled edge bound round with braid, a fluny and voluminous veil enveloping hat and face and tied in an enormous bow at the back.

A patent leather bag and pumps pack up the sheen of the braid, and white fabric doe-button gloves match the blouse.

Lamb Stew, Orange Pie Make Perfect Combination

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Lamb Stew Mashed Potatoes

Cabbage Salad

Orange Pecan Pie Coffee

Now we have lamb stew in casserole, and the orange pecan pie is just the thing for the perfect finish of a meal.

Today's Recipes

LAMB STEW — Three pounds shoulder of lamb, two small onions, two cups tomato puree, two tablespoons chopped parsley, one cup thick, sour cream. Have the meat cut in cubes for stew. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Chop onions fine. Melt two tablespoons fat in frying pan or casserole, put in onions and saute three minutes. Add meat and brown well. Turn into casserole if one has not already been used. Add tomato puree and parsley. Cover and cook over a low heat or in a moderate oven, 50 degrees, until meat is tender—from one and one-half to two hours. Add water only if necessary. Just before serving, add sour cream, and blend well with sauce. Heat and serve immediately.

ORANGE PECAN PIE — Three eggs, four tablespoons orange juice, one teaspoon grated orange rind, four tablespoons melted butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two cups evaporated milk or light cream, three-fourths cup nut meats (pecans or walnuts), unbaked egg, beat yolks till light, add sugar and beat in. Add melted butter and continue beating slowly. Add orange juice and rind, blend and add cream slowly. The continuous slow beating is important to prevent curdling. Then beat egg whites till they hold shape and fold in just enough to blend; leave streaks showing. Pour into pie tin lined with rich pastry, grating of nutmeg if desired. Bake sprinkle with nut meats and a in modern oven until set. Test as for custard, by inserting knife.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Care of Range

In caring for your kitchen range, be sure that you don't set down heavy utensils with a rough hand or it will chip the enamel. Guard the enamel carefully, clean it only when it is cold, and then with mild soap and water, for "porcelain" enamel is glass, you know.

Take a small wire, not a tooth-pick that will silver, when you clean clogged burners in gas ranges, and use a soft brush, not a harsh fork, when you clean the perforated metal ranges.

Keep the oven immaculately clean, for that spattered foods won't burn into its surface.

And last, form the habit of turning the heat low after a dish has started to boil. Once you have formed the habit it will eliminate soon things as "boil overs".

KILL GERMS CLEANSES REFRESHES

Statistics Show Aging Population

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE PEOPLE of the United States are becoming older. When the machine age came in with the production of more goods, and better distribution of the food supply, there was an enormous increase in population growth. The development of our knowledge of infectious diseases and the public health movement, especially the improvement of the milk supply, cut down the death rate in infancy so that more people survive to the age of 20. Especially female children who reached the child-bearing age, and all over-lived early added to the population. Because the United States offered greater opportunities for expansion, young immigrants from abroad were attracted to our shores, which resulted in a great population.

But since 1930, other factors have entered into the picture. The machine age has created its own problems of the struggle for existence. The expansion of the United States has been pretty well limited. The increased population had itself raised competition to the place where prudent couples could not afford to bring large families into the world.

Whatever the reasons, the facts are that the age group below five years no longer was being replaced. In 1850, those under 20 years constituted nearly 50 per cent. of the population. In 1930, they constituted about 40 per cent. At the same time, there were twice as many people in the United States over the age of 50.

It is estimated by Hooker, Wolf-Dooley and Taylor in their new "Graphic History of the United States") that by 1950, 20 per cent of our population will be 45 years of age or over.

Programs Must Be Overhauled

If this does occur, it will mean a complete overhauling of our educational and industrial programs. Middle-aged people will have to be retained for productive living.

Although more people are reaching the age of 70, there is no evidence that the extreme limits of human life span have been extended. We hear every once in a while of someone who has died at the age over a hundred. Careful investigations of such cases, however, have disclosed that the claims made. The limit of human age is 100 years. In over two hundred years' experience, the life insurance companies of Great Britain had only one instance of a centenarian.

Girl Tells Why Young Leave Home

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH.D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College Western Reserve University

YESTERDAY we continued a contribution by a "teen-age girl." We shall have her conclude her say:

"And there, fathers and mothers of America, is the reason your sons and daughters leave home. You don't trust them. Of course you deny that you mistrust them. You tell yourself and everybody else that, 'It's for their own good.' You say, 'If a MOTHER can't give her daughter some advice . . .'

"Advice! Mothers, listen, you don't give advice, you nag and lecture and insinuate. You say, 'Well, who's going to give you advice if I don't?' . . . You say, also, 'I learned from experience, I didn't have anybody to tell me right from wrong.' That's their privilege, too, parents. Let them learn from experience." The younger generation of today aren't fools. Don't you think they have a power to learn from experience?

"I don't know how many people I've heard say, 'I don't know what the young folk of this generation are coming to.' All I can say is they aren't coming to anything any worse than the older generation is, sneaks and detectives.

Whom do you see in taverns? Young 16 and 18-year-olds lined up against the bar? Yes, and who else? Mothers and fathers who should be home setting a decent example to their sons and daughters!

Look at Yourselves

"Yes, you proud, wise, fine parents of America, look at yourselves—don't condemn your sons, your daughters. If you have a girl or boy who leaves home, don't say, 'He (or she) thinks he's smart; he wants to get out and run wild.' No, mothers and fathers, they just want to live their own lives, their own way. And take my word for it, their lives will be just as decently lived as yours."

We confess a deal of sympathy with this young woman. She probably has good personal reasons to feel that she does. Hundreds of other adolescent girls probably share the same quibblings.

However, she should know that not nearly-all parents are of the kind she condemns. Also, she should know that most parents, even those who seem so needlessly scene with the social affairs of their children, are trying hard to do what seems best for their moral guidance and protection of these children. She should know that parents keenly feel responsibility for their children, knowing better than these children, perhaps, the moral hazards facing them.

However, I have long believed, and often said, that if we parents were worthy our present children most to live good decent lives and acquire wholesome ideas, we will have little to fear of ourselves

Man Loses Faith in Girl, She Grows Tired of Him

By VERGINIA LEE

DOUBTFUL is that way doubtful, I mean about his girl friend.

In the first place the girl is seven years younger than Doubtful. Before they met she was fond of going to dances and night clubs, and when they first started to go together he was sure she would not be satisfied to go with him because he didn't care for such things. However, she assured him she was tired of going to those places and they became engaged.

Once during this time he had definite proof of her unfaithfulness —and with a married man, too. Since then he hasn't trusted her. While he was working they went out every evening, but since he has been laid off from his job he has not been able to take her out. Lately she has been talking of going out with a crowd of young people in the very places of which she previously had told him she was tired, and she also seems restless. When he has talked of getting married she has changed the subject, while at the same time she has seemed to want to marry.

Doubtful wants to know what I think about the whole matter, and if it is proper for a girl to take a fellow places when he is out of work.

I see no reason why a girl should not take her boy friend out occasionally when he is out of work. It certainly is perfectly proper, especially if they are engaged.

But your whole problem seems to have come down to this: The girl has changed in the two years since you have known her. She does not like the things she has to no longer satisfied with you and wants to go out as she did before she met you. She probably feels it would be quite a blow to you for her to put you on the left side and do the same. Eight to sixteen times will be enough.

Third movement: Is on your mark with the right foot out to the side, keeping the shoulders flat on the floor, pull thighs knees back to the chest and roll the knees over to the right, then to the left. Continue to roll until full contact is easily reproduced when you find you have traveled seven the floor.

Don't be downhearted, there's only one more and the reducing is over for the day. Sit with your hands back of the hips, and the feet flat on the floor up to the chest. Keeping the right knee bent, swing the foot to the left side as far as it will go. Then straighten the right leg downward and as that leg straightens out, the left knee bends back to the chest and swings over to the right side. Then it straightens. The whole movement is a continuous one of rolling, with practically no contact muscles and criss-crossing of the legs. Ten times and your through. . .

Exercising Best Hip Reducer

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

YESTERDAY strolling up Fifth avenue and loitering down Fifty-seventh street, in New York, this department vicariously was entering at the mouth. Of all the delectable things that have caught our fancy, the new spring clothes are first, hidden and hat. They are smart, they are youthful and they have that certain something that will make even the most staid one of us feel like a siren, and a wicked one at that.

But like so many good things, the new raiment has a slight catch before it can be perfect. It's pretty definitely demanding, and it hasn't the kindness to lumps and curves that the fashions of our grandmother's day had. Then three petticoats would hide a world of bulges. Today the clothes are scarcely frank. If you've got a bulge it's there for the world to see. So the result is we've got to make our shapes live up to our spring wardrobes. And if we want to be streamline by Easter, now is the time to begin.

Chubby hips are the most prevalent of women's hate hates. For as go the hips so goes the figure. And the most painless as well as least harmful way to pull yourself back into shape is by exercise.

This is one of our favorite hip reducers, and it has been used with terrific success in a noted New York gymnasium. It slenders and flattens the contours along the side of the upper thigh and over the hip joint. If you are really a brave girl this workout can be done on a heavily waxed floor. Exercising on the mat will give you a stimulating massage at the same time. But if you are more timorous, skip the mat and use the floor.

Going Into Action

Off with the outer garments and into action! Lie on your back with the arms out to the side, pull the right knee up to the chest and swing it across to the left side of the body, then straighten back to the first position. Repeat this with the left knee, alternating every six times. Do this twice more with both legs. Then rest a minute.

Next lie on your right side, with the right arm under your ear and the left hand flat in front of the body for balance. Pull both knees up to your chest, then extend them straight out in front of the body, then back. Repeat this four times with the right side, then turn over on the left side and do the same. Eight to sixteen times will be enough.

Third movement: Is on your back with the hands out to the side, keeping the shoulders flat on the floor, pull thighs knees back to the chest and roll the knees over to the right, then to the left. Continue to roll until full contact is easily reproduced when you find you have traveled seven the floor.

Don't be downhearted, there's only one more and the reducing is over for the day. Sit with your hands back of the hips, and the feet flat on the floor up to the chest. Keeping the right knee bent, swing the foot to the left side as far as it will go. Then straighten the right leg downward and as that leg straightens out, the left knee bends back to the chest and swings over to the right side. Then it straightens. Colorful Printed Jersey Frock Is Popular for Afternoons

By Central Press

JERSEY SILK is used for day-time costumes and for evening; for the north and the southern resorts. It is a very popular fabric this season.

Here is a smart little dress in printed silk jersey appropriate for afternoon promenading, for cocktails or tea. It is in a gay Peruvian print, and is worn by Frances Haigler at Miami Beach, Fla.

The popular shirtwaist styling is used for this dress in which the colorful print is enough trimming. White accessories are worn with it, and one of the heavy bead bracelets so much worn this year bands the wrist.

Poems That Live

SONG

From "Ach and Gaisha"

O ruddier than the cherry!
O sweeter than the berry!
O nymph more bright than moonlight!
Than moonlight night.
Like Kidlips blithe and merry!
Sips as the melting hutre;
Yet hard to tame
As rearing flame,
And flows as storms that bluster!

"Man - Proof"

Myrna Loy escapes marriage on one of her rare occasions in the ultra-modern romantic comedy drama "Man-proof", to be presented at the Bella Tonight, and Friday, matinee and evening.

Staged against a metropolitan background, the new picture features Franchot Tone and Rosalind Russell with Miss Loy and boasts an admirable supporting cast headed by Walter Pidgeon.

Adapted from Fanny Heaslip Lea's best - seller novel, "The Four Marys", the new picture tells a modern story of modern romance and marriage. It was directed by Richard Thorpe who was at the helm of the two widely divergent pictures, "Night Must Fall" and the crackpot comedy "Double Wedding".

In the role of Miss Loy plays a newspaper artist who is in love with Walter Pidgeon, a social climber. Others starring are Conrad Nagel, society girl, and they depart on their honeymoon. One of Miss Loy's closest friends is Franchot Tone, a musician who understands the futility of Miss Loy's love for Pidgeon. To him she confesses that she still loves Pidgeon and will exert every power to win him back. The complications follow are unusually interesting and will hold your interest from end to end.

Red Wings Have Chance to Make Third Place in Their Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings have been cast in the role of the National Hockey League's American Division cellar dwellers with all the consolations of a shlok if they pop out of the darkness tonight. They're tied bottom down in last place since away back in November.

And they must be good to step up even now for they meet New York Rangers in Detroit tonight and Lester Patrick's team is never a set-up. In addition, Chicago Black Hawks must lose to Canadiens in Montreal for they still lead Wings by a point.

However, the general impression is Wings are good well enough now to nose Hawks out of a playoff spot. The Chicagoans may delay things tonight because Rangers are threatened by injuries.

They have Armand Mondou, Polly Drouin, Don Marquis and Mike Karakas in the game and have brought four minor leaguers from New Haven, Providence and Pittsburgh—Tony Demers, Cecil Abrahamson, George Brown and Cole Mancuso.

Hershey will go into the game without Art Wolfe, Louis Trudel and Munh March but there recent graduates from the minors such as Virgil Johnson, Bert Connolly and Ivan Hickman—seem to have added almost as much strength as injuries took away.

Pay Tribute to Joliat

The Montreal game is likely to draw a great crowd tonight but they won't be there so much to see the game as to pay tribute to that great little veteran Aurel Joliat as he plays his 700th game in the National Hockey League and in a Canadien sweater.

His record of 16 seasons in the big time and 700 games has never been approached by any other player. And this despite he has never weighed more than 140 pounds.

The little iron man is a link with a hockey era that is recalled by only the old timers and the veteran fans. When he broke in with Canadiens in 1922 famed figures like Joe Malone, Didier Pitre and Louis Berlinguette were still playing the game. They were all fifth Canadiens as well as Odie and Sprague Cleghorn.

Joliat's celebration of his 700th game will be something in the nature of a swan song. It is generally believed he will retire at the end of this season.

The third game on tonight's N.H.L. bill brings the Leafs down to rooms in Toronto for a battle with Maple Leafs. The Montreal crowd is a win to keep within striking distance of first Americans now have five points up on them in the Canadian Division's third spot.

JOHN SHAW IS ELECTED PREXY BOWLING CLUB

An Entire New Slate of Officers to Guide Destinies

GOOD BANK BALANCE

Necessary Repairs to Greens Will be Made in Spring

John Shaw, well known and veteran lawn bower, was elected president of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club at the annual meeting of that organization held in the Y.M.C.A. building last evening. A complete new slate of officers was presented on the agenda of the evening and met with general approval for election. The meeting was generously attended, a large delegation of local bowlers being present.

Retiring President George Wallkin reviewed the past year's activities of the club and outlined plans of progress. Secretary Bert Backus reported a favourable bank balance was enjoyed and the fifth bank forward with renewed interest towards a successful season on the greens in 1938.

"Although we have several new greens and our club has added 12 greens in all, there is considerable work to be done on the older greens before we commence play in the spring", remarked Past President Wallkin in his remarks. A lengthy discussion regarding the financing of the club for these repairs was featured and resulted in one of two alternatives being placed before the incoming executive, either raising the present members' club fees or launching a drive for new members. The latter suggestion is being seriously considered.

It was announced the local Lawn Bowling Club handled over $1,000.00 during the past year, some of which was spent on improvements, greens, new lighting equipment and other features for the mutual benefit of the bowlers.

The slate of officers resulted as follows:

President—John Shaw.
Vice-President—H. Stock.
Chairman of Greens Committee—Charlie Doran.
Chairman of Games Committee—Ed Ellis.
Chairman of Reception Committee—A. Womersley.
Secretary-Treasurer—M. J. Varner.

A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring officers concluded the meeting.

GAME ON FRIDAY IS A NATURAL

Petes Can Gain First Place by Knocking Off Flyers

When the Peterborough seniors and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" clash at the Belleville Arena on Friday night the clubs are tied in the matter of goals scored for and against. Over the two three game series with The "Airmen" have two victories over the Petes as against one defeat, however.

Both Petes who play their best hockey in the Belleville Arena, gained a 10 to 3 victory over the Flyers in the initial meeting, the "birdmen" winning 5-3, and 6-3 in the Littlock City. Tonight the latter club has scored 18 goals against their opponents in their three meetings and the winner of tomorrow night's game will not only decide the status of the two clubs, but determine first place in the final group standing.

Although Manager Tommy Lawrence feels confident his charges will take the measure of the Petes, the latter will be playing without contested owing to the absence from the lineup of Johnnie Lalonde, who Tommy Lawrence's R.C.A.F. "Flying men" ran into a snag down in Kingston last night when "The Walsh's Queens' charges baldied the Air Force as surprise 4 to 3 at the Kingston. The Airport boys could not overcome the Airport boys could their group with a victory last night but now they are facing the added set before Pick Jilmar Lindell City segregation here on Friday night. That is if the weatherman feels so inclined to provide the most seasonal Hem, good ice. Last night's reverse was the only defeat the Flyers have tasted since their opening game of the Peterboro O.H.F. schedule, and then it was Peterboro, who supplied the victory. Quite incidentally, and after reviewing the group picture, we find the Queen's have yet to taste defeat on their home ice. The "splendists" crowned by Redmen and Flyers in Kingston and played the Petes at a time when they were equal to the loop not to have tasted humble pie on their home ice throughout the season. Queens' victory last night assures them of third place in the loop standing, while the Flyers' defeat practically makes Friday night's game a play-off for first place in the senior "B" section.

This Queen's outfit, is perhaps one of the best drilled squads in the ages and combination hockey each time out. Last night, however, the Flyers were minus Jimmy Reid, Art Bentley and Bill Wall with the result that eight Flyers were penalized and only six Queens were sent to the box. Tex Wilson was the "it" queue but we hear it rumoured that Joe Smith is going to be an official and the Kingston hockey fraternity is considering labelled to the self-same Joey fr. services rendered. Incidentally speaking we feel Flyers should take "First", Walsh's squad about any day in the week. Despite the absence of Gibson, Lalonde and Legris may have resulted in the difference last night, but—

Coach Jack Dickens' Belleville "C" squad took it on the chin for a 23 to 12 reverse at the hands of the Peterboro "C" squad at the "Y" last night. It was the local hoopsters 1st L.O.A.B.A. defeat on their home floor after scaling the group from outside the district situation, perhaps the locals should not be overly harshly. It was a hectic first half splurge that found Belleville on the long end of the score being 14 to 1 at the halfway mark. The Peterboro team was given one hour late in arriving, due to the heavy fog. Practically all of the hour the locals were forced to stand idly by and await the appearance of the Peterboro squad. They were out on the floor tossing the ball around. It looked as though they were either off key owing to the long wait, or had practiced too strenuously during their long wait although the locals did manage to score twice as many as the visitors in the second half.

PETERBORO GIRLS DEFEAT LOCALS IN FAST CONTEST

C. G. E. in First Place The Result of Their 23-12 Victory

BAD FIRST HALF

Peterboro Presents Strongest Defence Team Here This Season

Piling up a thirteen point lead in the initial half, the Peterboro hoopsters romped home to a 23 to 12 win over the Belleville "Y" lassies in a regular Lake Shore Ladies' Basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. It was the first defeat suffered by the Peterena-coached Quintet above girls un last home floor this season, while the victory elevated the "Electrical" girls into sole possession of first place in the group standing.

The tussle was keenly contested throughout, the generally checking the local girls into oblivion in the first half, that terminated with the Peterboro girls leading by a 14 to 1 count. Credit for the fact the local girls staged a heroic last period rally and staged a gallant and finishing effort, their 11-minute were virtually thwarted by the efforts of the winners, who played the night's honors throughout squad.

Paced by Peterboro's centre player Electric Co. Ltd. Quintet, well and defensive work, loose ball ability and accurate shooting at the Belleville "Y" lassies.

Although the Belleville "Y" Intermediate O.A.B.A. cagers are playing at exhibition game in Peterboro tonight, versus the fast Lit'Rock City intermediate squad., Coach Owen Atkins has a staple and fast scoring junior O.A.B.A. squad in town this year, but cannot get adequate grouping, which may result in ultimate defeat. It is rumoured that the Belleville "Y" hockey game a record no other player even comes near equalling. It must be remembered that hockey is much more strenuous than baseball, although Gehrig's record is worthy of note.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

"If," Sam told him quietly, between his teeth, "you weren't drunk, and a mere boy, I'd knock you down for that you young puppy!"

"Don't Sam," Maydra pleaded, "Let's in.... let's get away from here ....."

The waiters propelled Tommy, noisy, belligerent, and shouting all the manner of things every which way to the door, and turned him over to the doormen, who deposited him in the street, where he small cheer against the wall of the building suddenly robbed of all his false strength, suddenly unable to either stand or walk as the sidewalk and buildings began tilting and weaving around him in grotesque fashion.

"Now look what you got," Spud accused him, hurrying out with Ogle. "Couldn't you didn't get locked up in the brig overnight for this, bad fixed as well. You're a sap to get tough with Sam Locke, Tommy."

"Beautiful beautiful Maydra .... cosh! a million dollarsh ..... Tommy muttered and made two deep, unshakable slumber.

"Hey, Taxi!" Spud signaled a cab hastily. "Our buddy, here has had a bad spell .... pleasure trip up get him to our hotel!"

"Sure," agreed the cab driver. "What's the matter, is on the night of the Princeton game? I just found my wrist-watch and a lamp-post, adding everybody that went by who he was. He had a tag strung around his neck with his room number on it. Otherwise, I'd have never got him out of Copley Square!"

Rich and Ruffled themselves getting Tommy inside the cab. Maydra and Sam came out just as they drove off, and the latter's countenance rolled smoothly up to the curb for them.

"We're staying with some friends of mine in Brookline," Sam explained, when they were in the car, and moving through the thinning afternoon traffic. "One of Sandy's married sister, Mrs. Mackin. Do you know them?"

"No," Maydra admitted, "but if she's anything like Mimi herself I'll like her. He's such an unusual person isn't he Sam?"

"You'll like them, I think. Digge Macklin bought one of the old landmarks of Brookline and modernized it, preserving all the original beauty. And Rose is a natural housewife. Has one every nook and corner of the place. Sung it like a clam, too."

"You like home-women, don't you Sam?" Maydra said curiously.

His dark face lighted up briefly. "If it's possible for the woman to remain in her own home. To me, there's nothing so lovely and natural as a woman. I lost it, and that's older than civilization. Neanderthal!"

They came to the Macklin place and the car rolled up the gravel drive between giant elms, entered the magnificent semicircle on either side. A soft light glowed on the porch, and the beautiful, dignified old mansion breathed the old - world a pre - Revolutionary charm in spite of modern electric lights and telephones.

Digge met them on the porch, made the usual, but unfeignable admiration for Maydra, and went to the attic to call his wife.

"Rose Rose, honey, they're here!"

Then to Sam: You'd think you were the King of England, to hear her fuss over everything. I'm worrying for fear things won't be just right for you."

"I'm afraid we're putting you to too much bother," Maydra protested.

Sam laughed, and Digge joined him.

"You don't know Rose." Digge explained. "She's never so happy as when she's doing something like this. Only, you see, Sam, here, never even knew a girl, all those years and Rose has the notion you're one, I'm afraid."

Rose came in then, flushed, bright eyed, prettily untidy in dumpling of a woman with bright cheeks, a merry smile, and deep dimples flashing on either side of her wide, cheerful mouth.

"Come in, come in," she urged. "Isn't it just like that husband of mine to entertain you out here in his drafty attic!"

Digge and Sam went somewhere together, Rose took Maydra up to her room. A big, spacious room, the apartments of the four-square house— with a lok fireplace cheerfully blazing with an apple-log fire at one end. An old Colonial bed with a canopy, edged deeply with ruffles dimity around the top, and slim, graceful posts supporting it. A-ble, filled one corner. Across from this was a vanity dresser with, three mirrors, and at the other end a generous dresser. All of the furniture was of mahogany, excepting the twin fireplace wing armchairs, which were covered with a glazed chintz in a bright, cheery pattern.

A large oval braiding rug, and matching smaller ones, took away the harshness of polished wide floor and the tall, many-paned windows were curtained with deep ly ruffled cotn-cotting while Swiss Altogether a place to dream in, to sigh over, and to take away with you in your heart forever.

"Do you like it?" Rose asked shyly, noting Maydra's rapt ;sence.

"Like it?! the breakfast!" she cried. .... It's the most beautiful room I've ever seen! It's too beautiful for words!

Sam's hand on her shoulder told Maydra that the room had kept her too enchanted to hear the room approaching. He touched her soft hair with his chin and spoke quietly, almost confidentially into her ear.

"Is this what you had in mind, Maydra dear, when you spoke of that house in Connecticut?"

Maydra, with memories of Rose's round-eyed almost pointified excitement.

"Oh,Sam .... if we could! If only we could equal this!" she whispered.

"We can try," he promised quietly.

"Let me be the first to congratulate you, Sam, old man," Digge exclaimed finally during a brief reference to their words. If you're as happy as Rose and I are, you've been! .....

"You will be," Rose assured them both, warmly. "Sam is one in a million, I've always said he had one good for any woman .... but now ..... well, it looks like Mimi's his match, Maydra's the both of you!"

"Hey!" called a cheerful, deep voice from the stairs. "Who's getting all the good wishes? Sounds like a wedding or something!"

Mike Dunnaly leaped up the stairs, three at a time, and propped Sam enthusiastically on the shoulder.

"How are you, Sam? Thought I recognized your streamlining locomotive in the driveway when I came in. Hi, Sis! Hi, Digge, old boy!"

He turned to Maydra, and the familiar smile vanished, but something else took it place. A look of eager thrilling excitement that blazed from his face, and shone through his words, softly spoken carefully chosen as they were!

"And Miss Graham!" he greeted Maydra. "The most loveliest woman in all New York, and the only girl I've ever really wanted to know better!"

The silence grew until it was painful. Sam's hand on Maydra's pulled her head protectingly out of Mike's warm handclasp. And looked about him. At Rose, whose face was ashen, and so drawn and tense that it looked, having a stricken gray in its stead. Digge, who looked as if someone had yanked a rug out sharply from under his unsuspecting feet.

"Mike, darling," Rose said, silence desperately, "don't go pulling your foot in it, everything. just been telling us he and Maydra are engaged. They're house-hunting tomorrow in Connecticut!"

"Forgive me," Mike said gaily, lantly, bowing, and smiling grave-ly, but not in the least concealing the fact that it was a total surprise to him, "I certainly would hurt a long long time would linger there in his quiet way, even, every one knew Maydra for weeks, months and come. To the contrary, I was trying to be gallant to a lovely lady, Sam! Let me be among the first to wish you every happiness! And to congratulate you for having made a perfect, right girl?"

They left finally. Even Rose, after a few last motherly pats to the pillows and blankets, tried to unpack, to get into comfortable silk pajamas and mules and robe, and sit by the fire and think things out. Dream a bit, drink in calm, peaceful beauty of the lovely room. Plan her own, now that she had finally accepted Sam's plan, his offer.

At three she woke up, as people often do in strange rooms, to delay a moment, listening, thinking. A solitary magician light visible through the tall French windows, opening onto the screened-in sun-porch held her attention, and she finally got out of bed and moved softly to the window to look out on the curtain and look.

A solitary figure lounged on the arm of a chair, a pajamaed leg and slippered foot hanging on the seat of the chair. A cigarette glowing, as he smoked there in his lonely night. Mike, on the night.

Maydra went back to bed, after a long, thoughtful moment of watching him, but not to sleep again for a while.

"Why?" she thought in troubled wonder. "Why, when New York is full of girls of every type and description? Lots of them blonde? Lots of them far nicer looking than I am? Why did he have to like me?"

Because he had. She knew that. She knew that he had come up here to his sister's simply because Sam had told him he was going to the game with her, and stopping over at Rose's for the night.

The cigarette butt sailing through space— presumably into the fireplace at the end of the porch .... and for a long time after that there was the restless, moving, measured tread of slippered feet marching up and down the grass matting of the tiled porch.

Police Blotter

Found abandoned in Brighton five hours after it was reported stolen in Belleville a motor car, the property of P. John Cameron, 70 Alexander street, was recovered late last night.

Mr. Cameron parked his Chevrolet sedan on East Bridge street to report at his employer's office, the London Life Insurance Company, about 5.00 p.m. Being absent only a few moments, Mr. Cameron returned to find the motor car missing. Local police were immediately notified and a description of the vehicle dispatched to nearby centres. Shortly before 11 p.m. last night Constable Atkinson of Brighton found the vehicle abandoned in that village. Mr. Cameron was immediately notified of the recovery.

The stealing of this automobile from its parking position on East Bridge street makes the second such offence reported in Belleville during the past 48 hours. On Tuesday a Ford sedan, owned and operated by W. L. Ketcheson, Tweed, was stolen from a parking position only a few minutes after the "Intelligencer" car was taken. No reports regarding the recovery of Mr. Ketcheson's car have been received by police authorities as yet.

Activities proved of the routine nature in and around local police circles during the past 24 hours, however, no arrests being necessary. Nineteen transients were given warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night, while police directed the rear door of a local business concern insecure. Employees then had to secure the door before closing for the night, it was later learned.

MARKET COMMENT

The stock market during the past months or so has not acted impressively and many traders and investors, having become tired of holding on to inactive stocks, have sold out. Many others have remained on the sidelines and have not been tempted into purchasing equities on several of the false moves that have developed.

Four Best Continues Drop

A makeshift Cabinet is trying unsuccessfully to solve the major economic and financial problems now faced in France as a consequence of the excessively high wages, shortened hours of work, and long continued government deficits. A Scared capital is again taking flight, and internal hoarding is on the increase. The franc has receded to a new low around 3.33 cents, compared with 4.86 cents a year ago. French wholesale prices have advanced about 6 per cent. in the last year, indicating the inexorable progress of another inflation of the currency.

YELLOW CELLOPHANE HAS DESIRED EFFECT

Necessity is the mother of invention when the Belleville police, by a passing motorist during last night's heavy fog, that emitted the effect of red and motoring rather hazardous. Apparently having an eye for conservation, the agenius motorist placed yellow cellophane over the lights of his automobile, giving him the effect of fog lights. The cellophane was additionally set to the lights by means of a heavy elastic band. "Why they work splendidly," was the reported by the higher classed fog lights and the beam penetrates the fog," commented the motorist.

FIREMEN NOW TAKE ARTIFICIAL TRAINING

Under the competent eyes of the Y.M.C.A. physical training instructor, the members of the City Fire Department have doffed the familiar braid and blue for the conventional shirts and shorts of a physical training class.

Weekly, the fire fighting stalwarts disport themselves in the "Y" gymnasium and pool and are gradually attaining the physical fitness necessary for the strenuous job of fighting fire.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, I was a witness to an accident this afternoon, Willyum, I mean a real official witness, with my name taken down by a policeman and things of that nature. You don't think I'll be mentioned in the newspaper, do you, Willyum? I mean just for being a witness to a lit le woman getting knocked down by a taxicab, she said.

You'll be mentioned all rite, pop said, and ma said, O dear, how awful, what names did they call you, Willyum?

Because some cub reporter with an overheated imagination probably took it into his head that you rushed in front of the careening cab at the risk of your life and pushed the woman aside in time to save her from everything except a few lacerations and contusions, and no doubt that's the way you'll find it in this evening's paper and I'm surprised they haven't called for your picture, pop said, and ma said, How gaunly, I dont see why they can't stick to here facts instead of flaunting innocent witnesses in their columns, O Willyum I'll expire of mortification, I'll have a letter to the editor, Ohve be that paper, I cant wait too know the worst she said.

And she looked all set over the Daily Speaker 3 times, saying, Here it is, I found it, Willyum, why its only about 3 lines, it says Injured by Taxicab, Mrs. Anna Snoolers, aged 60, of 6426 Twenty 2nd Street, was struck by a taxicab at 7th and Market Streets early this afternoon and suffered minor lacerations and contusions.

You see, I was right about the lacerations and contusions, pop said. They apparently didn't think you were important enough to even mention your name be said, and ma said, Well if that's a specimen of accurate reporting whoever wrote had better take up some other line of business, the idea. What are you laughing at, Willyum, she said.

Oand I cough? pop said.

And he took back the paper and got behind the sporting page.

MAY MOVE CAPONE OUT OF ALCATRAZ

Rumor Persists Chicago Gangster Suffering From Paresis

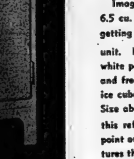
San Francisco, Feb. 10—(AP)—Reports were current that Al Capone, under observation in the hospital ward at Alcatraz Island Federal prison, might be transferred to the Federal Hospital for Insane Criminals at Springfield, Mo. The rumor persisted that the Chicago gangster, serving time for income tax law violation, was suffering from paresis, a condition which brings about destruction of the brain cells.

Dr. Edward Twitchell, consulting psychiatrist for Alcatraz, who admitted yesterday he had visited Capone on a special call Sunday observed:

"Frankly, Capone has paresis or anybody else has it, is now a remediable condition. Malarial treatment is always favorable and results in pretty rapid response."

Reports that Capone would be removed to Springfield were based on lack of facilities for the malaria treatment to be given at Alcatraz.

Destruction of Brain Cells



Paresis, the doctor said, "causes destruction of the brain cells. It is entirely different from the condition known as stir crazy which is a nervous condition.

"If the disease is discovered quickly enough, the malaria treatment is effective. Treatment, of course, cannot restore brain cells which have already been destroyed.

Reports have persisted, that the one-time leader of a Chicago mob has come to the attention of the federal prison Aug. 22, 1934, he was put in solitary confinement 10 months later after a fist fight. In June, 1936, he was wounded in the back by a convict who attacked him with scissors.

Federal officials declined to comment on reports that Capone began to show evidence of a "blow-up" last week. The reports were that he had refused to leave his cells for meals; must be re-made his bed for hours; broke into meaningless song, and finally collapsed.

CAPONE SAID INSANE

AL CAPONE

Former Chicago gang overlord Al Capone, serving an 11-year sentence in dreaded Alcatraz Island prison and purportedly in constant danger of attack from fellow prisoners, has suffered a complete mental collapse, according to reports from San Francisco.

The former crime ring ruler is shown here in one of his last pictures taken before he entered prison to serve the term given on U.S. federal charges of income tax evasion.

ENGINEER ARRESTED

Dumbarton, Scotland, Feb. 10—(C P Cable)—David Anderson of Wheatfield, Edinburgh, driver of an express train involved in the Castlecary crash of Dec. 23, was arrested on charges of culpable homicide.

Thirty-five persons were killed in the collision, midway between Glasgow and Edinburgh. Anderson appeared in Sheriff's Court and was released on bail pending further police investigation.

After the accident Anderson told interviewers: "We were going blind through dead on time at Castlecary and I seemed to be diving into a solid wall of snow. My vision was blinded. I saw the light of the stationary train. My hand flashed to the brake but there was no chance. I remember little after the crash."

Newspaper Bill To Be Reintroduced By Thos. L. Church

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—(CP)—A Bill requiring the names and addresses of owners, editors, publishers and stockholders of Canadian newspapers and periodicals to be filed with the Postmaster General will be introduced into the House of Commons this session by T. L. Church, (Cons. Toronto Rosedale). Notice was given.

The projected measure is the same as that which the Commons approved in 1936 but which did not advance further. Mr. Church has had this matter before the House on several occasions.

In addition to the information cited, the Bill requires that there also be filed circulars concerning the interest, direct or indirect, of any person in such publication or its stock, bonds, or other securities as the Postmaster General shall by regulation require, such information to disclose the ownership of such publication."

Says Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, or a good case for bones treatment as any friend can give, is to get a prescription known as Moone's Emerald Oil.

Simply ask Doyle's Drug Store on your druggist for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins have lost their prominence. Be careful and efficient as Emerald Oil has been helping ample swellings due to strain to disappear.

76 Jobs Offered To Witty Youth

Cleveland, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Told by employment agencies that the business recession had made jobs extremely scarce, 22-year-old Andrew J. Habinec inserted this in a Cleveland newspaper's situations-wanted column:

"Man, young, unreliable, dishonest, lazy, doesn't want position but needs one; Assistant Manager, Personal Consultant, etc.; Short hours, big pay."

Mabel Patrick of Montreal Enters on Fourth Day of Yawning

Montreal, Feb. 10—(CP)—Mabel Patrick entered on her fifth day of incessant yawning in a Montreal hospital today while baffled doctors sought a name for the strange malady that has kept her awake for days and nights.

Tired and sleepy, the 20-year-old girl was yawning about every half minute, but her undiagnosed condition kept her from lapsing into the sleep she had been struggling for since early last Saturday.

Her case was described by doctors as the first of its kind recorded in Montreal's medical history, belief was expressed, too, that it might be the first in the Dominion.

Haggard and Wide-Awake

Specialists were studying the girl's ailment as she leaned restlessly on the hospital cot, haggard but wide-awake and in full possession of her faculties. She spoke to the doctors and nurses between yawns, mostly to tell them she wished she could get to sleep.

Whether she would lapse into the dread sleeping sickness, the specialists could not say. But a nurse remained at the bedside constantly to report any changes in symptoms.

Her condition today was little changed from when she was brought to St. Luc hospital last night. She told hospital authorities then she began to get tired and sleepy four days before.

Cannot Sleep

On going to bed, though, she found she could not sleep. Then she began yawning. First the yawns came at long intervals, and then they occurred more often.

By the time she had reached hospital, she was yawning with almost clockwise regularity every 30 seconds.

The doctors said today she had not complained of being ill, or feeling pain. She was just sleepy. She understood all they said around her bedside, she declared, but she was so tired she sometimes found it too much trouble to answer.

Looking back for a possible cause for her illness, the physicians learned she had been let out from her job as a clerk only a few months ago. Since then, she has been looking for employment, often spending sleepless nights as she worried about finding a new job.

Then the yawns started.

Miss Patrick told hospital officials she was an orphan, daughter of an Irish father and Russian mother. She speaks English, French and Russian fluently.

an adequate share of Britain's rearmament orders. He had no argument with the official party in its opposition to concessions to Dublin.

General Franco's insurrection in Spain played a heavy, if unconscious part in Mr. Midgley's defeat in the Cook division of Belfast. In 1933 the Labor leader carried the constituency by a 1,200 majority in a straight fight with a Unionist. He then had the Nationalist vote.

Support Alienated

But the Labor candidate's support of the Barcelona government alienated the Nationalists, who favor General Francisco James Collins, Nationalist, entered the field receiving 2,887 votes and leaving Mr. Midgley at the bottom of the poll with 1,933. G. A. Clark, Unionist, who led both with 3,078, is the youngest candidate in the whole fight.

The government, off to a flying start with 14 acclamations, soon added eight elected members to its roster. All members of the cabinet, with the exception of Home Minister Sir Dawson Bates, were returned unopposed. Sir Dawson had Labor and Progressive Unionist opponents in the Victoria division of Belfast.

In 1930 there were young army officers spreading the Nazi doctrine were tried for high treason. Hitler defended himself before the court. The Nazi officers went to prison.

Those who remember the days when it was treason for an officer to be a Nazi do not expect Hitler to be a party to executing officers.

Precautions Taken

Rumors of arrest of many officers have not yet been substantiated, but observers point out that all necessary precautions against effective opposition have been taken. Even before the Chancellor removed Marshal Werner von Blomberg as War Minister, deposed the army chief of staff, retired 13 army and air force Generals, and assumed direct command of the armed forces himself.

The Nazification program is said to be now nearly ready for promulgation. It is reported the order will eliminate chaplains from the army, make the Nazi salute obligatory, confine recruiting of future young officers to men who have attended Nazi party schools, and place a political commissioner on each army staff.

Boats were offered by Al Weir of Rondeau to evacuate the women and children of the affected families and Weir will be among the flooded areas by truck. Reports from the district today indicated the water continued to spread over a large area.

It was believed the flood had reached its peak as the water had risen more than 24 inches since 8 a.m. today. At seven o'clock the official report on the water level was 13 feet, a fall of eight inches since two o'clock and dropping rapidly.

Rescue Blasting

Blasting operations will be resumed on the ice jam which extends about four miles upstream from the lake. The decision was made at an emergency meeting of Dover council, rovers and deputy rovers of Raleigh and Tilbury East Townships and engineers of the municipalities.

Dynamiting was started yesterday but stopped at night fall when those in charge thought it was useless to stop the flood. D. L. Campbell, M.L.A., for Kent East, attended the conference and promised assistance

Channel Made Thru Ice Causes Swift Currents To Lower Water Levels

Breaking of Solid Ice-Field Near River Mouth Brings Some Relief

CURRENTS CUT THRU

Fifth of Million Tons of Ice Estimated in River at Present

Breaking away of part of the solid ice-field near the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge caused by the strong currents made by the cutting of channels in the field by city workmen resulted in a release of the waters held back by the jam at this point.

Water, slush and anchor ice, that have impeded the natural flow of the water pouring beneath the main ice jam, poured over the surface of that part of the field, where cutting operations were in progress driving workmen to the safety of the river banks and forcing temporary postponement of cutting activities.

Strong currents flowing beneath the main ice jam have now established connection with the new channel at the rivermouth and water as it commences to rise is flowing rapidly beneath the solid ice field in the bay.

Ice Jam Settles

Noticeable settling of the ice jam, heralded some time ago as imminent as the near zero-temperatures of last night, that stretches from the lower bridge to a point some distance above the upper bridge, was apparent as a result of the removal of the slush and anchor ice caused by the breakaway yesterday.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. M. Thomson : Science Service Meteorologist

Harvesting and shipping too! A tale of getting rich by harvesting and shipping ice from his own ice pond is told of one Frederick Tudor. He shipped ice to Martinique and South America, and is credited with having introduced iced table drinks to the tropical world. In the first half of the nineteenth century there was an active ice trade between New England and the Far East; New England ice was known as far as India. February is the month for the ice harvest. Ice can not form until the water in the water is cooled down to 32 degrees, which is the temperature of greatest density. As it cools lower than 39 degrees, it gets lighter and stays at the surface, and freezes at about 32 degrees.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 11.—(CP)—The disturbance which was over Iowa yesterday has moved eastward to Newfoundland, causing heavy falls and gales in Southern Gulf of Lawrence and eastern Nova Scotia. An area of high pressure is moving north of the Ottawa Valley and the weather is mostly fair and cold from Ontario to the Maritime Provinces. Light to moderate snowfalls have occurred in the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Southeast winds, mostly cloudy and somewhat milder today and Saturday with some light snow.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy with light snow in some districts. Saturday, northerly winds; partly cloudy and colder with snowflurries.

Saskatchewan—Northerly winds; partly cloudy and colder tonight and Saturday; somewhat colder.

Alberta—Partly cloudy and cold today and Saturday; probably snowflurries.

REHABILITATION NOW UNDER WAY

Water Recedes Into River Bed Although Damage Extensive

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 11—(CP) — Rehabilitation was under way along the lower reaches of the Thames River today. Along a 30-mile stretch from Chatham to Lake St. Clair, river dwellers on both sides of the swift-flowing stream began the work of "mopping up" behind receding flood waters.

Thousands of acres of rich farm lands, inundated when the river, backed up by a 4 1-2-mile ice-jam at its mouth, spilled over its banks, still were under water but good progress was being made in cleaning many homes through which water surged earlier this week. Fourteen families were forced from their homes prepared to return.

Weakened by dynamite charges Wednesday, the ice-jam broke and passed into Lake St. Clair yesterday. Crews were rapidly recorded and at some points has dropped back to the old river bed. Much of the flood was left properly damage totalling thousands of dollars. Officials of the affected townships, Raleigh, Dover and Tilbury East, said it would be several days before a comprehensive estimate could be made.

Sulphite Company Pays $8.50 per H.P. For Third of Contract

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP)—E. T. Jeffrey, secretary and controller of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario said yesterday he doubted if HeadLOel T. A. Kidd, Conservative M.L.A., for Kingston had all the facts when he said special power rates were given the Lake Sulphite Pulp Company. Col. Kidd mentioned Bethune Smith, chairman of the Hydro Commission of Ontario, was associated with the pulp company and that the company got power at less than $9 a horsepower.

"I doubt if Mr. Kidd had all the facts" Mr. Jeffery said, "If he had he probably would not have made the statement."

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 11—(CP) —First of the sixty-ton locomotives piled Falls View Bridge was hauled to the top of the gorge today. Two chunks weighing three tons apiece were hauled to the roadway above. It is expected the work will progress rapidly now that colder weather has made conditions safer for the workmen on the wreckage. Log bonfires are blazing on the edge of the gorge, being fed with the lumber considered not worth being brought to the bank.

City Engineer C. A. Mott Gives Report on Flood Situation

Space 60 x 200 Opened Beyond Railway Bridge

DYNAMITE USED

Following is the report of City Engineer Charles A. Mott regarding flood conditions and operations of Smith department, as submitted to the City Council last night.

February 10, 1938

His Worship Mayor Rose and Gentlemen of the City Council, Belleville, Ontario.

Re: Moira River Flood Condition

Gentlemen:

I beg to submit the following report, on conditions of the flood situation up to date.

For the past three days I have had fifteen workmen cutting ice in the deep water channel below the railway bridge, using two power saws, several hand saws, two trucks and three horses. We have a space about 60' by 200' opened up now and are working toward the railway bridge to reach that part of the channel which has been kept open by the warm sewage discharge of our main sewer, which empties out under this bridge. Approximately four hundred and fifty tons of ice have been removed, although the anchor ice and frazil (slush) ice is forming again under the jam. It is very heavy and is slowing up our progress considerably. However, the current is very strong in the channel net where we are working which shows that the water is getting away through and under the ice jam in the river. This will relieve much of the pressure against the head of the jam. I estimate it will take us two more days to open up the channel as far as the railway bridge, providing the ice jam remains where it is and the water level or working it way underneath. GERMANY DENIES BORDER CLOSED OR ANY UNREST

Officials Claim There Has Been no Street Fighting

FURTHER CHANGES

Admit Garrisons Are Filled With Reactionaries

Berlin, Feb. 11—(AP)—German government officials are trying to squelch sensational rumors from outside Germany — of widespread unrest growing out of the military and cabinet crisis.

Reports of supposed army revolts in the east Prussian garrison towns, street fighting in Berlin, executions of 16 Generals and the closing of German frontiers were denied officially.

(Thus far investigation by the Associated Press Berlin staff and the Associated Press correspondents in surrounding countries has shown no basis in fact for these reports.)

Government officials who worked into the early hours of this morning declared the rumors were confronted also with problems surrounding the return of Premier Octavian Goga's pro-German cabinet to Rumania and the possible relations the new regime might have with the Reich. German Foreign Office officials in Rumanian affairs were summoned hastily from a ball for explanation and interpretation of the situation.

These two girls are both on trial at Newark, N.J., for murder, charged with the slaying of a bus driver as the climax to a holdup in which they tried to emulate the "gun molls" of movie and gangland fiction. Rumanian Patriarch Acts With Speed to Keep Order

New Premier Has No Party Affiliations—Civil Administration Under Military Control—King Carol Takes Hand

Bucharest, Feb. 11—(AP)—A new government with dictatorial powers governed Rumania today, commissioned by King Carol to restore confidence shaken by the six-week administration of the anti-semitic Premier Octavian Goga.

Sixty-eight-year old Dr. Miron Cristea, patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, is the new Premier and he will rule without a parliament by decree until a new constitution is promulgated.

He acted quickly upon taking the oath of fealty to the King with four sweeping decrees which:

1. Named military garrison commandants of large cities as prefects of their districts.

"State of Siege"

2. Made nation-wide a "state of siege" by which persons charged with serious crimes may be tried before military courts. (Bucharest and other larger cities have been under such "siege" for a number of years.)

3. Postponed indefinitely the general election set for March.

4. Ordered higher officials of village to call assemblies for the naming of mayors and two assistants, to each mayor.

Military Control

The decree naming military commissioners as prefects placed the nation's civil administration under military control.

Telegrams from the Premier's office authorized the commandants to exercise the prefectural duties and to "preserve order."

The hand of the King was evident in every move of the new government, which Carol formed by calling across lines of political parties after the collapse of Goga's regime yesterday.

It was emphasized at the palace, however, that the monarch was taking what he regarded as emergency measures and that he intended to return to constitutional forms of government as soon as the atmosphere clears of the uncertainties which the past six weeks.

Jews Optimistic

The new regime, after a period of economic confusion and action to suppress Jews, was greeted by Jews and Christians alike with seemingly widespread optimism.

The section of the population hailed the cabinet's intention to re-affirm friendship for France and Great Britain as a step to help clear the international horizon.

Truism in foreign affairs, it was pointed out, was a factor in Goga's removal, as he had been considered too pro-German to cordially suit Italy and Germany.

Jewish leaders declared they had received assurance they can continue normal business under the new regime.

Premier Without Party

Premier Cristea, who became Patriarch in 1925, is the head of a church of 10,000,000 members, about one-third of Rumania's population. He belongs to no party, but supports the Christian National Party.

He was one of three regents for three years after the death of King Ferdinand in July, 1927, the regency ended in 1930 with the return of Carol, Ferdinand's son, from voluntary exile. Carol's son, the present Crown Prince Michael was king during Dr. Cristea's regency.

Semi-Military Dictatorship

Goga was reported to have declined to accept a cabinet post, saying he wanted to travel abroad.

Suggestions Offered by Residents to Help Flood

"If Belleville people didn't have the annual spring flood of the Moira to fall on, they would certainly be a lack of conversation in the city hall about this time of year." it was stated at the council meeting this morning.

"Depend upon it, the Moira in February or March is always good for a topic of conversation."

But it is not merely the connection which is brought upon by aldermen of the city council, the department of public works and other city officials. It's the suggestions, the dozens and scores of suggestions, that are received weekly from various residents in the city, suggestions that certain in their own opinion to be fool proof methods of preventing the ice to allow the flood to move easily.

"We just can't keep track of them," stated one public works official. We get them a dozen or more a day."

Here are but a few received during the present week:

"Dump a ton of salt on the ice to melt it near the car bridge. We have used as much as a half ton of it melting catch basins and gutters alone," comments the department of works.

"Sprinkle coal dust. The dust being black will attract the sun rays to the ice. The ice will thus melt easily and quickly. It's a sure fire method." stated another.

"Use thermite."

"Dynamite is no good for ice blasting; gunpowder is the only reliable ice-breaker." "To which letter the head of the department agrees entirely).

"Put long strips of black cloth across the ice at the lower end to attract the sun's rays."

"Use a steam boiler and hot steam pipe over the ice needed to be cut."

It is recalled by the department that in 1918 when floods threatened more seriously than now, Mr. Harry Smith managed to cut channels along half the lower length of the river. When the flood did come, reports Mr. Smith, the flood water overflowed everywhere, except where the channels had been cut for the purpose of carrying the currents away.

TWO RECAPTURED AFTER JAIL BREAK

Three Still at Large in Sparsely Settled Area in Indiana

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 11—(AP) —Working in a driving blizzard and in a sparsely settled area of northern Indiana, police today recaptured early today two of five long-term convicts who escaped last night from the Indiana State Prison here.

Two other three apparently made good their escape in a stolen motor car in the Kankakee River basin, once a desolate marsh land region where towns and farmhouses are far apart.

The two recaptured were August Cummings, 27, and Frank Pavlovich, 24, who surrendered without resistance. Still at large were Theodore Roth, 25; Joseph Cengo, 26; and Angelo Cengo, 29.

Roth, Cengo and the first serious break from the Indiana prison since September 1933 when 10 convicts fled in a mass escape under Dillinger gang.

Cummings and Hulbert were serving sentences of 15 and 12 years respectively from Marion County for robbery. Pavlovich was under sentences of 10 to 25 years from Lake County for the same crime. All had previous criminal records. Perhaps leniency could be recommended for a restitution were made," suggested Mr. Donnan.

Frank Hawkins and Thomas Anderson, two alleged transients, awaited guilty charges of insubordination and after indicating they were unable to meet the fine imposed in Recess Court, sentence was imposed in each incident.

Entire Population Observes Minute of Silence For Emperor

Tokyo, Feb. 11—(CP-Havas)—Officers and soldiers, implicated for incidents in China which brought British and United States protests were believed today to have been freed in a sweeping amnesty proclamation issued on the 2,598th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese empire.

More than 300,000 political offenders in prison or suffering loss of civil rights benefited in carrying degrees from the amnesty measure.

The War Ministry announced all soldiers and officers punished for lack of discipline would be annulled in honor of the occasion. This, it was understood, probably included all those whose punishments were carried out in compliance with the protests made by the British and United States governments.

More than 300,000 citizens marched in parades, choruses and planes flew in formation overhead. At 10 a.m. the entire population stopped work, faced toward the imperial palace and observed a minute of silent tribute to the Emperor.

MAN CONVICTED ON SEVEN COUNTS

This District

Pleads Guilty to Issuing Worthless Cheques in

"This case is undoubtedly one of the 'prodigal son' type. This young man spend his inheritance lavishly and riotously, having squandered $700.00 inside of two months on what might be termed a glorious spree, if there is such a thing," pleaded A. B. Collins, K.C., local barrister, when appearing on behalf of Stanley Graham, Deloro, who was convicted on seven counts of obtaining money under false pretenses, totalling $160.00, when he appeared before Magistrate R. N. Donnan, K.C., in today's local police court. At the suggestion of the defence counsel and Crown Attorney B. G. Donnan K.C., sentence was postponed for one week, Graham being held without bail.

The accused readily admitted issuing worthless cheques, ranging from five to $75.00, all being worthless, during the month of December and January. "The accused has paid $25.00 on the largest cheque obtained leaving a total of $135.00" pointed out Mr. Collins as he entered a plea of leniency. "I know this man's family quite well, they are respectable farmers in Hungerford township and bear a fine reputation. Unfortunately my client is a married man with three small children and I would urge Your Worship to be as lenient as possible" added Mr. Collins following, which Graham interrupted and assured the court his brother would make restitution to the authorities, but not through him. "These plaintiffs cannot afford to lose this money, if there is any chance for restitution, the court will remand the case over," stated Magistrate Butler. "I suggest the court lay the matter over and that a Police Officer be sent to confront Mr. Graham's brother with his statement regarding restitution before sentence is passed. Perhaps leniency could be recommended if restitution were

TRANSIENT ASSAULTS DESERONTO MAN

Transients of Deseronto district have become so bold that residents refuse to answer for rappings after dark. BARE FIELDS MAY SUFFER DAMAGE

Cleared of snow following the recent thaws, grain fields in many sections of the Province are almost bare and some concern is felt by owners regarding the effect on their bulletin of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. In the Belleville area, the condition is not so extreme, it is reported locally. Unless severe frosts follow the thaw before snow falls again it is not likely that the damage will be severe as this is the first time since December the fields have been bare, it is reported.

TOMATO GROWERS WANT HIGHER PRICES

At a meeting of more than two hundred tomato growers of Brighton district, attended also by several from the Belleville area, a protest previously made by growers that not sufficient money was paid for their produce, was discussed. It was contended that the price of the produce was not sufficient to pay for the actual cost of the production. A petition, signed by the growers, will either ask for a marketing processing scheme, or decide against it, it is believed, following an address by William Newman of the Ontario Marketing Board at the meeting. A petition to be circulated in the district.

BUILDING DEMOLISHED WITH DYNAMITE

Dynamite detonations that echoed along Front street early this morning were not blasts being used to dislodge river ice, as was popularly supposed by a number of Front Street pedestrians.

The explosive was being used by city workmen in demolishing a cement building formerly owned by Messrs. Gordon and Gordon and situated on the west side of the river.

The building is being torn down to provide additional parking space in accordance with city plans.

ROBIN REPORTED SEEN

Add Prince Edward County harbingers of Spring:—When the ice in the Outlet near East Lake went out a few days ago, a red-breasted robin was seen chirping merrily from the top of a small ice hummock and according to Hamilton Johnstone, resident of the district.

23 Years Ago Today, 20,000 Canadians Were Moved to Battle Front

Twenty-three years ago today, 20,000 Canadians started to move from the training camps of England to the battlefields of France. Canada's First Division of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces which had spent the winter on Salisbury Plains amid the mud and misery of an English winter received the warning on February 8th they were to embark. By the tenth of the month the men of the "Old Red Patch" were equipped, ready to go. On February 11th the First Canadian Division, horse, foot and artillery started moving from the Plains. The embarkation in the morning and by night the camp had been practically cleared. The port of embarkation for across the Channel was Avonmouth where the transports were moored.

Today, however, little stir was noted in Belleville territorial circles. At the regular meeting of the local branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada held in Memorial Hall last evening, bare mention was made of the fact that many of the membered move in which so many Belleville men took part. French Cathedral Grandeur Told in Pictures by Lecturer

Dr. G. C. Campbell of Queen's is Special Speaker

TWO GREAT STYLES

The grandeur of French cathedrals was described by Dr. F. G. C. Campbell of Queen's University in a particularly interesting lecture before the Women's Canadian Club last evening, the exquisite beauty of architecture in detail, and the significance of each phase of ornamentation capturing the enthusiastic admiration of his audience. Mrs. G. O. Wright, president of the Club, in presenting the guest speaker referred to his work as head of the French department of Queen's University for the past thirty-six years, and to the fact that Dr. Campbell is Canada's outstanding authority in architecture. The speaker explained that the greatest love was for cathedrals, and his profound knowledge of his subject and his fine appreciation of these architectural wonders revealed the sincerity of his claim.

Finest Efforts

Cathedrals of medieval days, as temples of Greece, Rome and the Eastern countries were many times efforts in architecture, the speaker said. In addition they were wonderful revelations of the days in which they were built, of the life, theology and conception of the future that the people of their time. The charm of English cathedrals was in their "home-like" atmosphere, the beauty in their greater grandeur and in the daring boldness with which they were executed. While the quality of "safety first" influenced the English architects, the French were more dashing and dared to risk ideas which proved to be all right. Two great styles are noted in cathedral architecture, the Norman or, more properly called the Latin esque type recognized by its curved or semi-curved arches, and the later Gothic style of pointed arches which were found to be stronger supports.

Dr. Campbell pointed out that the cathedral of the Middle Ages was the poor man's—and the rich man's—Bible. Few people in those days could read or write. Church services, and frequently sermons, were conducted in Latin. Thus in order to bring home to the people the great truths of the Christian faith, sculpture and stained glass were made to tell the stories of the Old and New Testaments and give prophetic pictures of the life to come.

The Day of Judgement was much in the minds of medieval men and each cathedral had a varied and differing interpretation of it. Another characteristic of cathedral architecture was the conscientious manner in which every detail was completed, even those which would be seen only by the workmen and God. The masons of those days were motivated by glory of God and by conscience to make an object of priceless beauty every foot of space in the cathedral architecture. Hundreds of figures of similar size, in the arches, for instance, showed differences in attitude and countenances which demonstrated the patient work of the masons. Christians in the Middle Ages were not afraid to linge their religion with humour, and the most delightful and surprising conceptions of the life to come resulted.

Splendid Collection

His collection of beautiful slides illustrated the various aspects of these architecture Dr. Campbell described and those present last evening will regard the beauty of cathedrals with new appreciation and understanding. The speaker's informal manner, free from too technical an approach, delighted his hearers as he pointed out the outstanding features of various cathedrals as conceived by the architect-artist hundreds of years ago. Notre Dame with its great Chambyrnan rose window, its beauty of symmetry avoiding the dullness of perfection, and the darling skit of its flying buttresses; Amiens with its door which resembled lace in stone; Rouen capturing something new in its sculptural expression of Doom and Worshipping the soaring qualities of pure Gothic; Chartres, whose rose window, the most wonderful in the world, realized its beauty from the extraordinary, pure sparkle of some of its "bad" glass; and the cathedral of the Trinity, built by Matthida, wife of William, the Conquerer, portrayed Romanesque in design, were shown in the beautiful slides.

Mrs. Wright expressed the appreciation of the audience at the conclusion of Dr. Campbell's address.

UNMISTAKEABLE

Average Vote is 74%

Polling throughout the six countries averaged 74 per cent. Saarbrucken, County Permanagh, was highest with 96 per cent of eligible voters going to the polls. In Danzig, where the Nationalists boycotted the election, only 24 per cent of the registered electorate voted. In the Falls Division of Belfast there were 954 spoiled ballot papers. Numbers of them were marked "up the republic."

"When the Dublin Ministers returned to Downing Street they will have no foundation on which to base a renewed claim for the transfer of Ireland to the United Kingdom to Eire," commented the Northern Whig (Unionist) today. The polling results have cut the ground from under their feet."

"To Prime Minister De Valera's challenge of her position within the United Kingdom," declared the Belfast News Letter (Unionist), "the overwhelming mass of the people have replied, by direct incitation of their own government, that in no circumstances will they tolerate any change in its status or any modification of their citizenship.

Unmistakeable Verdict

"That is the unmistakeable verdict of the general election, in which there was one issue only despite all the efforts made in the various quarters to obscure it."

The Irish News (Nationalist) said: "The election was not fought on partition. In only three contests of the 37 fought yesterday were Nationalist candidates involved. Nationalists as a whole took little interest in the elections."

Belfast Nationalists wired Premier De Valera at Dublin urging the Eire government to make Irish unity the foremost issue of any negotiations with Great Britain.

SPARE CAPACITY

Mr. Jeffrey said enough an arrangement between the Hydro Commission and the pulp company, the company paid $6.50 for a third of the 2,000 horsepower contract and the regular prime rate of between $18 and $17 for the other two thirds.

"We have a lot of spare capacity in the Niplawn power house. The pulp company is located," Mr. Jeffrey said. "We have over and above ordinary, plenty of spare, double the 88,000 horsepower prime-head.

Power Is Guaranteed

"We're ready to sell it the power over and above the prime load to be used in generating steam boilers. The Sulphite Company has a contract with Hydro which guarantees to install a steam boiler and generate, their own power which our engineers figured they could do at $13.50 a horsepower.

"The company told the commission if it would sell them power at a competitive rate they would take the power until it was needed by the commission. They offered $8.50 per horsepower for a third of their 1,000 contract.

The board decided this meant a large saving to the system in selling the power. No special conditions were given other than those mentioned. The Commission can take the power whenever it is needed.

"There were some complaints but the companies who complained were in a different position than the Sulphite Company. The other companies can get the same rate on the same agreement providing the conditions are the same. It will not be long now until the system needs the power. Meantime it is being sold at the price the Sulphite Company can get rid of power for if it installed its own generator."

GERMANY

The rumor mongering of yesterday was the worst Berlin has witnessed since the blood purge of June 30, 1934.

The government is represented to believe the reports, practically all of which came from outside Germany, may finally be traced to one source or group acting together. The desire of certain of Germany's neighbors to obtain quick approval of their agreements for rearmament programs was cited as a possible clue.

Careful probing by the Associated Press Berlin Staff into every public and private source considered available led to this picture of the situation in Germany.

There have been no street fights or other disorders in Berlin;

The shaking last Friday in which Chancellor Hitler assumed supreme command of the army and navy silenced his hand in foreign affairs is drawing further changes in its wake.

Border traffic apparently is normal. At Mittenwald, important point on the Austro-German frontier, investigation showed no interruption in border crossings. Cologne sources close to Rhineland military authorities reported the situation quiet.

Denied Borders Closed

(Belgian officials at Brussels denied the Belgian-German frontier was being closed at the request of Germany. Advices from Basel, Switzerland, and Strasbourg, France, said both the Swiss and French frontiers were open. The Austrian official press bureau telephoned all German border stations and reported everything normal.)

From Berchtesgaden, Chancellor Hitler's Bavarian retreat, came reports he is recovering from the strain of the last few weeks and is expected to begin work Monday on his speech for the Reichstag meeting Feb. 20.

Mast circles made no secret of the fact that garrisons at Stolp and Allenstein in Prussia, as an example, are "filled with reactionaries." One Nazi spokesman said it was self-evident that changes must follow.

He added, however, that "you do not know the spirit of the army if you think they will do anything overt."

The army tradition—taken over from the Imperial regime, continued through the republic and now inherited by the third Reich—is to obey its commander-in-chief. If it acts in accordance with tradition it will support the purge.

During the next few weeks changes in the Foreign Office and the Economic Ministry are bound to take place. Appointment of Joachim von Ribbentrop as Foreign Minister and Walther Funk as Economics Minister will bring reorganization.

Dr. Patterson did not come into political prominence until his party was wiped out in the provincial general election of 1923. Shortly afterwards he was elected President of the British Columbia Conservative Association and given "extraordinary powers to manage Conservative affairs until a provincial convention could be held and a leader appointed.

The party concentrated on the 1926 Dominion election and sent five members to the House of Commons out of British Columbia's total of 16. In the summer of 1926, Dr. Patterson was chosen party leader.

THE CHEWING GUM LAXATIVE

Defective Appliances Said To Be Cause of 80 Per Cent. Of Radio Interference Here

J. A. Gervais, Radio Inspector Gives Instances After Many Tests

FILTERS NEEDED

Electric Razors Major Source—Use of Tinfoil Blamed

While the cause of interference in radio reception in the city of Belleville is a multiple one, about eighty percent of the static and other noises that have been the basis of complaints of a number of residents during the past three months is directly due to the use of defective electric heating pads and electric razors and other small household appliances.

That is the statement issued yesterday by Mr. J. A. Gervais, government radio inspector for Eastern Ontario who is in the city for the purpose of locating radio trouble.

"The intermittent crackling and steady whining that so many people have complained about, we have found is directly responsible to the use of unfiltered heating pads", Mr. Gervais said. "We made tests of these appliances and found them to be the main cause for a lot of the trouble. People using these things are asked to make a test in the regular method of procedure, and not by placing the pad near a radio receiver and plugging it in".

Electric Razors

"Electric razors have been found to be another major source of trouble. In one case we found interference a few houses away from where the razor was being used, yet nothing was heard in the owner's house. This was partly due to the different type of radio receivers.

"Owners of heating pads are requested to secure filters for these appliances. By so doing they will relieve the situation a lot. The form of interference caused by an electric heating pad sounds like the average dentist drill," Mr. Gervais stated. "It is a steady whine and makes and breaks at varying intervals."

High Tension Lines

The broken wrapped around a pole was responsible for the roaring interference that was the basis of complaints by vocal radio fans on the east end of the city, Mr. Gervais said. In addition to this two motors were found which were adding to the general noise. These have since been equipped with filters, appliances for removing such interference, he added.

Proximity of high tension lines is another cause of radio interference, he said, which would result in a town or city from a distance of twenty miles, and nothing can be done about it, the inspector said.

Very Dangerous Practice

Another cause of one that should not only be remedied but one in which care should be taken that it does not occur again—was found in several houses where occupants had placed their tinfoil lead from packages and ordinary copper coins in fuse slots where the proper fuses had been burned out. "This practice not only causes terrific radio interruption but is an extremely dangerous fire hazard and should not be allowed to exist," the inspector stated.

Inspector Gervais asked for the co-operation of the radio public in assisting to clear up the trouble. "We cannot tell people what they should do, but we can make suggestions regarding the removal of the many causes of interference and if the public will co-operate with us it will be much better for all concerned" he said.

Co-operation of Power Line Companies

"Powerline companies are co-operating with us one hundred per cent, he added. "They are using every precaution in their repair and construction activities in eliminating every possible source of radio interference."

Inspector Gervais made several tests in numerous city residences last night where reception was claimed to be almost nil due to interference.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET HELD BY PICTON SCOUTS

Interesting Meeting Takes Place in Mission Church

Picton—The annual Father and Son banquet, arranged by Mrs. Ball, Reg.N., for Scouts and Cubs of Picton Pack No. 4, with their fathers, in the Mission Church, on Wednesday evening, proved a very enjoyable event. Thirty-eight sat down to the well laden tables. The head table was decorated with the figures of two scouts before a tent, surrounded by a large heart. The Cubs' table had a miniature pack in the base of the figures. The other tables were decorated in a Valentine motif, carried out in red, with hearts.

At the head table were Scout Master Bruce Yarwood with his father, Norman Yarwood, John Vesterveil, and ddrs. Chas. North.

Mrs. Fred Shannon and Mrs. Jas Hamilton presided at the tables in serving a delectable dinner. The toast to the King was the first programme. The assemblage sang "O Canada" and saluted the flag.

Short play was given by Cubs. Mr. Bruce Yarwood gave a much enjoyed vocal solo, "Laugh", a contest was won by Scout Rex Cross.

John Vesterveit moved a vote of thanks, that was seconded by Wm. Hamilton. Cub Leader Jas Hamilton, Mrs. Ball graciously replied.

Scout Master Yarwood thanked the ladies, as is his custom, as he is confined to P.E. County hospital following an operation.

MIGHT ENDORSE NAVAL PACT

Spokesman For Japan Sure Building Race Could be Checked

Tokyo, Feb. 10—(AP)—A Japanese naval spokesman indicated today that Japan might endorse a naval agreement limiting the number of warships in the world navies.

"If the powers would approach Japan with the idea of quantitative limitation unpremised, it would make a favorable impression," the spokesman said in an interview, "and would go to end the threat of a world naval building race.

Qualitative limitation (limiting the size of warships) would be in contradiction to Japan's stand at the 1936 London naval conference, he said.

Authoritative sources have said the Japanese government will refuse the bid-open-door for naval warbuilding in notes which may be handed to the representatives of the inquiring nations Friday.

TRUCK DRIVER

"This accident was caused by a child of five wrapping a truck on the icy pavement, pinching the victim between the rack of the truck and the corner post of the Dundas Church. It appears that Lewis was standing behind the truck, not in wrong side for the driver to see, and in a very dangerous location. We exonerate Horace Taylor, driver of the truck from any blame," Chief Inspector Bert Hinchey told of identifying the body of Lewis.

Dr. H. Wallace Wannop stated that he attended the deceased at 11.30 o'clock and found internal bleeding from severely crushed abdominal organs, a rupture above the diaphragm, and other injuries. The immediate cause of death, testified the doctor, was internal bleeding.

Horace Taylor gave evidence that Lewis had been employed by Coulter and Huff since about Oct. 1st, 1937. The witness said he was driving a Dodge truck, loaded with three tons of coal in bags, two rows high, at the time of the accident. The load of coal blocked the back light of the truck. George Van Wart and Morley Dulmage testified to being in the cellar of the church at the time of the accident. The jury was out less than ten minutes when they returned, and Jno. Maher, foreman presented their findings.

Move Departments To Camp Borden

Ottawa, Feb. 11 (CP)—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, said last night the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps Training Depot and Tank School will be moved to Camp Borden, Ont., for the summer months. Training of the unit now is at London, Ont., headquarters of Military District No. 1.

The Minister said there was "no unusual significance" in other arrangements made for Camps Borden this year. The tank training will be there because there is more room for manoeuvres.

SUSPENSE OVER FLOOD

No man can tell what a flood is going to do by judging from the basis of past experiences. Only under specially favorable circumstances can he give anything like a good guess.

Stories like all other rivers which go afloat at springtime holds the people in suspense. Back of the flood is always the weather. Rain or mildness or a freeze-up, the thickness of the ice, the amount of water in the stream, the strength of ice at a strategic point in the river, so on and so on, such factors as these make general something too much for accuracy.

It is a safe venture to say that no one can say with any backing of real study how and when the ice will leave the river. Some one may guess, just as someone can in a less extensive sphere guess what horse will win the race, but no one has the infinite knowledge of all the factors to make the decision on the basis of study of facts just when the ice will move. That is what gives everyone a chance to guess. People like suspense for it gives them opportunity to forecast.

MYSTERY STORIES IN NEWS

There is enough in modern espionage news to satisfy the greatest thirst for melodrama the people may develop. Stories of ter storries appear in the newspapers these days from many parts of the world, only the stories are not so artificial as some of the plots which go by the name of spy stories, detective stories and such like.

News stories of spying give an air of reality and yet suspense.

The art product in the novel or drama shows a course of a plot in which men are involved and months or years are spent in the making of space of an hour or two for the stage or movie and a few hours' reading for a novel. It is the resource of the artist to give the impression of the passage of time. The artist goes farther, he shows everything with a rush and carries the public off its feet. But in real life, things move more slowly. The alleged spy does not carry guilt on his face when he is in a ticklish situation. The reality of the spy life is so different from the reality of the stage or novel. While there is suspense piled in heaps in the theatre and in the world the public knows in a general way what is going to happen. But in actual life, he does not carry guilt on his face when he is in a ticklish situation. The reality of the spy life is so different from the reality of the stage or novel. While there is suspense piled in heaps in the theatre and in the world the public knows in a general way what is going to happen. But in actual life, the public knows that only very vaguely. In reality it seems that spies do not put their heart on their sleeves for the public to look at as they do in fiction.

Yet the public likes the two—the news paper stories based on spy life and the dramatic and romantic form of spying as the artist reveals it.

HOW LIGHTNING STRIKES

For those who are abroad in weather when the air is charged with lightning, the discoveries announced at Pittsburgh on Wednesday to the American Institute of Electric Engineers that lightning strikes at the rate of 10,000 miles per second will be interesting. It is also found that tall buildings like the Empire State building in the city of New York City use a tongue of flame to wheedle the lightning for something more lightning hits the building times before lightning hits the ground. The flame leaps upward from the top of the 1,250 foot tower. The flame does not go all to the clouds, but reaches like a snake striking at something beyond its length. It guides the lightning down.

This fact is taken by scientists to show that the shape of an object on earth will often decide the direction of the initial lightning stroke. Lightning usually strikes downward and a cloud starts it, but the Empire State Building often pops at the clouds.

Camera studies of lightning show that it strikes both up or down. The original stroke is not seen by the human eye. It is a series of lance-shaped flashes, each about 200 feet long. These, one after another serve to "drill" a path through the air for the main stroke of fire, each lance proceeding farther than one before. These may be as many as thirty of these lances, said Karl B. McEachran, occasionally they take a hundredth of a second to build the pathway and they can start either from the earth or from the sky. This explains the ripping sound in a thunder clap.

Mr. McEachran then gave an interesting pronouncement as to what will explain why it is dangerous to stand under a tree during a lightning storm. He says that the first lightning camera picture taken of lightning striking a tree will show sparks and streamers of fire spreading over the ground at the base of the tree trunk.

Men and women know that trees are struck. Persons have often been struck and killed, or stunned while seeking shelter under trees. Science has once again give the explanation and shown why it is dangerous to take shelter under branches.

ROAD

The end of the road but widens to another beginning,
With the bright sun retreating before my eager approach;
The dust of the world's my reward—and the dear birds singing.
It is enough; to drift with the wind blown dust, to know not where,
Nor care. Content to skirt ambitions heartaches and its must.
To know the many moods of trees, and laughing skies, and the rain;
And morning flowers sipping of dawn gods crystalized champagne,
To top a sun drenched cliff at eve that is as ageless to me
As it is short in the eye of Eternity.
Perchance to muse with kindred men who pass, poled happiness
Down the thought coiled hall of the years, with peace in their eyes.

CONNY SMYTHE, BIG HOCKEY MOGUL, manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, put on an act at a recent hockey match in New York City, when he brought down the referee in a flying tackle because that official failed to notice what Smythe regarded as offside which resulted in a goal. Conny reached over the boards and encircled the official's neck with his tentacles. The official started to skate away from the trouble zone, but Conny hung on and finally, with the result being that both were grounded and rolled around in affectionate or otherwise, embrace for a few seconds until sanity returned. Conny explained that he was merely trying to fix the referee's necktie. What a wonderful sense of humor.

JACK KEARNS BOBS UP WITH A NEW WHITE HOPE, a Michigan lad who Kearns says has everything in the pugilistic line and would murder Joe Louis without raising a sweat. Jimmy Adamick is the phenom's name, aged 23, 190 pounds, and rarin' to go, has had 48 fights and scored 41 knockouts. Kearns has him ready for the Big Time now, and claims he is even better than Jack Dempsey when he brushed Jess Willard off the pugilistic map at Cleveland in the hot summer day some years ago. What a prize ring comeback Kearns brought four noted champions to the front and Big Money, his greatest, of course being "The Manassa Mauler." Dempsey collected $15,000,000 from the box fight game with its accessories of movies, pictures, etc. Bulldog Mickey Walker collected $1,000,000 as middleweight king. Abe Attell, featherweight champ and Stanley Ketchel Fields, welter, grossed probably $300,000 between them. On these fighters alone Kearns cut in for over $5,000,000, but he blew into Detroit a little more than a year ago broke. Easy come, easy go, but good for Kearns, and these guys tuck a bit away somewhere for the rainy day that one day comes to all.

RECENT REFERENCE IN THIS COLUMN TO COOPERTOWN, N.Y., brings back memories of the tales of James Fenimore Cooper, of Coopertown. Who does not remember "The Last of the Mohicans" "The Leather-stocking Tales" including this day neglected tale, "The Pathfinder, The Pioneer, The Prairie. James Fenimore Cooper was born in 1789 and died in 1851. He was born at Burlington, N.J. studied at Yale, served in the United States navy, retired and settled in Cooperton, N.Y., just before the war of 1812—an adventurous time, to be sure. His first novels featured life in high society circles in England, of which the author knew little or nothing, and were failures. In 1823 he turned to tales of adventure in his own country and scored almost instant success. Cooper has had many latter day critics but he probably knew the life and the trapper of his day much better than the present day critic could ever hope to.

The Truth About Florida Rattlesnakes

(ED. NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of letters written by Mr. Arthur Jones, who is now in the South.)

Clearwater, Fla., Thursday. Part. We have at last found the man in Florida who will tell the truth about the fatal, poisonous snake. He is Mr. Dawson, who owns a "21-Drive-It" boat livery, also row boats and deep sea fishing craft, along with bait and seal food in season, at Clearwater Beach. Mr. Dawson has done a lot of quail shooting which gave him a fine shooter out in the white sand wastes which are quite thickly grown with Cabbage Palm, Jack Oak and scrub Southern Pine. We find there are a lot of liars in Florida and we do love a truthful man. Mr. Dawson is now his rattlesnakes and has a lot of respect for them. His knowledge of these ugly pizen snakes is quite the most profound. We hope to be able to write in this article the truth about rattlesnakes which he has given us. Here is the first truth: There are a lot of rattlesnakes in Florida but it is very unlikely you will see one or unless you get out in the quail or deer woods. There is no cure known for the venom of the rattlesnake poison which this snake injects into the veins of the human body is the deadliest poisonous fluid. At Jacksonville two people were offered a field kit including serum for $2.00. At Inverness they wanted $1000 for a kit. We bought neither one. This serum is nothing but diluted fluid extracted from the snake. It is then added to it to dilute the poison which has been injected by the snake and greatly lessen the action of this Poison which can kill the blood corpuscle of the blood. Of course a tourniquet is supplied along with a sharp lance and a victim pumps it. The human mouth provides a good suction pump, but the trouble is that should this person who applies his mouth to the two punctures made by the snake, have a bad tooth or a slight abrasion of the tissue of the mouth or throat he is subject to die also.

Mr. Dawson informs me speed is necessary to save a bite. The first act is to bare the limb, nearly always the leg, apply the tourniquet tightly above the wound. Then lance the two punctures deeply with the sharp cuts and get very busy with the suction pump, at the same time inject the serum. If these acts are performed promptly the patient has every chance of recovery.

These snakes grow to a length of some six feet and are able to fling themselves their full length but no more. However they strike from an 3 coil which permits them to dart out and strike from a high point of a circle. The strike is a downward thrust and shot out at a rising angle. They are able to reach up about 12 inches. The poison fangs is folded backwards. The snake throws his head back when striking, when the fangs protrude and rake downwards. An 18 inch snake has 3/8 inch fangs. The fangs will penetrate heavy leather. Fancy the writher in high leather boots coming over those and wastes thinking himself safe. You're telling me!

The reason people very, very often get bitten in the foot is because the snake strikes a rising blow. Should one fool be raised by the act of walking it is quite possible to be struck in the foot.

I am with Mr. Dawson in my respect for the Florida Rattlesnake. Other people have told me it is a friendly snake, preferring to glide off at the approach of footsteps, but I'm quite convinced its anger is really aroused. For protection soft woven metal leggings can be procured. Hunters sometimes encase their legs from the knee down in lengths of ordinary stove pipe. Mr. Dawson emphatically declares that the clear, while venom of this snake has great digestive qualities in destroying the blood and if he should be struck when wearing six 16 or 18-inch high leather boot, the fangs not entering the flesh, he would never wear those boots again, in fact destroy them for fear of infection arising from venom left in the shoe or a broken-off fang that might scratch the foot.

That Body of Yours

Migraine — One Sided Headache

When it was announced a few years ago that the clinic of a large university was willing to investigate migraines and sided headache —by having these sufferers come into hospital to be studied, over 700 applied. This gives some idea of the great prevalence of this disturbing and distressing ailment which renders the patient helpless from headache, nausea and vomiting for days at a time.

It has been found that migraine is not really a disease or single ailment but a group of symptoms due to various causes: nervous and mental strain or overwork, eyestrain, intestinal upsets and constipation, poisoning from imperfect working of kidneys, thyroid and other glands.

That the liver is a factor— some sort of proper working of the liver has long been the opinion of many physicians, including myself. Dr. Hendrick Heffernan in a recent report from Dr. Elizabeth Franck, of Berlin, reported in the June issue of the American Medical Association. There were eight patients with migraine, all of whom were carefully and frequently examined. It was found that six of them had a family history of migraine. Liver and gall bladder disturbances were observed in all.

The working ability of the patients was investigated in the four cases and in three of these the pancreas was not manufacturing enough pancreatic juice.

In five of the patients too much water was being held in the tissues. In all the cases there was an increase of the "urobilin bodies" in the urine, which were regarded as due to liver disturbance.

The French surgeons that autointoxication (self-poisoning) which begins in the bowels because it does not filter out the poisons, allows this poisoned blood to go to the brain and irritate the nerve centers in the brain. This swelling by excess water causes the one-sided headache.

It would appear that some individuals have a constitutional and inherited tendency, develop migraine because of the faulty working of some of the body processes and organs. Strain or prolonged effort mental and physical—may be the exciting cause.

Rest and the use of ergotamine tartrate and other remedies to stimulate certain body processes give relief in a few hours up to a few days.

EDUCATION WEEK

Home and School Associations

(By Mrs. E. R. Legie)

An important movement among the many new developments in the broad field of education can be seen in the formation and growth of Home and School Associations. This movement grew out of the idea that the home as well as the school should play an active and intelligent part in the preparation of children to meet the exigencies of life.

A little over twenty years ago in several cities in Canada isolated groups of parents were banding themselves together with the idea of producing better understanding between home and school and of co-operating more closely with the teachers, who had charge of their children during so many of their waking hours, in matters of health, discipline and wise use of leisure time.

In Ontario the leader of one of these groups was Mrs. A. Courtice, a woman of courage and vision. She was the wife of a Methodist Minister in Toronto, and Convener of the Educational Committee of Toronto Local Council of Women. In this capacity she frequently attended meetings of the Board of Education and, as her interest in educational matters became known, she had many letters from parents who told of misunderstandings between teachers and pupils and from teachers who felt that they could work more efficiently if they could know more of their pupils' background.

After consulting with presidents of several organizations interested in forwarding the cause of better understanding between Home and School Mrs. Courtice announced that a public meeting would be held in University School to discuss the possibility of greater co-operation between the parents and teachers of Toronto. Many came to this meeting and as a result of discussions there held the Toronto Home and School Council was formed with these objects:

1. To study educational issues.

2. To strengthen public interest in the development of the individual as a part of the social life.

3. To encourage the formation of Home and School Clubs in connection with the schools of Toronto.

It was decided that these clubs were to have study programmes, courses of lectures and round table conferences dealing with the educational matters and also social activities.

Representatives from nine clubs in Toronto attended this meeting of organization. In three years the work has grown and spread to many other places in Ontario and the need of a provincial organization was felt. This came to pass in May 1916 when delegates from well known Home and School Clubs and Parent - Teacher Organizations in Ontario met in Toronto and the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations was organized. Its aim, as stated, was "To waken public interest in all educational matters by means of organizations and discussions and by providing literature and lectures."

From that time until the present the Home and School movement has continued to grow. Many Associations interested themselves in providing schools many material things long desired by teachers but which, for financial or other reasons were not provided by School Boards—pianos, drinking fountains, duplicators, phonographs, pianos, equipment for playgrounds, in one city, which relieved local financial difficulties, the Home and School Association assumed the burden of paying the Instructor in Manual Training and Domestic Science and also provided equipment for the city to continue. But in the midst of all these activities the focus was never lost sight of, that Home and School Associations are educational organizations and their opportunity can best further the interests of their children by increasing their own knowledge and by creating the right kind of public opinion.

Study groups have been formed in parent education, current events, citizenship, Child Welfare and in lively interest in these groups is fostered by the Federation. Co-operation with School Nurses led to better care of the pre-school age child, provisions for hot lunches for children in country districts, parent-teacher and home-nursing and first aid. Discussions of the right use of leisure time led to drafts of movies and radio programmes and their effect on the life of the modern child. "What we want," said the Home and School Association, "is an awakened parent-hood to a realization and a study of all forces influencing child life."

The ideals of the Association are best summed up in

(Home and School Creed)

WE BELIEVE:

1—That a Home and School Association should be concerned with all problems that relate to the welfare of the child in the home, school and community.

That the great object should be to interest all people in all children and to link in common purpose the home, the school and other educative forces in the life of the child, to work for this highest end.

That it should learn first hand all school conditions and all the town conditions affecting the child.

That it should encourage all influences and conditions which will ensure the growth and safety of the child.

That it should work actively to supply the school and community needs by every legitimate sentiment which will favor and provide good teachers, good school equipment and adequate reaction for leisure time.

That it should give service to the home by training for parenthood and homemaking and to the school by adding parent power to school power.

That it should not be the means of entertainment, or charity, or collection of money, but a co-operative, non - partisan, non - sectarian, organization, in effort to produce Canadian citizens who shall be capable of perpetuating the best in our national life.

WE BELIEVE:

That the principles which guide the Home and School Association are the embodiment of educational principles in service, civic virtue, patriotism and ideals of worship.

A. E. Marty, President of the Ontario Educational Council defined the code of ethics of parents (A Parents' Code of Ethics):

1—I will study my child's educational contact with the school-my child's attitude and develop myself of the opportunity to visit it and get first-hand information of the pupil's scholastic standing and activities of the school.

2—I will support the school's disciplined and constructive attitude towards the school and its activities.

I will support and cooperate with the teaching staff and Board of Education to the fullest possible extent.

I will make no hurried criticisms, but will act only on the school Association and first-hand information and after sober judgment.

I will discourage fault-finding on the part of my children and will endeavor in their presence to form adverse criticism of the teachers and the school.

I will expect nothing for myself or for my children contrary to the interests of the school.

3—I will accept my share of the responsibility for the home and school as partners in the education of my children.

I will provide home conditions favorable to study and will cooperate with the school in developing and protecting the health and character of the children.

4—I will try to keep pace with modern education by reading periodicals and books on progressive educational movements.

Chapter 30

At breakfast, which was very gay and utterly charming, as he teased the two Macklin children, and kept them spellbound promising them an electric racer and a talking doll respectively, the latter item which seemed to have regained his composure with the night's rest.

Sam regretfully refused a golf game with Diggs, as Mike and a friend member offered to do as Jeks' insisting they had to get an early start. Rose was occupied with the children, but still eager to share confidences with Maydra and it was all very friendly and informal and jolly.

The two maids came in and out taking away fruit plates, bringing omelet, and muffins and water thin slices of crisped ham. They were cheerful base chambray uniforms, and Maydra decided that she'd have hers wear gray brocade cloth and sheer organdie aprons instead of starched linen.

There were spacious guest chambermans in two tall vases at either end of the dining room fireplace mantel, and a low, wide bowl on the table glowed with a mass of deep blue cornflowers. In the kitchen, beyond the serving pantry, the maids chatted as they ate and told of the cook's industry.

Prima donna and Pristella pounded on the colored comics, the moment breakfast was over, and Maydra's privacy was strengthened a dozen fold, as she remembered that she had loved her own comics to read as a child. They were fortunate to get enough to eat, much less papers to read on Sunday morning!

The table was spread his paper out flat on the floor, and lay flat on his stomach, carefully scanning each picture - then returning to read the dialogue. The little girl lay beside him a sofa pillow under one elbow as she scanned each one hilariously, and the sun of comics of caricature. Their lips moved eagerly, softly, and they read aloud, often, and the airs of their faces had each exist for the time being, as they raced through these fantastic adventures with their dearly familiar friends in the funnypaper land.

"Look," Sam whispered, "did you ever see anything like it?"

Maydra, shook her head, smiling gently at the two rapt youngsters Sam went on soberly. "A boy and a girl too!"

Junior glanced up, swiftly, his laughing face alight and eyes bright with excitement.

"Look look, Uncle Sam!

Sam knelt to look, and Maydra stood very still and quiet remembering suddenly how wonderful it were like that. Exactly the same shade as Junior. Sometimes when Tommy's hair was rusty blond boy's sort of stiff, unruly, rusty blond!

She couldn't noticed particularly when she had been with Rose, though of course the little boy had the same dark blue eyes, exactly. Why must she discover it now? Why start thinking about Tommy Chisholm now? This late?

Of all times, especially, now that she had practically promised to marry Sam, and was actually a guest at his lawyer's sister's home!

"Shall we go now, dear?" Sam asked finally, after reading several of the comics to the little boy!

"Diggs is more blessed than he'd ever believed. Children never occasions "to buy lollypops with!"

"Of course, Sam!" Maydra agreed though, she had been anxious to leave, to escape from the conflicting emotions of anxiety and confusing force through her mind for some time. Ever since the moment Junior's bright gaze reminded her sharply of Tommy. Tommy whom she must forget, quite, now that she was marrying Sam.

Sam took her hand to the car steps, and the chauffeur carried them to the car. Diggs and Rose came down the steps to stand chatting, until they were ready to leave. Mike lounged against a porch pillar, smoking his short briar pipe, the morning sun picking out gray streaks in his thick hair, reddening his face, which reached up to his eyes and mouth.

"See you in town, Sam ....and if you don't invite me to your wedding, I'll sue you for all you're worth, you daughter twenty years from now!"

The car rolled away, finally, and shot up around the Frog Pond, and out past Nurmenton Park. Presently they were on the Post Road, and Sam, now that he was at last relaxed in Maydra's tense nerves.

"There's a place in Darien," Sam remarked, studying a list which had given him thirty acres, plenty of park, small stream, running water, five fireplaces ..... built in 1783. Then there's this one in Stafford a bit older, but no ..... I had a ravishing spot in mind, Maydra. Do you like to swim?"

"Love to," she agreed, adding softly, "I used to when there's a private pool." "We'll have one filled and marble," he promised with a smile. "That's the best place to Old Lyme again, for dinner? Or would you like to go on to some other place, before we get there?"

"Old Lyme," Maydra said, "will be a friend, rediscovered Sam."

They finally ended the day with three places found, each of which they promised to look over shortly. And since price had nothing to do with their decision, they had to wait for the final selection until a later date.

They had dined at the little inn of their previous Sunday outing and were met by the same waiter who had served them before, and Maydra felt a little pang of sadness, remembering that there was no good reason for her to be really. She had done nothing but lie to him and to Sam, and to be a leisurely dinner. "I'm usually hungry."

"Tuesday," he told her finally, "I'll call you then. I'm a good deal."

It was with genuine gratitude and relief that Maydra entered the familiar studio, and slipped out of her clothes to don the pajamas she had paid five thousand dollars for and which already had become a necessity to her.

Maydra ... sway on is velvet hanger, and slipped out of the bathroom in the soft, silken corduroy pajamas. She was turning on a comb through her shining hair, when a soft, rippling cascade of chords on the piano startled her.

Gerda? Gerda out there, and not saying a word, just playing so sad? Opening the bedroom door a little wider, she stood there, quite still staring at Bill Leland's beautifully sculptured head thrown back against the piano, against the square of light from the window. Bill, in white flannels, and suddenly more tired, more defeated than ever before. "Bill, what are you doing here?"

He looked up gravely from the keyboard, she smiled his odd, half sober, half-questioning smile and answered her gravely. "Can't you see?"

"Bill, finished the second Rhapsody with a little more feeling than usually interpreted in the second and swung around to face her.

"Come and sit down, Maydra, I waited to talk with you."

She sank into the deep lounge chair and accepted his cigarette. "Gerda?" she asked quietly. "What did you do with Gerda? Or is she in on this?"

"Gerda took the college boy to the train and put him aboard," Bill stated calmly, after we wrangled some of the kinks out of his addled brain. He came to spoon-size. It seems he is taking a mob up in Boston last night. Got thrown out of the hall."

"Yes," Maydra admitted, "that much is right. But why did you send this to you? Why tangle your long golden slickers in my affairs, Grandpa?"

"He's in love with you, Maydra" Bill warned her, "Rather terribly in love with you!"

"So what?" Maydra inquired a trifle irritably.

"And you're in love with him, Maydra!" Bill added somberly.

"I'm marrying Sam Locke, Bill!" Maydra informed him briskly, I promised him to-day!"

"Oh, no, you're not," Bill told her quietly, "You think you are, Maydra, but you really aren't marrying three million dollars! There's a difference!"

"And you go to Hollywood on me, Bill!" Maydra asked impatiently. "I've a right to live my own life in my own way! And you wouldn't have come to Winterport and my reasons for choosing this way, either!"

"Not" Bill smiled sardonically. "I shoveling walk in Cambridge with the snow at twenty below and I tended furnaces and washed windows, and cleaned up, and minded dogs and babies. To get through college."

"Did you," Maydra asked him through taut, gray lips, "ever lay shooting a side-hill farm that was mostly rocks with a half - dead horse, and a wife who thought you ought to hang onto the plow handles ... Bill! Bill you're not living on oatmeal, three times a day, without sugar, because it and some canned figs cost a day to live on it, and five cents was all you had You should talk to me about — about romance! About college boys and things like that! Bill, you don't mean that you make me tired!"

"Maydra," he said harshly, "you don't never know anything other than poverty, You had Congressmen, beyond a doubt, need I— was born to luxury, To money, to fabulous, unearned ease, to his eyes and mouth.

"Bill, you're crazy, Sam ....and if you don't invite me to your wedding, I'll sue you for all you're worth, you daughter twenty years from now!"

The car rolled away, finally, and shot up around the Frog Pond, and out past Nurmenton Park. Presently they were on the Post Road, and Sam, now that he was at last relaxed in Maydra's tense nerves.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Happy 11 Years Husband Now Wants Divorce

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Until the last few months, my husband and I had always got along well. After eleven years of marriage, I have a son 17 by a former marriage, who is very fond of his stepfather.

Of late my husband has taken to staying out till all hours, and has asked for a separation. He wants to give me the household furniture and car and says he will pay the rent. I feel at times as if I've gone my mind, when he sits around and won't say a word, and even declined to open the Christmas present my son has given him. He has a good city job. I just don't know what to do next.

Lonesome Wife

When a husband suggests a plan of this sort it is well for a wife to consider carefully the step she will take and not be railroaded out of her home because her husband is indulging in skirt-chasing, either general or particular. As you've been married eleven years, his asking for a separation must be more than a boy's whim, and it might be kinder to him not to take up the offer of rent-paying, furniture and car too quickly.

I've known of a good many men approaching middle-age who got tired of the old home, the old wife and the old associations. And when they shifted to newer pastures, weren't as happy as they imagined they would be. Man-like, they came back and abused the old wife for having them too seriously when they asked for freedom.

Be sure it's more than a temporary aberration before you accept these proposals.

Drinking With Old Gang Peeves His Fiancee

Dear Miss Fairfax:

All of my former boy friends are now married but me, but I don't say due to chum with. My parents are divorced, and I've been rooming by myself for the last nine years, earning a small salary. I am 25. My only friend is a married woman and her family, and we've been engaged since last fall, and hope to be married soon. But I decided to wait until I had a little more income. But things look so hopeful.

My girl friend gets peeved when I do go out with some of the old gang because then they're inclined to indulge in drinks and doesn't want me to indulge. The girl friend works for a reliable concern, and draws a good-sized salary. She has a lovely home, and her parents would give her anything within reason.

As we live in separate towns, twenty miles apart, I get very lonesome, and I often think if the rest of the gang can get by, why can't I?

Disgusted

Why a young man with such a charming fiance as you describe to me should sign himself "Disgusted" is a mystery. Since the young lady is so fortunate in her family, and you wonder if you could get by as well as the rest of the gang, have courage and try to get by. I suppose your fiance like many young girls, proposes to hold her job for a year or two.

Over-friendliness Sometimes Mistake

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I'm so interested in is employed in a neighborhood store where we deal. Naturally, he's friendly when I go there, but in a little shy and reserved. A friend who knows him says he doesn't take girls out, because he has never found one he cares to spend money on. He's the sole support of his mother and is educating a younger brother, I don't object to his economizing.

I thought of inviting him to the house with a group of other young people but my girl chum thinks I'm flirtatious, and says I'm inclined to be too friendly with every one. Why shouldn't I be, if that is my personality?

R.

If your friend is correct in saying you're inclined to be flirtatious and too friendly, I think it would be a mistake for you to try and be quiet in this serious young man who is the sole support of his family. Perhaps you're not doing anything you tell me of, but which I haven't space to print.

It would be friendly to invite him, with a group of other young people, to the house, but you don't turn on the personality and flirtatiousness that is part of your friend's accusations are true.

AT THE BELLE

"Stage Door"

One of the strongest and most significant star combination of recent years comes to the Belle with Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou and Katharine Hepburn in the leads of RKO Radio's "Stage Door". All three are ideally cast . . . Miss Rogers as the wise-cracking chorus girl, Menjou as a smart Broadway impressario, while Miss Rogers handles her dancing shoes (except for one scene), in favor of a sparkling comedy role . . . that of a wise-cracking night club entertainer.

Based on Edna Ferber and Kaufman's screen adaptation of the New York stage success by George Kaufman and Edna Ferber, "The Royal Family", "Stage Door" takes place in a typical New York theatrical boarding house, in a smart night club, in the offices of a Broadway producer, in the palatial homes of a wealthy theater, and in New York Theatre on the opening night of a play.

Fifteen newcomers to the screen are given unusual opportunities in "Stage Door". They are the girls of the struggling aspirants for fame who live in the boarding house. Each girl was carefully chosen by La Cava famed director and each "bit" role was so carefully developed as if it were a stellar part, it is believed by Director La Cava that several stars may emerge from the group.

Gail Patrick has the top supporting role. Other featured players are Constance Collier, Andrea Leeds, Lucille Ball, Samuel Hinds, Ralph Bellamy, Franklin Pangborn, Jack Carson and Franklin Pangborn.

Miss Hepburn's role in "Stage Door" follows along the lines of the part in "Morning Glory" for which she won the Academy Award in 1933. By an interesting coincidence, Menjou was also in the cast of that picture, playing a Broadway producer, a type of role which he also plays in "Stage Door". Miss Patrick has an important gold-digger role, Miss Leeds plays the part of a wealthy whose suicide inspires Miss Hepburn to a climatic emotional performance.

"Phony Boy" a smart Musical Revue, the World's News Service and Wall Disney's latest "Donald's Ostrich", February's funniest cartoon, are announced for entertainment on the same program. A thrilling chapter of the "United Stallion" adventure story will be exhibited Saturday matinee.

Myrna Loy, Tonight

Myrna Loy, recently voted the most popular actress in Films, is appearing at the Belle tonight for the last time in "Man-Proof", surrounded by a stellar cast which includes such well-known personalities as Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon. A smart musical revue "Sunday Night at the Trocadero" introducing screen stars at play, a beautiful travelaffair "Chile" in technicolor and a peppy community song complete the program.

Parents Should Avoid Being Made Slaves of Child, Lisa Says

By LISA GRENELLE

"MOTHER, please do me a favor!" Elsie would demand. And Mother would do it. Mother always did; like many others, she was just a slave to her daughter, but no one was to make a slave of himself. What respect has a child for a parent if the latter's existence has a slave? None. The most a slave can expect is tolerance, stead and trimmed with turn-down collar and bands of black Persian lamb. The velveteen pillbox hat has a red tassel.

A change from the fluffy, bouffant frocks for evening is the basic-ored ensemble. A beauty consists of a dress of white satin buttoned all the way down, worn with a knee-length slim coat of white and silver brocade and an ascot scarf of silver tissue.

An afternoon party is just the occasion to trot out a bolero and dress of black lace, the bolero trimmed with rhinestone buttons, the skirt of street length. The bolero has a curved lines and short puffed sleeves.

Under the sun down south navy blue hats are registering strongly, especially when trimmed with white. A navy blue hat with white satin ribbon edge brim laced with white leather and an inset leather band around the medium crown.

A striking evening ensemble has a dress of black and white satin in a large flower design and is topped by a cocoanut jacket in black and white, the sequins carrying out the same flower design.

Wedding Invitation Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning an early Spring wedding. There will be no reception. Therefore should I have invitations printed for only the relatives and friends to the church, or should I send notes? If you suggest notes, how should they be worded? Or should my mother write them? Then in the third person?

Mary

You don't tell me quite enough for me to answer your question definitely. Is your church wedding to be a formal one, or an informal one? If it is to be formal . . . that is, if you are to wear the traditional wedding gown and bridal veil, with all the other wedding plans consistent with that formality . . . then you would send formal engraved invitations to the church ceremony.

But if it is to be informal, notes of invitation are appropriate. And perfectly correct notes of invitation would be written by your mother, since she is to be hostess of the occasion. Their wording might be like this:

Dear Jane:

Mary and Clifford are to be married in the church on the first of March, in the . . . Church, at four o'clock, and it would make us all happy if you and Tom would be with us at the ceremony. They are not to have a reception, and as there are especially eager to have the relatives and such close friends as you and Tom with them at the church.

Dearest love from us all,

Affectionately

Inviting the Boy Friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Will you please tell me how to write a note to a young man friend inviting him to go to my Prom with me? I have the tickets, but will have to introduce him to the chaperons. Suppose, however, I do not know all the names of the different chaperones . . . . what then?

Grace.

1—Your note of invitation might read something like this:

Dear Grace:

Our Senior Class is having its Prom on Friday, March tenth, in our school auditorium, and I would like very much to have you go to the Prom with me. I do not yet know how much you like to dance, and we have a delightful group of girls in our class, so I hope dancers too . . . . and I think we would have a happy time. May I date convenient to you? I hope so.

I have the tickets, and if you say you would like to come, I'll call you the time and other arrangements.

Friendliest greetings, Tommy.

Sincerely

2—When you introduce the young man to a chaperon you know, make your introduction this way: "Mrs. Allen, may I present Mr. Kent". Then as the young man shakes hands you would first make a self-introduction, like this: "I am Grace Beeckman." Then the chaperon tells you her name, and you introduce the young man as I have suggested above.

Belated Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered correct to send wedding announcements out after being married approximately a year?

Wondering

Customarily formal wedding announcements are not sent out when so long a time has elapsed between the marriage and the announcement. Usually, after so long a time the couple tell first their relatives and close friends, then write to relatives and friends who live too far away to be told verbally. This belated announcement of this belated announcement seems more in keeping with the situation.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Purchase New Machines

Speeding motorists are advised to drive with caution when passing the entire Bay of Quinte area, that is unless they possess some one of the cars that travel a greater rate than 110 miles per hour.

Provincial Motorcycle Patrolmen Sam Irvine, Belleville, H. Jinkins, Napanee and Jack Whitty of Trenton, all completed transactions for the purchase of three new Harley-Davidson motorcycles of the 80 series, capable and guaranteed to traverse the highway in safety at 110 miles per hour.

"We expect delivery of our new machines the latter part of March. They are the latest type of machines with new safety devices for fast driving," commented Traffic Officer Irvine today. The area and details patrolled by the above three traffic officers extend from Odessa in the east to Brighton in the west, on highway No. 2.

Commenting further Patrolman Irvine stated there had not been a major motor accident on his detail extending from Napanee to Belleville on highway No. 2 and parts of highway No. 33, during the past three months, a remarkable record after taking into consideration the hazardous conditions that have prevailed throughout the current winter season.

Father and Son Service is Addressed By Howard Young

Featured by an address by Mr. Howard Young of Port Arthur, the Father and Son Service held at Bridge Street United Church was attended by a large representative attendance of fathers and sons of the city.

The service conducted by the boys, was opened by the Rev. Dr. E. Temple, after which, prayer by Mr. D. W. Moore who acted as Chairman. Trail-Rangers of Bridge Street Church sang the Tuxis hymn which was followed by the exhibition of the Trail-Ranger-Tuxis program given by Mr. Moore.

Addressing the boys, Mr. Young can go for the Boy" and "What the Boy can do for the Church" were given by Ivan Sparks and Ross Thomson, both Cobourg and Belleville representatives to the seventeenth Older Boys' Parliament respectively.

Mr. Young, the guest speaker, who has had many years public history and economics at McMaster University, dealt with the subject "Spare Time" brought out the advantages being gained by the boys today as to be prepared for the opportunities in the future. Even the "odd moments" can be put to good use, time should be used to better one self and to help others. He quoted many writers, inventors and others who have given and taken such advice no' only to their own advantage but to the advantage and benefit of mankind. Mr. Young when a boy of twelve, invited Mr. Moore to be the mentor of the Trail Rangers at Port Arthur and is now Dominion Mentor of First Year Rangers.

The speaker is a son of O. P. Young, editor of the Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

LOCAL MEN REPORT NO WORK AT NIAGARA

Two local residents who journeyed to Niagara Falls earlier this week in the hope of work, returned to Belleville yesterday unsuccessful in their quest. They were against others making the trip to a city unable to provide work for even hundreds, attracted by the hope of jobs on the contemplated construction of a new "Honeymoon Bridge".

Mrs. Eilars and Herbert Carey, workless for some time past, made the trip from Belleville to Niagara Falls, Ontario, in the hitch-hiking methods. Rides were few and far between, often ten reported, and the low temperatures of the latter part of the week added to the hardship of the hike. Arriving at Niagara Falls they found hundreds of others had already preceded them. The employment offices were full of men looking for work, and they told us to go on back home before we starved to death there", stated Mrs. Eilars this morning.

They also told us that all men needed for the work on bridge replacement had been registered and filled by the office there.

CREAMERY BUTTER MAKE IS LOWER

Seven Per Cent. Drop in Canadian Production in November

Ottawa, Feb. 11 (CP)—With only four Provinces recording increases, creamery butter production in Canada during January declined seven per cent compared with the output for the same month last year, and was 15 percent compared with the previous month, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today in its monthly review on dairy production.

Decreases were registered in all Provinces except Manitoba, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, while cheese production declined in Quebec, Manitoba and Alberta and declined in other Provinces in the Maritimes where the industry was inactive.

During the last month 3,400,000 pounds of butter were produced, 500,000 pounds less than in the same month a year ago, while cheese output was 4,000,000 pounds compared with 4,600,000 pounds in January, 1937.

Of the total total of 19,550,579 pounds of creamery butter on hand on Feb. 1, 12,174,646 pounds were in cold storage.

Production by Provinces, with January, 1937 figures in brackets:

Butter: Prince Edward Island 74,000 pounds (75,371); Nova Scotia 368,286 (371,360); New Brunswick 454,464 (71,736); Quebec 1,000,000 (1,086,361); Ontario 2,900,166 (4,365,536); Manitoba 912,775 (877,780); Saskatchewan 738,043 (824,630); Alberta 1,112,777 (959,276); British Columbia 3,500 (744,497).

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Selected stocks moved slightly higher levels in today's market, but rumorous issues either stood still or slipped a point or two.

It was one of the slowest sessions of the past several months, with transfers hardly sufficient to keep the ticker tape in operation. Gains of minor fractions predominated near the fourth hours.

A few Canadian issues moved fractionally either way but most were inactive. Canadian Pacific dropped a trifle while International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine showed minor gains.

Favored the greater part of the day—some subsequently gave ground—were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Anaconda, Chrysler, Du Pont, Texas Mines, Curtiss Corp, and International Harvester.

Carriers continued to reflect the gratifying higher freight rates would be granted.

Aiding motors were upwards revisions of estimates for new passenger car sales this year.

ANGLERS UPSETTERED BY RIVER BREAKUP

Threat of a Moira River breakup and flood has had little effect on the even tenor of the lives of those through the ice fishermen on the Bay of Quinte at present. The tiny grinder colony of huts is still clustered east of the city while owners sit placidly within angling for fair catches daily of perch and sunfish. The ice of the bay is declared still firm and hard with little signs of an early break up.

Unusual Overtime Rampage Enables Leafs to Beat Maroons And Hold Margin on Top Rung

Scorer Three Goals After Scoreless Play in Regulation Time

RANGERS WIN

Louis Trudel Throws Stick And Canadiens Awarded a Goal

(By A. E. Pulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The chap who ran the wrong way for a touchdown had very little on Louis Trudel, who tossed away a hockey stick and a game all in one motion. If Louis doesn't go down in the records as one of hockey's best blunderers it will be only because his feat just lacked a playoff setting.

It happened last night in Montreal, when Chicago Black Hawks were playing Canadiens for two points, that would have given Hawks something more than the finger-tip hold they now have on the National League's American Division third spot.

Paul Haynes, Canadien centre, was set to shoot on the Hawk goal early in the second period, when Trudel threw his stick and the officials awarded Haynes a goal. That made it 2-0 for Habitants and the markers Hawks scored later failed to accomplish anything but make it close. But for Trudel's mistake Hawks might easily have earned a tie.

Three in Overtime

The stick tossing was the highlight of an evening that also included an unusual overtime scoring spurge by Toronto Maple Leafs when they defeated Montreal Maroons 3-0 at Toronto. Held scoreless for three periods Leafs drove in all three goals in less than seven minutes of play.

Trudel's blunder might have lost Hawks their half-game lead over Detroit Red Wings had not New York Rangers helped out by pasting a 4-0 shutout on the world champions at Detroit. It was the eighth perfect game of the season for netminder Dave Kerr of Rangers, League shutout king.

The rule that was employed in awarding Canadiens a goal provides that action when a player throws a stick in his own defense area. The same offence in any other area brings a major penalty. It has been used seldom in recent years as players spared that much as to resort to the old corner ice trick of spoiling an opponent's shot.

Canadiens outplayed Hawks for all but a few minutes of the game. George Mantha scored in the first period for the Habitants and the other scored goal came mid-way in the third when Paul Thompson marked up the Hawks' counter.

Presented With Flowers

Although Trudel got back into the Hawk lineups after periods on the injured list the Chicagoans were still without their great right winger Mush March. Osie Asmundsen, Gus Mancuso and George Jeffrey all from the Haven Eagles, were added to the Montreal lineup to fill in for injured players.

Aurel Joliat played his 700th National League game and was presented with a basket of flowers before the start of the battle.

Rookie Goalie Evans, brought up from Syracuse Stars to replace injured Sam Bell, turned in the goal that gave Toronto victory over Maroons. After his backhander slipped through Bill Beveridge's skate Maroons opened up and Pep Kelly and Syl Apps threw away to score a brace of goals in 56 seconds.

Leafs Hold Five Point Lead

Toronto's two points enabled them to keep five points ahead of Canadiens but they didn't need the points half as much as Maroons who are five points down on New York Americans, third place holders in the Canadian section.

Red Wings failed to keep up the good firing that brought them 14 goals in their two previous games. But they were good enough to make Kerr earn his shutout. Rangers scored three of their goals in the first period through Bryan Hextall, Bryan Hextall and Lynn Patrick. Joe Cooper got their fourth in the middle session when he swung at the puck while sliding on his stomach and beat Norm Smith.

FASTER STARTING ON BLUE SUNOCO GAS

Praising the fairness of the officials of the Canadian Automobile Association which conducted the recent quick starting tests at Westmount Lookout on Mount Royal, the Montreal Mr. J. O. Shafer manager of Sun Oil Company Limited said, "I have never heard of any gasoline tests in which greater efforts were made to be absolutely impartial."

"Each of the four extra priced gasolines tested as well as Blue Sunoco, were all purchased at random by the officials of the Canadian Auto Association from service stations of the different companies in each of Ford, Chevrolet Buick and Dodge, eight cars in all, were selected for these tests.

"One car of each pair was filled with Blue Sunoco, the other with one of the extra priced gasolines. The filling was done by the Canadian Auto Ass'n representative from the five gallon cans previously filled from the main stock at the different service stations. The fill pipe cap was then sealed. No one other than the Canadian Auto Association therefore knew what gasoline was in each car. Then the cars were driven to the Westmount crest of Mount Royal where, for hours, they were thoroughly chilled by bitter winds.

"Finally in the presence of impartial observers and officials the cars were carefully timed for quick starting tests in each instance, Blue Sunoco flashed into full powered flame almost a full second ahead of its petitor. The starting time recorded indicated the seconds required to start and stay started. A summarization of the final figures showed Blue Sunoco started these four frigid motors on the average of three times as fast as the four leading premium priced gasolines."

McCREARY HIGH SCORER OF TEAM

Tallies Seven Goals And Two Assists in Junior Season

"Hink-dog" McCreary, was the leading scorer of the Belleville juniors during their four games played in the junior O.H.A., ranks this season. McCreary scoring against him and adding two assists. He was closely followed by Johnnie Ronsky and Alf Rowbotham, who had eight scoring points. Rowbotham leading Ronsky in goals scored, however.

Besides being top scorer of the local junior squad, McCreary was the batman of the team, serving eleven minutes in the penalty-box during the four games. The Belleville juniors won four games in their group to qualify for a group play-off, but recently Manager Eddie Thomas announced the juniors had also been handed and would default the group finals to Peterboro.

Frank O'Neill actually served the most number of penalties, five in all, McCreary coming first. This one being a major count for five minutes. Bill Rose, who only played two games, had seven scoring points, while Mathieu in one game counted two goals. The individual records of the team are:

Player	M.	G.	A.	Pts.	Pen.

Statistics show that Belleville juniors scored 27 goals during their four games, an average of nearly seven per game, while they held 19 scored against them, an average of less than five. The locals also handled their goalie lock, but lost by close scores to Peterboro juniors.

"Lam" Carson appeared in all four games and had 15 goals scored against him, an average of 3.75 goals against. Alternating as goalie, appeared in two matches and had one four goals scored against him. Cook tending to the goal-keeping duties in the period of two matches only. Belleville served a total of 20 minutes in the penalty box.

Aside from the 27 goals scored in their favour, the little Redmen got credit for assists to their credit, only seven of their 27 counters being credited to one effort which speaks highly of their efforts in playing combination hockey.

Phil Watson, Rangers, was top point maker with goal and assist.

APPLY PRESSURE TO DEFEAT "Y"

Peterboro Cage Team Wins Over Locals by 37-31 Score

Applying the pressure in a last half splurge, the Peterborough St. Paul's hoopsters handed the Belleville "Y" intermediate cagers a surprise 37 to 31 reverse in an exhibition basketball game played in Peterborough last evening. The game battled at practically even terms throughout the initial half, the count being 17-16 in favor of the homesters.

The St. Paul's squad surprised the many gallery with numerous shots of the spectacular nature in the closing moments to secure a home-town victory. The game developed into a rough contest, with the homesters being the offenders, McIntyre being expelled from the game for having no unnecessary rough play. The Belleville veterans failed to click to have George Cairns and Pogson of Tobe stand out for the locals and play as rugged game as the homesters shoted about the floor.

The scoring was quite equally divided between both squads, Weir and Wickerson leading the Peterborough team on the attack, with Ostrom, Tobe, Burley and Cole accounting for the majority of the local counters. The Belleville quintette feel they have better than an even chance to triumph over the Lifflock City crowd in O.H.A. play later in the season, however.

Belleville successfully sank five of eight foul shots, while Peterborough only registered one of the four free shots attempted them.

EMPIRE GAMES IN CANADA IN 1942

Scotland Mentioned as Venue of Games in 1946

Sydney, Feb. 11—(CP Reuters)—The British Empire Games Federation today awarded the 1942 games to Canada and drafted proposals for clarification and amplification of the rules under which the games are held.

M. M. Robinson, Canadian team manager, said Canada was prepared to organize the games for 1942 but if any other Empire country which had not already staged the meet desired to Canada would not object. The classic track event in Canada eight years ago.

Robinson's suggestion the games venue be rotated on a fixed basis every four years was noted, with satisfaction but the meeting decided it unwise to allot the games definitely so far ahead.

Scotland was mentioned as a likely venue for the 1946 meet.

WINNIPEG' SPIEL

Winnipeg, Feb. 11—(CP)—Dr. N. G. Trimble and his rink from The Pas, Man., today won scores in the favorites in the British Consols curling competition, after defeating Harry Welsh's Winnipeg rink 9-4 in opening play in the Consols event Welsh drew last year.

Victory of the burly doctor and his northern rink came in the third day of play in the Manitoba bonspiel here as 67 rinks started the big four-day tourney. The Pas also is the Macdonald Briar Canadian championship entry. Welsh lost last year to Edmonton's Cliff Manahan.

Outstanding skips who won Consol games over Leo Johnson Hoyle, Wood and Ken Watson, all of Winnipeg and all former Canadian champions, and Ab Gowanlock, the master shot-maker from Glenboro, Man., who has won the Manitoba aggregate but never won the Canadian. Premier Bracken last led the Consols to J. M. Macdonald of Portage La Prairie, Man., 10-4.

Hon. R. F. Club, Minister of Public Works, won 11-8 from A. W. Sadler, Birtle, Man., in the Capital Coal event.

When the Peterboro and Air Force ships steam out on the frozen waters of the Belleville Arena for their clubs will be on an even keel, insofar as points and goals scored are concerned, although the "Airmen" have the advantage of having won two games to the Peterboro tuna fair in the group. Each team has scored 16 goals against the others in their three previous tussles and each has 14 points in the group standings. Tonight's game is the final in the group for the Petes, while the Air Force have one more scheduled game, with Eddie Thomas' Juniors here on Monday evening the Kinnes-cracked squad should beat the weakened Flyers tonight, the "Airmen" would still have another chance to pull up on even terms with the Petes by virtue of a possible win over the Redmen on Monday, so it would seem that the "air-minded" pucksters have a two to one chance over the Petes regardless.

Toronto may have its "Kitchener and Scarboro nights," but Belleville has its "Brighton night" this evening. The wags Doug Adams, well known Brighton baseball supiter over 40 reserve seats that have been sold in Brighton alone for tonight's game, while a large block of seats have been taken in Trweed. Manager George Gay predicts a large crowd of fans for the reason for the 'saw-off' fits ever." Although no authentic news regarding the condition of Johnnie Lalonde was issued from the Air Force this morning, it is the rumor of that both the big rushing lad from Penetang and Bill Gibson would go double-yet again tonight, but Gibson would no doubt get the assignment to check "Pick" Hines who has steamed into town later the afternoon accorded all of his charges in fine fettle and speedy predicted that there was no doubt as to the ultimate result—"we'll win and in regulation time", predicted Mr. Hines.

Understand Harry Soldeman, well known Toronto diamond celebrity and donor of the Soldeman trophy, won by the Napanee Maple Leafs last season, will be here in Napanee to present the intermediate "O" trophy to the Madmen at a testimonial social evening to be given the players next week. Harvey Harris, manager of Gordon Sindair, former sports reporter have also been invited to attend the function.

Glad to see John Shaw re-elected president of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Association, one of this city's most enterprising recreational clubs. Appointment of assisting officers was returned and no doubt the club will continue to grow in popularity. The Bellevue Lawn Bowling Green boasts of 16 fine greens, although some repair work is needed on the older greens at the eastern entrance to the club. The improvement in bowling taken care of, we understand. For the amount of money expended by both the local Lawn Bowling Club we know of no sporting or recreational enterprise, that gives more in return for the outlay. The club is showing a membership drive, which we heartily endorse and recommend to all sportsmen as it all interested in competitive play for exercise.

The release of the scoring averages of the Belleville juniors today shows that Harry McCreary, although a defenceman, was the leading scorer for Bobby Smith's club.

McCreary was followed in line by Johnnie Ronsky and Alf Rowbotham, the latter the local kids had 18 goals scored against them, they bagged a total of 27 in their own favour during their four league games. The regretful part of the entire set-up was the fact the juniors were not given an opportunity to continue into the group play-offs, a right they had gained in competition.

"Some time ago you published a letter in your sport pages signed "No Santa Claus" presumably from Tweed. Well let me relate to you a little story regarding Tweed and a hockey Santa Claus," thundered a hockey fanatic member of the now defunct Belleville Outlook of the Trent Valley League. "Before we decided to desert the Trent Valley, Tweed refused to allow us to play our scheduled home games on their home ice, as mutually agreed at the meeting. Never have I seen a look at another side of the picture. The very next week the Madoc Club offered to play with my team in the Madoc Arena and give us every penny that was taken in and not even charge us for the use of the ice. Madoc wanted us to remain in the loop, so you can bet your furnished the difference of the attitude between the Tweed and Madoc clubs," added Mr. Smith, who still seems rather unhappy about the whole thing.

"Did it ever occur to you that our club was not the only one? Some of O.H.A. players and let me name you a few of our players who have scored well on the ice for the other of the two Belleville O.H.A. teams, Jimmie Anderson, Gene Rene St. Denis, the two Stevens boys, Ab Hinton and Sweetland all lined up and no doubt some of them would have remained in the game had they remained in the Trent Valley, but perhaps it is better for all concerned that we gave up the ghost after all," concluded Duke Smith.

Bedecked in brand new white uniforms trimmed in black, green and red, Fred Beach's Albert College senior interscholastic pucksters triumphed over the Madoc High School hockey sextette by a 3-2 score in a friendly exhibition tilt at the arena last evening. The Albert College squad was not fighting-fit of the old adage regarding the initial wearing of new uniforms as they were minus the fine snap of night. Incidentally Coach Beach has a well drilled squad of interscholastic hockey players this year and they should at least win their district, if they ever get out into the O.H.A.A. playdowns before the ice jam breaks up.

Remember when England's Olympic backspinn, spurred on by the brilliant goal-tending of Whispy's Jimmy Foster, rocked the sports world two years ago to-night when they bumped Canada off their perch with a 2-1 victory. It was the most bitterly-fought game in the tournament's 34-year history and marked Canada's first loss.

What's The Matter With Young Pitchers?

Arm Mishaps to Rowe, Paul Dean, Feller and Other Newcomers Provoke Query

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, Feb. 10 — Mickey Cochrane says it known as to and depending on Schoolboy Rowe this year, and does not intend to give the big right hander from Arkansas a contract until Rowe proves in training camp that his arm is all right. The Tiger management is of the opinion Rowe's arm injury is permanent.

Rowe's case is only one of a number of arm mishaps that have befall ed the careers of brilliant young pitchers during the last few years. Rowe, Paul Dean, Dizzy Dean, Bob Feller, Mike Ryba, Van Mungo, Lon Warneke, Johnny Broaca—to name a few. It brings up the question: Are young pitchers allowed to place too great a strain upon their arms before attaining their full physical development?

The answer in a great many cases must be in the affirmative. Mass production, rather than the careful building of quality, may be a modern diet, but in baseball the results are tragic. Good pitchers need to be around for a long while. How they seem to blaze suddenly, help a ball club win a pennant with a couple of heroic years, and drop into the discard. Are they being used right?

Paul Dean and Feller are outstanding examples of young sladsters upon whom too much stress has been placed. When the younger Dean was at Columbus seven or eight years ago, he was hailed as a better pitcher than his noisy brother. He had a great fast ball—some National league hitters thought him faster than Dizzy. Paul worked like a Trojan for a couple of years, helped to pitch the Cardinals to a pennant. Then suddenly his arm with-ed. He couldn't lift it, started throwing side arm, finally gave up.

Did Operation Help?

Paul underwent an operation in Austin, Texas, last spring. When the surgery can be measured only by results, said Dean, hasn't indicated the white is working. His injury has been described as a shoulder strain similar to that which put Schoolboy Rowe on the shelf.

The story of Bob Feller may have a happier ending, but that remains to be seen. Certainly Feller was overworked last spring. When the Indians and Giants came north together, every city where they were scheduled to play wanted to see Feller, who had been publicized as the fireball pitcher since Walter Johnson. The youngster was eager to pitch (what 18-year-old kid wearing a major league uniform wouldn't he?) and the Cleveland front office saw in the boy from Iowa a tremendous benefit in the counting room. Bob helped materially in defraying the clubs training expenses—to the detriment of his own training, of course.

Will It Happen Again?

It should have been a helpful lesson to the Cleveland management that Feller's first major league games was his last in months. In the first innings of the first regular season game he pitched, Feller displaced an elbow bone. Some say he was throwing too many curves. But it can't be denied he was overworked.

After Feller had spent anxious weeks on the bench, wondering if he ever would be able to pitch again, he was taken to a Cleveland hone-setter who snapped the bone back in place. Feller seemed as good as ever in the last few games of the season.

But if Master Robert threw his elbow out once, he can do it again. That is, if they let him. Meanwhile, how about the others?

Campbellford Claims a Win And Madoc Says a Draw

Madoc, Feb. 10.—(Special) — When is a hockey game not a hockey game? This rather embarrassing question confronted the players, teams and officials of a scheduled Trent Valley League game played between Madoc and Campbellford in Madoc, last night.

At the conclusion of the regulation 60 minutes of play the visitors held they were leading by a 6 to 5 score, while the Madoc sextette just as strenuously contended the score was knotted at five-all. Apparently each entered the game with neither party concerned admitting they were at all wrong in their contentions.

Referees Charles Holmes of Campbellford and Von Jack of Madoc, are reported to have admitted they did not keep a tabulated account of each goal scored and could give no decision on the matter. Even the timekeepers admit they are not certain as to the final count.

The clubs left the Madoc Arena with the visiting sextette claiming victory and Madoc team still with holding a tie game had been played.

The game was a rather listless exhibition throughout, while the ultimate result has been placed into the hands of the Trent Valley League executive for a final decision, the executive being the ruling tribunal under such circumstances.

KI-Y LEAGUE

Three games of hockey were played in the local Ki-Y League at the Arena last evening, decisions being gained in the two midget group games. In the Juvenile tussle the Canadians and Maroons battled to a four all draw in a hectic struggle.

In the midget series the Red Wings gained a 2 to 2 decision over St. Mike's, both squads scoring a brace of counters in the middle session, while the game was scoreless. The Red Wings sank the winning counter late in the last period. Bush, Redner and Cook were the marksmen for the Wings, while McCabe and Healy scored for the "Irish".

Scoring two goals in the initial frame the B.C.I. Midgets eked out a 2 to 1 victory over Frank Cunningham's O.S.S. Ageless Dean of Rowing Coaches Jim Ten Eyck Feared Near Death

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York Feb. 10. — In June strong young men from the U. S. colleges will gather as usual at Poughkeepsie to match brawn and skill on the river in those frail craft called shells. The picture, however, will not be complete unless Jim Ten Eyck is there. Word comes from Miami relate that Ten Eyck is near death. Time seems to have caught up with the ageless rowing coach at last, and the heart that won so many struggles on the river finally has lost its stroke.

Ten Eyck was a part of the world of crews for so many years that probably his only remaining contemporary is Old Man River himself. The thin, gray man with the battered cap, scraggy moustache, oddly hooked nose and trim blue suit seemed so definitely a fixture of college rowing that it is hard to reckon a victory even of Time over that courageous figure.

Ten Eyck was rowing before the civil war. His years hung a defiant reply at the assertion that rowing places too great a strain on youth. He was rowing when he was old enough to cast off and his father ran a ferry at Peekskill. It was 50 years ago when I last saw him, Ten Eyck was rowing, and was a model of health and vigor. He had the bearings of a man of 50.

Whiteside a Pupil

I remember a discussion of his age, which recent dispatches gave as 87. Charley Whiteside, Harvard's crew coach, remarked that he had known Jim since his own undergraduate days at Syracuse, back in 1915 or thereabouts, but that Jim never discussed his age and there were none around who could remember a time when Ten Eyck wasn't there around, too. Whiteside was stroke on Ten Eyck's great crew that won the American Henley and triumphed at Poughkeepsie by more than six boat lengths.

Ten Eyck's father and grandfather were champion scullers, and Jim's son Ned won the Diamond Sculls at Henley when 16 years old. Ned coached Princeton crews for a while. Still another son Jim was an oarsman at Syracuse and a record oar at Poughkeepsie. He developed some champion crews for the Duluth Boat Club. Charley Whiteside learned to row under young Jim at Duluth before going to Syracuse to carry on under Jim's father.

Jim Ten Eyck

"Angel's Medicine"

Ten Eyck was among the first to substitute a diet of wholesome fruits and vegetables for the rare beef and ale once believed necessary to an oarsman's success. Just along the river they tell a story of Old Jim about the time when his son Jim was rowing with the freshman crew at Syracuse. Young Jim lost boat brain properly and lost weight before an important race. For a while it was believed he would not be able to row. His position at stroke meant a lot, however, and the other boys in the crew pooled to "carry him along" if he faltered.

Just before the race, Old Jim handed his son a bottle bearing the label "Angel's Medicine". The youngster took a healthy draught, smacked his lips, leaped into the boat and steered the crew to a victory. Old Jim finally admitted the "Angel's Medicine" was champagne.

Coaching freshmen was Ten Eyck's particular delight. He liked to take them in the raw, build their bodies into a smooth-working, coordinated machine. He was forgetfully inevitably found him in oilskin trousers and sweater, hovering around the freshmen at the Syracuse boathouse on the Onondaga outlet, admonishing, encouraging or reprimanding—and he could reprimand with the best of them. Hardy himself, he demanded that his oarsmen be hardy, too. He endured with them the rigors of early "spring" rowing when the ice hardly had left Lake Onondaga and a wintry wind from Bering strait whistled across the outlet.

Giving Them the Air

The young oarsmen Ten Eyck learned something besides rowing. Standing in the Boncelling breeze of early spring, listening to Old Jim discourse on rowing as the greatest of sports because of the "opportunities it offered for enjoyment of nature, air, water and light, as well as physical well being", Syracuse oarsmen must have come to appreciate what the old man suffered.

Because of the weather it always has been hard to whip together a crew at Syracuse. It could win early races. Ten Eyck labored uncomplainingly and loyally under difficulties. He didn't mind the hardships, and stuck to Syracuse when he might have had a better paying job at another school. He rolled along like tip river that seemed almost a part of him, washing difficulties away.

The average starting time of Blue Sunoco was 3 times as fast as the average starting time of the four premium priced gasolines tested.

Winners Always Ahead And Played Smart Hockey

Tweed (Special) — Tweed Arena was the scene of a very fast hockey match between Trenton and Tweed. The game was delayed about an hour and a half as some of the players were late.

The first period featured close checking with Trenton forcing the play all the way. Their passing plays were spectacular and the way they bottled the Tweed lads up was a treat to watch. About half way through the period Long and Lamorre were sent off for roughing. With about five minutes remaining Anderson shot a pass to Lamorre in the Tweed goal mouth and Lamorre made no mistake. Near the end of the period McIlraith was sent off but the score remained 1 to nothing as the period closed.

Tweed started playing hockey as the second period opened and the Trenton goal was always menaced. Elsbury drew a penalty and once Lamorre narrowly missed netting a loose puck. Steenburg in the Trenton net was kept moving and it was only his brilliant work that kept the score down. With about six minutes remaining Jack Tummon drifted a long one from centre ice and the puck bounced off the right post. The red light flashed and there was a long demonstration as goal finally being disallowed. With about four minutes left Courreyes and Tummon of Tweed swept in and Courreyes gave Steenburg no chance on his hard shot. Two minutes later Elsbury tied the Quinneyza's pass and the score at the end of the second period was Tweed two, Trenton one.

Shortly after the third period opened Woodcock drew a penalty and Trenton was rewarded when Anderson batted in Mellraith rebound to tie the score. Both teams then opened up and the play surged up and down the rink. Johnson bloke away from a Tweed rush, rounded Tummon and beat Thompson cleanly from close in. With the score three to two against them Tweed threw caution to the wind and went after the equalizer. With about four minutes left Johnson again broke away to make the score four to two.

This game was the fastest seen in the local arena this year. Both teams were hampered by the soggy ice or undoubtedly the score would have been higher. Kerr, Trenton's star defenceman, was hurt late in the third period. Steenburg turned in the best display of goal keeping seen this year, while Kerr and Anderson were also in fine fettle. The referees and Local were the pick of the Tweed boys. O'Malley of Trenton and Gerald of Tweed refereed a good game.

The lineups:

Tweed—Goal, Thompson; defence, Woodcock and E. Tummon; centre, Leal; wings, Tummon and Mellraith; subs, Long, Elsbury and Courreyes.

Trenton—Goal, Steenburg; defence, Kerr and McIlraith; centre, Lamore; wings, Anderson and Hubbel; subs, Miller, Johnston, Inglen, Lamorre.

Tweed Council Presents Resolution on Post Office

Makes Recommendation as to Site For Proposed Building

Tweed, Feb. 11 (Special)— The council met on Monday night to make what may be final move to have the site of Tweed's new postoffice altered, and drafted a resolution to be forwarded to the Department of Public Works through Mr. C. A. Cameron, M.P., for South Hastings. The council feel that there are several properties in the vicinity of Victoria and Spring Streets that are all available as locations and they have requested their disapproval of the erection of the postoffice on Mrs. James Quinn's lot opposite D. Morrison's store at the northernmost end of the business section. In an effort to have the building established in a satisfactory location the members unanimously agreed to consider taking over any property at the purchase price which the Department may already have obtained. It is believed that should the government decide to build either a permanent Hydro building will be acquired. Reeve Sayers and the council members are of the opinion that the postoffice should be constructed at near Victoria and Spring Streets as possible.

The council met on Friday night after word had been circulated that the Quinn property had been purchased as a site for the postoffice.

It was agreed at that meeting to finance an exchange of proposed sites for the postoffice up to $1,500. At a public meeting held some months previously, it was ascertained that the Cranmore property occupied by Messrs. Paul King and Marshall Bradshaw could be secured for the additional outlay. At the time the council had in mind assuming the Grier building as a permanent Hydro building. Councillor E. H. Kerr voted against the proposal on the ground that the erection of a government building in Tweed should not entail placing an extra burden on the taxpayer.

When surveyors put in their appearance in Tweed on Monday morning and began to survey the Quinn property, Reeve Sayers called an emergent meeting of the council and the following resolution was passed:

Resolution to Government

"The Municipal Council in session assembled enacts as follows:

"That whereas:

"It is understood that the Department of Public Works of the Dominion Government contemplates the erection of a public building in this village for use as a postoffice, and

"Whereas: The erection of such a building will locate the situation of the postoffice for many decades, and probably for all time that the council considers is a matter of extreme importance, that said proposed building be located at the most convenient and central place in the village, and

"Whereas: The intersection of Victoria and Spring Streets is practically the centre of the corporation, in addition to being the centre of the business section of the village, and,

"Whereas: Several properties in the intermediate vicinity of the intersection of Victoria and Spring Streets are available;

"Therefore: That the council respectfully petitions the Dominion Department of Public Works to locate the proposed building at the corner of Victoria and Spring Streets, or near thereto as a suitable site can be found;

Further: This council, in order to bring about the desirable end, are prepared to consider the taking over of any property at the purchase price, that the Department may have already obtained, in this regard.

That a copy of this resolution be forwarded immediately to Mr. Charles Cameron, M.P., with the request that same be presented by him to the Department."

"Signed) "W. H. Sayers, Reeve.

"G. D. C. Morton, Clerk."

Opening the discussion on Monday night Reeve Sayers pointed out that there was little use in intervening with Mr. Cameron unless the council is unanimous on the question.

"Why not go ahead and approach the local member anyway?" questioned Councillor Kerr.

"I would like you to hear this resolution as drafted before we make any further move," said Reeve Sayers. Councillor Myles concurred in this.

"I understand," stated the Reeve, "that any money not used by March 31st of the following year goes back into the consolidated fund of the Federal Department and it has to be voted out again. In that case, under this resolution, we would be considering the question of allowing the government what they paid for the Quinn property, which is $2,500.00."

Councillor Kerr: "I cannot agree with that resolution if we would be paying $2,500 for Mrs. Quinn's lot."

Reeve Sayers: "No, not necessarily."

Councillor Kerr: "I understand that a deal has already been made for the Quinn lot and that the property has been transferred."

Councillor Way: "I have been advised that plans were started three weeks ago for the erection of the postoffice on Mrs. Quinn's lot."

Reeve Sayers: "I don't know anything about that; but I have been advised that the money will revert to the consolidated fund in which event it might be possible for the government to buy either Harry or George Clark's properties."

Councillor Way: "I understand that Harold Emerson's building can be bought for $3,000."

Councillor Kerr: "I think if we do something immediately as a body the Department will realize that a serious mistake has been made. We should approach Mr. Cameron right away or it will be too late."

Councillor Way: "I would like to ask a question. We blamed Paul Rabbote and Wm. Grier when they purchased the property at Grier's and then threw up their hands, but I would like to know who was responsible for this deal for the Quinn lot.

Somebody certainly put it through. I think we people in the south end of the village have been badly treated. We all signed the petition to change it from Grier's and then unknown persons put through a deal for the Quinn lot at the extreme northerly end. What I would like to know is: 'Did the Liberal Executive put a deal through for the Quinn lot?'"

Councillor Myles: "I don't think they did. Two men came from Toronto as I understand it, and said they would consider buying a property from a Liberal."

Reeve Sayers: "I think the Conneyes property would have been our site if the deal could have been put through; everyone was sincere after the public meeting in feeling that it was the proper place for the post office."

Councillor Way: "I certainly don't think we people in the south end have been given a square deal in this thing after signing the petition to remove it from Grier's, when we did sign the petition we did so in the interests of all citizens and we have been pretty badly treated."

"I don't think the Liberal Association had anything to do with buying the Quinn property", said Councillor Kerr.

Councillor Way: "This last deal is more unsatisfactory and I, for one would like to know who was responsible".

Councillor Tracy Quinn: "I don't know anything much about this thing, but I know that Mrs. Quinn was directly approached in the first place and she made no efforts whatever to sell her property."

Reeve Sayers "Well, we're not getting any place. Let's do something with this resolution."

Councillor Way: "I'll sign the resolution if the Reeve will agree to take over the Grier property instead of the municipality; the Hydro can use it, they have the money, and they need the building. We won't have to raise the village tax rate. The taxpayers are looking for a reduction and if the town spends $3,500, I think it would be necessary to raise our rates."

Reeve Sayers: "We must show the Government we are sincere in wanting this site changed as it is certainly not in the interests of Tweed to put it at Quinn's. But I do feel that the town should obligate themselves rather than the Hydro. I understand that at this session of the Federal House, all correspondence in connection with Tweed post office will be tabled."

"I am convinced", said Councillor Kerr, "that the people in the north end of the community are not paying very hard for the erection of the building at Mrs. Quinn's corner."

"As I see the situation," observed Reeve Sayers, "Mr. Cameron certainly cannot accuse us of going over his head by presenting this resolution. I have an idea we would be reimbursed by the Government anyway."

"Yes, I think the Government would assume the extra expenditure and I don't believe we would have to pay anything", said C. H. Kerr.

"By this resolution", claimed the Reeve, "we are showing our willingness to do something. I don't think when it comes down to the fine point, Mrs. Quinn is going to be unreasonable and she should be a valuable piece of property for her to hold".

"The only thing I object to," said C. H. Kay, "is the fact that the ratepayers will have to pay out this money."

"I am under the impression that it will not be necessary to put up any money at all," observed C. H. Kerr, "if the wiring was torn out of the Grier building and the town acquires it, don't you think those responsible should be made to return it?"

The Council was agreed that the wiring should not have been removed.

"If we have some assurance that this resolution will go through, I will support it," said Councillor Kerr.

"But if not, I would move that a resolution be forwarded that we don't want a post office in Tweed at all. I've never been too keen about it anyway, and rather than see it in a most inconvenient place, we might better carry on with our present postal service. There are lots of vacant buildings in town and the erection of a new post office at Quinn's means one more."

"That resolution is not going over Mr. Cameron's head and that's what we must be careful of", remarked Councillor Myles.

In this observation C. H. Kerr concurred.

"I feel we should first rescind the motion passed on Friday night," suggested Councillor Myles.

Councillor Kerr: "I don't think so. It should be left on the books."

Councillor Myles: "By rescinding it, the old matter of the Conneyes property is all cleared up and we are through with it."

Councillor Kerr: "All right, let's rescind it." On motion of Myles and Kerr the resolution was accordingly rescinded.

Councillor Way: "Before that resolution is put, I don't feel any more like spending the town's money in connection with it. I'm not right. I still feel that the Hydro should obligate itself rather than the village. Their money comes from a different source than our taxes and they have it available".

It was pointed out to Councillor Way that the municipality is in no way obligating itself by the resolution to spend $2,500.

Accordingly after little further discussion, it was moved by Councillor Quinn and seconded by Councillor Way, that the resolution be forwarded by the Clerk to Mr. Cameron via registered mail.

The Council then adjourned.

CITY ENGINEER

Several shots of dynamite were set off just before the lower bridge yesterday to feel out the solidity of the jam. The large cakes of ice are packed in very close and although the remaining ice field is heavy up to places by the pressure of water, it is holding fast. I would estimate two hundred thousand tons of ice packed into this jam which extends from below the lower bridge to a point opposite Mott's Lumber Yard on Station street. If this jam is disturbed it would certainly pile up against the railway bridge and flood the lower sections of the city, as well as raise the water to such a height as to overflow the river banks. It is best to let this jam work itself loose and that we do all the work we can to open up the channel at the mouth of the river. I thought that some of the ice cakes could be blasted away just below and up as far as the south side of the lower bridge to dry and let more water away, but I am afraid it may loosen the whole of the jam.

I have taken several snap shots of the situation at various times and a daily record is being kept of all details.

Yours respectfully,
Chas. A. Mott,
City Engineer.

P.S.—At two thirty p.m. the current created by the channel cutting has increased to such an extent that part of the ice field near the railway bridge and flooded over the ice forcing our men to leave. The current has now reached the open channel at the south of the river and the water is travelling away under the low field very fast.

I cannot tell whether it will be necessary to do any more ice cutting until inspection is made tomorrow.

receded nearly twelve inches last night. Submerged areas in the rear of the buildings were solid ice fields this morning, a condition that is retarding to some extent the outward seepage of water from flooded cellars. Water in the basement of the Canadian Department Stores had receded to a depth of a few inches. Heating of the building is still maintained through the medium of an outside heating apparatus. Other stores however are still forced to rely on temporary stoves to supply heat. Inundated cellars are preventing operation of the regular heating system.

Heavy Volume of Water

Another result of the freeing of the submerged ice and slush at the rivermouth is seen in the swiftly moving channels formed yesterday by driving down-river currents at each side of the ice below the lower bridge. A heavy volume of water from the upper stretches of the river however is still flowing beneath the ice jam pouring down from the upper levels of the river.

Estimated by city officials at two hundred thousand tons, the solid jam between city bridges showed little signs of disturbance this morning, only outside of a slightly noticeable settling. Low temperatures of last night put a quietus on the flow of water from creeks and fields in the northern areas that usually into the river, officials stated today.

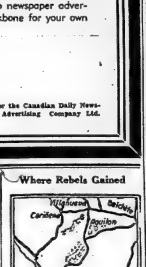
Residents of Coleman Street and business men of Front Street breathed a little easier this morning as zero temperatures wrapped the city and river in an icy grip. A general feeling of optimism at departure of customary threat of flood were checked.

Residents Breath Easier

Corbyville and Camnifton residents likewise breathed easier as the lower temperatures further solidified the ice fields locking the river from the north of the bridges at these places.

Any danger of these fields cracking up and racing down stream has been at least temporarily removed, it was the opinion of resident stated. While the fields were holding well and not show any signs of cracking during the mild weather, the heavy fronts of last night aided materially in preventing any immediate release of the ice fields."

Big Ice Rides



Threatened by the continual erosion of the ice in the mouth of the fields by the swifter flowing currents which inundated also the top section of the frozen river, workmen engaged in cutting channels below the car bridge yesterday under the department of public works were called off the job late yesterday afternoon.

"The job became a little too risky for comfort", it was reported by the department this morning. "As it is, however, we have sufficient channels now to take care of the open channels now to take care of the excess volume of water from the big ice fields, and safely", it was stated.

Further quieter larger and wider channels have also been cut through the ice by the swift flowing waters which at the present time in the open sections are rushing at a speed estimated at 15 miles per hour.

PHARAOHS' LAND IN WORD, PICTURE

Rev. W. Scott of Stirling Speaks Under Auspices of Ivivae Circle

"The Land of the Pharaohs" was the subject of an illustrated lecture given Wednesday in Bridge Street United Church S. S. auditorium by the Rev. W. Scott of Stirling.

Under the auspices of the Ivivae Mission Circle, a group of young ladies, the usual Wednesday night service for the congregation was of sidered.

Miss Harriett Cronk presided over the gathering in a very capable manner. As accompanist Mr. Alex Gordon also rendered a dual number along with Miss Lorna Nigh, the two piano effect evidencing charm and ideal technique. Mrs. Wm. Connors likewise in clever style contributed a piano solo in the program.

Rev. L. S. Wight assisted in the devotional exercises. An interesting solo was rendered in good voice by Miss Hazel Deville.

In happy strain Mr. R. P. Davidson of the Collegiate staff, introduced the visiting divine who is his brother-in-law and fellow graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, for a period during the great World War Rev. Mr. Scott was stationed in Egypt and was thus able to interest his listeners as he indicated by maps and pictures the fascinating aspects of this old domain. As he traced its historic history over the centuries, the setting of the recent spectacular wedding of King Faud was graphically portrayed. Though still mainly Arabic and Mohammedan in the cosmopolitan form of citizenship Egypt as a protectorate of the British Empire is situated in a strategic position en route from Gibraltar and the Mediterranean to the Suez Canal toward India and the trade stream of the Orient.

Highlights of the graphic description by Rev. Mr. Scott in most pleasing delivery were many features of the pretty and picturesque green Nile basin, the advantages of its annual overflow, the fertile cotton producing area, rotation or other crops, the long-established irrigation scheme, primitive and modern, for the desert, the great investments in several dams, the changing architecture of such cities as Cairo and Memphis and early Christian occupancy to a reverted use in religious phases, the old ruins of temples, mosques, with accompanying minarets, obelisk of red granite often 75 foot in one piece artistically inscribed, lofty statues and other massive structures show what a civilization once existed there. The tombs of kings in the valley surrounding Luxor and Karnack while gruesome-like now are quite important from research and archeological endeavours, especially in connection to recent valuable findings of the time of King Tut and the Egyptian mummies. Hundreds of miles up the Nile private quarters are located, sugar cane factories are established and in certain areas where rain fails the year round, irrigation is nourished.

Sunset and harbor scenes of Alexandria and the Nile delta were included among the numerous slides exhibited.

For the operation of the lantern by Mr. Milton Fowler and particularly for Rev. Mr. Scott's instructive and illuminating lecture expressions of praise thanks were passed.

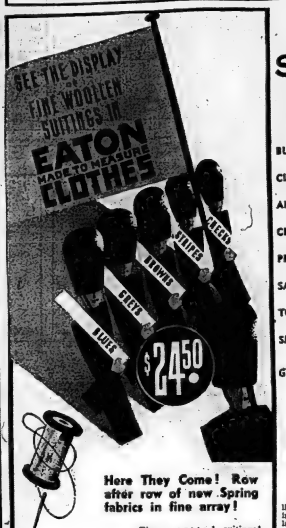
Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfast Saturday morning and ma said to pop, Are you counting on taking this boy fishing this summer, Wilbur?

Why yes, pop said, and ma said, Good, then you can treat yourself to a little useful exercise by cleaning up the back yard. It looks like a gaaly shambles the way the carpenters left it after they fixed the roof of the shed, with blocks of wood scattered around to every point of the rainbow. The good air can be piled up in the cellar and the rubbish can be put out in the back alley. You're always claiming to be pining for exercise, so here are the ideal.



Do you hear that? Benny? pop said. Ma has passed the age when exercise can do me any real good, but you're what's known as a growing boy and your muscles are itching for work, so you're just the type that can use a little exercise in your business, you lucky kid, he said and I said Well aw O, pop, us fellows have got a date to walk out to the park.

Then you'll have an incentive to do your work briskly and get it over with, pop said. Every boy should learn a little of the pion.er spirit, the spirit of the days when our ancestors conquered the wilderness and work came first and pleasure last and a boy of your size would chop a tree down before breakfast and chop it up before lunch, he said, and ma said, I always thought the pioneer spirit was the spirit of providing a life free of such hardships for the next generation such as Benny, and a little stopping and sending is just what you need to discourage that oncoming waistline.

Do you think a man of my age has any right to humiliate younger men by strutting about with a perfect figure? pop said.

The result being that Mr. Secrets the handy man cleaned up the yard.

14-POINT PROGRAM

Raising of Standard of Living Proclaimed by Manifesto

Bucharest, Feb. 13 (AP) — With military rule and censorship to allay opposition, the new Rumanian government today issued a 14-point program promising the nation an era of prosperity by radical economic, social and constitutional reforms, including organized emigration of Jewish surplus population.

The program gave assurance that friendly relations will be continued with Rumania's traditional friends, Great Britain and France, affirmed adherence to the League of Nations, and appealed for a "Christian brotherhood" of all Rumanians under the leadership of Premier Miron Cristea, patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox Church.

Illegal Citizenship.

Investigation of illegal citizenships acquired after the Great War is to continue and "destructive elements" will be expelled, the manifesto declared.

The manifesto, which was broadcast and printed throughout the country, enumerated the following principles:

INTIMATE TALK

Hitler Has Been at Mountain Retreat Since Army Shake-up

Vienna, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria met Chancellor Hitler of Germany today at the urgent suggestion of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

The Austrian cabinet sat in continuous session as von Schbschnigg conferred with Hitler at the German Fuehrer's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden.

It was stated here that Hitler had several times spoken with Schuschnigg to make a personal call and the Austrian Chancellor finally decided to accept after being urged to do so by Mussolini.

Declares Willingness To Discuss Limitations On Quantitative Basis

Would Consider Restriction of Size of Fleets Rather Than Individual Ships

'NO MENACE'

No Reason to Believe Japan Building Larger Ships

Tokyo, Feb. 13—(AP)—Japan refused formally tonight to divulge secrets of her naval construction in reply to demands for information by Great Britain, the United States and France.

Japan scored herself willing, however, to discuss naval limitation on a quantitative basis—restricting the size of fleets rather than individual ships.

The formal note contended Japan failed "to see any logical reason" for assuming she was planning to build warships beyond the limitations of the 1936 London naval treaty.

The Intention of Menace.

The government insisted, moreover, that Japan has "no intention whatever of possessing any armament which would menace other countries."

The declaration was contained in notes handed to the British, United States and French Ambassadors by Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese vice-minister of foreign affairs.

It answered the three-power demand for information by Feb. 20 at 12 o'clock noon Japan naval building program contemplates 54,000 tons in excess of 36,000 tons.

1936 Accord

The 1936 naval accord binds Great Britain, the United States and France to the 36,000-ton limitation, qualitative limitation—individual ships. Russia and Germany are not signatories similarly by parallel treaties with Great Britain.

Japan is not a signatory. Construction of the battleship or battleship larger than 35,000 tons from treaty members of the pact limit.

FOLDER AND BOLDER TRANSIENTS

Deseronto, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP)—Transients here have become so bold residents report finding overshoes on the door after dark. Others, invited indoors, refuse, as part of a tour. But besides eating, they like shopping and picture shows.

Holes and bumps in the air! Many passengers in airplanes have experienced them. "Holes" are simply places in the air where the airplane's motor receives less support. They may be caused by running into a downdraft; or the plane, cruising in rising air may fall still air; or a wind shear may increase, or a head wind decrease. Bumps are the reverse of holes. They are places where the support is increased. They may be felt when a plane runs into an updraft, or into a head wind

CHANNEL-CUTTING IN LOWER REACHES OF RIVER STOPPED

Channels Already Cut Help Carry Off Surplus Water

WATER RECEDING

City officials in charge of flood operations ordered a watchful waiting policy today as swiftly moving waters of the Moira River poured from the upper levels to the lower stretches flooding the ice field below the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge and effectively preventing any further attempts at channel cutting.

Opening of channels yesterday by city workmen which established connection between the pent-up water flowing beneath the main ice jam that stretches between the city bridges, and the open water, also outpouring of water that is streaming down from the northern areas at a speed estimated to be between fifteen and twenty miles an hour resulted in a lowering of the river levels approximately twelve inches.

Settling Started

Decided settling of the main ice jam was apparent this morning. Pedestrians crossing the footbridge at an early hour reported a distinct lowering beneath the main ice jam that stretches between the city bridges, and the steady outpouring of water that is streaming down from the northern areas at a speed estimated to be between fifteen and twenty miles an hour resulted in a lowering of the river levels approximately twelve inches.

Water in the free channels on each side of the river below the Lower Bridge shows a decided lowering of the levels of yesterday. Shallah and anchor ice that impeded progress of the outflowing water is gradually being removed from the mouth of the river by the swift current that began Saturday after the breaking away and d'sinte-gration of a jam of solid ice field below the railway bridge.

Water Receding

Flood waters have inundated cellars and basements in the west side Front Street building and are gradually receding. The basement of the Canadian Department Store shows only a few inches of water this morning as against that of Saturday, however, still contain water as a result of slow outward seepage.

There is nothing we can do for two days but wait for developments," unusual develops," City Engineer Mott stated this morning. "Water is flooding the ice field areas south of the railway bridge and connecting with the free channel at the river mouth, preventing any appreciable lowering of levels. We have decided not to engage in any more cutting operations at present. We are keeping a strict watch on the movements of water and ice and are standing by in case of an emergency."

A heavy volume of water is still streaming down from the upper levels of the river, beneath the main ice-jam and through the open channels at the river mouth.

Icefields at Camellton and Corbyville are still intact with little chance of disintegration occurring unless an unexpected rise in temperature takes place or heavy rains come.

PANSIES BLOOMING AT MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View, Feb. 12 (Special) —That spirky of spring that wafted its warm breath over the village of Bloomfield the other day leaving a small trail of blooming pansies in its wake, passed all the farm of Clark Sprung here today and drew from sunscorned ground a brilliantly colored display of these flowers.

Vivid colors of purple and orange greeted a surprised farmer this morning as the pansies flaunted their blooms above a bank of discarded snow near the house. This is the first time that these blooms have bloomed in this vicinity at this time of the year, according to old-timers here.

Belleville Collegiate Wins Quinte Drama Festival

Tom Raby of Napanee And Irving Rosen of Belleville Awarded Cups

NAPANEE COMPETES

Belleville Collegiate dramatic group was awarded the Milburn Cup, the Bay of Quinte Drama Festival, held last evening when the players defeated the Napanee entry by a very good margin of 30 points. Dr. Kingdon, director of the Queen's University Dramatic Club, was adjudicator. The adjudicator, Tom Raby, of Napanee and Irving Rosen, of Belleville was cups for best individual performances.

A large audience was present in the Auditorium last evening and the program composed of three one-act plays, "The Monkey's Paw" by Belleville Collegiate directed by Miss Dorothy Harris, was followed up, "Dust of the Road" by Napanee directed by Mrs. Ross Hunter, and the concluding play, "The Finger of God" by a Belleville Collegiate group directed by Mrs. Lorne Foster was thoroughly enjoyed. Before the curtain rose between the acts, the Collegiate Band conducted by Mr. Ross Hunter, provided a splendid programme of music.

The Competition

Mr. MacLaurin, Principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute, in presenting the cups in a brief and dress welcomed the large audience expressing the pleasure he had to see such large numbers interested in the drama. He explained that two plays formed competition and in addition to the Milburn Cup to be awarded to the best group, individual awards would be made to the two best players in ten runners-up, as decided by the adjudicator, Mrs. Reed.

As the program closed Miss Merry in introducing the adjudicator, Mrs. Reed referred to her work as director of Queen's Dramatic Club which had produced everything from "Oedipus Rex" to "Waiting for Lefty" with outstanding success in Festival work. Mrs. Reed would, in addition to deciding the winner, make comments on each play.

"Dust of the Road"

"Dust of the Road" by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, the Napanee entry was a very interesting and tremendously interesting play with a mystic touch. The lighting assisted in this effect and could have been used to better advantage. The part of the tramp was particularly convincing, and was the best single performance of the evening, the actor building it up into a very strong part. The audibility was good except for the Old Man who was handicapped by the tremulous tones of old age. This might better have been sacrificed for clarity of tone. The interpretation was handicapped by starting too slowly. A mystic lighting effect should have been provided on the entrance of the tramp. The team work was excellent, each acting toward the person to whom they were talking, the reaction of the characters to each other was natural. The movement was splendid, there was no movement in that without a reason and purpose. The play gathered headway and the last scene was splendid, the climax was clear and strong. This play was quite well furnished.

Cast:
Peter Steele ..... Wes Allenbruck
Jim McCrae ..... Reta Elliott
An Old Man ..... Jim McCraw
A Tramp ..... Tom Raby

"The Boor"

In "The Boor" A Tchekoff comedy played by the Belleville Collegiate under the direction of Miss Merry, the audibility was very good at first but all spoke clearly when the play got into its stride. The grouping and movement were extremely good and natural, the players at times hardly appearing to be acting. Constance Helena who did exactly the sort of thing a woman would, especially of a woman who had her eye on herself. The interpretation was consistently consistent with the work was good. The pace was varied. The climax was a weak point, the players had given out too strongly in the first of the play. The atmosphere and scene was excellent, the makeup good especially that of Luka who had the most perfect makeup of an old man the adjudicator had seen. Helena was consistently natural, the shading was good and she suggested maturity. Grigoyi was not sufficiently mature. The make-up in this play was splendid.

Cast:
Helena Ivanovna Popov (a young widow) ..... Jean Stobie
Grigoyi Smernov (a country gentleman) ..... Gerald Alyea
Luka (a servant) ..... Jack Evans

"The Finger of God"

Although this play was not in competition, Mrs. Reed commented on its presentation. It too suffered from insufficiently strong voice for the audience for the mystical element. Benson was excellent, although the audibility at first was not good. Strickland was very good, his voice was clear throughout. He showed more variation of tone than the other actors. The interpretation was excellent, the pace and variation was good and the setting good.

Cast:
Strickland ..... Irving Kroch
Benson ..... Jack Fleming
A Girl ..... Antoinette Foster

Trenton WOMAN ADMITS STEALING RINGS

Allegedly Picked up Articles While Jeweller Busy With Customer

Trenton, Feb. 12.—(Special)—A rather demure and sad looking dressed young Belleville woman stood before Magistrate H. J. Butler in police court here yesterday and pleaded guilty to a charge of conversion admitted, that she entered Ralph Bonter's jewellery shop on Dundas Street and stole a diamond engagement ring and a wedding ring therefrom. Crown evidence showed that the woman walked into the store during business hours and picked out two valuable rings out of a counter display, while the jeweller was waiting on another customer. The woman then proceeded entered the store alone and left hurriedly after she had questioned the jeweller about an article he had for sale. The theft was soon discovered the picture at this point. With the jeweller's description of them. On the Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., suggested that she be punished then said "that would be the last time." The Magistrate remanded accused a week for sentence.

As Air Force had denied stealing an auto and the Magistrate enlarged on bail of $1,000 until Feb. 14 when parties involved a chance to make settlement. The Crown pointed out that if the accused proved that the charge the accused would lose his position at the R.C.A.F. Station.

ATTEND SPRING STYLE SHOW IN TORONTO

Leaving Belleville today, Mr. Newton Wilbur, manager for the Belleville Unit of Tip Top Tailors Limited will attend the annual convention of Tip Top Tailors Limited from coast to coast to be held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, for four days beginning Feb. 21.

The convention will serve as an occasion first for displaying to the Tip Top selling force the new style creations which will be featured for the summer season. It is expected that a highlight of this part of the convention will be a showing of several Tip Top models which were displayed last month in New York at the 36th semi-annual convention of the International Association of Clothiers. Tip Top Tailors was the only Canadian manufacturer whose style models were shown at this important style event. All the more noteworthy is the fact that reports show that the models conceived by this Canadian firm practically swept the show.

In addition to visual presentations there will be a number of talks, will be a series of discussions conducted by key executives. The men will embark on a tour of Tip Top's model plant on Fleet street, skirting the new building. Among the executives who will address the convention will be Mr. D. Dunkerley, general manager; Mr. F. P. MacDonald, general manager, and Mr. A. M. Talbot, general sales manager.

Suggestions Being Kept For Future References

Dozens of suggestions and theories advanced by Belleville residents connected with flood control methods by the Moira River are being carefully preserved in a special scrap book by the office of the city engineer.

"We welcome these suggestions, no matter how far reached they may appear. Every one of them is being given consideration," it was stated by City Engineer Chas. Mott whose book of reports on the Moira daily grows larger and bulkier.

The special record contains numerous photos of the river previous to and after the initial breakup of the ice, which now lacks the lower channel of the river.

A few more suggestions advanced regarding the manner in which the more solid ice might be loosened by other than actual man power, include the use of thermite (a special metallic compound which burns at an exceedingly high temperature) tried during one flood several years ago, and the use also of flame-throwers such as were used in the Great War.

Forestry in Ontario

Ed. Note: Following is an address given by Mr. H. W. Crosbie, Chief Forester of Ontario, before the Wood Literary Society this week.

The subject of this paper is Forestry in Ontario, with particular reference to Administration of the Forest Branch of Ontario, of which headquarters is located in Toronto.

Many people have a vague idea of what Forestry is. It is frequently mistaken for a botanical explanation. Simply stated, Forestry is the science and art of management, whereby the greatest economic results can be obtained from the production of forest crops for the use and maintenance of forests for fish and game, for water conservation, for recreation or for the many other uses of a forest.

For administration purposes the forests of Ontario consisting of 138,000,000 acres of land are divided into twelve districts; the Trent District with headquarters at Tweed is one of these districts.

The administration of a district involves the many phases of Forestry; the principles ones being timber Administration, Land Sales and Locations, Forest Protection and Reforestation. Timber Administration includes sale of cutting rights of timber on Crown Lands, and control of the cut of timber on these lands upon which cutting rights have been sold, and includes the measurement of timber cut, which is also called the scaling of timber and the assessment of charges; it also includes the work of controlling cutting operations in compliance with conditions under which timber may be cut and administration of the Regulations of the Crown Timber and other Acts which control the cutting of timber on Crown Lands.

Another duty of a District Office is the administration of settlement on Crown Lands. This work involves the inspection of lands applied for, for settlement. Lands in the Crown which are suitable for settlement may be secured by those who wish to settle, providing the lands are suitable. Before prospective settlers are allowed to locate an inspection as to suitability of land for settlement must be made. The land applied for must have fifty per cent. of the land suitable for agricultural purposes, must be within reasonable distances from other settlers, near roads and schools. Every effort is being made to prevent the settlement of lands which cannot be profitably farmed. A person acquires lands under certain conditions which include residence on lands, construction of buildings, and clearance of lands; it is one of our duties to see that these conditions are complied with. Many land locations are cancelled because of non-fulfilment of contract of settlement; the title of land when first settled remains in the Crown and deeds to land to be granted until the Government is satisfied that the settler will become established on the land.

Finally and not the least arduous and interesting is the protection of forests from damage by fire, as I shall discuss. I will outline more in detail this work.

Outline of Forest Protection

There is little need for me to stress the economics of good forestry protection. It is now generally realized that our forests are not inexhaustible although this was not true a few years ago. I am not one of those who believe that our forests are very shortly going to be devoid of timber, but I do believe that unless we intelligently administer the forests which remain there is grave danger of us, in Ontario, being in a manner of years the great value which is derived. The forests of Ontario constitute one of the most valuable natural resources and protecting them from fire is essential for their perpetuation and for our future welfare.

Fires Recorded Since 1845

Our earliest recorded forest fires in Ontario of any size occurred about 1845 when extensive areas were burned west of Lake Superior. In 1855 another destructive fire commenced at Lady Evelyn Lake but what is now the Temagami Provincial Forest and burned eastward to Temiskaming up the Montreal River to its source and westward along the height of land over two hundred miles to near McChipioten on Lake Superior.

These with subsequent fires impressed upon the minds of the people the immense waste of timber. In 1878 the first forest protection legislation was passed. In 1885 forest rangers were first appointed—21 in number for the whole province. This number was increased following each disastrous fire. Laws were strengthened but the hazard increased greatly. In 1911, severely fires were in the Porcupine and Cochrane districts. Much valuable timber was burned. This was only another more destructive fire occurred in the July following. Two hundred and fifty lives were lost and 1,500 square miles of timber land destroyed.

Following this catastrophe steps were taken to establish a fire protection organization of the province on a more efficient basis. In 1917 the Forest Fires Prevention Act was passed which is in force at the present time. A Provincial Forester was appointed for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Act. The existing systematic fire patrol organization in Ontario dates therefore from that year. It has, of course, been extended, the handling of certain areas improved upon and the whole service made more efficient.

Prior to 1917 the responsibility for control of forest fires was in the hands of Crown Timber agents, from 1917 to 1924. The Forestry Branch was responsible only for control of forest fires in 1924. A reorganization placed all field administration under the Dept. of Lands and Forests.

That part of the Province within the fire districts is all lands in the Province north and west of a line extending east roughly from Port Severn to Lake Nipissing, hence north to the town of Pembroke.

Divided Into Twelve Districts

For administration purposes this part of the province is divided into twelve districts and includes an area in these districts of 138,000,000 acres in extent. The men in charge of these districts have supervision over forest protection, timber and land administration within their respective territories. They are mostly all technically trained foresters. The principle of decentralization is followed, and each District Forester is given complete authority over his district. He is allowed to handle his district as he sees fit and is held fully responsible.

Under each District Forester there are Assistant Forester, Chief Forest Rangers, Deputy Chief Forest Rangers, bushmen, car drivers, pump operators, tractor and car operators, telephone linemen, rangers and timber cruisers and cruisers. The policy has been to employ technically trained men and technically trained men with the forestry viewpoint — men who have the ability to think in terms of growing timber.

Forestry Needs Much Training

Many changes have taken place in the forest protection service during the past few years. Out of a service which a few years ago was not even skilled labour and was assigned to any inhabitant of a forest region, has developed a specialization of forest fire suppression and prevention which requires many abilities of a thorough woodsman. Knowledge of many engineering sciences, successful command of men and a talent for law enforcement and enlisting public co-operation.

The new profession has developed because of necessity, new method and equipment had to be devised to keep abreast of invention in other fields in order that such may be seized and adapted. Telephony, topography, meteorology, aviation, photography, range finding and surveying are but some of the sciences which have been made part of methods of detecting and controlling forest fires to say nothing of the mechanical perfection of equipment and the systematizing of feeding, transporting and handling men under most adverse circumstances. To estimate the public into grasping cars with fire new trails have been blazed into the fields of psychology and publicity. The technique of forest legislation and process of enforcement is an essential knowledge. Finally there is the actual fighting of fire — never the same — defying all rules — profiting by all previous experience but calling always for new and decisive suggesting.

The Trent District

Now a statement of what we have done in the Trent district, with parts of which some of you are acquainted. The Trent District with headquarters at Tweed consists of a fire district within an administrative district. The administrative district comprises approximately 7 million acres or 10,000 townships while the fire district which includes the southern parts of Haliburton and Renfrew Counties, and the northern parts of Peterborough, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, and Lanark Counties and parts of the District of Muskoka, has an area of approximately 3,250,000 acres.

Before re-organization, under the old conditions, each employee was given a section of territory to protect. He spent most of his time in patrolling trails or engaged in occasional trip to an observation tower. Each man looked after his fire outside his district, the knowledge was of no value. If he discovered one in his own territory he went to it, and tried to put it out. When he could not do this alone he required from one to three days to get help. All the time he was engaged on suppression work, his district had no protection. He was without support of other members of the service. Co-operation between members was absent and correlation of functions of members of the staff did not exist.

In forest fire protection, it is realized that there are four distinct functions of staff—detection, communication, suppression and prevention. The advent of the permanent steel lookout tower and improved means of communication have revolutionized the whole scheme of fire protection. Fifteen years ago their was not a permanent lookout tower in the whole Trent District. Today the responsibility for detecting fires on all of the area is entrusted almost entirely to lookouts. Under present conditions, a few lookouts stationed on commanding eminences are in the work of detecting, locating and reporting fire. They are usually equipped they can determine within a few feet the bearing and approximate size of a fire up to 40 miles or more away. The facts are immediately reported over telephone wires which have been erected and in a few minutes members of the local suppression staff are on the way. Only fires are missed by no disruption of the detective agency, the territory is protected at all times. Only fires are missed by continuous surveillance and reinforcements are frequently dispatched before the facts of the lookout report alone.

86 Men on Staff

For forest administration purposes in the Trent District we employ a staff of 86 men. This staff is supplemented by extra men in times of fires. At one time during the season of 1936 over nine hundred men were employed by us for fire suppression. In recent years we have erected seventeen eighty-foot towers on the highest peaks of land throughout the district. These towers are equipped with an eight windowed weather-proof cabin in which is located a fire ranger stationed in summer. An altitude surmounts the map; telephones connect with each tower. Telephone lines are also in the cabin. All towers are connected directly by a telephone system. In the Trent District we have constructed during recent years 500 miles of telephone lines for our own use. Incidentally telephone lines which are also used by local settlers, as it is realized that a great convenience is given to them and it enables us to communicate with them in the event of a fire occurring. We are operating some of these lines commercially and considerable revenue is obtained in this way.

System of Protection

Now let me illustrate the working of our system by a sample fire. To facilitate this I have a map showing towers and telephone systems. The fire centre of each yellow circle is the location of towers. Ranger Branch telephone lines; the red lines are Forest Service telephone lines built by the Ontario Forestry Branch. The tower observer on duty at Calabogie Tower sights a fire. He examines it closely and takes a reading of its direction from the tower which is, we shall say, 60 degrees. He immediately communicates with Myers Cave and Malawatchin tower observers, who are also observing from the same area. These other tower observers immediately discover the smoke when directed or in all probabilities have already detected it. They also take a closed bearing of their direction reading, which are, say, Malawatchin 225 degrees, Myers Cave 271 degrees. An intersection of these readings gives the fire location accurately as being on Lot 8, Concession 7, Effingham Township. The smoke chaser, on whose patrol area the fire exists is immediately advised of the existence of the fire, its approximate size, and the nature of the timber the fire is burning in; this information has previously been obtained by aerial photography and ground surveys. He also advises the Chief Forest Ranger's Office in Bancroft of this fire. The Chief Forest Ranger or his assistant immediately issues instructions for procedure to be taken in suppression. Rules are established if it is considered necessary. Equipment is rushed to the fire. Usually the ranger goes to the fire as soon as possible using the best means of transportation available, taking with him as many extra fire fighters as is considered necessary. The fire is continuously observed by the tower observer and if there is evidence of this fire requiring more men or equipment, they are immediately despatched. In this way by towers, fires are quickly detected, by telephone lines the suppression organization is despatched to the fire, fires are continuously under surveillance, resulting in the fire usually being extinguished with a small area burned.

Fire Fighting Methods

Many different methods are employed in the actual suppression of forest fires; much depends on the type of fire, its size and location. The usual method is that of direct attack, actually extinguishing the fire by the use of soil and water, the soil being shovelled onto the fire and the water placed on the fire by portable pumps which pump water from various natural sources of supply. These pumps weigh less than one hundred pounds and will pump 50 to 60 gallons per minute up to 4000 feet distance.

In extinguishing a forest fire is sometimes dug a trench along the face of the fire, so that it is impossible for it to spread. In the Trent District back fires is resorted to. This is effected by the setting of fires along the trail or line at creeks where it can be controlled, which deflects the fire and started for the control of fires. Each presents a definite problem. Men in charge of fire operations must be well-trained and capable of good judgment. Fire wars for many years thought to be inevitable and only to be extinguished by heavy rains. Experience has proved in this district during the past fifteen years that rains are not necessary to the control of fires.

There are as many fires in Trent District as formerly. There were ten times as many people in the forests of this district in 1937 than there were in the season of 1920. The danger of fire is therefore greatly increased and the number of fires started had consequently increased.

In 1920 there were 300 fires which burned a total of 5,344ft. acres. In 1936, 190 fires destroyed 3,965 acres. Those were the two most exceptionally high hazard. On the other hand in 1931, a year with fires were 96 fires with a loss of only 460 acres.

The chief causes of fires are settlers, campers, lighting, smokers and railroads, which make up nearly all of incendiary causes.

Another phase of our work is fire prevention. This effected by hazard disposal, which is the removal of inflammable debris, the cause of many fires, such as roads, sawmills, railways and other places.

It is a commendable fact that the residents in the forest districts co-operate with the Forestry Department in this work. The greater majority of the settlers realize that they themselves benefit greatly.

Boys Appointed Junior Wardens

In recent years the interest of the boys of the district has been stimulated by appointing the senior boys as Junior Fire Wardens on recommendation of school teachers and fire wardens. They are furnished with badges and receive literature on forest conservation.

The forest areas are under continual surveillance for harmful insect infestations and tree diseases. Economical methods of eradication are undertaken. Injurious insects are controlled by the introduction of parasitic insects which destroy them. At the present time there is a serious outbreak of spruce sawfly which is a native of the Canadian forests and in the Entomological Laboratory in Belleville are liberated in the infected areas and control of the sawfly is being undertaken.

Last season, cooperating with the Dominion Government, the Ontario Forest Service employed for service and training in woods work, 250 unemployed youths of the Province's number of whom were allotted to the Trent District.

Most of these lads had, due to economic conditions never been in employment; many had graduated from high school, or had left high school before graduation, but had been unable to obtain employment. The project was to train these young men to enable them to secure gainful employment. In addition to training for work, it was necessary also to boost up their morale, and make them feel that they had a place in the world. Several months of employment in our Service effected marked changes in many of them. They soon became very enthusiastic about the work, and rapidly developed into good woodsmen and workmen. Before leaving our Service many have found employment. They were trained in actual bush work and were given a course of lectures in their work. It is expected that this will be continued in this district again this season.

Has a Complete Collection Of Mineral Divining Rods

Clifford Spry, Marmora, Has Perfect Detectors of Own Invention

Marmora, Feb. 13—Mr. Clifford Spry, blacksmith of Marmora, has a complete collection of mineral divining rods of his own invention. Two years of careful, intensive study are required for the perfecting of these detectors as they are also called. The inventor has been prospecting for about seven years and since acquiring a valuable property north of Crowe Lake about four years ago has considered the advantage of a mineral detector in assisting in his search for such minerals as he considered the property to possess. A different rod for each mineral he has found necessary. Two years ago he started on his invention and his perfect working was not assured until last September. Local mining concerns permitted Mr. Spry to test out the accuracy of his rods over vein widths already proven. Later he visited the Kirkland Lake district to demonstrate his rods and again had satisfactory results. Mineralogists of mining companies who visited Mr. Spry and checked up with him on his local findings in the state his invention to be all that he claims for it. He has also received offers from large mining companies to go over properties they have become interested in with a view to determining with his rods what mineral widths and lengths there may be. Three requests to search with his rods for minerals have been made by a Newfoundland sea captain, whom Mr. Spry planned to meet in a Toronto hotel.

Rural Dean A. R. Caldwell attended a rural deanery meeting at Stirling on Thursday.

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building.

THE DEATH OF PRINCE NICHOLAS

From the earthly scene there has just passed Prince Nicholas of Greece, nephew of King George Second of Greece and son of King George First and brother of King Constantine. He in his life had known changes of fortune, having twice tasted exile and having seen his father assassinated at Saloniki. At one time before the Great War he was governor of Saloniki.

His was however no idle life. Besides his various military posts he was a writer and a painter who won general praise, and he made and directed plays. In his years of exile it is said that his fortunes were augmented by earnings from his paintings while in Paris.

He and his family have always enjoyed the friendship of the British rulers and of other kings in the more spacious days before 1914. His daughter, Marina, married the youngest son of King George Fifth of England, Prince George being now known as the Duke of Kent. She has the deep sympathy of the British people both in the homeland and in the Dominions. Another daughter is married to Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia.

THE CHANGE IN RUMANIA

According to reports from Bucharest there is general rejoicing among the Jewish residents of Rumania at the coming to power of the new Premier, the Patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox Church. There is no need to say that Goga, the former premier, who lasted only six weeks, is not lamented by the Jews in Rumania or elsewhere for his first step was to legislate against the several hundred thousand Jews in Rumania. Though he was forced because of his weak hold on the reins of power to modify these projected persecutions his enemies were not satisfied and he was forced to yield the permiership. The Jewish people have won so far in their fight and they are optimistic over the advent of the new government.

Only those close to the inside can tell what is behind the various movements which are taking place in that country.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO FRANCE

The forthcoming visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to France has been hailed by the press of both Britain and her idle neighbor with particular joy as tending to cement still closer the ties which bind the two nations. The spirit of the newspapers on both sides of the Channel is assuredly indicative of great friendship of the two, and for the other, France and the Empire of Britain are bound by ties of a very intimate character since the last twenty four years, because the peoples of these two lands joined their blood in the stream of sacrifice against autocracy.

The visit naturally will link the two friends in even closer bonds and as well it will have an effect upon the other states in Europe and elsewhere.

These have been visits between the heads of other states seemingly interested in affairs as they regard their own but the visits of the four in a visit of the tries chiefly. But there is a visit of the King to Paris more of pure friendship, owing to the peculiar position which the British monarch holds.

This will be the first visit away from the United Kingdom by the King of England since his accession to the throne and will be made a matter of congratulation to him and his Queen by the courteous people of France.

The British feeling for France grows. France has had plenty of troubles and has taken no little part in the affairs of the world towards the maintenance of peace among the nations and in efforts towards the removal of the menace of war. Britain realizes that France has been a steadfast ally. These two great powers, who have stood together for many years, have latterly upheld the cause of peace and democracy in no unstinted voice. These two nations which grew up side by side and have had a very potent influence upon one another in many ways can neither afford to nor have they desire to allow the ties to be taken.

They have been facing in recent months very great odds with threats to peace rising here and there, these two western nations of the world. They are stronger and able to defend themselves but want peace.

The visit too embraces a mission which further tends to bind the two, the fact that on this occasion, His Majesty will be visiting on French soil a memorial to the Australians who died in the Great War for Australia and the Empire and also for France. The little part of that land of France where the brave Australians slumber thousands of miles from their homeland becomes to Australians a little piece of Australia and to the Frenchmen a shrine before which they can meet and read the symbol of international effort and sacrifice for peace.

Here far from the battle smoke of a war-torn and slain China, where the guns of the invader bark death to civilian and soldier and destruction to property and trade, and bombs spread themselves against the helpless, here in Paris on the western limits of Europe two nations greet in peace, not in plans for aggrandizement but in peace, two nations who trust one another while so many others have lost every sense of security. France and Britain two of the great nations, which have advanced the progress of the world, especially in the political sphere, show to this day union in peace and a united front to keep peace.

BELLEVILLE FOLKS WHO HAVE COMPLAINED OF POOR RADIO RECEPTION recently will be interested to learn that poor radio reception has been general during the past month. In taking the matter up with Ottawa this Great Family Journal was advised that:

"Radio reception generally, has been very poor throughout the Dominion for the past month. The effects of SUN SPOTS, MAGNETIC STORMS, etc, has been such as to confine transmissions largely to limited daylight ranges, thus making it practically impossible to receive distant stations even average noise levels during evening hours. The high sensitivities at which receivers are usually operated, under these conditions, tends further to aggravate the situation. The above conditions are still quite widespread; however, we realize that in certain cases, local interference, may be responsible for abnormally high noise levels. Our Kingston Inspector carried out an investigation in Belleville on January 27 and was successful in locating and eliminating a source affecting almost the entire city. This may also be the case that Kingston has recently been received as to the possible source of the trouble in the western section and this will be looked into at the earliest possible moment. Amateur stations will also be checked by our Inspector, although I seriously doubt if these are responsible for such widespread disturbance."

WE NEVER KNEW UNTIL NOW THAT ELECTRIC HEATING PADS are capable of causing considerable radio interference. Electric razors are also bad actors for nearby and even distant radios, a prolific source of trouble according to radio experts, arises from blown-out fuses, replaced with tinfoil and copper, instead of new fuses—dangerous as well.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 12th., 1918.

At the annual meeting of the Canada & Northern, Limited, the reports showed that the company had enjoyed a prosperous year. The following officers were elected: President and General Manager, T. Marshall; Superintendent of Shops and Production, Albert P. White; Assistant Manager, Gladdens Brown; Secretary-Treasurer, Fred B. Henry; Vice President, J. C. Marsh. The above compose also the board of directors.

The hundreds of hockey fans who gathered at the arena here last night to witness the struggle for supremacy between Cobalt and Belleville, were sorely disappointed as Cobalt won, the score being 2 to 1. It was a fast exciting game for the winning of group 2. R. Hewitson was the referee. The following composed the teams: Belleville: — Hulin, Hagerman, Green, Arnold, D. Wilson and T. Whalen and Box substitute. Cobalt: — Holdick, Dobson, Fahey, Bowden, Hall Etherington, Rochaix, substitute.

Feb. 12th., 1908.

In spite of unfavorable weather over 500 people were present at the Old Fashioned Tea Meeting which was held in the Sunday School Rooms at Bridge Street Methodist Church last night. The pastor, the Rev. J. P. Wilson, was chairman and short addresses were made by Rev. J. W. Johnson, Mr. Henry Pringle, Mr. F. E. O'Flynn and Mr. Wm. Johnson. The affair was most enjoyable.

Mr. Russell Keast, of Hamilton, is home on a short visit.

Mr. T. E. Van Cott of the Bank of Montreal staff at Cookshire, Quebec, is visiting his parents at their home on Bridge street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Terrill, of Toronto, were visitors in the city today.

GRETNA GREEN

Gretna has a second "priest" and an old monopoly has vanished, according to the London Daily Express. A local "priest" has set up business in opposition to the gretnaman who has for a number of years acted the role of the obliging blacksmith.

It is odd that competition has been so long withheld. But the money in it has not been considerable, even with an average of 200 marriages a year. A fee of $100 once paid in recent times was a solitary exception. Then people began to be brought in by the sale of souvenirs to tourists.

No legal reason exists why there should not be a dozen smithies in Gretna Green. Scottish ceremonies, with a "blacksmith" in each of them. Scandal might lurk behind the counter of the local sweet shop announce that she was prepared to act as registrar and provide a handsome certificate as evidence of the ceremony.

Gretna Green seems to be for some people what the proverbial trousers of the lads are for others. Why so many should find a smithy there seems odd. But the smithy's private office is a problem in psychology. The proceedings in a Scots "irregular" marriage call for a warrant authorizing the Scots registrar. Properly regarded, a sheriff should be just as glamorous as a blacksmith.

Lasting Union

That the ceremony at Gretna ties the knot there need be no doubt. Plenty of litigants have found that out, even some who protested that they were under the influence of drink when they made their vows. A few lucky ones have been able to convince Scottish judges that they were only having a lark. But a Judge of the Court of Session takes a lot of persuasion to share in jokes other than those he makes himself. So, a Gretna wedding is binding as a necessarily Scottish marriage so long as the qualifications as to residence in Scotland have been regarded. One or other, or both, of the parties must have resided in Scotland for a period for 21 consecutive days immediately before the marriage. If one or the other of the parties must have had his or her usual residence in Scotland, the 21 days' residence is particularly to suit the case of a Scots soldier who may be making a brief return to his own land. Gretna has had the number of marriages in irregular marriages that is done in Gretna. There were 1,200 Gretna marriages over New Year's Eve and there were 2,419 in July.

The colloquial term general in Scotland is a man and woman who were not "married before the sheriff" for were they married they would register. By Scottish law they married themselves — by interchange of consent before two witnesses.

That is why the Gretna glamor is absurd. For, legally speaking, Gretna gives no more authenticity to the marriage than Auldclochan or Auchtermuchty. The top of Ben Nevis would be just as legal. The days when eloping princes and countesses had none of the facilities of the register office Gretna served a purpose.

The fanciful recollections of the past are not to be despised. Its people having changed, the Ministry of Transport might collaborate with a few road signs indicating the "picturesque motor'ats and bus passengers "Danger of Hasty Marriages Ahead."—Evening Gazette.

THE SPELLING BEE

Contests in spelling are coming back into popularity.

Experience has shown that instruction in spelling was somewhat neglected in many schools. It was felt that spelling could be learned incidentally, in connection with other school work. But hundreds of people made many complaints about school graduates who couldn't write letters with proper spelling, and there has been a revival interest in this art.

Why is it necessary that words be spelled correctly? If a man writes "thoro-ough" C-o-f-f, he may say that you know perfectly well what he means, and that a word that spelled in accordance with the sound is really better spelled than if letters are put into the word that do not express the sound.

It is true that the English language has many eccentric spellings. But to correct all those spelling habits of the people that have come down from ancient times, would be a very formidable task. That it is better to take the spelling book as it is, and make the most of it.

A poorly spelled letter is a good deal like torn and ragged clothes. The man who has them about may be a very good man, but he does not look neat and methodical, and accurate, and people have more confidence in his ability to do things in a correct way.—Tell Reporter.

SCHOOL BANDS

The Globe and Mail some little time ago had an editorial, headed "Music Education Journals" which I believe your interesting journal should bring to the attention of its readers, stated Mr. J. A. Wiggins, Secretary of the Canadian Band Master's Association, Toronto, to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, a few days ago. The Globe Editor Bennett asked, "What were the conditions which caused the Pied Piper's criminals?" and I submit to you that this question should this year and over in the ears of parents, school teachers, ministers, service clubs, and the Press, be the editorial query of every paper in the Province.

The Globe, in the Editor Bennett's report, showing, that last year, under the age of 21 there were over 4,000 in the courts, between that age and 19, 5,984 boys were disciplined for various offences, and that 1,000 were juvenile, more than 100 it is said.

The Editor Bennett also said: "Is it home influence and surroundings?

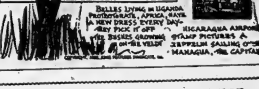
—Is it boredom at the work?—Is it too much leisure time without being profitably employed?, nothing to do but the cheap movies or street corner, finally becoming actively criminal?" Each and all of these questions are partly true, but which often but chiefly blight their lives.

It further queries: "Should we not seriously ask ourselves, what was the matter, like the Pied Piper, they came?—What were the economic conditions of the school days?—Was there any religious or social influence?—Was there any ideal given for their emotions, their overflowing energy, and guide them upwards?

These and similar questions if asked by organized society and sufficiently answered, would prevent practically all crime. What boys of 15 to 16 need is not the ban, but counsel, guidance, and some planned scheme of recreation that will excite their interest. Now Sir, I want to suggest that one of the greatest influences that count in the formation of character is that of playing in school and juvenile bands, Service club bands and orchestras.

Recently a commission was appointed in a big American city "to determine what was the best method for why Bob boys had been arrested for misdemeanors last year and given free passage in and to Report interested me greatly, it was found that the boys were fond of school music, and but 3 had ever played in a school band. Here is the point considering testimon.ol for the value of music to occupy the youth's leisure time!

Many pasts of Ontario are today taking a great deal of interest in boys' bands, both in the Public and High Schools, and where bands are working, the reports show that it has been proved over and over again that the Boy Problem is the very best human ser and solution that humanity can have, for it has taken boys off the street corners, away from the lurking influences of bad companions that parents know nothing about, and has given them something that has not only proved to be a recreation for many, but has provided them with a way to enhance their living after leaving school, and has also given their minds don't go wrong for one of the first results is in awakening in their hearts a love for God in doing their work well, a sort of respect that is always manifested in the makeup of a useful man or woman. Bands are a big asset in every way in keeping their life right.



A question we are often asked, is "Can any child learn to play an instrument? With nearly 90 years experience as a teacher, we have no hesitation in saying, we have yet to come across a child who could not learn. True, some may be slower than others, but all are capable of development, the father may say he has no music in him, but how does he know? As a matter of fact one will hear him going down the street humming or whistling a tune, provided he is not tone deaf, but has never been encouraged to develop his ear. Try it father, you will be a rare antidote for juvenile del'nquency."

Red Patch Padre

Ven. F. G. Scott, Archdeacon of Quebec, a speaker in Woodstock Presbyterian Church holds a unique place in the affections of all who served overseas with the 1st Canadian Division. He had, of course, a long tenure as chaplain, having gone in 1914 and remaining with the troops until wounded on September, 1916; and was senior chaplain from 1915. During four years he shared the hardships and hardships of the rank and file, and the thing the soldiers never forgot was his cheerfulness in all circumstances. Wherever his immediate duty seemed to call for a distribution of cigarettes, the rendering of aid to wounded men, or the writing of messages to the next-of-kin, he did it with a smile that made it forget that he was a minister of the Gospel. He took advantage of every opportunity to be with his men in their individuals, for public services and for conferences of body communion. Thus he was respected as a clergyman by all creeds and by all ranks, and endeared him as well a very gallant gentleman. The Great War has been over for nearly 19 years and Lt.-Col. Frederick George Scott, C.M.G., D.S.O., is about 70 years of age, but there is no Canadian who enjoys more as speaker and lecturer than he. Archdeacon Scott holds an honored place in the affections of Canadian Imperialists of every stripe.

That Body of Ours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Art and Science of Medicine

As a youngster there were three kinds of medicine men in the world, and all of whom were considered outstanding because of their ability in the art of healing, in which they treated the patient and the family with a few words and a few pills and they didn't bother to answer "food" questions, for they were personally expected this and were willing to put up with this treatment and they would get well in a few days, well trained and experienced.

That is why the Gretna glamor is absurd. For, legally speaking, Gretna gives no more authenticity to the marriage than Auldclochan or Auchtermuchty. The top of Ben Nevis would be just as legal. The days when eloping princes and countesses had none of the facilities of the register office Gretna served a purpose.

The fanciful recollections of the past are not to be despised. Its people having changed, the Ministry of Transport might collaborate with a few road signs indicating the "picturesque motor'ats and bus passengers "Danger of Hasty Marriages Ahead."—Evening Gazette.

THE SPELLING BEE

Contests in spelling are coming back into popularity.

Experience has shown that instruction in spelling was somewhat neglected in many schools. It was felt that spelling could be learned incidentally, in connection with other school work. But hundreds people made many complaints about school graduates who couldn't write letters with proper spelling, and there has been a revival interest in this art.

Why is it necessary that words be spelled correctly? If a man writes "thoro-ough" C-o-f-f, he may say that you know perfectly well what he means, and that a word that spelled in accordance with the sound is really better spelled than if letters are put into the word that do not express the sound.

It is true that the English language has many eccentric spellings. But to correct all those spelling habits of the people that have come down from ancient times, would be a very formidable task. That it is better to take the spelling book as it is, and make the most of it.

A poorly spelled letter is a good deal like torn and ragged clothes. The man who has them about may be a very good man, but he does not look neat and methodical, and accurate, and people have more confidence in his ability to do things in a correct way.—Tell Reporter.

Children should be taught to spell well, as they are taught to keep their clothes neatly. A person who spells accurately is methodical, and accurate, and people have more confidence in his ability to do things in a correct way.—Tell Reporter.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

"Did you tell Miss Graham that I was prepared to add twenty-five percent to her present business and pay her now, if she'll come with us?" he asked her under contract. We are the right ones for some other company signing her?"

Maydra leaned down the child's sandwiches and a glass of iced coffee. "Yes, I told her," she added, politely "telling me what this is all about? Of course it's interesting to hear two females fighting over your head, but it's a little less strain on the nerves and digestion to know what the battle's raging about."

"We want you for our better advertising campaigns, Miss Graham," Mason Noble explained, smiling broadly as if dawned on him. He had often had her pegged a girl of high intelligence. "Just the kind of thing, in spite of his explicit instructions, your late illustrations have been, Adolphi has signed for an entire series, provided you're the girl in each illustration, and we could get a number of high-class contracts. If we had those to use you for her model. We're prepared to pay well for the privilege, too."

"I couldn't possibly leave Suzanne," Maydra replied, "and I don't could help Gerda evenings and days off, if I had to."

"Suzanne wouldn't stand in the way of your advancement, I'm sure," Graham broke in. Insisted. "She's not the sort to hold anyone back from realizing her most ambitious herself!"

"This is a personal decision, and Suzanne has nothing to do with it," Maydra said firmly, wishing she'd never allowed herself to become involved that makes it impossible to sign anything at the present time. Long-term contracts!"

"But short terms will await you," Rene blurted anxiously.

"And other firms will find me busy—in the evenings to listen to their propositions!" Maydra repeated.

"So you see I was right, Gene! You're wasting your time!"

He stood up and opened his wallet. Took out, a thin, folded check-book.

"Let me give you our check to cover next month's rent, Miss Graham," your spare time, of course, he added hastily, when the blonde girl she was going to refuse "whenever Gerda can work you in comfortably!"

Maydra took the check without glancing at the figure written on it, and slipped it into her pajama jacket pocket. Gerda let Gene have the big studio living-room to show him the new illustrations, nearing completion.

Clearing the food and dishes away, Maydra answered questions concerning Gerda had said about Gene Noble's work. It doesn't sort of makes a little more, probably." Works even as we do. Only he approaches his descriptions more accurate.

Then the door opened and closed and Gene's footsteps echoed down the hallway. Maydra shook the ice in the kitchenette, her long, slanting golden eyes lively with excitement.

"Look, you've the luck to get in touch all right, Maydra. Look just seem to roll your way. Lucky beggar!"

"Yes," Maydra murmured thoughtfully, "doesn't it, Gerda?" Remembering Tommy Chisholm, and how much he would love to love him rather terribly. Remembered that he had asked her to marry Sam Locke, and that seemed even a more desirable situation, could she forget Tommy enough to love Sam. Respect him, certainly. Trust him in a business affair, a little. But not love him.

"And, Gerda, I'm not kidding, seriously, you should see old Gene tearing his hair and pacing down the roof in most of his staff for daring to ring in anything in the nature of extra expense! Honestly, he makes us get our own models—in his spare time, of course. Worry. And certainly none of them have your looks. They'd drop dead with surprise!"

In the morning Maydra deposited the checks from Rene and Gene in her savings account, and went on down to the studio. There was not thinking much about the space she'd promised Gerda for the man Sunnine a lively competition, to book!

"Gerda and just what," Maydra suggested sweetly, "would I use for money? Of course, you don't understand that such things are useless—trifles!"

"Let me be your 'angel,'" he urged. "Let me back you, Maydra! I'd be happy to. All strictly legal. Contract, interest, terms, and everything. I'd want nothing else from you from ....., from things like that. Your marriage you've contemplated!"

"Others must have thought of this, Wake; other men must have offered it, and found it unsuccessful and dangerous. Gerda established a home in town, with their enormous facilities for research and overhead—how, must have considered such a venture, and decided it unsound from the business angle!"

"I don't believe it, Maydra! Why, I'm willing to ..... say ..... Kay that I think college girls would appreciate having a studio apartment of them, and I know the other women would be glad to have rooms would patronize such a place. Please let me help you, darling!"

"Let me think about it, Wake? Let me talk this over with Gerda? She temperament angle!"

"But ....but what about Locke, Maydra? If you go ahead with this engagement ..... if he buys you a ring, and it announced ..? I'm sure he would consider it, so obviously upset about it all, that he had lost the glitter and glamour of many million dollars that you couldn't count then no matter how you tried. He'd probably have driven away from the streamlined, custom-built limousine he'd arrived from the penthouse....the country estate on long Island, the yacht, the polo ponies, with every newspaper, magazine ad-photographure of him counting on. He was just a fervently attractive, extraordinarily handsome young man in impeccable evening garb ..... standing worrying fretfully over a lovely young girl with wide, violet eyes, thickly fringed with dark, curling, silken lashes. He was mad about every man. He might have been husband, sweetheart, lover, and he was terribly, sincerely worried about her. Worried to the point of wanting to help her out of anything at all, so long as he got rid of her, kept her from being taken away from this grave danger he feared.

"Sam? Do you mean you're afraid he might sue me, Wake?"

"I'm afraid he might, a little grimly, that Sam Locke has never been balked in anything he set out to do yet, Maydra. Anything he happened to want. And it's too late to teach that type dog new tricks!"

"I'm not afraid, Wake, thank you!" Ever so little annoyed by the condescension he was being shown him, being high hat to a man whose yacht rode in the same harbor, from shirtsleeves and steerage, he resented. Because his family had always been wealthy, socially prominent, and ..powerful! ..he was inclined to be afraid, to be too intelligent to step on Sam Locke's toes. Maydra knew absolutely nothing in common with the man. His only attributes he could see were his money and his wife, and heaven knows it's not beautiful, and it's strictly business! successful marriage on!"

"Please don't worry so about me Wake. I'll be all right, really! And I do want to think things over a little, if you don't mind!"

"Promise me you won't accept Locke's ring until I've had time announce your engagement until I see you again, darling!" he pleaded.

"When will that be, Wake?" she asked curiously.

"Tomorrow noon. If you say so!" he declared firmly.

"Tomorrow night he's bringing the ring," Maydra told herself, as Wake left her, and his face changed slowly, quite as if someone had turned a dimmer switch on it. Back of his eyes, rather. Sharp, calculating. Shrewd. Then found herself suddenly in his arms.

"Listen, my little cream puff," Chapter 29

Gerda observed lightly emerging from the bedroom in fresh velvet pajamas and a dressing gown. "I don't know where you've been all your life, but it's obvious you haven't had much practice with Bellinger pattern!"

"Are you going out for a cigarette, Bill it unsteadily, and then stared blankly into the grate as Gerda sat at her home-mate, waiting for the rest of the indictment. She still felt a trifle wobbly and unsteady and far from the cool poise she had managed to muster, and hold until she managed to convince Wake's interest. Somehow he must stop thinking romantic nonsense about her, must go home, at once, to Reno, and forget about her. None of which he had done, at all. Gerda had left him where she'd wanted him to do actually. Only that he had to re-establish their inner thoughts or wishe.

"You see," Gerda explained, dropping off into the street, and swinging one crossed pajama-clad leg gaily over the arm of the club chair, "the records have kept you fairly definitely clear of most of us, Maydra. And you're in your place. I should feel almost as sure married to Wakefield Porter Ballinger, III, right now, as I do that you're not! I did when Wake was rushing her unmercifully off her feet and quite addle-headed ..... until Mrs. Ballinger caught the idea, and

Belleville Presbyterial Holds Meeting in Napanee

The Thirteenth Annual Meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was held in Grace United Church, Napanee, on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 9th and 10th. An executive meeting was held Wednesday morning with almost a full attendance. A quiet Consecration Service was conducted by Mrs. Haggerty. During the routine of business it was moved by Mrs. Dafoe that Miss Elda Hess, Reg. N., of Cold Lake Hospital be a special missionary for Prayer throughout the Presbyterial. Lunch was served at the noon hour to the Executive and other ladies who had assembled.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions there was a large gathering of delegates from the five sections, Napanee North, Napanee South, Madoc, Belleville and Picton for the opening session in the afternoon conducted by the President, Mrs. W. Haggerty.

Mrs. O. S. Reddick, convener of the nominating committee brought in the following names for the resolutions and memorials:— Mrs. Frank Dafoe, Mrs. Thos. Woods and Mrs. Fred Bell, Mosrow, and the courtesy committee; Miss Keene convener, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Nickle.

In the absence of Mrs. D. B. Wilson, Recording Secretary through illness, Miss R. L. Fraser was asked to give a splendid resume of the inner executive meetings held during the year. An inspirational worship service was conducted by members of the Odessa Auxiliary, Mrs. R. Hawkins, Mrs. W. S. Holmes and Mrs. W. P. Fletcher, the theme being, "The World-Wide Fellowship in Knowledge."

Miss H. D. Williams, Literature Secretary in her address on "What Shall We Have", told of the splendid books available in the Literature Department. Book prizes are offered on Temperance, Study Books, books on plays and pageants, making mention of "Canada's Treasure of Darkness" by Mabel Shaw Price, "Wonga" Sandra and Mrs. Margaret Brown. Prizes were presented to Dodge, Mrs. Fraser and Bowerman for their achievements in reading.

"Personality of the Year", was given by Mrs. M. F. Knox, Corresponding Secretary. Bands and Circles were reported, but Mrs. Knox regretted a slight decrease in offerings. She felt the major problem was the fact two thirds of the women of our Church were not on the W. M. S. members. There are 52 Auxiliaries, 4 Evening Auxiliaries, 11 Circles, 11 C. G. I. T. groups, 53 Bands, 36 Baby Bands and 2 Mission Circles, a total of 1601, with 571 Life Members. We were then delighted with a solo by Mrs. Lorne Miller of Napanee: "Thanks be to God."

Playtie Presented

A Temperance Playtie was presented by the following ladies from Wellington: Mrs. Harold Nash, Miss Ruth Phillips, Miss M. Hutchinson, Mrs. Bert McKee and Mrs. Frank Harris. The Playtie was written by the late Miss Cora Pettingill of Wellington and its presentation was a beautiful tribute to the life of Miss Pettingill, who was devoted to the cause of Missions. At this time Miss Minnie Shibley, a missionary on leave from China, addressed the audience.

Memorial Service

An impressive Memorial Service was conducted by Mrs. Cecil Cordes and Mrs. R. E. Newman. Mrs. S. Bagerman contributed a solo: "There is no Death".

Holloway Street Auxiliary (Belleville)

Mrs. Newman, in paying tribute to the departed members, said there was the passing of one, a fuller and larger life. There were 36 departed members of our Church.

Thursday Afternoon

The last session of the Presbyterial convened at 1.45 with a worship service based on "Friendship" in charge of Mrs. Albert Knapp and Mrs. Hicks of Edmonds and Bethel Auxiliary.

Two conferences were held for Circle and Band work in the afternoon. Mrs. Frank Dafoe presented the list of nominated and resolutions and the following were sustained:

(1) That we as a Woman's Missionary Society recommend that wives accept in this work of our Church in all its efforts.

(2) That we urge our members to do all in their power as individuals and members of the Society to forward the world peace policy.

(3) That groups who contribute to W. M. S. funds but who are organizations be considered as associate members.

(4) That we urge the theatres which cater largely to children and people to try to procure special children's pictures.

(5) We urge the government of our provinces (except one) are at present in the hands of Conservatives to recommend that agitation and organization begin at once for the early straight temperance candidate, either man or woman, in every riding at the next Provincial election.

(6) A recommendation that the members give a more intensive study of the evil of prohibition and in a campaign of education be inaugurated.

It was resolved that we members of this annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial petition the next provincial government to prohibit women from drinking beverage rooms.

Mrs. R. O. Jolliffe, Kingston Branch, president of the Bay of Quinte conference addressed the meeting and the election and installation of officers.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth paid fitting tribute to the outgoing officers and in a very appropriate address voiced the appreciation of the large delegation. Mrs. Haggerty, Picton, who has retired after three years of faithful service as Presbyterial President, was presented with a copy of "Victorious Living to Victorious Death," as a loving token of remembrance. Mrs. Haggerty graciously replied, and after singing "Blest be the kindly sentiments, and then she distinctly introduced the new president, Mrs. F. L. Hooper.

Jolliffe, Kingston Bay of Quinte Conference speaking on "The Power of Prayer" said: "Unlimited responsibility was needed, and pleaded that during the year 1938 women will give God a chance to work through them. Keep informed by missionary literature, seize every opportunity to make helpful contacts. Have a broader view and keep consecrated. She closed with a very appropriate prayer. Rev. Osborne, on behalf of the Master as we Walk from Day to Day."

Miss Elsie Hunt, Reg. N.,our own Missionary at the John Neil Hospital, Cold Lake, Alberta, sent in a tribute and a letter of greeting will be forwarded to her. Rev. Mr. Bell, Rev. R. Hunt of Bayside was present at the services and an invitation was extended to the former to be present.

Miss Wilson declined the office of secretary and the convene in Picton in 1939 was accepted.

Miss Hicks presented the courtesy report and Mrs. Haggerty planned a rose on the new president as a final gesture before the service closed with the rendition of "Lead Kindly Light" and Rev. Wilson dismissed the gathering.

Miss Minnie Shibley

Miss Minnie Shibley home on furlough from Honan, China, gave a splendid portrayal of "Everyday life in that Country". Miss Shibley went from London, Ontario, to the evangelistic work at Changte in 1914. She was ably introduced to the audience by Miss Olive Hambly, a returned Missionary of Japan.

An evening meeting Miss Shibley brought another message in the progress of the rural church where our missionaries are teaching those people better ways of living, fruit growing and the need of vegetables and fruit in their diet. She also graphically pictured their agricultural Pall Pair.

Miss Hambly Lawyer

Mrs. C. M. Lovery, Home Mission Executive Secretary of Committee Board was also introduced by Miss Hambly and given an ovation. She told the interesting life of her visit to the Medical Hospitals in the far north and told of the wonderful work accomplished by our doctors and nurses.

At the morning session, Mrs. Lovery brought an intimate picture of the Missionary Conference of her trip to the British Columbia coast where she visited the homes and people at work in the Indian Settlements, canneries, lighthouse, boarding schools and School Houses. She also told of the Oriental work and the visit of Dr. Oakland to her native people.

Mrs. Lovery brought to the convention a practical message of our work as she has travelled extensively visiting the missionaries and the people.

Recognized as the leading authority on Western Canadian history, Professor Arthur S. Morton of the University of Saskatchewan has, in his book "Under Western Skies", immortalized the pioneers of the West. He begins his book with the story of the Indian, and presents in fascinating tells of the Indians of the plains, and the coming of the white man. The characters and historic characters as Hudson, La Verendrye, Cameron, Selkirk and Simpson, of their well-known history and drawing attention to interesting incidents, out of the picture. He recalls great men of "the honourable company" of Adventurers and concludes his book with a history of the land of feast and famine, Canada's Northern Lands. She Looks So Young

Is a tribute to health

"Keep happy—Keep the mind busy—don't worry". This is the recipe of a famous actress. Worry, irritability and exhausted nerves are the greatest enemies to feminine beauty. They bring wrinkles and care lines and make you feel tired and discouraged.

There's nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore pep and vigor to mind and body. It gives the control of nerves and so brings the color back to faded cheeks. Charm and personality are based on health. The cheerfulness and vivacity, which add so greatly to woman's attractiveness, can only exist when you are feeling well.

Women everywhere know and appreciate this fine tonic food of blood and nerves.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

"Other Women"—The Reason For

Some pundit supposed to know all the secrets of the human heart (the masculine heart of course; we don't) found once [illegible] that I did'nt recall for the moment [illegible] Canavova, Old King Solomon, or just some modern crooner in need of a press agent, but the fact is he had discovered a real truth. He said that if you find a man on either side of six days of the week, on the seventh he'll bolt for corn beef and cabbage. The good stomach are that addicted to change.

Which only wondered why wives who agonize because they're discovered their husbands have taken to dining out or dinner some other girl don't remember the corn beef and cabbage approach. Keep varying and say nothing at all about it.

Unless it's a case of the "grands passion" of which the late Israel Zangwill gave pages of description, the clandestine lunch and dinner affair usually means more than finding a new audience for old jokes—just a little case of showing off and its presentation may be the truant male as if he were a combination of Apollo and a million dollars.

If the really sensible wife knows about this little a la carte excursion she pretends she doesn't. But she also things different as luncheon meals, manners, talk, and above all she'll eat out nagging and talking about her health. No one is really interested in poor health, unless it's a case of chronic invalidism.

Again certain men flee to restaurants with other women because their wives are such wretched cooks and live by the dispensation that can't find the can opener. Of course, if a wife is employed and works in a shop during the day and expects her husband a course dinner at home should not be expected.

The ailment that so many woman give for unattractive homes is that they are not domestic. Then why did they marry and why do they weep when divorced? Again it is taurantis the society of ladies who at least pretend to be domestic. Alas, those luncheon and dinner sirens pretend to be anything as all to [illegible]. Perhaps they too are escaping monotony at home, as well as the man. But there is one thing for the fearful wife to remember and that is that men are almost as conservative in their habits as cats. Unless a man has gone absolutely berserk over a "grand passion" for some woman, he will have his lucid interval when he'll consider "if it's really worth while?" He'll consider the disruption of the home, the cold criticism of his children, the condemnation of friends, the attitude of his boss and the dislocation of all his habits.

The a la carte excursion is reliable by the majority but the wife knows how to look the other way.

Sending Wedding-Gift to Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I am about to give my son a cheque in honor of his coming bride-elect dollars for his wedding gift, to be applied to furniture. Is it customary for me to have bride-to-be present, as I do want to give it to him at his gift, but do not want to offend her.

2.—Is it still good form to have a bridal party in a church wedding?

3.—The married couple will leave the church directly after the ceremony. Would it be all right for them to stand at the end of the aisle to receive the congratulations of their friends before they leave, as there will be no reception?

4.—When calling on a young lady for the first time is remarks standing after you have been offered a seat?

5.—Is it correct to send a congratulatory note to a bride-elect using card to one who has given you a gift?

1.—It is quite correct for you to give a cheque for your wedding present, but, since wedding gifts are property given to the bride-to-be, you should give the cheque to your son's fiancee. Otherwise you would run the risk to offend her, and I should think that she might easily be offended if you gave the cheque to your son, and not to her. And this would certainly be a most unpleasant at the very start of what you would naturally wish to be the most pleasant of relationships. I am sure that your son too would wish to have you give the cheque to his fiancee.

If you wish to make an added present to your son, something personal, this will be proper, but the money to be applied to furniture for the new home, is quite a different thing, since wedding presents are given to, and belong to, the bride.

2.—If the bride-to-be has a heart, set on having a ring-bearer in her wedding party, there is no reason why she should not have one. But ring-bearers are not often; only occasionally.

3.—Since there is to be no reception, the newly married couple will receive the good wishes of their friends at the end of the church aisle after the ceremony. In some communities this is sometimes done.

4.—After being offered a seat, one would not remain standing unless there was some very definite reason for standing. For instance, if a woman offered a man a seat, he would not be expected to take the seat.

5.—No, this would not be proper. A gift should be thanked for with a note, not with a ready-made thank-you card, and certainly not with a combination of thank-you card and greeting card. This would be too casual, and definitely unsuitable.

Engraved Initials

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a faithful reader of your column. Last Christmas my boy friend gave me a sterling silver vanity set . . . . . with my initials on the pieces. I would like to know which initial I should have put on the set?

Usually all of the initials of the name are used, to add to the pieces the design that is appropriate for the design of the set, and that will, therefore, enhance the beauty of it. If you don't want to do this, you can choose between the first and last initials, using on such a personal item as a vanity set the first initial is used when only one is used.

Also, with such a classic first name as yours, I suggest that you might consider using your first name. This is rather unusual now, and in the embroidering of handkerchiefs, and lingerie. Would rob like

Queries On Sun Lamp Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE FEATURE EDITOR of a prominent Illinois paper asks me to describe the "so-called sun lamps or ultraviolet ray lights, and a health resistance.

"I have read articles for and against them. When I read one of the pamphlets against them, I imagine I am committing suicide when I sit under my own lamp. When I read praises of them, I am enabled to scorch myself with some degree of sexuality."

Neither extreme of statement concerning these lamps is quite accurate. They do not do all the good that often is claimed for them, but, on the contrary, they do no harm except when used for too prolonged a time, because they can cause extensive and severe skin burns, just as sunlight can.

There are three sources of ultraviolet light:

1. Natural—the sun.

2. Artificial. (a) Carbon are light (open or closed arc) (b) quartz mercury vapor arc (air cooled or water cooled).

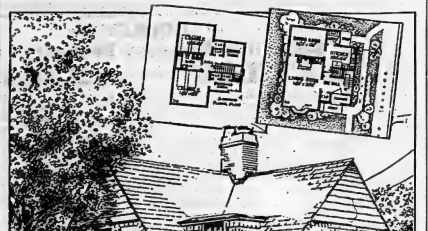
In this country the quartz mercury vapor are is the type of light usually used. There are those who argue in favor of the carbon are light, and those who argue for the superiority of the quartz mercury light. The carbon are light is used very largely abroad.

When purchasing a lamp, it is well to remember that there are a great many lamps on the market which are inferior in their power to give off ultraviolet lights. The best way to judge of these is to be certain that the council on physical therapy of the American Medical association has approved the lamp.

Harmful or Beneficial?

Regarding the question of whether these lamps are harmful or beneficial! There should be little argument. Of course, if too long exposure is made, the lamp will burn the skin just like too much exposure to sun.

The use of the lamp for the purpose of some general gain in health is, however, not justifiable. There are those who believe that sun tan is healthy, but except for the fact that it increases Vitamin D in the body, there is no justification for this belief.



The ultraviolet lamp is of most benefit in such things as surgical tuberculosis of the bones and joints and for skin conditions such as ulcers, boils, acne, eczema. Promptly relief from pain is obtained in shingles (herpes zoster).

BACON GRIDDLE CAKES. — Two and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, two cups milk, two tablespoons vegetable fat, three or four slices bacon. CHOCOLATE WALDORF ANGEL FOOD CAKE.—Ten-inch angel food cake, one and one-half pints whipping cream, six tablespoons sugar, six tablespoons cocoa, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup toasted almonds or walnuts. Combine whipping cream cocoa, sugar and salt and chill at least an hour. Then whip mixture stiff. Place cake (with larger surface at bottom) on large serving plate. Cut entire top from cake, about one inch down and lift off. Remove center from main part of cake by cutting down into cake one inch from outer edge and one inch from middle hole, leaving an inch wall. Remove center with curved knife or spoon, being careful to leave a wall of cake at bottom about one inch thick. Fill cavity with one-third of chocolate cream mixture, to which half the nuts, cut coarse, have been added. Replace top and spread remaining cream over top and sides. Shave remaining almonds or nuts and sprinkle over cream. Chill two or three hours before serving.

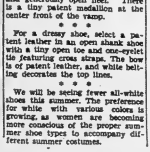
FACTS AND FANCIES

Don't Doe Cold



When you have a cold, don't let anyone dose you with patent medicines, and don't let the cold linger without putting yourself in the doctor's hands. If you must get up, eat lightly, rest all you can, and avoid unnecessary contacts with people and their belongings.

Scrubbing your hands frequently with warm water and a thick lather of soap is another way to fight a cold. Individual towel will make them as free of bacteria as possible and direct or indirect contacts can't be helped.

Take a further precaution, boil the towels you use and keep your handkerchiefs separate in the wash. And remember that cleanliness remains now as ever, one of the principal safeguards against the insidious common cold.

By Central Press

A HOME OWNER wants a house to look like—to be attractive in the eye. Then he wants a plan that makes the most of the space available inside, and is arranged so as to be convenient for everyday living. Naturally he will desire a house that will fit his lot, is substantially built and will give him the most for the money he expends upon it.

This house, reminiscent of the English type of architecture, has a homely and attractive exterior and is built along distinctly modern and practical lines. The living room is a very pleasant room, with a bow window in front and a fireplace and built-in book shelves at the farther end. Its dimensions are 14 by 20 feet. Back of the living room is the dining room, which has windows overlooking the garden. A large reception hall and the kitchen occupy the other side of the house.

The master bedroom, on the second floor, has a large dressing room opening from it over the hall; another nice bedroom over the living room, and a sewing room—something to make the little woman cheer, for here she can keep her sewing and prevent the litter that follows when it has to be done in the living room.

The house contains 2150 square feet of space, with the same floor additional for the porch, 21,600 cubic feet in all.

Sleepiness Troubles Students

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

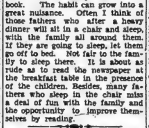
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

IN MY EARLY student days I had great trouble with sleepiness, often falling asleep over my lessons. Sometimes I would walk about, even outdoors, and bathe my face in cold water. While at college I once became so desperate —my hours of sleep were long enough—that I took a cold plunge each morning in a tub of cold water. I felt better for a time, but I grew so "creepy" that I went to my doctor for advice. When I told him of the morning plunge, he replied, "No wonder!"

I do not know how much of my difficulty was from eye strain or other physical difficulties, and how much from early habits of "snoozing in a chair." Sleepiness cases have come to my attention, of youths afflicted with extreme sleepiness in spite of an adequate amount of sleep, found by medical experts to have certain types of glandular deficiency; also of some whose sleepiness was corrected with the aid of proper eye glasses. Most students who are doing satisfactory college course lessons, if they have regular habits, could attend to their themselves checked in these directions.

Welz Mitchell, a medical and surgical pioneer who lived between 1829 and 1914, writes in his autobiography:

"I had to learn to work, to concentrate attention. It came hard. I used to go over and over some confounded bone and fall asleep.



I used an evening to fall asleep so often that I would take strong coffee to keep me awake, and at last go to the ballroom and take a cold shower. It was a wretched way to study medicine."

Use Coffee for Stimulant

I have heard many other students declare refer to the use of coffee. And to this day, if I have to do some work that requires effort, several cups of coffee give me tenseness over those assignments.

But I would not advise others to drink coffee as a plan of drinking coffee to keep them awake. The danger is that one may drive himself too hard, and even be unable to fall asleep when the job is done.

I would warn young friends never to let themselves fall asleep in a chair, certainly not over a book. The habit can grow into a great nuisance. Often I think of those fathers who after a heavy dinner will sit in a chair and sleep, with the family all around them. If they are going to sleep, let them go off to bed. Not fair to the family to sleep there. It is about as rude as to read the newspaper at the breakfast table in the absence of the children. Besides, many fathers who sleep in the chair suffer a deal of fun with the family and thus opportunity to improve themselves by reading.

EXPERT TELLS YOU WHAT TO DO IF YOU DON'T LIKE, YOUR FACE

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

HOW DO you like your face? Does it seem to leave a lot to be desired? Maybe you've secretly envied the girl across the street with her lovely oval face, or your chum's pert little nose. Or maybe you've used her heart-shaped face to such good advantage. When you're a girl, there is really nothing to do but go on envying and keep on hoping that being a good cook would compensate in the end. That was the only thing the old-fashioned girl had to fall back on if she wasn't a natural beauty.

Now there are more subtle ways to compete. Hollywood has shown us that the correct application of makeup can make a star beautiful and glamorous, and that the wrong method can make the most gorgeous creature look like she was all set to haunt a house.

A famous makeup artist gave us some facts about faces. She said knowledge can really give the effect of changing the shape of the face.

If you are the long face kind, then give it a build-up. Put on your cheek rouge near the ears, working it up toward the temples, bringing a light shadow over the brows. This will make your face seem shorter. Use dark powder on your nose and chin. Light powder on the temples and between the eyes, to pick up the downward lines.

The round plump type need a different method but don't let that discourage you. Cut out rouge on your cheek bones, near the eyes, but blend it outward and upward toward the hairline, keeping the color far back. Use a dark powder on your throat, chin and around the outline of your face.

Another Little Trick

Maybe you don't like to be a square face. Well there's a nice little deceptive trick to that one too. Apply your rouge a little closer to your eye, smoothing it outward in a triangle shape, and not below the line of the nose. As in the round face, use a darker powder on the chin, throat and around the contours of the face.

And don't you think you have glared at yourself in the mirror and seen an angular, hollowed cheek reflection. Here's how to put that one over. The rouge should be applied sparingly on the cheekbones, but put it on there heavily on the hollows underneath, bringing the color up to your ear and temple. Use a dark powder over the bridge of your nose and cheekbones, a lighter powder on your forehead.

This cheerful little earful ought to make us prize a lot lovelier than we seem to ourselves. And don't worry, the makeup can fool the boy friend's camera also.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyeshadow

Virginia: You may wear the blue, blue-gray or gray eyeshadow cream. The blue is best for evening wear only, while the blue-gray can be used for daytime and for both daytime and evening wear.

Teeth

Janet: I would suggest that you have your teeth cleaned and polished by a good dentist, in order to remove all tartar. Proper brushing should then keep your teeth white and sparkling.

Skin Bleach

Rita: Lemon juice and dilute peroxide both compose excellent skin bleaches. Either bleach should be permitted to dry on the skin, and then a bit of cold cream should be applied in order to counteract any drying effects.

Jewelry Is Important In Current Trend of Style

Large and Amusing Motifs Used for Designs

Ensemble of bracelet, brooch and clips made of catalin and simulating Viennese stag horn, worn at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

By LISBETH

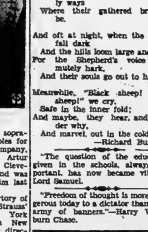
NOT THE least important and delightful of the season's fashions is the current trend in jewelry. You can embellish your dress, suit or even your housecoat or beach ensemble with the gayest, dangliest, most fascinating costume jewelry imaginable.

Back in great grandmother's day huge brooches were worn, and they have come back. You are in luck if you have an old one. These large old brooches are matched with necklaces, bracelets, clips, buckles, etc. Even "refined" women are wearing these gaudy costume pieces.

An interesting old European custom of hunters was dividing the stag horn so that each participant in the hunt would have a trophy. This was done by slicing the horn, allowing the rough exterior to remain unfinished, and carving delicate figures symbolical of the hunt in the white center of the horn.

Interesting Verse

Among the interesting fashion accessories seen as members of the bridal party at the recent White Sulphur Spring, W. Va., lined up behind the bounds for their chase of the season, was new costume jewelry simulating these Viennese stag horns.



The ensemble consists of bracelet, brooch and clips, all using the old Viennese customs as their inspiration. These replicas are made of a plastic material called catalin. They are pictured here worn by a fair lover, and attracted considerable attention at the hunt.

While Sulphur Springs is interesting as the place where three presidents of the United States established their summer residences and rode behind the Greenbrier hounds.

The new lapel jewelry is the very latest thing in that line to attract the eye—and the pocketbook. The bigger the better is the slogan for the pieces that decorate the lapel of your new spring suit. There is horse-head clip done in gold and rhinestones; a sarcoket with real feather tail; flowers, fruits and fishes, even Victorian hand holding a rhinestone rose.

Bracelets are just as fashionable as ever, and the larger they are, also, the better. Wide and dramatic is the last word in these accessories.

ROSE PAULY, European soprano, who sings dramatic roles for the Metropolitan opera company, was the "discovery" of Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra, and was brought to America by him last March.

Mme. Pauly has a repertory of 67 roles. After singing of Elsa and "Elektra", with the New York Philharmonic orchestra in New York, under Dr. Rodzinski's direction, brought her an ovation.

She recently sang with the Cleveland orchestra in Cleveland under the same conductor.

Wife Can't Be Happy With Mate

By VIRGINIA LEE

BROKEN HEARTED: If you have tried and tried to get along with your husband all to no purpose, and the answer is to leave him and go on your own. The money you have tied up in home and furniture is not worth the unhappiness you are enduring.

It is horrible to live with a person, be with them day after day, when you hate each other and have no tastes in common. You can always make your own living, and maybe you could find peace in a little home of your own making. I am strong, as you know from reading this column, for couples to do everything within their power to make a success of their marriages. But, when everything fails and the two are miserable in each other's company, I believe it is better to separate.

Of course, in a case like yours, there always is a tendency to exaggerate the husband's faults, because you have another man's image in your heart. But quite aside from that, you seem to have made an earnest effort to make a success of your marriage, and maybe you have earned the right to step out and see whether you will be happier. You cannot be your true self with a person who dislikes and belittles you. Do let me know what you do and how you make out. If, as you suspect between there is something mentally wrong with your husband, I suppose you couldn't get him to see a doctor?

WONDERSIGH: He is a happily married young woman, who has a friend, also married, who was "wild" before she married, but seems to have settled down now, although an occasional remark makes Wondering wonder. Friends tell Wondering that she shouldn't make a friend of this young woman. Her husband says it is up to her to break up the friendship if she wishes.

It may be that if you keep up your friendship with this woman, Wondering, she will win her over entirely and she always will be a fine character. But, as you also may decide, "What's the use?" and also back into her old ways.

Why don't you suggest what "they" say and remain friends as long as you like without being affected. Try to show her—unobtrusively, of course, that she can be happier living as she now is than with her "wilder" friends?

Poems That Live

BLACK SHEEP

From their folded mates they wander far;
Their ways seem harsh and wild;
They follow the beck of a baleful star,
Their paths are dreams beguiled.

Yet haply they sought but a wider range,
Some loftier mountain slope,
And little reeked of the country strange
Beyond the gates of hope.

And haply a bell with a lusty call
Summoned their feet to tread
Midst the cruel rocks, where the deep pitfall
And the lurking snare are spread.

Maybe, in spite of their tameless days
Of outcast liberty,
They sigh at the last for the homely ways
Where their gathered brothers be.

And oft at night, when the plains fall dark
And the wild loom large and dim,
For the Shepherd's voice they mutely hark
And their souls go out to him.

Meanwhile, "Black sheep! black sheep!" we cry,
Safe in the home fold;
And maybe, they hear, and wonder why
And marvel, out in the cold.

Candy Stripes Are Popular In Play and Sports Wear

By Central Press

CANDY STRIPES are always favorites at the southern resorts, both for beach and sports wear. This season is no exception to the rule.

So up to the minute in fashion ideas for resort wear is this clever little play suit worn by Cynthia Westlake, featured cinema player, of candy striped cotton in red and white, bound in blue to carry out the patriotic color scheme.

This brief little costume with its flared skirt and nicely fitted top, belted in patent leather, is ideal to wear over the bathing suit.

Style Whimsies

As a last minute St. Valentine's gift to wifey, girl friend or the young daughter, a perfume manufacturer has put out a tiny crown-shaped bottle of perfume in a heart-shaped bag to slip into the pocketbook, or purse. And it's the perfect answer to that vexed question of how to carry a vial of your favorite perfume in your purse.

Snakeskin in bright colors is featured in a sandal with patent trimming with moderately open toe and generously open heel. There is a tiny bow and buckle at the center front of the vamp.

For a dressy shoe, select a patent leather in an open shank shoe with a tiny open toe and one-eyelet tie featuring cross straps. The bow is of patent leather, and white belting decorates the top lines.

We will be seeing fewer all-white shoes this summer. The preference for white with various colors is growing, as women are becoming more conscious of the proper summer shoe types to accompany different costumes.

Airmen Suffer Worst Defeat In 2 Years Peterboro Moving Into 1st Place After 10-1 Win

Flyers Minus Services of Lalonde And Legris Badly Outplayed

GAME IS CLEAN

Calladine, Centre Star For Petes Scores Four Goals And Has Two Assists

Completely out-playing their legweary and short-handed rivals at every turn, the Peterboro seniors handed the "R.C.A.F. Airmen" their worst defeat of two years in the O.H.A. when the Lithuck City pucksters rode roughshod over the "Flyers" to assume the leading role in the local O.H.A. group by virtue of a 10 to 1 victory over the Birdmen at the Interlocking Arena last night. The score about indicates the play as the visitors were never given a better advantage and literally were all over the ramshackle Flyers throughout the entire tussle.

Minus the services of Johnnie Lalonde, fleet, sterling offensive defenceman and "Frenchy" Legris, the lanky defence-man-ager, the Airforce aces met a crowded Peterboro attack, that never relinquished its relentless pace from the outset. The game was the fourth contest completed to date by the "Airmen" in one week and the excessive hockey, coupled with the absence of Lalonde, took their respective toll and as the game swung into practical oblivion by an inspired Peterboro team, which took full advantage of the prevailing situation in what is commonly known as to "rub it in."

Never Quit Trying

Despite the reverse the Flyers never quit trying to give the 2,000 patrons of the game a run for their money and deserved a better fate than was afforded them verdict-by by defeat. The Petes skated to the fore with an early first period goal and made it 2 to 0 as the first session ended. An added four more in the middle stanza and then continued to predominate the play by outscoring the Flyers four to one in the final frame. The "Airmen" were guilty of much loose hockey around their own citadel, which continued inability to check-back and cover-up around their own net added to the Petes' scoring and actually gave Clinton little production in the line of evi- nets at the opposite end of the arena. Ray Harding, the Petes' goalie, was given superb protection and in succession played a marvelous game between the posts, especially riding to heights to thwart the Flyers in their offensive thrusts. His low ice at the local ice palace was never in better condition and as a result a close of the fastest and cleanest games of the season, despite the score.

As Harding played sensational hockey for Petes' nets, he was capably protected by Doug Brennan, former New York Ranger, who stood out exclusively for his playing ability distinctively marked and assisted by Bateman, defence mate. To select a star for the Petes along the front lines would be an injustice, as both Coach Hines' flying lines played inspired hockey. The veteran Jack Calladine scored four goals and helped his team with two assists to lead all scorers on the night. Eddie Starr and the fiery Red Vitarelli figured in the scoring with Starr taking two counters, but it can be again repeated that Clinton gives immaculate protection on many of these counters. "Spuds" Kingdon, Petes' new Imported star from the west, was undoubtedly the "find" man on the ice, but not the best loosed over the boards last night by Skipper Hines.

Elliott endeavored hard to stem the Lifebuoy tide, and was most ably assisted by Captain Stan Partridge, who rose to heights in his defensive efforts and incidentally scored once more on a pass to the enemies' but was confronted with the repeated beck-checking efforts of Petes' pivot star, Ernie McNeeley. Lecompte and Wiggett carried the torch for the losers.

The Play.

Play opened exceptionally fast on a lightning-like sheet of ice with close checking featuring play from both sides. Williamson had the first shot on net after four minutes of play, a long easy drifter, as the Petes were carrying the play. Cowley narrowly missed a scoring when Eric McNeeley's pass out. Calladine picked a loose puck on Brennan's rush to beat Gilson from close in. Lecompte at the other end of the ice had a shoulder missing by inches. Halward drew a penalty for interference and the Petes pressed hard on the Flyers without result. Brennan took a rest for tripping Lecompte and Hamilton were reversed. Gilson beat Brennan and when the Flyers failed to cover Kingdon rapped home Vitarelli's pass to make the score 2-0 at the end of the first frame.

Gilson was sensational to open the second when he made a great save to beat McDougall and Kingdon on an early play. The airmen moved five up but could not penetrate the Petes' defence. Vitarelli broke away and passed out from behind the Flyers' net, Starr lifting the rubber past Gilson. The goal was the result of some poor covering up on the part of the airmen, however. To make the count 3-0 in favor of the Hines' crowd, the visitors still carried the play to have Starr ship home Calladine's rebound for a fourth Peterboro counter. Lecompte was through and shot into Harding's pads. The Petes were literally flying as Calladine tilted Weir's pass behind Gilson for Peterboro's fifth goal. Gilson was getting little or no protection as the Petes showed their best form of the year. Calladine whipped home Brennan's pass as the game turned into a rout for the speedy visitors. Harding was sensational to beat Cowley as Gration was penalized for hooking. Despite the fact the Flyers applied the pressure the period terminated 6-0 for the Petes.

Shot Deflected In.

As the third period opened Starr was on the Petes' sidelines with a bruised shoulder. Vitarelli's shot deflected into the Flyers' net off Partridge's stake and Calladine circled the net to score Peterboro's eighth goal as the Petes continued to be the aggressors. Eric Gilson replaced Weir for changing as brother Ernie followed-when Eric's shot was had clayed. Calladine also handled out of the corner to score the Petes' ninth goal and on a flow Starr Gration went off for tripping as McNeeley came on. Williamson blocked Kingdon's pass and the Flyers swarmed around Harding's net without success as the phenomenal saves. Cowley missed the open net. Elliott tripped Barnes for a penalty. During a pile up Partridge scored the Flyers' first goal during a scramble. Kingdon came back to make the count 10-1 for the Petes as he beat Gilson at close range.

FLYERS TO MEET REDMEN MONDAY

Airmen Can Tie For First Place by Defeating Bellevilles

Smarting under their worst defeat since affiliating with the O.H.A., the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" journey to the Belleville Recreation in the final game of the local O.H.A. group on Monday night at the Belleville Arena. Trailing the Peterboro seniors by two points in the three-team group, a win over Eddie Thomas' Bellevilles outfit in order to elevate themselves into a tie for the league leadership.

Despite the fact the Flyers have vanquished the Redmen on three previous meetings, there is still an air of respect in the camp as the "birdmen" are on what is generally known as "the spot", following last night's reverse at the hands of the Lifebuoy squad by a margin of two goals. They can elevate themselves into a tie for first place with the Petes at the expense of the Bellevilles, but a defeat at the hands of Eddie Thomas' hard-hitting charges would prove most tragic to the 1937 Interlocking O.H.A. champions.

At present the teams stand:

	W.	L.	T.	P.
Peterboro	6	2	0	12
R.C.A.F.	6	3	0	12
Kerrys	5	3	0	10
Bellevilles	3	6	0	6
Hamilton Rangers	2	7	0	4

HAWKS ON SPOT OVER WEEK-END IN THE N. H. L.

Play in Toronto And Chicago With The Leafs

MAROONS PLAY TWO

Play Rangers Twice, While Americs And Wings Have Only One Game

This is the week-end Montreal Maroons and their chance, if you can call it that, of making things interesting for the Leafs for the National Hockey League's Canadian division third spot.

Maroons play two games while the New York Americans have only one and the Montrealers could pop up Sunday night half a game out of a playoff position. The Leafs, on the other hand, meet New York Rangers in both contests while Americans hook up with Chicago Black Hawks.

Tonight Maroons and Rangers play in Montreal and Sunday in New York for the second game to-clo'clock night. And if Lester Patrick's boys are shooting for the American division leadership Boston Bruins may have a word to say. It will be lucky to split the points.

However, the Bostonians are all set to strike while Rangers lack the services of the veteran Butch Keeling, Patrick has announced, for four Maroons as he has decided to play Frank Boucher at centre, bringing in replacement from Philadelphia. Now a Ranger assistant coach, Boucher has seen little service this season.

Detroit On Spot.

Detroit are in much the same spot as Montreal Maroons. They have only one game while their opposition for the American division's last playoff berth—Chicago Black Hawks—get into action twice against Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chicagoans play at Toronto tonight and then set out for their home ice tomorrow night. With only a point advantage over Red Wings Hawks can gain an important lead. Rangers defeated Detroit 4-0. But they only have two Americans to knock over Wings and so will be pressing for points against Toronto. Bruins split pair of the week-end, beings Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins Montreal tomorrow night. The only threat to Bruins' leadership is the possibility Rangers may overtake them from Maroons. They have only a game and a half margin over the New Yorkers.

HOLDING THE BALL

Among the many letters received from bowlers who seek information as one suggesting that a diagram be shown that will clearly indicate the correct method of holding the ball.

With a desire to meet the wishes of this particular correspondent-we illustrate to-day the proper method of gripping the ball.

The fact with most bowlers is that they hold the ball in the palm of the hand, with the reverse results to that which they expect to accomplish. Place the ball well up on the fingers, far enough that a portion of the palm is still visible. The arm plays an important part in the delivery and this is particularly true of those having small hands; let the arm come through slowly and with a natural swing, this will help you to control the ball.

To the many with small hands I recommend the adoption of a slow ball, having regard to the necessity for accuracy. With proper balance, a rigid arm and a natural swing the fact that one has small hands need be at no great disadvantage.

A straight ball is an advantage; to accomplish this, hold the wrist rigid, release the ball by letting it roll off the finger tips and the result will be surprising to you.

GOODYEARS AND SAILORS AHEAD

Tiremen Blank Brantford While Port Colborne Trim G-Men

It looked today as if Port Colborne Sailors would be a team to beat Toronto Goodyears have to beat in playoffs for the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" title.

That was emphasized last night when Sailors trimmed Oshawa Generals 5-2 in the last scheduled tussle between the two teams this season. With Sailors holding second place and G-Men riding in fourth berth in the senior "A" group, the teams will have to play off for the right to meet Goodyears, the league-leaders, in a title series.

Last scheduled senior "A" game this year is set for Tuesday with Port Colborne meeting Brantford. Playoffs are to get under way on or about Feb. 18.

Port Colborne's win over Oshawa last night was decisive and the Tars held the upper hand all the way through. They split a goal with G-Men in the first period, outscored Oshawa six to one in the second and added two more goals to their total in the third. Larochie scored twice for Sailors while Pfiegerald, McGowan and Thompson got the others.

Toronto Goodyears went on another scoring spree at the Maple Leaf Gardens last night. The league leaders trounced the fourth-place Brantford Rangers 8-0 and lifted their point total to 26, four more than Sailors.

FOURTH SIDNEY CHAMPIONS OF RURAL LEAGUE

Score Second Win Over Zions by 4-3 Overtime Victory

SERIES CLOSE

Expected Stricter Residence Rule Will be in Force Next Year

Stirling, February 12.—(Special)—Activities in the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League for 1938 were climaxed last night. When fourth of Sidney team defeated champ pionship in a thrilling overtime game by a score of 4-3. The entire play-off series were close fought games in the first game Zion and Sidney battled to an overtime tie. In the second game Sidney won by a margin of 2-0. Tuesday the winning goal was scored by Johnson with only three minutes on the overtime interval. The Sidney League for their first season Art Frankford, Sidney coach, should be dope by taking the silverware and no one could portray greater thrills than the coach of the team himself as the boys skated from the ice beaten in the first game to victory.

Keener Interest Looked For

All sport's organization team up to speak of interest and then begin to fade to a point, where complete re-organization is the only remedy. Having carried on successfully for seven years, the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League has come to the place, where only radical change can revive interest. The League will be completely re-organized next season under the capable direction of Mr. Lynn Pair, its president and shall be conducted again under its original plan of being a rural league. Strict resident rules will be one of the changes and the boys are going back roads, who do their practicing on the mill ponds will come into their own again.

The Game

One game down the Zion crew started in to gain an early lead resulting that being short a couple of their best players on the injury list their best line was a stagger short and then count. But Art Vermilyea had ideas too. So the first period is a thriller enough as close checking matches checking like Sealy. At the end of the first twenty that ended scoreless all the players were ready for the rest.

Zion, however, did not play in the middle period Jarrell opened the scoring when he broke through on a lone rush skating right in on Carson to beat him cold. Two minutes later, the latter let up a rousing cheer as "Hap" sifted in on Paul to tie the count. The closing minutes of play gone Lorne Jarrell got his second counter on a beautiful solo effort that put before the period ended Day and Tapps combined to end the 2nd period knock all. Early in the final period Johnson put Sidney in the lead, Tapps came from Jarrell and the score remained that way until full time was up. Sidney then began to open up and pressing hard for the tying goal. Speed proved successful as Tapps batted in Day's rebound at the end of full time the score was 4-3. Spare moments throughout the contest continued fast-offs to offset the determined efforts of the players to end the game and an interesting season for the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League, with the crown of victory adorning the head of Sidney.

Johnson, Jarrell and Knight were the choice of the Sidney troupe with Tapps and Sealy Thomson doing heroics in excellent fashion. "Hap" Day Tapps and "Ike" Dickey were the best for the losers, who in defeat have reason to be proud of their team. Carson, playing minus the services of Townsend, and Parks two of the best players, they played such a close game, that only the breaks stood between them and the championship.

The line-ups

Zion—Goal, Carson; defence, Paul; defence Knight, Johnson; centre, Sealy; wing, Ingoldsby and Culhane; subs, Thomson brothers, F. Vermilyea, L. Jarrell, E. Jarrell.

Zion—Goal Carson; defence, Cranston, Dickey and Cranston; centre, Day; wings, Tapp and Brough; Subs, Kennedy and McGregor.

Referee—Jack Arkers, Stirling.

KEEN CONTESTS

Sports Program Under Direction of Frank Cunningham

Ideal weather conditions and keen competition on the race course marked the innovation of the annual Winter Sports and Ice Carnival held at the Ontario School for the Deaf commencing yesterday afternoon. The events of the day were concluded during the first day of a two day meet, yesterday, while the mammoth O.S.D. ice carnival and fancy dress parade will be held on the school rink this evening.

Assisted by the faculty and teaching staff of the school, Athletic Instructor Frank Cunningham arranged yesterday's ice racing program, during which ties for the day's honors were recorded at the conclusion of the races in the girls' events. At the same time interest gained at the annual Winter Sports and Ice Carnival at the O.S.D. are keen, with the events of the afternoon during the school annual field day of the current year, to determine the respective school athletic champions, no official winter titlists are awarded. However, yesterday's events were keenly contested and all events resulted in keen representations in the field of competition throughout the entire day's activities.

Assisting Mr. Cunningham, under whose management the athletic events are staged, were Mr. Gordon, Mr. Kelly, Miss Connell and Miss Sheffield with all other members of the teaching staff assisting. The results of the events held on the officials announced, that the annual Ice Carnival would be held tonight, to which the general public is cordially invited. Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Surprises may come and go, but if any person would have predicted a 10 to 1 defeat to the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" prior to last night's Peterboro-Airport game, the prognosticator would have been literally run out of town. Nevertheless the Petes did wallop the birdmen by that score and what a doze it was to swallow. There are no alibis, the better team won on the night's play. As a matter of fact the Hines-coached Petes were outstanding to be checked, so fast were they travelling last night.

There were exactly two sides to the game—the Petes were never seen at a better advantage and they were what is commonly referred to as "HOT". Their forwards were speedy and never relinquished their offensive efforts, while Ray Harding is the safe to a man. Out. Of course he was afforded excellently good protection by the Peter forwards and defence turning in a nearly letter-perfect game but there is another side to the picture. Last night's tussle was the fastest game in a month of Sundays, while the Petes had the advantage of seven days' rest in which to ease their fall efforts last night. There is little doubt but that last season's O.H.A. champion Johnnie Lalonde entered into the picture, he, too, would have convinced that the Petes would have won the tussle regardless as they were at top form and played championship hockey from gang to gang.

Surely, the better team won on the night's play and right but there is an outstanding question that confronts this department. Surely the hockey fans of Belleville desire more hockey, if not they naturally would turn out to the games. BUT, here's the stickler—the fans jam the arena when the Flyers play and then give the "airmen" the well-known "raspberry". If that's an indication the entire set-up, well, maybe we're playing Charlie McCarthy, who knows.

There's one thing we do know— and it comes right from the feed box—the Flyers are a rather poor hockey on the Belleville ice than any ballrink in the province. They go into their shells, they can beat any senior "B" team in the province and if ever the old saw "familiarity breeds contempt" was in this arena," challenged the veteran Bill Calladine as the entire Peterboro squad literally held attention of last night's ice surfaces in the arena. Even the Petes' bench would be back for the play-offs. What's ahead for the Petes? Only ever-ice you that the class of hockey that Peterboro has displayed tonight has not only been the cleanest but the fastest in the province? If not Peterboro will be in the money next week and when the Flyers meet the Petes next Monday night.

"Stripes" Skinn's Capitol Theatre sextette in the local Owl League, proved they have what it takes in Lifebuoy City Tuesday night to 3 to 1 win in the game last night, the "double-decker" Capitol team bobbed up with their scheduled league game 6 to 5 last night. Adde Jones, Capitol goalie, stopped Skinn says he has an outstanding fight picture ready for the ring and tonight entitled "The Duke comes back' which is interesting to say the least.

wash by sinking the Flyers' loss tally. The defeat wasn't because the Air Force were not up with, Ernie McNeeley and Dan Cowley took pot shots whenever in position, but it was Peterboro's night and as the old saying goes—"the pitcher went to the well once too often."

Although tentative arguments have been entered into regarding the series "B" and intermediate "A" play-offs, the former situation is still questionable. As far as the group standing is concerned today we find the Petes are leading the Flyers by two points, naturally by virtue of last night's win. The former are due to the Petes for first place in the loop standing the Flyers must defeat the Belleville Redmen on Monday night. Minus the services of Legris and Lalonde the "airmen" are handicapped, while the Redmen are at full strength and have the advantage of nearly a week of rest. Monday night's game means much to the Flyers and should attract a capacity house.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN the National Hockey League scoring statistics issued from Toronto today showed Charlie Conacher leading with 60 points, Busher Jackson Maple Leaf boss, who retired Jan. 19 on advice of physicians, had a total of 58 points and Joe Primeau and was nine points ahead of Harvey Jackson, other members of the famous "kid" line of 1934.

Ideal weather for the annual O. S. D. Ice carnival was enjoyed yesterday, although there was an absence of snow to permit skiing or snowshoeing competitions. The conventional ice races were held while the annual fancy dress carnival is scheduled to be held at the O.S.D. rink tonight. Frank Cunningham and his O.S.D. associates have spared little effort in making the affair one of grandeur and a spectacle that warrants the attention of the citizens of Belleville as well as others that intend. All of the costumes to appear on the ice tonight are the students' own creation.

HERE AND THERE—Last night's defeat was the worst, ever suffered by the "airmen" but no blame on the defeat should be laid at the door of Laurie Gibson, he was given little, if any support before that torrid Peterboro avalanche. Did you notice the last night's goal was the second in succession for the Petes? Incidentally Wing Commander Goodyear intimated that the Belleville boys would be back for the play-offs. What's ahead for the Petes? Only ever-ice you that the class of hockey that Peterboro has displayed tonight has not only been the cleanest but the fastest in the province? If not Peterboro will be in the money next week and when the Flyers meet the Petes next Monday night.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Five different cities were named today as seeks as referee on the same night.

. . . All who can imagine our old Pinny Dean being willing to take on that assignment, please up.

. . . Maurice Strickland, the New Zealand sprinter, is here looking for action.

Note to Col. Rupert: Lou Gehrig is still sitting on his front porch in Pelham Heights and waiting for the mail man. Every now and then he gets a letter from Frisco saunters by. All signed up and happy, Frisco tells to Gehrig and Gehrig says, "Lets' . . . When Jimmy Braddock opens his restaurant next month, a free lunch to policies. Ex-Champion will be on hand to act as honorary bartenders. . . . Fans here will not see much of Benny Lynch, the flyweight champion because he is doing too well in Glasgow.

Fans around the winter circuit say you just ought to see Mr. and Mrs. Paul Runyan on their rounds. . . . Why is Joe Jacobs ducking Mike Jacobs? . . . The British say down on Tommy Farr because he left the ring without shaking hands with Jimmy McLarnin. Even the sober Daily Telegraph and Morning Post gave Tommy lectures via the editorial columns. Perhaps he is his excuse for the sulky behavior with the fans. Says the referee's verdict," said the paper.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Bigger and Crawford
By Financial Service

While economic conditions in Canada were less favorable toward the end of the year, the sections of trade and industry which contribute largely to the general welfare averaged relatively high during 1937. Productive operations recorded marked expansion for most of the year, nearly equalling the abnormal activity of 1929. Operations in mining, forestry, manufacturing and other lines advanced even after speculative factors had definitely reacted. The confidence of the business man and the industrialist was largely maintained even after reactionary signals had been flashed by speculators. The index of the physical volume of business, however, showed a decline of six points in the last month of the year.

Emphasis may be placed upon the favorable computations for 1937 over the preceding year, industrial output showing a gain of nearly 10 per cent. Six years ago, in the production of copper, nickel and gold, newsprint and lumber, all previous records were broken. Wholesale and common stock prices averaged higher than in 1936, and volume of the export trade was practically equivalent to the peak level of 1929. During the year under review, the highest levels of the preceding prosperity cycle were nearly gained.

PRODUCE PRICES ARE UNCHANGED ON CITY MARKET

Smaller Than Usual Offering Greets Saturday Shoppers

EGGS AT 25c

Fear of flood and water had but little effect on vendors and growers of farm and dairy produce although one of the smallest displays in some time greeted Saturday morning shoppers at the city market today.

Scarcity of staple dairy products had but little effect on the general tone however. With the exception of a slight rise in farmers' butter quotations, and this was not general, prices remained at practically the same level as a week ago.

Eggs were fairly plentiful today with "A" selects offered generally at 25c per dozen with "Medium" and pullets selling at 23c and 25c per dozen respectively. Degraded stock was quoted at from 22c to 23c per dozen. Butter was offered at 34c per lb. two pounds with several vendors demanding and getting 40c per pound.

Chickens, not as plentiful as usual maintained the high price levels that have characterized them for the past few weeks. Birds of good quality commanded prices ranging from 90c to as high as $1.40 each, while an inferior quality sold no lower than 75c each. A few ducks were offered in some quarters at 90c each.

Homecooking booths offered a variable display of delectable wares today with thrifty housewives taking advantage of the lower prices available.

Variables Feature Display

On the outside market a general display of staple fruit and vegetables featured the offering today. Potatoes in 90-lb. bag lots were quoted at 85c and $1. Turnip lots held the high level that features this staple in recent days at 50-lb. bags offered to a slow buying public at $2.50 each. Carrots at 40c, turnips at the same price and carrots at 50c per dozen bunches at 5c per head rounded out the vegetable display.

Northern Ont. Apples were scarce and reached a new high at the market, with peck-box lots at 60c per and hamper lots offered at $2.25.

A fine quality Stark Delicious was offered at $2.50 per bushel with some varieties of other cooking apples selling at $1.50 per hamper.

Lovers of fish found a fairly variable display awaiting them today. Whitefish and lake trout were offered at 18c and 20c per pound respectively, while lake herring was quoted at five for 25c. Pickerel commanded 18c per pound with red salmon selling briskly during the day. Yellow perch at 15c per pound by the piece and 17c per pound is sliced at the booth. .

Hon. J. L. Ilsley May Be Guest Speaker

Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the annual banquet tentatively scheduled to be held some time during the early part of March, will have as its guest speaker, the Hon. James L. Ilsley, Minister of Inland Revenue.

A special invitation to attend and address the gathering is expected to have been forwarded to the Hon. Mr. Ilsley by the executive committee of the Chamber.

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Trade held on Thursday last it is hoped to have James Cormack, Gen-eral Trade Commissioner for Ireland as guest.

Guest at a later meeting of the Chamber will be Captain the Hon. W. McL. Clarke, secretary of the Canadian Clarke Commission, who has visited Belleville frequently.

CANVASSERS NOT SPONSORED IN CITY

Itinerant vendors of calendars continue to be reported soldiers who are canvassing the city at present, have no connection with any local ex-service organization, it was stated today.

"Any canvassers are working strictly on their own", a high official of one organization said, "and in some cases they are impersonating members of ex-servicemen's organization. This is not true at least as far as we are concerned."

TERRITORY IS EXTENDED

Due to the death of Mr. Harry Barnett, former Canadian Superintendent of Dairy Products of the Hamilton district, Mr. C. R. Kennedy, Inspector of the local office in Belleville district has had his territory temporarily extended to include the Belleville, Toronto, Hamilton and Orillia dairy sections.

Complications following a throat operation at the Mayo Clinic, in Rochester, Minn., were responsible for the death of Mr. Barnett, according to departmental notification. The late inspector was known in this section.

MASKED MAN ELUDES POLICE

Minnico, Ont., Feb. 11—(CP)—A masked man eluded police early today after a warning shot was fired by Constable Ernest Brown. Search of the suburban Toronto district for the fugitive to light.

Constable Brown said he noticed the shadow of a man prowling against a grocery store. As he approached the man, masked, started to run.

Because gold-headed canes supposedly guarded against infection they were formerly carried by all physicians.

LIBERAL CHIEF

Mr. Mackenzie King's declaration came in reply to demands from the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group that export of war materials to Japan be prohibited. J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the group, said Canada was guilty of assisting an aggressor nation in killing innocent men, women and children in China.

King Makes Statement

"May I say to my honorable friend that the government is just as concerned as he is about the well-being and welfare of the women and children in the Orient, in Spain or in any other part of the world," said the Prime Minister.

"But what this government is particularly concerned about is the well-being and welfare of the Canadian people.

"If my honorable friend wishes to know in a word what the policy of this country is with respect to matters affecting war, let me tell him it is to seek in every possible way to avoid taking any step which may be responsible for this country either directly or indirectly being drawn into a world conflict.

To Keep Canada Neutral

"What it does today with respect to war materials is in accord with the obligations in the light of the existing world situation and in the light of all other actions are doing or refraining from doing.

"The test of its judgment it is following a course which will serve to keep Canada neutral and enable other countries, especially present itself, to co-operate with other nations in helping to bring to a conclusion, more speedily that might otherwise be possible, any existing international controversy.

In answer to other questions from the same source the Prime Minister said the time to consider an embargo on exports of munitions would arise when other nations took the same action. In refraining from selling to the same ships regarding the Sino-Japanese conflict as had been done in the Spanish case, Canada's main civil war the government was actuated by the same general motives as those adopted the United Kingdom, the United States, France and other countries.

Aware of Danger

The government was aware of the tremendous danger involved in certain courses of action and did not propose to do anything which would add to the danger. It did not propose single-handed to embargo munitions of war, he declared.

The bill before the House authorizing the Governor-General-in-Council to prohibit shipments of arms, munitions and implements of war in Canadian ships to countries which were engaged in war, or prepared for armed conflict. It is an amendment to the Canada Shipping Act.

Under the new legislation the measure was passed as an amendment to the Act, the Governor-in-Council may by the government to prohibit exports or such commodities entirely or to certain designated countries.

PRIME MINISTER

A similar measure was introduced in the Commons in 1929 by H. A. Stevens, Minister of Trade, but passed without debate but failed to get through the Senate. It was originally introduced by the Prime Minister, may pass with little opposition. It is sponsored by the Prime Minister, may pass with little opposition. It is sponsored by the Prime Minister, may arise by the export policy for whatever period is proposed between the contesting applications for licence .

Ban Exports Before War

Already the government has before it a formal application from the Canadian Commercial Corporation to export surplus power of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The application was brought forward by Premier Hepburn last fall and was followed by four-spoken exchanges between him and Mr. King, Prime Minister, in the House.

At that time the government took the stand no further licences should be granted by the Governor in Council until an expression of opinion on this procedure had been obtained from the House. The introduction of this measure the Prime Minister today fulfilled a promise made at that time and repeated in the Speech from the Throne, that parliament at the present session would have an opportunity to discuss power.

Under the proposed new procedure the Ontario government, to obtain an export licence would have a petition presented to parliament by a private act declaring the amount of power that was to be exported.

Both Provinces Must Agree

The petition would have to be accompanied by certified evidence of the willingness of the Provincial government or governments concerned in both generation and export of the power.

For export of power without limit the export in excess of the amount fixed by a licencing act, or otherwise expending any of the terms and conditions laid down in such act, fines may be imposed on summary conviction, of from $1,000 to $5,000 a day for each day of violation. The terms of the proposed new legislation.

The old legislation, which has not been changed since 1907, provided that power export licences could be granted by the Governor-in-Council. A few such licences are now in operation covering a small export of power at Niagara Falls. No change is to be made in the power of the Governor in Council to licence fluid export.

Under the new legislation the Governor in Council could issue export licences or increase the amount being exported under a Licencing Act, only as a temporary measure to meet any emergency that might be deemed to constitute an International Emergency, and only after good only for the duration of an emergency period.

ing munitions of war to a force which otherwise would have to depend on supplies carried half-way around the world, through seas probably made dangerous by an European conflagration.

"Incidents within recent weeks have made it plain that neither Britain nor the United States can afford to surrender to Japan the influence and prestige of their Far Eastern seas," the paper said.

Great Britain's Interests

Speaking of closer co-operation between the British and United States navies in the common interest of protecting their prestige, their individuals in the east and their trade. The Sydney Sun commented:

"Every bomb dropped on a foreign vessel, every bullet aimed at a British or United States subject, is a stated insolence. It has come to a standing between these two nations, which have common ideals, common commerce and common hatred of disorder tend naturally to draw together.

AUSTRIAN POLICY

Only sketchy reports of the meeting reached Vienna, but one message, purporting to come directly from von Schuschnigg, said he considered the conversation between Austria and Germany was extremely good.

May Reconstruct Cabinet

One report current in Vienna was that the Austrian cabinet may be reconstructed to make places for several ministers sympathetic to Germany.

Hitler was said to have urged von Schuschnigg to bring Austria more closely into line with the Rome-Berlin axis and that Germany and Italy, Austria's two powerful neighbors.

Official circles said the Australian Chancellor was seeking to strengthen and extend the friendship pact signed July 7, 1936, between the two states.

Von Schuschnigg was reported to have taken with him policy police documents showing the character of recent illegal Nazi activities in Austria, the activities which Germany agreed to curb under the friendship pact.

Requests Former Post

(A dispatch from Berlin yesterday said von Papen had drawn Hitler's attention to the present save of arrests of Austrian Nazis by the von Schuschnigg government and to have asked that he be returned to the Vienna post to resume negotiations for improved Austro-German relations.

Von Papen was said to have told Hitler that the sending of an ardent Nazi partisan as the new minister might increase anti-German sentiment there.)

Von Schuschnigg's last general statement on Austrian foreign policy was made in a year-end interview in which he reiterated his determination to block any effort "to make Austria a near annex to a neighbor."

The Chancellor pointed his "remark by adding this determination was supported fully "by other countries—such as Italy."

The Austrian official press bureau in announcing the conference said "no changes in Austrian foreign policy are to be expected."

been filed as proof.

"The first thing to do is learn whether the mothers of eight are prepared to attack the claims of those with nine," Mr. Tilley suggested. "If they did not, the nine children claimants would be out of the running.

Most Produce Evidence

"Mrs. Lillian Kenny shows a registration of nine children within the period but we've called upon her to produce evidence of nine births", he said. "That has not been supplied. We are unable to say how many were still-born."

Mr. Tilley cited precedent for excluding still-births as not actual births.

Dealing further with the claims of Mrs. Kenny, he said the maximum number of births she could claim was nine and this figure might be altered when further information was received.

"She can only share with the four others and possibly not share at all, depending on registrations," he added.

Goga's vigorous anti-Semitism, Fascist inclinations, and economic ills attributed to uncertainty created by his regime were advanced as factors which led King Carol to give to the new government widespread powers.

amendable he will prove in making an agreement. Sir Signor Mussolini requires aid of a financial and industrial kind. Germany has come to falling off. The Abyssinia conquest has cost heavily and yielded little. Italy's gold and foreign exchange reserve is low.

Loan is Imperative

"An immediate loan is imperative, £80,000,000 is being blamed. There is no suggestion that the British government should lend the money. But authors of the plan hope the government who partly raised the loan from foreign-loans recently, will make it easy for the money to be raised from the financial houses of the city of London once a settlement is concluded.

"In return Britain may be offered a strip of territory near Lake Tsana, which would ensure our control of the great lake in Abyssinia, which is the source of the main part of irrigation in the British Sudan."

AT THE BELLE

"Stage Door"

Based on the highly successful play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman, "Stage Door," the long-awaited RKO Radio picture which teams for the first time Ginger Rogers and Katharine Hepburn is now on the Belle screen. The two glamorous stars hold new laurels to noteworthy careers by their superb performances in the remarkably compelling drama and share top honors with Adolphe Menjou, who in the role of a Broadway producer, recalls his outstanding performance in Miss Hepburn's Academy award picture, "Morning Glory", in which he played a similar part. Other players who win distinct recognition are Gail Patrick, Constance Collier, Andrea Leeds, Samuel D. Hinds, Lucille Ball and a score of youngsters, many of whom are newcomers to the screen.

The gripping story is laid principally in a theatrical boarding house in New York and deals with the topsy-turvy careers of a group of stage-struck young ladies who have migrated from all sections of the country. A vivid cross-section of life is reflected in the turbulent stirrings of these ambitious youngsters.

Katharine Hepburn plays a society girl aflame with the desire to be a great dramatic actress, despite parental objections, while Ginger Rogers is seen as a happy-go-lucky, wise-cracking night club entertainer with an eye on the musical comedy stage.

The powerful climax of the story arises when Miss Hepburn is called upon to make her dramatic debut directly after the suicide of a frustrated girl friend, played by Andrea Leeds, an assignment which calls upon her vast emotional reserve, but which catapults her to sensational success.

Unquestionably one of the year's best directed pictures "Stage Door" will leave a lasting imprint on the memory of those who enjoy brilliant dialogue, tender drama and genuine human characterization.

"Penny Boy" is a smart musical revue, the Belle News of Day, and Wal; Disney's "Donald's Ostrich", February's funniest cartoon will also be exhibited.

Commencing today performances at the Belle will commence daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.00 with the exception when two programs are exhibited when the starting times will be 2.30, 7.10 the last complete show starting at 8.30.

"Stage Door" starts daily at 2.00; 7.30 and 9.30 p.m.

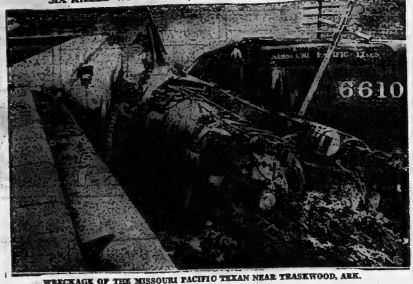
FIREMAN DIES IN HIGH SCHOOL BLAZE

One fireman was killed by this blaze which broke out in Tuley High School at Chicago, Ill., doing $150,000 worth of damage. Authorities believe the fire was set by one of Chicago's gangs of hoodlums. Part of the burned ruins shown (ABOVE) are of the old part of the school, the new portion being protected by a fire wall.

TWO DIE WHEN 'PLANE 'CHUTES FAIL



Still clinging to the rudder, where it caught and carried him to instant death, is the parachute with which Nelbetby Rankine, Los Angeles student flier, attempted to save his life when the aeroplane shed a wing under the strain of stunt flying. Virgil O. Wilkinson, High school teacher and part time flying instructor, was also killed in "Saltzy out." His parachute failed to open, and he hurtled 1,000 feet to the earth. At right, horrified witnesses the two men were putting the aeroplane through a series of difficult stunts when the right wing parted from the craft, sending it into a dive.

The military note has entered even sports events in military-conscious Italy. Fascist troops who go through compulsory athletics in order to keep in trim, erected this barricade of bayonets as a hurdling obstacle at their training camp near Rome. Woe to the soldier who falls in the leap.

Smiling happily into the mirror by means of which he observes what goes on, Fred Snite, Jr., the young man who came from China in an "iron lung", is shown as he congratulated Terrence J. Miss Snite and Dillon were wed in St. Patrick's Church here at Miami Beach, Fla., where the infantile paralysis victim is spending the winter. Left to right are: Fred B. Snite, Sr., the bride, the groom, and Miss Teresa Larkin, of Dayton, O., maid of honor.

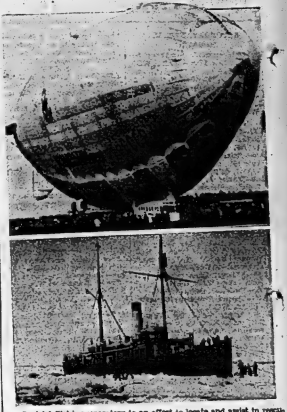
FRANCE SENDS FOOD TO STARVING SPANISH LOYALISTS

Fifty huge motor vans filled with food were sent from Paris to hungry cities in war-torn Republican Spain. Above, the long motorcade gets under way, bringing succor to starving non-combatants and children in the towns where Franco's rebel airmen have been carrying on a campaign of air and ground bombardment has cost many lives. The picture was taken as the trucks started from the Porte d'Italia and headed for the outskirts of the French capital.

IRELAND'S SAINT

On St. Patrick's day this year, the 1500th anniversary of the arrival of the Saint in Ireland, this statue, erected on a hill at Slieve Patrick, near Saul, County Down, will be dedicated. The 37-foot statue was designed by Francis Doyle-Jones. It will overlook the River Slaney, where Ireland's patron landed on his arrival.

Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse
New Blood for Britain's Navy



Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, commander of the British home fleet, now becomes Britain's first sea lord. His new title is Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty and Chief of the Naval Staff. He will have the largest fleet in the world under his direction. The appointment is in line with the British government's effort to force new blood into high military commands.

RESCUE DIRIGIBLE CRASHES KILLING 13

On trial flights preparatory to an effort to locate and assist in rescuing the Soviet polar scientists drifting somewhere in the Greenland Sea on a rapidly crumbling ice floe, Russia's largest dirigible, the U.S.S.R. V6 (TOP), crashed into a mountain top nearly 300 miles from Murmansk, killing 13 of its crew of 18, and critically injuring others. The rescue efforts were being rushed forward by ship and aeroplane with the ice-breaker Taimir (BELOW), one of the oldest vessels in the Arctic, leading a push through dangerous icefields.

DUCE AND HIS LEGIONS TRY GOOSE-STEP

Hitherto performed only by geese and German soldiers, the goose step is being tried here (background), by the Fascist legions of Premier Benito Mussolini. You'll note that the timing of some of the boys isn't so hot, but Il Duce changed all that when he went to the head of the class and showed them just how it should be done. We present Il Duce's analysis of the correct technique. Rechristening the step the "Passo Romano" (Roman step), Mussolini has ordered that his men perfect their technique before the visit of Realmleader Hitler, of Germany, in the spring.

ROBOT 'PLANE TO CUT COST OF GUN PRACTICE

Paul Whittier (LEFT), millionaire sportsman, and Reginald Denny well-known film actor, are shown with their new robot aeroplane which will be used to test marksmanship of an anti-aircraft unit of the 62nd U.S. coast artillery. The aeroplane, evolved after several years of experiment, will be entirely controlled by radio. It has a wing spread of 13 feet and an over all length of 8 1-2 feet. The miniature craft, powered with a 2-cylinder, three horsepower gasoline engine, is operated by a three-tube receiving set. The aeroplane will travel 60 miles an hour and can attain an altitude of 9,000 feet, where it is invisible from the ground. Denny conceived the ship in 1935 as a way of cutting the cost of coast artillery and anti-aircraft practice.

Admits Differences of Opinion but No Crisis

HARMONY SOUGHT

Express Says There is Hope Difficulties Composed Within Week

London, Feb. 14.—(CP Cable)—Downing Street clambers all day reports of a cabinet rift. Differences of opinion are admitted, but threats of a crisis are strenuously denied.

The difference, it is stated, is between those who wish a more active policy in regard to Anglo-Italian relations and those who would proceed more cautiously.

But no meetings of the cabinet have been called. Nor, it is intimated, has there been any meeting of Ministers.

Hence

London, Feb. 14.—(CP-Havas) — Rumors that the Cabinet is split was echoed in all sections of the Press today, but newspapers were cautiously at variance regarding the possibility of a crisis. Had a definite divergence of opinion had developed between Foreign Secretary Eden and Prime Minister Chamberlain over foreign policy, notably Anglo-Italian relations.

The Times (Independent) declared "no difference of opinion which can be possible while the Ministers are at variance on such issues."

"Everyone will hope, therefore that in pursuance of his positive peace policy and in his work for friendly relations with all powers in Europe Mr. Chamberlain will successfully bring the government to complete harmony".

TORRENTIAL RAINS BRING THREAT OF SERIOUS DAMAGE

Colder Weather Might Dispel Widespread Floods in Ontario

HAZARDOUS DRIVING

Highways in Eastern Ontario Covered With Ice

By The Canadian Press

Flood-harassed Western Ontario hoped today colder weather, forecast by the Weather Bureau, would dispel the threat of widespread floods set by torrential week-end rains. Residents of several districts anxiously swept by flood waters anxiously watched the rivers and streams for precautionary measures.

For the second successive week-end, heavy rains were general throughout the province Saturday and Sunday. Highway washouts were reported from some sections. Lowlying lands were flooded. Thaws in rivers overflowed their banks at

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE EXPECTED

1,600 Textile Workers Now Idle at Cornwall

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 14—(CP)—Nearly 1,600 textile workers were idle today as conciliation officers of the Ontario Department of Labor sought to bring about an amicable settlement of a dispute that closed three mills of Canadian Cottons, Limited. A "truce" in the existing deadlock between company officials and the employees was expected momentarily.

The Dundas and Canada mills closed Friday when nearly 1,000 men and women walked out protesting an alleged "speed-up" plan and company "discrimination." The Stormont mill, third Canadian Cottons plant here, closed Saturday when it ran short of materials supplied by the other mills, throwing another 600 employees out of work.

No statement was issued after a closed meeting of workers last night that preceded a conference of workers' representatives with Louis Fine and O. J. Jennette, conciliation officers of the Provincial Labor Department. Union officials said "we are locked out, apparently," and that there was a proposition from the company."

"King George VI Dock" Gibraltar of Far East Is Opened at Singapore

Sir Shenton Thomas Declares Naval Base "Not a Challenge to War But an Insurance Against War"—Largest Drydock Outside of England — Some of Guns Have Range of 50 Miles

Singapore, Feb. 14—(AP)— The British Empire's greatest naval base on Gibraltar of the Far East—was formally opened today.

Thousands of guests cheered as Sir Shenton Thomas, Governor of the Strait Settlements, dedicated the huge drydock, most important unit of the network of defenses.

Sir Shenton declared the naval base was "not a challenge to war, but insurance against war."

He officially named the drydock the "King George VI Dock."

The dedication was carried out by the Governor aboard a government yacht, sailing through the dock entrance and breaking a 150-foot ribbon. Two destroyers escorted the yacht.

The drydock is the largest ever built outside England. It can accommodate warships up to 45,000 tons. For the first time in history Great Britain is able to repair warships in drydock east of the Suez Canal.

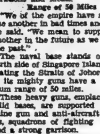
Crowds Restricted

Caution was taken to prevent crowds at the ceremonies from entering the area around the huge mighty base, which Great Britain has been building since 1923. Two more years' work will be required to complete it.

Rear-Admiral Julius Townsend, commanding the battle cruisers Hawkins, Memphis and Milwaukee, represented the United States—the only foreign power invited to be present.

Singapore by the ceremony, Lieut.-Colonel J. J. Llewellin, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, welcomed "representatives of the United States, whose visit of friendship to these shores so fortunately coincides with the ceremony and whose nation is so closely akin to our own in its aspirations and ideals."

Range of 50 Miles



"We of the empire have stood by one another in bad times and good," he said, "we mean to support one another in the future as we have in the past."

The naval base stands on the north side of Singapore Island, dominating the approaches from the east. Some of its mighty guns have a maximum range of 50 miles.

These guns are emplaced on solid bases, are supported by massive gun and sight towers, magazines, and a strong garrison.

Twenty-four British Warships participated in the opening ceremonies, including vessels of the East Indies squadron, the China squadron and the Royal Indian navy.

WILLIAM J. HUME DIES SUDDENLY IN ROME, ITALY

LATE W. J. HUME

Born in Coebyville And in Distillery Business For 30 Years

HIGHLY RESPECTED

At Time of Death Was President of Walker's And G. And W. Distillers

William J. Hume of Walkerville, Ont., and formerly of Belleville and Corbyville, died suddenly at the hotel at which he was staying in Rome, Italy, on Sunday evening, Feb. 13th. Accompanied by his wife, he had been in Italy on a pleasure trip the continent for the benefit of his health.

The announcement of Mr. Hume's sudden death was received in Belleville by a dispatch from Rome early this morning, and in the city today sincere appreciation of his worth was heard feelingly. To a host of friends in Belleville and in Walkerville the news of his passing came as a great shock.

The late Mr. Hume was in the prime of life, being but 46 years of age. He was born in Belleville, both his parents being Mrs. Hume and the late James Hume. As an early age he entered the service of the late Senator H. Corby, who was then the owner of the distillery at Corbyville. He was ambitious, energetic and reliable in his employment, which qualities of character caused him to win early advancement. For thirty years he was associated with the distillery business and for some years and at the time of his death he was President of the Hiram Walker Distillery Company Limited, which position he held at Corbyville in this firm in the year 1926.

Many Personal Friends

William J. Hume, or "Bille Hume" as he was familiarly known to hundreds of close personal friends throughout Canada, was endowed with many fine traits of character and a pleasing and friendly personality. He was generous in his support of worthy causes and to the furtherance of sport in Belleville he gave valuable assistance. When he visited Belleville and Corbyville, as he did frequently, he was always welcomed by many friends. At times he made the Belleville harbor his place of anchor for his fine yacht and on summer days numerous Belleville folks were invited to join him for enjoyable cruises on the Bay of Quinte, the River St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario. For a long time to come "Billie" Hume will continue to live in the hearts of his friends.

Fraternally in Belleville Mr. Hume was prominent, being a Past Master of The Belleville Lodge No. 122 A. F. & A. M.; member of Mora Chapter, No. 7, R.A.M.; a charter member of Friendship Chapter No. 227, R.A.M., King Baldwin Preceptory No. 8, and the Tuxedo Club.

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 14—(CP)—Damage of about $6,000 was caused by fire which partially destroyed a warehouse and its contents here yesterday, more than 30 hours after the building had been locked up for the week-end.

The two-storey brick structure, owned by Harland Smith of Toronto, was leased to the Industrial Acceptance Corporation of Kingston to store furniture. Damage to the building is set at $2,000 and to furniture $4,000.

Officials of the Fire Marshal's Department from Toronto and Ottawa are investigating.

O. O. McIntyre Famous Columnist Dies Suddenly

New York, Feb. 14 (AP)—Oscar Odd McIntyre, newspaper columnist to whom millions of North Americans looked for their impressions of New York City, died today in his New York Avenue apartment.

One of the most famous newspapermen of the nation, he came to New York from a small Ohio town, and always boasted that he never lost the naive curiosity of the "home town boy". For a quarter of a century his daily column, "New York Day By Day", grew increasingly tame, and in recent years was published in more than 500 newspapers.

McIntyre would have been 54 on his birthday, March 13. Well and known immediately, but his health had not been good for some time.

Intimacy friendships ripened through all classes and types of people — Broadway's great, the big city's ordinary people, each alike claimed his friendship.

He lived much alone in recent years, doing his work in his richly-furnished apartment, aided in great measure by his wife, the former Helen Hope Small, of Gallipolis, O.

Friday, which would have been McIntyre's birthday, would have been his thirtieth wedding anniversary.

The first man to write a syndicated New York column, forerunner of the many present-day Broadway gossip writers, McIntyre began his newspaper career on the Gallipolis Journal in 1902.

No Time for Hedge-Hopping Or Subterfuges Says Mayor

Hearing is Given Appeals And Buck is Never Passed

"TO THE POINT"

"More time is lost by passing the buck than ever could be gained by coming right out and facing the issue. I never have any trouble with anyone coming straight to me," hardly ever. I never have to disappoint any one by referring him here or there needlessly, or asking him to come another time", commented Mayor Jamieson Bone in his executive office this morning.

No Dodging

Shown a report on the various dodges and subterfuges used by executives of Toronto and other municipalities in terminating an interview Mayor Bone called attention to the fact that while hours are not kept every day at the executive office of the city hall, his office is but a "step away". "And this office is always open to everyone; I'm always willing to give everyone a hearing," he added.

"But when they come here they get the truth....even if it is the first time in their life they have been told the truth. There is no use to be forced to show the gate. But for the most part people like to be told out and out just what is going on and about. They don't like to be referred back and forth—passed from there. They like to be told the truth. That is the only secretary to whom to pass the buck.

"It's been my personal observation too, that most people realize that the total number on relief are the unemployables. I would like to keep things in an uproar all the time by insisting on things we can't give the rest of them. The rest are all right. But when it comes to matters of relief, and I get lots of calls of this sort, they are told that their troubles must be taken up with the chairman of the Welfare and Unemployment Relief Committee, Ald. Lynch, supervisor. If these two executives can't handle the problem, how can they expect the Mayor to?"

STREETS, TREES COATED WITH ICE

Heavy Rain Freezes to Roads Making Driving Hazardous

Heavy rains sweeping in from the southwest, particularly covered city streets and highways into treacherous slippery pathways as accompanying low temperatures formed a key coating last reunited in driving hazards throughout.

Heavy transports negotiated east and west traffic with great care as wheels slipped and skidded on the icy highways.

Water freezing on trees coated limbs and branches with a silver sheen that glistened in the white light of street lamps. Shortly after the yellow and blue flashes of lightning in the western skies illuminated the city although there was no accompanying thunder or other signs of an electrical storm.

Water in small pools ran down the East and West Bridge streets and hills flowing into the river through city drains and causing temporary anxiety on the part of residents living in the flood areas.

Sidewalks and highways presented a slippery appearance this morning. Many pedestrians on their way to office, shop and factory, were forced to take the comparative safety of the roadways while a few more adventurous ones slipped and slid along precarious footing.

City workmen and trucks were abroad in early hour distributing sand on icy roadways. Residents poured coal ashes on walks on side walks on many city streets.

Highways in the northern areas were ice-coated, treacherous, and were extremely dangerous to drivers. Highway 14 between Tweed, was forced to return after travelling two miles along the slippery highway.

Hydro workmen were called out when last night a street light in various parts of the cit yvent out, various parts of the city went out, formed on wires.

Free Bridges Are Visioned As Links of Canada and U. S.

Premier Hepburn Asks Why Anyone Should Pay to Cross

AMORTIZE INVESTMENT

Toronto, Feb. 14—(CP)—Toll-free bridges linking Canada and the United States were envisioned by Premier Hepburn today as he emphasized the government's intention of co-operating with New York State to replace the collapsed Falls View bridge at Niagara Falls with a structure that eventually would be free of tolls. Premier Hepburn and Mr. McQueen would go to Albany next week to confer with New York State officials.

Steps to be Taken

"The first move was made at Sarnia," Mr. Hepburn declared, explaining Ontario and Michigan built approaches for the new bridge there and a private company constructed the main span. When bonds are retired, it would be free.

"Why should anyone have to pay to go over a bridge?" the Premier asked.

"Mr. McQueen will represent the Ontario government in negotiations with the government of New York next week," he said. "We hope to have the investment in due course of time so we will have a free bridge. The Sarnia bridge is somewhat the same.

Question of Charter

Announcement of plans by International Railway Company to replace the Falls View bridge, destroyed by the recent Niagara Gorge ice-jam, was "another matter," the Premier said, and would not concern him. He said the Dominion government would have to pass upon the company's application for a bridge charter but doubted "whether Ontario's application would be turned down in favor of a private company."

The question was raised at Queen's Park whether the International Railway Company's charter for the collapsed bridge would be good for another. In some quarters it was suggested a new application to the Dominion government might be necessary.

Two Planes Sent To Rescue Four Scientists on Floe

Moscow, Feb. 14—(AP)—The rescue ship Talmyr prepared today to send two planes on a 30-mile flight to bring back four Russian scientists, who have been drifting through polar seas since last May.

The Talmyr sent word she had found ice suitable for a takeoff and said her crew was unveiling the field and assembling the planes for the flight. Apparently plans to blast a channel through the ice-packed Greenland Sea to the floe on which the explorers are camping has been abandoned.

The surface for the takeoff was found within a quarter of a mile of the ship. A large plane and a small seaplane were unloaded for assembly.

At midnight the Talmyr reported she had been able to advance only about 1,000 feet all day Sunday. By 9 p.m. last night she was considerably halted by the thick ice near the Greenland coast.

Tangible appreciation of nearly nine years of efficient service and happy association was made by twenty-three representatives and employees of the eastern district of the Coca-Cola Company at the Queens Hotel on Monday night when they presented to C. G. Couse, district manager since 1929 with a wardrobe trunk and glad bag.

Mr. Couse who leaves for Australia this week, for five days, where he will represent his company, was called into the reception of the splendid gift and voiced his appreciation of the fine co-operation given him and the associations made during his tenure of office here.

Representatives of the Kingston, Belleville, Trenton and Peterboro branches of the company were present to convey to the guest of honor their wishes for success in his new environment. Mr. J. J. Rogers, regional manager, of Ottawa acted as master of ceremonies and kept everything in high humor during the banquet and program that followed. Mr. George Hunter, Kingston, acted as toast master over the dinner and added much to the general enjoyment with his witty humor.

A highly entertaining program staged by members of the various branches present followed the banquet.

TO BUILD LARGE CANAL

Lahore, India, Feb. 14 (CP-Reuter)—A gigantic canal, costing about £20,000,000 will be built in the Punjab.

It is to be about 500 miles long and will canalize the waters of the Chenab and Jhelum rivers from the Kashmir mountains and irrigate the sandy district in the south-west of the province.

TROOPS FOLLOW TRAIL BLAZED BY MONGOL HORDES

Japanese Now Fighting to Conquer Central China

THREATEN KAIFENG

Protests Made Against Alleged Brutality of Japanese

Shanghai, Feb. 14—(AP)—Japanese troops, following a trail blazed by the Mongol hordes of Genghis Khan 700 years ago, fought today to conquer Central China.

Honan Province, where the great Mongol horsemen struck terror, reverberated with the din of modern conflict as the Japanese invaders drove the Chinese southward toward the Lunghai railway.

The advance of infantry had captured the lower stretches of the Yellow River and had reached the middle section of the great waterway, the division of north and south China.

Swift drives southward have put the Mikado's armies astraddle the Pinghan and Tsinhsu highway. They seriously threaten Kaifeng, present capital of Honan Province and ancient seat of the Sung dynasty eight centuries ago. The Mongols also reigned there from 1368 to 1644.

Force Chinese to Evacuate

The Japanese advance guard was reported on the north bank of the Yellow River after having forced 15,000 Chinese troops to withdraw across the water.

A bitter struggle was in prospect, as the Japanese must cross the river under fire. Bridges were blown up by the Chinese as they withdrew.

It was announced officially that Japanese reverses on the Pinghan front cost the Chinese 2,000 killed. Japanese reported their losses small.

Strong protests were made by Chinese against alleged brutality of the Japanese troops, who were accused of atrocities—cunning refugees, looting stores and committing assaults against women and girls after occupying Pengpu and Hwaiyuan.

EIGHT DROWN AS BOAT CAPSIZES

12 Missing And Probably Dead, in Accident at Sydney

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 14—(AP) Eight passengers were known today to have drowned and 12 were missing—probably dead— after the ferryboat Kuttabul capsized and sank in Sydney harbor.

The accident occurred yesterday when many of the passengers aboard the ferryboat, crowding to the port side to watch the Australian cruiser Louisville sail, caused it to list and go down in 70 feet of water.

Divers located the ferryboat and it was righted and towed ashore in a huge crane.

Small boats manned by the crew of the Louisville, which turned to the rescue as soon as it saw the Rodney list, picked up most of the ferryboat's passengers out of the water.

The Australian government, in a message to Captain R. W. Matthewson of the Louisville, expressed appreciation of the heroism of her crew.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Overpowering rain! These are those interesting and often very beautiful rays which are described by many as "the sun drawing water". They are simply sunbeams shining through breaks in the clouds and illuminating the dust in the atmosphere. Thus the gleaming shafts are created, seen against a darker background. Coming from the sun so far away, these rays are really parallel to each other; but they look as though they might converge close behind the clouds. It is simply the perspective effect like looking down a long street to where the curbstones seem to meet. Some believe that these rays are a sign of rain, but they are there so that the presence of clouds without the rays.

ANTENNA BROKEN BY WEIGHT OF ICE

Weighed down by excess ice collected during last night's heavy sleet storm, the antenna of the broadcasting equipment of the Belleville police radio station CFRB broke beneath its added weight last night. The antenna extends from atop the police station to the turret of the city hall belfry. The antenna was damaged under the weight close to the Pinnacle street end. Police Sergeant Booth intimated the break would be remedied as soon as possible, but added there was little use trying to repair the broken wires until the ice had been removed.

THROWN HEAVILY ON ICE FROM ICEBOAT

Jack Gilmour, Point Anne youth, suffered severe cuts about the face and head when he was thrown violently from the ice-boat overturned about three o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital for treatment. It was necessary to use a number of stitches to close the cuts.

ARRESTED IN OTTAWA MAN IS HELD FOR BELLEVILLE POLICE

Arrested in Ottawa over the week-end a man who police say gave the name as William Cumming, no address, is reported to have admitted stealing a Ford sedan, licence plates 6-J-589 in Belleville on Feb. 18 last. Chief Constable J. P. Downey of Ottawa confirmed the apprehension of Cumming and informed Chief Alex Ketcheson of the latter's arrest today. The automobile stolen in Belleville last Tuesday was the property of Mr. L. Ketcheson, Tweed, and was stolen from its parking position on East Bridge street. Chief Kidd intimated at noon today that Cumming would be brought back to Belleville. No reference of the possible recovery of Mr. Ketcheson's car was made in the telegram received from Chief Downey.

33 INMATES LISTED IN COUNTY JAIL

RIGHT HAND CRUSHED IN FORCE OF HORSE

Jerked off his feet by a horse he was shoeing, Stephen Best, of Hybla, North Hastings, had his right hand crushed when the hoof of the unruly shod horse pinned it to the floor. One finger was broken and by a sharp caudle which penetrated it.

MANY UNEMPLOYED HIRE OUT TO FARMERS

Unemployed of the city and district apparently aren't letting the figures on the score work for the summer, according to officials of the local employment office.

PUBLICITY FINDINGS TO BE PRESENTED

Representatives of the publicity committees of Thurlow County Council and Belleville City Council met in joint session in Shire Hall on Saturday. Findings of the joint committees with Alderman McLean Hale representing the latter and Reeve W. J. Davis of Bangor, Township chairman of the county organization will be presented in the form of a recommendation at the regular meeting of the Belleville City Council tonight.

STARLINGS INVADE SOUTH SIDE DUMP

Hundreds of starlings in scattered flocks invaded the south side of the city dump this morning adding a touch of liveliness to the ordinarily deserted dumping place. This year the absence of gulls from their winter gathering place has been frequently commented upon. During the past season not a single gull has been observed where in past years scores were daily noted. No plausible factory explanation has been given for the absence of the birds.

YOUTH TOWED TO SCHOOL ON SKATES

Going to school this morning proved to be an adventuresome trip made in record time on the part of one of the city's juveniles. Taking advantage of the ice-covered condition of the streets, the youngster strapped skates on his feet, improvised outer harness for the family collie dog, and grasping the end of a rope, was towed to school by the dog. Several other children were noted skating their way to school over the ice yesterday afternoon.

SPANIEL CAR VICTIM HELD AT DOG POUND

Collarless and tagless, a small black Spaniel male aged about eight months, was picked up on East Dundas street on Sunday, evidently the victim of a hit and run driver. The S. S. Lumb, coroner in and for the County of Hastings, has been reported and that Dr. Oswald Anderson of Bancroft has been appointed associate. "In and for the County of Hastings."

TENDER FOR PRINTING GIVEN TO TWEED NEWS

Award of the tender for the printing of the Hastings County Farmers' report was made to the Tweed News at a special meeting of the County Committee, held under the chairmanship of Reeve Hoover Thomas, the resident township on Friday.

The Tweed tender was selected from five submitted by weekly newspapers of the county.

CARRIED SAND TO HELP LOCOMOTION

While other residents of the city slipped and slithered helplessly over ice-covered streets in the downtown section this morning, at least one elderly citizen was prepared for the day's shopping by the exercise of a little forethought.

Though equipped with ice creepers over his footwear, the resident was doubly prepared for the treacherous glaze, for carrying a small bag filled with sand. Encountering the slipperiest spots, he calmly sprinkled small handfuls of the ice, then proceeded across safely.

GENERAL SETTLING OF ICE JAM IN RIVER NOTICED

Water Level Has Receded Two Feet Since Friday

CELLARS DRYING OUT

Partial disintegration of the Ice-Jam that is choking the lower stretches of the Moira River may result in a general breaking of the field if temperatures do not drop below the freezing point, city flood officials stated today.

The heavy rains of the week-end that poured into the river from the drains and tributary waters of the northern area failed to increase the level of the river. A drop of from nine to fourteen inches was noticeable at several points while it is estimated that the main water level has receded nearly two feet since Friday of last week.

A general settling of the jam between the city bridges was noticeable today. Water flowing from the Spring has encountered little or no resistance from the ice jam and is flowing beneath it in the open channels at the mouth of the river.

"We are still maintaining a rigid watch on that part of the river near the railway bridge," City Engineer Charles Mott stated today. There will be no further operations unless something unforeseen occurs. There is absolutely no truth in the rumors that the river is rising and flooding cellars. There has been a noticeable drop in water levels over the week-end."

Cellars Drying Out.

Cellars and basement of buildings on Front street are nearly pumped out. The cellar of the Canadian Department Stores was dry this morning while the Belleville Hardware store reported that pumping of water from furnace pits was unnecessary today. Slow seepage of water from other cellars is gradually taking place.

Some anxiety on the part of Front street business men and residents was noted last night as water poured down the east end of the street and into the river. The threatened rise in water levels, however, has not materialized today.Front street merchants breathed easier.

If a fairly heavy volume of water is still flowing from the upper river points.

Present high temperatures may result in a general movement of the ice field soon, it was felt by city officials. However, there is no immediate danger of a flood in the downtown sections unless an unlooked-for jam occurs before the field reaches the open water at the river mouth.

FINDS COMPLAINTS ARE UNFOUNDED

Reeve of Thurlow Tells of Results of Investigation

Investigation of alleged "destitution" complaints forwarded to the government by the council of the township, conducted by Provincial Inspector M. McNeeley last week revealed evidence of a startling nature, Reeve Roscoe Robson of Thurlow Township, stated recently.

"The complaints forwarded by an official told of families in desperate straits in the township yet the investigation conducted by the provincial inspector brought no complaints from the many families supposed to be destitute. People visited knew nothing of the matter sent to the government and told the official that they were satisfied with the way the township council was handling the relief situation," the Reeve added.

A proposal to raise the relief rate in the township to that in force for the benefit of the seventy per cent subsidy paid by the government is being seriously considered by the township council, Reeve Robson stated.

Relief costs this year were well under the expenditure of a year ago he said. While the peak was reached in March last year it is expected the costs for the same period this year will be reduced by at least two hundred dollars. Relief fees are at present being employed on construction of snow-fences and are being paid at the rate of $1.00 per day. A rotating form of employment is being utilized in order that all those participated in an opportunity to obtain work from the township.

"There is no foundation in truth in the reports that the township grader is being loaned to municipalities outside our own," Reeve Robson declared. "Whenever the grader works outside the limits of the city of Belleville or other outside communities, the Council of the Township has received $2.00 per hour. The township received $53.00 for the 26 hours of grader time on one occasion by the grader this winter."

UNABLE TO GAIN AN ENTRANCE

Would-be Robbers Frustrated in Attempt to Break-in Wise's Store

Efforts to gain entrance to Wise's ladies' ready-to-wear store were frustrated some time early Sunday morning, when she would-be robbers were foiled in their attempts, when they failed to loosen the iron bars, protecting the window. Efforts to gain entrance to the store in this vain, police discovered, when making their rounds.

The making his rounds early Sunday morning P. C. Taylor discovered a man standing before Wise's ladies' store, had been tampering with the iron bars, and that efforts of the marauder were frustrated when his burglar tools proved inadequate to force open the heavy bars situated inside of the window.

Investigating the attempted break-in it is believed the prowler badly lacerated his hand, as a blood-soaked handkerchief was found on the floor immediately inside of the window, where it had apparently fallen. Although no entrance was made, police are thoroughly investigating the attempt as authorities believe similar attempts have been made on previous occasions.

HOCKEY MATCH IS CALLED OFF

Out of Respect to Wm. J. Hume, Who Died Suddenly in Italy Sunday

S. R. Burrows, president of the Hastings Arena Corporation, announced this afternoon that tonight's senior O.H.A. game between the R.C.A.F. and Belleville had been indefinitely postponed owing to the sudden death of Wm. J. Hume, honorary president of the arena. "The game has been postponed indefinitely," added Mr. Burrows intimating that as the game does not affect the standing of the two local clubs, it does not necessarily have to be played. The game has been called off out of respect to Mr. Hume who took a personal interest in hockey and especially to the arena to which he subscribed a considerable amount for its construction.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ravin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays and stays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons start to be absorbed into the blood. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't show you if you're bile is flowing right. Two movements may not, on the same. You need both these things, and in the liver as well. Then you'll know you're feeling right. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel like a million dollars. They do the work, make the kids love them. Try them for a week at caramel but have no calomel or narcotic drugs in them. Carter's Little Liver Pills are guaranteed to satisfy or your money back. Trenton

3 HYDRO POLES BROKEN BY CARS

One Woman Sustains Collar Bone Injury And Children Cuts

Trenton, Feb. 14.—(Special)— An icy spot on the highway three miles west of this place yesterday, caused three autos to crash into three poles severely and disrupt telephone and electric service to York Road farmers. The three accidents occurred within twenty-five yards of each other. An auto in which Mrs. Cahaya, Lindsay was the first to leave the road. It knocked down a hydro pole in the south ditch. The driver who was rendered unconscious and she was rushed to the Belleville General hospital, where it was found, that she had sustained a fractured collar bone. Her three children suffered multiple lacerations, and they were treated at the hospital.

Travelling east in the same direction as the first machine had crashed and been driven by C. C. Young of Oshawa, skidded and left the road when the driver apparently applied the brakes. It cut off a mail box and broke off a telephone pole after it had entered the ditch on the north side of the highway Luckily no one was injured in the smash.

Minutes later a Manitoba car in charge of Father Rheaume who was enroute to Ottawa, hit the slippery spot, and stopped after skidding and upsetting a hydro pole in the north ditch. The priest was not hurt either, but his car was damaged, as was Youngs' auto and the other Oshawa victim's vehicle. Through traffic was slackened at the point where the crashes took place until repairs were made to hydro and telephone lines and the wrecked cars were moved. Traffic Officers John Whitty of Trenton and Fred Bluecher of Colborne, investigated the accidents jointly.

Trenton Ceased With Ice

Trenton at the present time resembled a fairyland city in its crystallized coating which was caused by the rain that fell on it till late last night. Everything exposed was covered with a coating of ice. The streets and sidewalks are exceptionally slippery in all parts of the town Motorists and pedestrians are paying their own troubles in trying to keep out of mishaps.

Betty Beckwith Bill By Icebag

Yesterday morning Betty Beckwith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Beckwith, Bay Street, was rushed to the general hospital at Belleville after she had been hit by an icebag in charge of Thumper Waldron. The girl was skating on the Bay at the time when she was struck. At the hospital an examination revealed that the girl had suffered a badly gashed right leg below the knee. Dr. A. E. McQuade of Trenton, gave the injured girl medical assistance here then ordered her to the Belleville hospital.

Police Blotter

Despite the icy condition of local streets following last night's worst sleet and freezing rain storm of the year, no major motor accidents were reported by local police authorities this morning. The dearth of several minor accidents, but generally speaking those motorists who took to the streets themselves confronted with forced travel, drove with extreme caution," added Chief Constable Long.

Mrs. Crawford, 77 Pinnacle street, reported the theft of a child's baby-sleigh. The sleigh was stolen from her premises over the week-end, Mrs. Crawford added.

Only one arrest was necessary in the city over the week-end, this resulting from a local youth imbibing freely, but not well. Charges of intoxication were preferred. A total of thirty transients were given warning and city sleeping accommodations at the police station prer the week-end, sixteen on Saturday night and four-teen last night.

EBB TIDE

The longer a fellow remains in the theatre business the less known about it. Pictures which look like a million dollars in advance fall as flat as a bride's biscuits . . . others which crowd into theatres without ballyhoo, bombast or buncombe stand up and knock the eye flush on the entertainment button.

Recently at the Belle Theatre, we scalphed "EBB TIDE", an Edward Ellis Sea Adventure romance ever filmed in Technicolor.

We knew that Paramount had given it a fine production, with a marvellous cast . . . we knew that rival exhibitors were hailing the story and leading characters . . . yet, we wondered just how it would be accepted.

Needless to say, Belleville went wild over it! and to our regret we realized that we had only contracted "EBB TIDE" for two days, with the result we had to disappoint hundreds at the door.

It is pictures like "Ebb Tide" that justify the existence of the screen, and we are happy in every way that we have succeeded in making arrangements for its encore showing at the BELLE THEATRE (TO-MORROW) and WEDNESDAY.

If you've ever growled at Hollywood we've yammered twice as much . . . and we will again . . . but just now we're deep-toned proud of Hollywood and "Ebb Tide"! (By the way we are also showing a splendid array of featurettes, and the News of the Day is very, very interesting. Try it yet in Tomorrow.)

Gananoque, Ontario.

From GEORGE M. McKANDY.

Gananoque, Ont., Feb. 14—This summer Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and intermediate cities will be linked with New York City and northern New York State by a shorter route than any now in existence upon completion of the new International bridge between Ivy Lea, Ontario, and Collin's Landing, New York State. The dedication ceremonies, which will be held when the bridge is opened on August 1, will be the traditional observance of the long period of peace and goodwill which has existed between the two countries. The year 1938 marks 100 years of peace between Canada and the United States, since it was in 1838 that the American flag last whped out the bands of plunderers which entered Canada while the French-American patriots were in rebellion.

Midway between Kingston and Brockville, the bridge will be the only one between Niagara Falls and Cornwall, where a railroad drawbridge was recently planked to accommodate vehicular traffic. There is no other highway bridge crossing the river until Montreal is reached. The promoters of the project predict that the tourist traffic will be increased at this point from three to seven times. The cars crossing a half miles long is being built in the district from the United States, according to the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, amounted to 84,262 in 1936, with an estimated 225,000 tourists.

The Canadian bridge head at Ivy Lea, will be connected to No. 2 Highway, one of the busiest in Ontario, by a highway now under construction by the provincial government. The Department of Highways is also rushing work on the new $2,000,000 four-lane scenic highway along the St. Lawrence River shore for a distance of 25 miles between Gananoque and Brockville, which also connects with the bridge head.

The new structure spans the main Canadian channel from Ivy Lea to Hills Island with a 750-foot suspension bridge, and is connected with the International Rift by a 4,500 foot highway across Hill Island which is being built by the province. The rift across the Rift, the narrow channel through which runs the International boundary, is the narrowest of the entire project, being but 90 feet long of reinforced concrete and faced with pattie granite. However, this will be the most important of the spans politically, and will be the scene of the dedication ceremonies. From the Rift, a roadway four and coming a mecca for novelty stands, lunch counters, billboard advertisers and the like, and also to protect the wild life in district, a group of prominent Eastern Ontario men recently formed a commitee which will have as its objective the creation of a national park at the Canadian end of the bridge and islands of the vicinity in Canadian waters. Representations have been made to have the government set aside enough land to carry out the project. It is proposed to have game wardens making a constant patrol of the area the year round.

The bridge has been the dream of Canadians and Americans for over a decade, but it was not until 1932 that a Thousand Islands Bridge Authority was formed and representations made to the two governments for the necessary construction permission. Events moved rapidly thereafter, and largely through the persistent efforts of Mr. J. G. Mitchell, Lansdowne, and his equally untiring associates, every difficulty was surmounted and the work started in April, 1937. Today, although the work has been curtailed somewhat during the more severe parts of the winter, it has progressed to a point where the contractors have no doubt of the structure being completed in good time for the scheduled opening.

TORRENTIAL RAINS

some points, no serious damage was reported and in centres subject to floods authorities said water levels were far below the danger mark.

Nearly two inches of rain fell at London where one map was drowned and nearly $2,000,000 damage was caused by floods last spring. Precipitation at Chatham was more than 2 1-2 inches. Toronto and other Central Ontario points were drenched by pouring rain. In the east, dense fog that followed days long rain made traffic conditions perilous. Northern Ontario endured a mixture of snow, sleet and rain.

Highway Flooded

The most serious flood threat appeared to be at St. Thomas, in Elgin county. There, Kettle Creek overflowed and flooded flat lands and covered a highway to a depth of several feet. Water flowing over the waterworks dam was almost at the peak reached in last Sunday's flood. Motors were removed from the St. Thomas sewage plant as a precautionary measure.

The Thames River at London was nearly six feet above normal though still far below the danger point. Officials reported last night the river was rising at a rate of three inches an hour. The Thames valley was said to be free of snow and ice, which would form a jam and back up flood waters.

Chatham basement flats were flooded during the storms there. The Thames at that point rose nearly two feet during the week end. At Blenheim, 10 miles south-east of Chatham, the 1,200-acre Erland marsh was flooded to a depth of from two to three feet. A county road near Prairie Siding, 10 miles down river from Chatham, was closed Sunday by a washout of 1,000 feet of roadway.

Hazardous Driving

Flood waters of Duffin's Creek near Pickering, in the Toronto district, poured over a highway for the second time within a week. Motorists were guided over the 100-foot flood area last night by men carrying lanterns. At Oshawa, where it rained steadily for 24 hours streams overflowed and flooded low lands.

In Peterborough, in Eastern Ontario, car owners parked their machines on lawns and sidewalks to keep them safe from skidding traffic during a rainstorm. The rain froze as it fell, making traffic conditions hazardous. Motor traffic was all but stopped in Kingston by ice-coated streets and highways. Similar conditions were reported from Port Hope and Gananoque.

FAMED JERSEYS ARE RESCUED

Some of Strathlyan Farms' Animals Suffer Burns

Simcoe, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP)—The Strathlyan Farms' herd of champion Jersey cattle a number of animals suffering from burns and still trembling from fright, was led today from the unaccustomed quarters of a rural school house not far from the fire-ruined Strathlyan stable.

For a while last night it was feared 36 of the valuable cows had been burned to death in a fire that destroyed the upper part of the farms' main barn. The 36 were rescued from the flames after Earl Coates, manager of the farms, owned by the C. H. Innes estate, had given them up as lost.

Farmers of the district saved the cattle and most of the other stock housed in the big barn. Total loss was estimated at $8,000. The five started in the hay loft and was believed caused by defective wiring.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE BELLE

"Ebb Tide"

The most successful color film that has yet reached the screen is the first Technicolor sea story, "Ebb Tide", which returns to the Belle tomorrow (Tuesday) and Wednesday, matinee daily, by popular request of appreciative patrons. There has been no setting so far which has been so perfectly adapted to Technicolor photography as the South Seas, locale of the story by Robert Louis Stephenson and Lloyd Osbourne. The lush tropical vegetation, the bright blue of Pacific skies, and the water shading of the South Pacific all needed to be filmed in color, and in "Ebb Tide" all their beauty is recorded to the best possible advantage, the result is a film of unique beauty.

The cast of "Ebb Tide" is headed by Frances Farmer, Ray Milland, Lloyd Noland, Oscar Homolka and Barry Fitzgerald.

"Ebb Tide" tells the story of four strangely assorted men that are entangled on a little South Sea island as a result of a death outside the group; and are separated at last by violence and murder in a forsaken trading post run by a sadistic madman.

Homolka, a broken sea captain, Milland, an expatriate Englishman, and Fitzgerald, a consulting secretary, all go aboard the schooner "Golden State" when her captain dies at sea. Frances Farmer is the daughter of the dead captain, who is aboard the ship when Homolka decides to steal the boat and cargo. Milland protests, but is overruled by his companions. The ship is thus lost in a storm before the Farmer island at a little island where Lloyd Noland holds sway. Noland is a beachcomber. Miss Farmer on the island, and Mills Homolka and Fitzgerald when they attempt to rob him, the pirate finds a fellow who he found thrilling and unusually thrilling, with a really happy ending.

The color of the film is lovely throughout, with the sea and colorings of tropical growths making the perfect setting for a Technicolor film.

A musical trilogy "Ok Ray, Rhythm", The Belle's Bank Night Day, and an amusing Paragraphic "Invention" precede the exhibition of the feature attraction.

"Stage Door" Scores

A search for perfection, from stars to director to story and background, prompted RKO Radio's film version of the successful Broadway romantic comedy-drama hit, "Stage Door", to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time.

Miss Rogers and Miss Hepburn are co-starred for the first time and are bracketed with Adolphe Menjou. Gail Patrick has next to top billing. Constance Collier, Andrea Leeds, Samuel S. Hinds, Lucille Ball, and a host of young players selected by Director La Cava as the most prospective stars of the future are in support. Walt Disney's "Donald's Ostrich" the Belle Late News and a smart revue complete the program.

Barbers in former times acted as surgeons. The professional sign of barber-surgeons was a walking stick about which was wrapped a bloody bandage.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Our Fighting Navy"

The story behind the making of "Our Fighting Navy" at the Capitol theatre today and Tuesday as a season first run bill, is as exciting as anything in the film.

The film depicts the invaluable work which the British navy does in peace time, safe-guarding trade routes, rooting out the aid of those in need upholding the prestige of the nation—a story which has never before been told on the screen. The plot is set in a mythical South American Republic where British interests are menaced by the President to take refuge in the British Consulate. The British Consul refuses to hand over the President to the rebels who station a battleship in the harbour and are threatening to blow the Consulate to pieces.

A British cruiser dashes to the scene and goes into action to protect the Consulate, which is now in a thrilling denouement.

H. B. Warner, who plays his first screen role since "Sorrell and Son," appears as the British Consul; Richard Cromwell has an ideal role as a young Canadian Lieutenant and Robert Douglas, who scored a big personal success in "London Melody," appears as the Captain of the British cruiser; Noah Beery as the President of the Republic and Hazel Terry as the Consul's daughter both have important roles.

"Sing, Baby, Sing"

Twentieth Century-Fox, producers of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Second Honeymoon," the cinematic combination of melody, hilarity and romance which was such a pronounced success, are said to top their previous triumph in a brilliant new story, "Sing, Baby, Sing," at the Capitol today as a grand revival bill.

Featuring one of the greatest collections of comedians ever cast together in one picture, a veritable hit parade of songs, and a riotously funny story, "Sing, Baby, Sing" is being hailed as one of the most entertaining pictures ever produced in Hollywood.

Alice Faye, Adolphe Menjou, Gregory Ratoff, Ted Healy, Patsy Kelly, Michael Whalen, and the Ritz Brothers head the cast that complete show tonight and Tuesday at 2.30.

"We've got to bring prices down, make things cheap and sell a lot of them."—Henry Ford.

SINGAPORE

Today there was opened at Singapore, the new British drydock, part of the great naval base which Great Britain has constructed. The event was one of great interest owing to the political situation in the Pacific Ocean. Exercises of a naval character marked the ceremony with British and United States participating. Today's event, virtually marked the completion of the base which will provide one of the greatest naval fortresses in the world.

One has but to look at a map to discern the supreme importance of Singapore in the British plan for the maintenance of her Empire lines. It is in the area of the East Indies, owned by some of the great colonizing nations of Europe. It has its interest for India, New Zealand and Australia. The Indies are the sources of great wealth.

Holland is one of the countries intensely interested in the present situation in the Orient for her colonial empire in the East Indies is of vast extent and of great wealth.

AGE OF GENERALS

In the Great War the army-leaders were in many cases men of advanced years as Hindenburg, and Joffre and others, but in the army changes under the preparedness programs of many nations it is the younger officers who are being chosen to fill army posts. This is not confined to European countries. Even in the United States army no fewer than twenty-six generals are slated for retirement, including ten major-generals out of the twenty-one in the service. In the United States the age of general officers has dropped from sixty-one to fifty-six and probably will fall lower. It is expected that the average will be 54 at the end of the present year.

Britain has had similar changes with younger men stepping up to the supreme posts. The chief of the imperial staff is fifty-one years of age, replacing a man of sixty-three.

Changes in the German army staff are believed to be part of the pepping-up process which is general among the nations as regards army commands.

What is the reason for the changes, is a question that provokes an attempt at an answer. It may be that the tremendousness of the present situation is such that older men could not carry the burden, calling for such a multitude of duties and a closeness of attention which would strain too much the older man. War is different from what it was in the days of Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Marlborough, Wellington and Napoleon. All these were much younger than the men who led the armies of most of the combatant nations in the Great War. Alexander was but 33 at the time of his death and Napoleon's Waterloo was fought when he was only forty-six. It has been said that the old men are for counsel and the young for war and action. Today even the posts at the head usually assigned to older men for counsel go to the younger.

In fact today, a war would be more in the nature of an intense business in which every little detail of the national strength and resources is under test. The older minds might not be flexible enough for a modern war is too big a thing for the compass of one man's mind.

How would an Alexander handle a campaign today? No one will ever know, for the wars he fought in which he conquered the ancient world from Macedonia and Greece to the farthest limits of India in a few years were fought in a different society and economic state of the world and with different weapons. Would an Alexander in his fifties or sixties have been able to do what the young Alexander did at thirty? Then Alexander the Great fought an offensive war. That was the way of conquest. He had to be agile and aggressive. It was no defensive tactics he played. Today the defensive is believed to have really the better of the argument where forces are anywhere nearly equal. A writer in the New York Times states that the slower reflexes of a Hindenburg and Joffre had a monolith calm of great value in the front line, and of even greater importance for the home front morale. Such entrenched strength of rivals as massed on the western front in 1914-1918 was unique in war. Will such a situation figure in a possible future war, with airplanes playing a great part and perhaps shifting the scenes on the checkerboard of warfare at a rate too kaleidoscopic for the older men?

But the home defence though very close to the front line in any future war may need the older men, whose calmness will act as a powerful factor in maintaining morale.

WANDERING SCHOLARS

A £25,000 trust, recently established by a business man of Brandford, England, to provide for the visit of fifty schoolboys annually to Canada during the next ten years is yet another sign of the importance that opinion generally has come to assign to travel in the education of the young, says Christian Science Monitor.

The old adage that "travel broadens the mind" is sound common sense; but it is not, for all that, invariably true: travel may on occasion serve but too well to confirm rooted prejudices; and the story of the man who returned in disgust because he found only barbarians abroad who could not speak the English tongue is an allegory not without point.

According to Mr. Masefield, "It is only the wonderful traveler who sees a wonder"; if by that Mr. Masefield meant the wondering traveler, youth is that traveler par excellence; for it has ordinarily and naturally a receptive mind, and observes freshly, largely unhampered by preconceptions.

Benefits of foreign contacts have never been so valuable as today, when the good citizen, which, incidentally, it is the main objective of education to produce, finds himself, willy-nilly, a citizen of the world.

COMPENSATION

Not in the narrow nook of His Creation,
Will God make up His Book;
For past man's comprehension
Is the whole scheme of compensation.
It is Love's royal way that makes life blest
By its own secret star, it is confessed;
And heaven its every good on him bestows
Who helps with love to lessen this life's woes.
So thus the good we sought is now brought near;
We know not how, but only 'tis here.

HIGH TENSION POWER WIRES can have an effect upon radio reception in the immediate vicinity where they occur. Nothing can be done about this condition except by the use of a special aerial system, or by putting present aerial systems at right angles to and as far away from such high tension lines as possible. The above information is supplied by a government radio "trouble shooter". A prolific cause of foreign noises interfering with radio reception was found with defective heating pads. Many of these are in use and often cause much trouble on radio receiving sets. Folks who have heating pads found defective afrer repeated tests have been made should exchange them for the kind which are marked "GUARANTEED AGAINST RADIO INTERFERENCE." In buying a heating pad it will be well to see that this guarantee is on the pad, in the interests of the neighbors and the owner of the heating pad.

When a fuse blows out replace it with another fuse. Don't doctor it up with tinfoil and scrap copper, or you will be disturbing radio reception for blocks around, besides creating a danger of fire which may destroy the home.

Electric razors are also capable of causing trouble with radio reception, but as they are not used constantly the trouble will be only intermittent. These can be protected by filters mode for the purpose.

Violet ray machines, of course, can also, and do, cause much interference with radio reception.

Radio filters will remedy the trouble with heating pads and other gadgets which cause trouble. The tone of interference caused by an electric heating pad sounds like the average dentist drill. It has a steady roar and makes and breaks at various intervals with rising pitch just before the contact is broken and the trouble ceases.

That Body of Yours

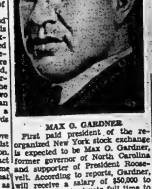
Physician and Dentist Must Work Together When the Removal of Teeth is Being Considered

A champion amateur and later professional boxer consulted his physician regarding a pain in his lower back. He stated that the pain got easier or even passed away when he was exercising but was so bad at night that he couldn't get much sleep. He felt "tired" all the time.

As the physician could find no other trouble present—tonsils, gall bladder, sinuses—and X-ray showed some infection at root of two teeth, he referred him to his dentist. The dentist admitted that there was a little trouble present but not enough to justify the removal of such otherwise good teeth in a young man of 21.

The young man then consulted another dentist, equipped with his own X-ray apparatus, who, after examining these new films, declared that the two teeth should be removed at once. Both teeth were removed and found to be infected, the odor from one being particularly disagreeable. The pain in the lower back disappeared within two or three days, and the young man resumed training in less than a week and a few weeks afterwards won the boxing championship.



It is in such cases as the above that the physician and the dentist are placed in an awkward position. The dentist could readily extract the tooth or teeth and insert some bridge work but he knows that nothing can do the work as well as the patient's own teeth and he tries to save them. Perhaps he feels that there may be some other source of infection that is causing the symptoms and if teeth are not removed, this source may be found.

On the other hand, the physician feels that as he has checked all other possible sources, the teeth must be to blame, and that the infection growing present may be due to dangerous organisms which may sooner or later cause serious complications and possibly death.

The point of course is that physician and dentist usually get together and discuss the case thoroughly, as, after all, the patient—his health and perhaps his life—is the one that must be considered.

A pedestrian has no right of way in the streets of Buenos Aires. If a pedestrian gets knocked down it is his own fault.

LAUNDRY AND BEAUTY PARLOR PROVIDE NEW OPERA TALENT

Two opera singers who recently made their debut with the Philadelphia Civic Opera Company are Rita Letherson (LEFT) and Helen Dupea (RIGHT). Miss Letherson sings and swings an iron as she helps out in her father's laundry, in Philadelphia, while Miss Dupea is practising her vocal talents as she dresses her mother's hair. Before her introduction to the Philadelphia company, Miss Dupea was a hairdresser but now customers who found the tedious boredom of a beauty parlor chased by her singing will have to seek elsewhere to end their ennui. Moral: Try the laundry or the beauty parlor for singing lessons.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

"You make it very difficult Suzanne, but I do feel that this is very effective for one not good business sense that's motivating this!"

"Dam Locke plans to marry you child; not just set you up in business with a nice little by-game shop to play with!" Suzanne reminded her absently.

"You'll still be my friend this way, Wake!" she reminded him.

"Always," he observed slowly, "yes, of course, Beautiful! I wasn't quite after that! No matter what you did, you'd still be you, what you were, we'd have that much!"

Maydra had a blank, startled instant or feeling that he had put Kay far, far out of mind. Out of his life, even. And it frightened her. Shivering, she thought, "as if Wake hadn't been good to present only a future! As if nothing but the future counted!

A cheerful deep voice brought her back from her momentary reverie, and she looked up into the smiling, dark face of Mike Durkash; Mike looking excited and almost absurdly triumphant. As if he had just solved some something thing that filled him with boundless, soaring delight and satisfaction.

"Hullo, there, Miss Graham! And Mr. Ballinger! I wasn't quite sure it was you, Maydra, after just encountering Sam rummaging through the best stock ever in the family!"

"How do you do, Mike? This is my usual lunching place ....only, of course, people don't know that!" Maydra said by the way of explaining. Conscious that Mike was doing some lively speculating, not at all forgetting the Ballinger legend either!

"And if course our number one millionaire goes slumming here among the wage-slaves, often ? seems to me I've seen that plutocrat-edged road of demon of yours parked out front before, Ballinger! And you up to your collaring your ventures!"

"Naturally," Maydra gasped, "I couldn't very well refuse anything like that but—you do you mean give up Wake Ballinger? I mean providing all of you are right in the assumption he will marry me usually be free to ....to ask me to marry him?"

Suzanne threw her hands over her head in wild, impenetrable abandon.

"Give up? Give up, you, publicity seeker?" she yelled. "Do you think I'm crazy?.....even if you are? I'm gambling, pretty one thing Maydra Graham. Gambling fifty percent of my hop on it! I'm gambling that the prestige, the advertising value alone, of having Miss Maydra Graver Ballinger for my partner in business will be worth, in dollars and cents, the .... to get it!"

Maydra was speechless. It was there again. And Wake had lost one of the "new" things he had hitherto termed adventurousness! His reputation had caught up with Maydra, as it had quite ruthlessly caught up.

"Now," Suzanne continuing more calmly, "there's Sam Locke to consider!"

"Oh, Sam!" Maydra shrugged faintly.

"You .....don't for a moment imagine he's going to take that over successfully, Maydra?" her aunt said tersely.

"I haven't accepted his ring yet, Suzanne. What can he do?" Maydra demanded.

"You had better be prepared for Sam, Gerry! Now how to be a considerable pressure, my dear; he's never had to learn that! And haven't had his growth!"

"Are you trying to —alarm me, Suzanne?" Maydra faltered.

"I'm not trying anything," Suzanne observed. "I'm telling you that Sam Locke is not a gentleman. That all the money from here to the Pacific can't buy him the qualities, either! He may wear the clothes and live in the right house, but he's still a barbarian."

"A millionaire barbarian, Suzanne!"

"Yes," conceded flatly, "quite right, Maydra! Several millionaires in fact!"

"Wake is meeting me for lunch," Maydra told her aunt, "and I'll tell him all this; he can manage anyone after, I hope you won't regret this, Suzanne!"

"A business mine, child, isn't built on relations!" Suzanne countered drily. "I never mix them. Don't worry about me. Concentrate on your own problems! They seem— fairly absorbing!"

Wake was a trifle more difficult than Maydra had anticipated. Apparently he had had no little engagement regarding the various angles of the campaign shop, and he would not relinquish it as casually as she had expected.

"It's no good reason whatsoever, he argued stubbornly. "Your duties to love you because you're a strong-minded card, that's not the excuse for trying to blight your opportunities for a future as fine and as big as her own! It's a big world, Beautiful, and there's room at the top for more than one winner!"

Maydra's wide violet eyes were troubled. She had forgotten her lunch and coffee cold, and Wake had her roll nervously, with tense-cold fingers.

"I'm all she has Wake,' she reminded him, "and she's my only living relative, I can't very well hurt her. Not after all she has done for me!"

"She wouldn't be losing you, beautiful! College towns aren't the end of nowhere, you know! And think of it— you'd be independent, your own boss! You'd be free!"

"I'd have you to pay back, Wake!"

He grinned at her in warm, eager friendliness.

"I'm your friend, Maydra!" he objected gently.

Poems That Live

"DO I LOVE THEE"

Do I love thee? Ask the bee
Why she seeks the flowers
Where the honeysuckle blows
And the fragrant clover grows.
As she answers, Yes or No,
Darling! take my answer so.

Do I love thee? Ask the river
That goes to the sea forever,
If she loves the sky so fair,
And the sun with golden hair,
As she answers, Yes or No,
Darling! take my answer so.

Do I love thee? Ask the flower
If she loves the vernal shower,
Or the kisses of the sun,
If she loves the light of dawn,
As she answers, Yes or No,
Darling! take my answer so.

— John Godfrey Saxe.

Oily Hair Requires Attention

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME DAY we'll have air-conditioned halls and then the girl with oily hair will stop "fawling". Blanketing the head with a snug hat doesn't do the forlorn crown any good. There are women who wear them a large part of the day; they play bridge with them on, keep them on in movie theatres, dine and dance in end.

Heat is relaxing to the scalp; it weakens the tissues and causes sebaceous and sweat glands to overwork and send forth their fluids until the oily daffs are moist and shining. When the hair is oily, a cold rinsing should follow up the shampoo. It is not a bad plan to dip the fingertips in ice water and massage the scalp the night before the hair is "laundered".

Frictioning the scalp with cue de cologne is recommended. It is necessary to be fussy about the soap that is used for the shampoo; a change of soaps will often prove beneficial. One oil one said had an effect, too. Too much butter on the bread, rich pastries and sauces will cause skin and tresses to shine "like a good deed in a gaughty world".

If you' get your feet cold, your nose will "get sore" about it and there is no excuse for poor circulation.

Every morning before the bath raise your heels off the floor 40 times. Then stand on your toes. The foot necessary for this-exercise will stimulate the blood circulation, friction the feet with molistened salt. That's good, too.

Are your hands thin? Are they beginning to look old? Give them a little attention; they will be grateful once again.

Get some coco butter, apply it to the flesh after the hands have been washed in warm water and are glowing. Work it in well and forth from finger tips to wrists, massage your hands vigorous as if you were in a state of panic,—Use muscular effort. The purpose is to stimulate the blood and lymph streams skip around in a hurry.

Teach Child Value of Money

Best Way is to Allow Him to go Shopping With Small Amount

(By LISA GRENELLE)

Of course, Bobby's teacher had explained to him many times that there were so many quarters in a dollar, so many dimes, nickels, pennies. Bobby had repeated it after her, had even written it down on paper. But when it came to applying what he knew, that was something different.

Uncle Herbert gave Bobby a dollar to do some personal shopping. Bobby went off delighted and proud, but came home again on the verge of tears, the precious dollar still clutched in his fist.

"Back so soon? Well, what did you get?" Uncle Herbert asked cheerfully, failing to notice either the fist or the expression.

"Nothing."

"Couldn't you find anything you liked?"

"Yes, I did. I found just what I wanted. One of those pencils you don't ever have to sharpen, but just screw. But somebody else had probably bought it. And there were only five cents left."

"Why didn't you get it, Bob? Not enough money?"

"Sure I had enough money! It was only 75 cents. And 75 cents is less than a dollar; I know that much. But she said I had to pay two pennies tax, besides—and I didn't have any pennies."

"Why didn't you tell her the dollar and let her take the tax out of the change?"

"She said I had to pay two cents tax", Bob repeated, "and I didn't have any pennies. I'll give you just the dollar."

Uncle Herbert tried again. But Bobby still looked puzzled, and asked Uncle Herbert if he didn't have two pennies he could lend him. Bobby seemed so confused at this point that he was ready to give Uncle Herbert the dollar for the two pennies.

Uncle Herbert reached in his pocket for the two pennies that would solve all the difficulty. But he stopped just in time, realizing that if he gave Bob the two pennies, it would not solve the difficulty. Bob would learn nothing.

Learned Lesson

Uncle Herbert told Bob he had two pennies, but to go back with the dollar and tell the salesgirl to take the tax out of the change.

Bob was reluctant and unbelieving, but he wanted the pencil and finally departed. Shortly he came back in triumph with the pencil. Then he and Uncle Herbert went over the change, and Bob learned that penny taxes didn't have to be paid in actual pennies.

Was Bob a dull lad? Not at all. He simply had had no practical experience in shopping and handling change.

As early as possible, it seems to me, children should be given small amounts of money to buy things with. Take them shopping with you occasionally and let them do some of the buying—always insisting they count the change and learn how to tell whether the amount is correct.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

"You make it very difficult Suzanne, but I do feel that this is very effective for one not good business sense that's motivating this!"

"Dam Locke plans to marry you child; not just set you up in business with a nice little by-game shop to play with!" Suzanne reminded her absently.

"You'll still be my friend this way, Wake!" she reminded him.

"Always," he observed slowly, "yes, of course, Beautiful! I wasn't quite after that! No matter what you did, you'd still be you, what you were, we'd have that much!"

Maydra had a blank, startled instant or feeling that he had put Kay far, far out of mind. Out of his life, even. And it frightened her. Shivering, she thought, "as if Wake hadn't been good to present only a future! As if nothing but the future counted!

A cheerful deep voice brought her back from her momentary reverie, and she looked up into the smiling, dark face of Mike Durkash; Mike looking excited and almost absurdly triumphant. As if he had just solved some something thing that filled him with boundless, soaring delight and satisfaction.

"Hullo, there, Miss Graham! And Mr. Ballinger! I wasn't quite sure it was you, Maydra, after just encountering Sam rummaging through the best stock ever in the family!"

"How do you do, Mike? This is my usual lunching place ....only, of course, people don't know that!" Maydra said by the way of explaining. Conscious that Mike was doing some lively speculating, not at all forgetting the Ballinger legend either!

"And if course our number one millionaire goes slumming here among the wage-slaves, often ? seems to me I've seen that plutocrat-edged road of demon of yours parked out front before, Ballinger! And you up to your collaring your ventures!"

"Naturally," Maydra gasped, "I couldn't very well refuse anything like that but—you do you mean give up Wake Ballinger? I mean providing all of you are right in the assumption he will marry me usually be free to ....to ask me to marry him?"

Suzanne threw her hands over her head in wild, impenetrable abandon.

"Give up? Give up, you, publicity seeker?" she yelled. "Do you think I'm crazy?.....even if you are? I'm gambling, pretty one thing Maydra Graham. Gambling fifty percent of my hop on it! I'm gambling that the prestige, the advertising value alone, of having Miss Maydra Graver Ballinger for my partner in business will be worth, in dollars and cents, the .... to get it!"

Maydra was speechless. It was there again. And Wake had lost one of the "new" things he had hitherto termed adventurousness! His reputation had caught up with Maydra, as it had quite ruthlessly caught up.

"Now," Suzanne continuing more calmly, "there's Sam Locke to consider!"

"Oh, Sam!" Maydra shrugged faintly.

"You .....don't for a moment imagine he's going to take that over successfully, Maydra?" her aunt said tersely.

"I haven't accepted his ring yet, Suzanne. What can he do?" Maydra demanded.

"You had better be prepared for Sam, Gerry! Now how to be a considerable pressure, my dear; he's never had to learn that! And haven't had his growth!"

"Are you trying to —alarm me, Suzanne?" Maydra faltered.

"I'm not trying anything," Suzanne observed. "I'm telling you that Sam Locke is not a gentleman. That all the money from here to the Pacific can't buy him the qualities, either! He may wear the clothes and live in the right house, but he's still a barbarian."

"I'm your friend, Maydra!" he objected gently.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

ALIMONY FOR HUSBANDS — WILL IT HELP CURB RUNAWAY MARRIAGES?

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Giddy young things who explain their marriages by saying they're "willing to try anything once" may stop and consider the Middleton bill introduced into the New York Legislature a few days ago.

This bill, which claims to have 50,000 backers, among them Mrs. Samuel Gompers, widow of the late labor leader, who is its third vice-president, is intended "to bring a sense of responsibility to wives" who enter into marriage in the same spirit as a prospector goes out to look for a gold mine, and hope to live on alimony happily ever after.

Tax Alexander Dallek, president of the National Divorce Reform League, ha the organization sponsoring the bill is called, is a chiropodist by profession. He thinks few men would demand alimony, they are still far too chivalrous. He neglected to mention as a deterrent to their fear of what the comic cartoonist will do, but he does think fewer young ladies will be married in haste dare when they consider the possibility of being waiting for them round the corner.

With the Alimony-for-men bill two other bills equally fearsome to women were introduced at the same time, one to abolish alimony for childless marriages of less than three years, the other to force premarital public hearings when alimony allowances are made.

"In almost all alimony decisions" Dr. Dallek said, "the benefit of the doubt is given to the woman." Attorneys such as the man's income are submitted by both sides, the Judge decides on temporary alimony and the final decision may not come up for a year or more.

A good many women who consider alimony a racket, especially when there are children to be considered and the divorcing wife is young and healthy, have helped to roll up the membership to 50,000. "Ridiculous", they say, that a woman should live off a man all her life because she's been married to him for a few months or a year or two. Also, a good many women members are wives of previously divorced husbands who have to help them and save to pay alimony to first wives.

Self-supporting girls would hardly be asked to pay alimony to husbands employed, or unemployed. But the ladies who would do well to consider the Middleton Bill are those rich elderly sisters who hired gigolos and then married them.

The sleek-haired boys would, in all likelihood, advance some argument to the effect that they were trained to take highly profitable jobs when some Mrs. Whosis begged them not to, and said "Will you be mine" as a means to that end. And male youngsters may get away with the girls have been doing for years.

The beginning of the league — and if you're old enough you may remember the shouts of ridicule it aroused when started ten years ago in the old Ludlow Street jail by three Alimony Hideouts who objected jail to paying money to wives they felt could look out for themselves. Women now having the vote, men in the legislature regard the bill as dynamite.

GOOD MANNERS

WIFE'S SIGNATURE

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should a married woman call herself "Mrs. John Jones" or "Jane Jones" when she is asked from the other end of the wire "Who is speaking, please?"

2. When sending Christmas cards or any other kind of greeting cards, not printed, should she write from "Mr. and Mrs. So and So" "Mary and John So and So?"

My argument is that socially and in business she is Mrs. John Jones but I should like to be sure before another Christmas rolls around.

Ivy.

1. If the woman does not know who is calling her on the telephone, she would use her formal name "This is Mrs. Jones."

2. Whether we sign our Christmas cards "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones", "Mary and John Jones" or "Mary and John" depends on the degree of formality we wish to establish in our signature.'

As in all phases of social life there is a definite leaning now to the informal, and so usually greeting cards are signed with the first names. This gives the card more of the feeling of a note, which is customarily what we wish to indicate.

However, you mention "in business", and there you might find it more appropriate to sign the cards with the formal name. But if you use the formal name — Mr. and Mrs. John Jones — you would not write a message on the cards, for if you write a message, the card then does become a note.

When you sign your cards it is easy to distinguish between those you send to people whom you know very casually, such as perhaps business contacts of a not very personal nature, and those you send to people whom you know very well, when the first name signature would obviously be appropriate.

The form of the message on the Christmas card should also influence the form of your signature. Friends when we want to send all our cards with the formal Mr. and Mrs. name, we have the cards engraved and worded entirely in the third person. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Jones

wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

One more thing: there is an increasing fashion (you probably noticed it on the cards you received this past Christmas) of using the form "Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Browns". This has such a friendly, chatty feeling that it is no wonder that it has been so increasingly popular.

Wedding Invitation List

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a member of a club, and I would like to know if I should send one invitation to my church wedding to the president of the club to which I belong, marked for "all the members," or should I send a separate invitation to each club member?

2. Is it necessary to send invitations to guests of the wedding party, such as the best man, ushers, and so forth?

Betty.

1. If you can possibly budget your invitations so that you can send a separate one to each member of the club, I do hope that you will plan to do this. All of us like to have a personal invitation, rather than to be included in a blanket invitation to "members". And an invitation to a wedding should, if possible, be individual.

2. Yes. Invitations should be sent to the members of the wedding party.

Correct Posture Aid to Charm

(By Helen Follett)

Place a finger on the centre of your chest; move it downward slowly until you reach the place where the ribs separate. Teachers of physical education call this spot the "vital centre" because it is close to the heart. If this portion of your anatomy is held forward when you walk, you will not have to give a thought to posture. Posture will take care of itself.

When the lower portion of the chest protrudes it is impossible for the shoulders to fall forward. The long box stays up, the back takes on that inward nip at the waistline which gives a pretty curve and contributes to the muscles of the abdomen and hips. Keep in mind the vital centre and keep the vital centre where it should be.

Correct posture is insurance against a figure that lacks grace of movement. It gives a woman an "air" makes her appear distinguished adds to the charm of her apparel. Why more women don't enroll in physical education is impossible for anyone to guess. A lovely shape is as important as a beautiful face and it can be cultivated by any woman who is willing to spend time learning how to walk, sit and stand properly.

Eye lashes come and go, but if conditions are normal a new winker will takes the place of the one that has gone on its resting place.

If the little fringes are getting thin, apply hot water, then cold, and rub mineral oil into the roots of the silky fringers.

Space your permanent waves. Don't have them too close. Hair shafts must have plenty of time to relax before they are spiraled again by the gentle steamer.

It is advisable to apply olive or mineral oil freely for two weeks before the wave. The hair won't come out dry and crisp from the ordeal but will be soft, silky and in normal condition.

Muscles must be kept flexible if the body is to retain the appearance of youth. If movements are to be easy and graceful.

One way of keeping muscles fit is to stretch, to reach the body as the waist, to do high kicking, to lie on the back and pedal.

Cushion sitters and girls who never walk when they can jump in a motor car and ride are the ones who acquire the meal-bag figure later on. It is persistent neglect of the musculatory system; it has much to do with health, everything to do with the trim silhouette.

Put a bit of perfume on fur and it will spoil them for ever. It also clings to woollen fabrics like a friend and a brother.

After the bath, spray the chest neck and arms with your favorite scent. The warmth of the flesh will cause the alcohol in the perfume to evaporate; the finest odors will be fresh and delightful.

A handful of salt in the rinsing water will prevent blues from streaking clothes in freezing weather.

"Page Boy Haircut on Way Out, So What Will Your Next Choice of Coiffure Be?

By JULIET SHELBY—
Central Press Writer on Beauty.

THE PAGE BOY haircut is on the way out. This is the decision of the millinery designers and the coiffure creators who recently gathered together in solemn conclave. The delightfully feminine and amusing spring hats just had to go together in some manner with the gay ringlets that they were made to set off and protect.

So we mere women will not have to rack our brains any more about what to do with the long expense of straight hair that showed between the little chapeau and the neckline curls. It did look pretty incongruous. Now the hairdressers have come to our rescue with lots of brand new ideas that are fascinating and will set off a jaunty new bonnet like a dream.

Don't Sacrifice Looks

Around spring a little fancy usually turns to changing her hair styling, and this year we have a really good reason for doing so. When you decide to change, bear in mind the new hat. Of course the hairdressers are of one mind about brushing the hair up. They think the long hair cuts are definitely dated, and they are slaked with that thought.

But don't sacrifice your looks to be chic. Try out lots of different brushings until you hit on something that seems to be completely your baby. We'll start with the most extreme and work down. Brush your hair up all around, and curl the top hair in big jelly roll curls, or have it done in flat coils. Have an excellent hair cut to start with, and it has to be fairly long to work out this style.

One of the upward sweep adoptions that is also more on the practical side is: Have the hair about two and a half inches long in back, and brush it straight up against the head. The curls again must be soft. Combing it ever so often keeps the hair in place, and it will look well under any hat that you'll be likely to see this season. It is parted on the side, with the side curls brushed up to meet the back ones. A soft loose coil for the top hair is all that is necessary there.

If you've got fairly short locks, this is a clever arrangement. Brush the hair straight across the back of the head, having it end in flat curls. Then from it curled in a pompadour, and bangs are a matter of taste.

Of course with these coiffes it's almost a necessity to have a permanent, and the hair shouldn't be cut so short in back that it can't be trained into smooth rolls. Then you will be amazed to find how well it will stay. If you brush and train it with a little lotion or brilliantine.

With a new hair setup and a new hat there'll be no stopping you, and boy friend or husband won't be a chance to say how silly the new topper is. It will blend perfectly with the new hair comb.

KEEPING SCISSORS SHARP

A housewife gives a tip to others for keeping scissors sharp.

When scissors get dull draw them back and forth across the neck of an old glass bottle. Cutting sandpaper will do the trick, too, if you happen to have sandpaper handy.

Tot Won't "Stay Put" In Chair

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

QUESTION: You often advise parents to assign the young child having done something naughty to sit for about 30 minutes in a chair doing nothing. I tried that with my two-year old girl, but she wouldn't stay there unless I held or tied her.

ANSWER: You had not prepared your little daughter to profit from such punishment. No sense in holding there or tying her. If you must hold her she sees how much trouble you must go to. If you tie her she will keep struggling to get loose. In either event it is a slow, drawn out torture to which she hardly will surrender, and you arouse a spirit of revenge in her, who considers you a kind of bully.

Before she is ready for such punishment she must have learned to respect authority. She must know that her attempt to leave the chair without permission will be met with immediate pain. But she hardly has learned this if she has not learned that NO has pain back of it.

Pick out one thing she must never do. Make very quick to her that she must not. Then be sure to be on hand every time she has an opportunity to do this thing so she can never do it without getting an immediate spanking that really hurts. This settled permanently, teach NO in relation to another specific forbidding. As soon as she has unambiguous respect for your authority she is ready to profit by chair sitting punishment. Then she will know that she must not risk getting out of the chair until the time is up.

Punishment Didn't Work

Q.—I tried your plan of assigning my four-year-old lad to sit in a chair for punishment. It did not work. He said: "That's just what I wanted to do." After a few minutes he had me so angry that I let him get down.

A.—Sorry you were so easily defeated. Didn't you know that your lad was outwitting you? Suppose you had said nothing and had shown no feeling and had let him serve the sentence? The next time he hardly would have made this response. He certainly would not after several such experiences. It is annoying how easily some children can outmaneuver their parents and manage them. Anyway, we must give these children credit for their cleverness.

Q.—Would you spank a baby to train him to keep dry or "clean"?

A.—No. A spank, to be effective, must undoubtedly follow the act to be avoided, and then there must be no exceptions. These principles cannot be followed in respect to training in toilet habits. Indeed it is a good rule to try to avoid all punishment and disapproval in connection with elimination by the child.

LONGER LIFE FOR INDOOR PLANTS

The secret of keeping azaleas, cinerarias and primulas in the house is to be sure the plants never get dry, but never to soak them. Often splendid specimens are lost within a week of the time they come into the house, whereas if understanding care is given they should last for six times that number of weeks.

Secure them at the florist's when the buds first begin to open, and never let the earth in the pot get to the least bit dry; forgetting once will probably cost all the blossoms for that year. It makes no difference what the method of applying water and keeping moisture in—a jardiniere, a wide pot or a deep immersion—the secret for success lies in never allowing that fatal dry twenty-four hours to occur, as then these plants rarely are able to make a comeback from one day of neglect.—From House Beautiful.

Flowers Spell Romance to Her --Your Valentine

No Sonnet, No Love Lyric Can Equal Blossoms to Express Devotion of Husband or Lover

By MRS. BERT SCHILLER McDONALD

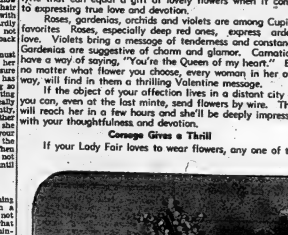
Central Press Flower Stylist

THERE ISN'T a woman in the world, no matter how old or how young, who doesn't want to be remembered on St. Valentine's Day. Although women may be emancipated, may have the vote and careers, they still have a primitive yearning for romance—and to be neglected on this day of "Hearts and Flowers" is to know bitter disappointment.

So husbands and lovers, on St. Valentine's Day, let romance reign. But, bear in mind, there's no sonnet, no love lyric that can equal a gift of lovely flowers when it comes to expressing true love and devotion.

Roses, gardenias, orchids and violets are among Cupid's favorites. Roses, especially deep red ones, express ardent love. Violets bring a message of tenderness and constancy. Gardenias are suggestive of charm and glamor. Carnations have a way of saying, "You're the Queen of my heart." But no matter what flower you choose, every woman in her own way, will find in them a thrilling Valentine message.

If the object of your affection lives in a distant city — you can, even at the last minute, send flowers by wire. They will reach her in a few hours and she'll be deeply impressed with your thoughtfulness and devotion.



Corsage Gives a Thrill

Valentine corsages shown here will bring a thrill of delight. There's a heart-shaped cluster of violets centred by one red, red rose. Two hearts entwined (made of wired red chenille) give an added romantic touch. Next, is a charming corsage reminiscent of the old-fashioned Valentine. Appropriately, tiny Sweetheart roses are arranged to form a heart, while sprays of lily of the valley add a lacy touch. A pert bow of Alice blue completes the effect. The central bouquet is of regal cattleya orchids in shades of mauve and purple and is tied with a rich purple ribbon. Then comes the sophisticated cypripedium orchids of chartreuse yellow combined with their own foliage. Here a cupid pin provides a Valentine touch. Finally there's a heart-shaped cluster of red, red carnations edged with lacy ferns and finished with a tiny bow of gold ribbon.

Maybe she would like a heart-shaped box of candy with a corsage of gardenias, such as lovely Florence George is holding. "Sweets to the sweet," sure enough.

MAN READY TO RISK MOTHER-IN-LAW WOES

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm considering marrying a young widow of my age, who has twins that are two and a half years old. The girl is very much of a mama's girl and while she was married the first time, spent the biggest part of the time at her mother's house. The mother-in-law and I get very much by the mother-in-law, and finally get filled up and pulled out.

In the beginning I poked fun about the girl. Later I started joking with her occasionally for lack of someone else to go with. At time went on I found myself feeling sorry for her or sympathizing with her. Finally I've been told that it is sympathy and not love.

"My folks have no use for the girl and tell me I'm stepping into "hot water." Somehow I don't feel I can stand the mother-in-law situation. I'm not very fond of children. Do you feel that I know my own mind?

"UNDECIDED."

You have found that "pity is akin to love," haven't you, Undecided? I wonder if your sympathy will continue after you have married the girl. Will you expect her still to run home to mother when things go awry in your household—as they will sometimes, no matter how happy you are with her?

The real point of the matter is —is this young person enough of a woman to stand on her own feet and be a good sport? She evidently didn't show herself such when living with her first husband. It is very commendable for a woman to love her mother devotedly and show it, and even to seek her advice when her own experience fails in certain emergencies. But if she has from childhood been used to running to mother in all crises, mother protected from her woes, whether she is to blame for bringing them on herself or not—then, my boy, you are not going to be very long in this marriage.

She evidently has played upon your sympathy, and has made you feel you must protect the poor little thing from a cruel world. That is fine, but there will be times when always are—when you will want to rely on her to give you courage, and there will be times when she is definitely in the wrong. What is she going to do then? Can you control the mother-in-law's angle when she takes her daughter's part against you and you feel you're unjustly used?

That is the thing you have to consider. If you feel you are "man enough to go into this marriage and make a success of it under these circumstances—that is the true situation, and the other man evidently found it was, at least in his case—why go ahead, and good luck attend you!

KAY is in love and the boy says he loves her. She is very jealous of him, however, and that causes arguments. Both are in school. Jim went on if found herself feeling sorry for her or sympathizing with her. Finally I've been told that it is sympathy and not love.

THERE IS something definitely different about the 1938 spring suits.

What I mean is—well, look at Helen Vinson, one of Hollywood's smartest dressers. She is wearing a three-piece suit at the Santa Anita race track.

It is made of imported wool. The dark brown jacket is tailored, its severity relieved by the red flower in the lapel and white sports handkerchief in the pocket.

The skirt, with an inverted kick pleat in front, is of diagonal weave in brown and white. And the topcoat carried over her arm is a brown an dtan check.

First Tumor Removed Year of Lincoln's Birth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

ON LINCOLN'S birthday it used to be customary for the papers to revive John McCutcheon's cartoon in which he shows an imaginary scene in the backwoods of Kentucky on February 12, 1809. Two miserable natives of the hill-billy type have met to exchange news. One says nothing important ever happens around there; the only bit of news is that there is a new boy baby over at Tom Lincoln's.

It is a clever cartoon but in some respects it gives a wrong impression. There were many very important things occurring in that part of the world, some epoch-making events in the progress of medical science, and a great civilization was being built up in that blue grass region of Kentucky.

In that same year of 1809 in Danville, Ky., not far from Lincoln's birthplace, Dr. Ephraim McDowell did the first successful operation for the relief of an ovarian cyst. His life has recently been sketched in that most interesting book, "Doctors on Horseback," by James Thomas Flexner.

The house where Dr. McDowell performed this operation is still standing; indeed, is in process of restitution, so that by the end of the year it is hoped it will look exactly as it did when the notable event took place. The funds (besides P.W.A.) to restore this historic building were raised largely from the medical profession thru the work of Dr. Irvin Abell, of Louisville, presidents this year of the American Medical Association.

The brave woman who submitted to this operation was Jane Todd Crawford, who rode on horseback across the mountains to Danville with the enormous tumor resting on the pommel of her saddle. She was fully aware of the experimental and dangerous character of the operation, but consented fully to its performance.

No Anaesthetic Used

In the little office, on a rude table, with instruments which had to be derived without any previous model, how to guide the surgeon, without anaesthetic of any kind before the days of aseptic surgery, these two courageous pioneers — doctor and patient—brought to a successful conclusion an undertaking, the news of which went out from the backwoods community and was heard around the world.

If you ask how the patient ever endured the pain, and why there was no infection or peritonitis, we can only say that courageous today ask themselves the same question.

Not far from Danville, at Harrodstown, Dr. Walley Brashear, in 1806, did the first successful hip joint amputation. And at Lexington, the first medical school west of the Alleghanies was founded.

There is one point on which McCutcheon's cartoon needs some explanation. Perhaps it was true that Lincoln's family and friends were ignorant and crude. But the men who founded the great Kentucky medical traditions were not border ruffians; they were highly educated, courtly gentlemen, the best of the professions of that day. They cultivated the amenities and they still cultivate them: if you don't believe it, go to Kentucky and find out for yourself.

Three-Piece Suit Seen At Races

Never Neglect Eyesight

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

BETTE DAVIS

Guards her eyes constantly against bleach is made by combining equal portions of peroxide and lemon juice. Put in on at night with a bit of cotton.

When the hands are chapped so that the epidermis is sensitive, substitute corn meal for soap. It will get them beautifully clean and the starchy content will prove soothing.

Survey shows that seven women among ten suffer from defective vision. Only three of the seven wear glasses. The other four, because they fancy that glasses make them look older or because they practice the wrong kind of economy, get along as best they can. For the latter, reading and sewing are a strain on the optic mechanism. Their movements are sometimes uncertain and that retracts from poise and gracefulness.

A horrid trait of beauty grieft follows eyestrain. Surrounding lineas soften, take on fine lines. The nervous system protests. There is a feeling of irritation. Sties may appear and nothing makes a face look as "seedy" as a swollen red point on the eyelid.

Men who know say there is a close bond between the eyes and the brain, that one whose vision is poor isn't as able to concentrate as the one whose orbs function normally. The judgment isn't as good.

Typists and desk workers use their eyes to the limit of their strength all day long. Once a year they should have an examination. Find out if soul windows need help.

Dandruff appears on dry and oily scalps. It is caused by a fungus growth, not unlike yeast. The best way to combat it is to brush the hair vigorously, apply hot mineral oil to the scalp, let it stay on all night, and shampoo hair next day with melted soap.

How do you look when you mourn, elate? Or don't you know?

Hold the body erect and tall; don't bend. Place the hands on the hips, fingers forward, thumbs back. Go from step to step on heels and toes. Practice different exercise to limber the joints and make one graceful.

Heavy housework will cause the hands to become discolored; then they need a bleaching treatment. Put in a few drops of simple tincture of benzoin to the cleaning water after using soap, hands will soon show a white surface. A good ing.

Chicago Black Hawks Put Selves in Better Position

(By A. E. Pulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The bottom is dropping swiftly out of the market for Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wing Stanley Cup futures. After a disastrous week-end for the teams that have shared world championship honors for two seasons they're selling at a new seasonal low today.

New York Rangers, in two swift thrusts, dealt Maroon prospects body blows from which they are unlikely to recover. Detroit's chances were hurt, not so much by their own failure to do better than tie New York Americans, to a 2-2 tie, but by Chicago Black Hawks' rather startling performance in a series with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lester Patrick's Rangers passed to a 3-2 win over Maroons in Montreal Saturday night and repeated the performance in New York by 4-1. The four points brought them within half a game of Boston Bruins, leaders of the National League's American Division, who defeated Montreal Canadiens 1-0 with an overtime goal last night.

Hawks Strengthen Hold

Chicago strengthened their hold on third position in the American Division by defeating Leafs 2-1 in Toronto Saturday night and then holding them to a 1-1 tie in Chicago last night. The Saturday win was remarkable because Hawks had only 13 men in uniform while Leafs were at full strength, except for the injured Burn Boll.

Earl Seibert scored the winning goal in that game halfway through the third period and Red Horner had tied it in the second. While Toronto had an edge in play Hawks were quick to seize opportunities.

The Sunday game in Chicago was featured by a free-for-all in the first period. Defencemen Earl Seibert of Hawks and Murphy Chamberlain of Leafs, two Rookies, started the scrap and Bill MacKenzie of Hawks and Reg Hamilton of Toronto joined in punches before the officials broke it up with four major penalties.

Apps Ties Records

Thompson again scored in the first period and Syl Apps tied it for Toronto in the second with a goal that tied him with Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers as runner-up to Gordon Drillon of Leafs for League point-scoring honors. Both have 56 points to Drillon's 39.

Rangers' passing game was at its peak as they defeated the slowed Maroons in Montreal Saturday. Lynn Patrick, Neil Colville and Bobby Kirk, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall scored for them in the second, the period in which Maroons got their three goals through Dave Trottier, Gus Marker and Bob Gracie. Art Coulter of Rangers got a match misconduct penalty in the second for talking back to the officials.

Dave Kerr was only 21 seconds from his ninth shutout of the season in the return game at New York last night. Art Robinson robbed him of the perfect game in the last minute after Earl and Dillon each had scored two goals in the same period. Rangers' nearest miss in the session after being held scoreless for two periods.

Penalty Goal Win

The American-Red Wings game at Detroit was dull with only a little action in the second period. Lorne Carr gave the New Yorkers a lead then but goals by Carl Liscombe and Syd Howe wiped out the advantage and the teams battled evenly until Johnny Gallagher's shot mid-way through the third found a spot behind Earl Robertson.

A lucky goal in overtime gave Bruins their win over Canadiens. Wilf Cude had tended goal brilliantly for Canadiens but Art Jackson got the winner when Leroy Goldsworthy's shot glanced into net off the skate of Red Goupille of Canadiens. The shot came from behind the net and Cude had no chance to save.

CORNWALL FLYERS TIE GOODYEARS

Tiremen Had to Come From Behind to Secure Draw

By The Canadian Press

Showing of Toronto Goodyears against Cornwall Flyers of the Ottawa Senior City League Saturday night provided followers of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior 'A' group with food for thought today. Goodyears, masters of what is considered the strongest OHA group, had to come from behind to secure a 3-3 draw with the Ottawa League team in a week-end exhibition encounter.

The game was considered an indication of the opposition the O.H.A. champions will have to face, when the Allan Cup playdowns get under way.

Playoffs in the O.H.A. senior group are expected to start this week. Tentative date for the first game is between Port Colborne Sailors, in second place, and Oshawa Generals, third place, for the right to meet Goodyears in Feb. 28. Last league game with the playoff Tuesday night between Port Colborne and Brantford Rangers.

Cornwall lost an early lead in the Cornwall game. Bill Jennings had put the Flyers in front with a goal in the first period, but Dick Proulx tied the count for Cornwall in the second session. Cornwall Island put the Flyers one up early in the next period, but Bill Cook, former junior "A" group's leading scorer, tied it up for Goodyears a few minutes later and the remainder of the game, including an overtime session, went scoreless.

COOK BROTHERS SMART COACHES

(By The Canadian Press)

Lester Patrick, known to the hockey world as "Mr. Hockey" Fox, evident imparted more than a passing bit of his knowledge to Bill and Bun Cook, the brothers who played with New York Rangers for years.

For under the expert tutelage of Manton Lester, the Cook boys laid the foundation of coaching ability that finds them now leading two of the "hottest" teams in the International-American Hockey League.

At the start of this season, after quitting National League battling at the end of 1936-37 season, Bill took over the reins with Cleveland Barons, while Bun was made Manager of Providence Reds.

● Pats Lead For Record

Barons, who picked up three points in two week-end games, now have a nine-point lead in the Western Section of the league, while Reds, who won their only week-end engagement, are one point out of fifth place in the Eastern Division headed by Philadelphia Ramblers. Just to keep the British touch in there, it might be mentioned that Rambler stars are fans players for Patrick's Rangers.

Home Record Intact

Barons kept their great home record intact Saturday by defeating Philadelphia 3-1. It was with the 16th straight game Barons had gone undefeated at Cleveland where they have yet to be beaten this year. They tied 3-3 Sunday with New Haven Eagles in an away game.

Reds whipped Springfield Indians 5-3 Sunday, after Indians had already defeated Reds 4-1 Saturday and losing to Ramblers 5-3 in a Sunday contest.

Field Stars Predominate In Canadian Victories at Games

Eight Titles With Six Records Attached Share of Laurels

LOARING A STAR

Sydney, Feb. 14.—(CP-Reuters)—Canada today laid away eight track and field championships—six with records attached—as her share of honors in the British Empire games which concluded here Saturday.

It was the best showing the Maple Leaf has made in the eight-year history of the games. At the first meet in 1930 at Hamilton, Ont., Canada's male athletes collected six Empire titles, two of which carried records. In 1934, at London, Canada took five titles, with records.

Field stars predominated in the Canadian victories at the games here.

Eric Gar of Winnipeg heaved the discus 136 feet, 10 1-8 inches for a new Empire mark; Harold Brown, lanky lumberjack from Sherbrooke, Meaford, Ont., surprised everyone by doing 24 feet, 6 inches in the broad jump for another Empire mark; George Sutherland of Fort Whyte, Alta., broke the hammer throw with a 159 feet 9 7-8 inch record-breaking effort and Winnipeg's Robina Higgin a heaved the javelin 128 feet, 7 1-2 inches for another Empire mark and the only Canadian feminine field victory.

Leafing Leaved Mark

Another Empire mark fell as sparky John Loaring of London, Ont., opened the Maple Leaf bid by doing 52.8 in the 440-yard hurdles on the opening day of the games February 5. The sixth record came when Canada's relay team negotiated the 440-yard distance in 41.6 seconds.

Jimmy Courtright of Kingston, Ont., did 306 feet, 3-4 inches to win the javelin event and the Maple Leaf mile relay team registered a victory in 3:18.3 for the other Empire championships. Both however failed to touch previous records for the events.

Harold Brown's victory in the broad jump brought that Empire title to Canada for the third straight time since Len Hutton first won it at Hamilton with a leap of 23 feet 9 1-2 inches. Sam Richardson captured the title in 1934 with 24 feet, 6 1-3 inches.

The men's javelin event came to Canada for the second time. Bob Dixon of Vancouver won with a jump of 196 feet, 6 inches in London four years ago.

All other championships wpo were new to Canada.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
—Ken J. Colling

When the Petes bowled over Flyers for the latter's first defeat of the year on Friday, the ultimate result placed Kingston Frontenacs in a significant position. The Petes and Aircmen are wrangling over second place and now the Airlock City aggregation have the upper hand, despite the fact both meet in the group finals. In order to elevate Kingston Aircmen to the Petes, the Lawrence-led Flyers must trounce the Redmen in the final round group game at the Arena tonight. True enough the Flyers have five victories over the Redmen this season, including two in the Ben Simpson Trophy series, but taken into consideration that four of those five games have been played on top of the ice and that the Redmen witnessed Friday night's rout and are keyed up to give their ancient flying enemies another dose of the same medicine tonight.

There has always been keen and bitter rivalry between the two local outfits, the Redmen having won the league title their final meeting of the current O.H.A. season. Merger has commanded the respect of the Redmen with the forced body-checking and smarting under the lash of Friday night's reverse, the Redmen-Flyers tilt tonight should be a thriller. Even the Flyers' keen-opposite outfit are saying little, but their actions indicate quite intimate they intend to take out their feelings on the Redmen. Probably nothing we expect to see the most bitter fought game at the Arena this season. Eddie Thomas and his pals still have visions of meeting the Petes in the semi-finals and more especially when it comes to a question of the Waterhams. A reverse over the Waterhamsters would prove rather drastic tonight and a matter of fact they can't afford to lose.

It is quite doubtful whether or not Bill Cook will return to the Flyers' line-up tonight. He was sadly missed on Friday, but undeniably did it ever occur to our readers that Peterboro hasn't lost a game in the Senior "A" series this season and as a matter of fact hasn't been scored on in the local palace in two years? Aside from that the Petes have scored no less than 20 goals against the Flyers' tight lock in Peterboro this season, although the Belleville tilts score prominence on their own ice. This lad Doug Brennan has had considerable difficulty in the Peterboro playing at that. He uses his body for a battering ram than merely placing his bat upon.

We understand from Frank Packford and Harry Weir, that a new artificial ice arena is to be erected in Peterboro before another hockey season rolls around. With Packford and Weir behind it, Gilchrest boosting of artificial ice, it naturally follows the local arena will be returned to the local arena post-haste.

Lees and Wilf Williams, well known Belleville hockeyists, related in rather exciting hunt across Muscote Bay, when they skimmed over the ice. Wilf, at the wheel, put on all speed, but traction was bad and when the forces made a sharp turn either way the truck would spin and avoid sideways. Lees only had five shells in his gun but managed to pick off one of the ducks in the rough passage over the ice, but the second animal was hurrying forward to make the most apparent safety. Wilf headed the truck straight towards the fleeting duck while Lees grabbed a tire iron, when close enough to knock the duck on the ice, of course the fox could not get a solid footing and before long Lees had swung up to his quarry afoot and dealt the fox the finishing blow over the head, proving slow and sure wins the race, or was it the fox forgot to run?

Remember way back when skating was generally pretty good at this time of the year and we played hockey—on—the—ice with a block of wood as a puck, and it stung when it hit you.

The recent organizing of a Belleville Juvenile Hockey Club fills a long-desired need in this city's hockey circles. The members of the "Hi-Speeds" as the local juveniles have been known for a fall accord with the efforts of Mrs. Hill's League and those assisting that group whenever possible in the matter of referees, coaches and wherever assistance. The advantages of one city juvenile team, however, will give Coach Holway an opportunity to mould together a team of kids under 18 years of age and they will not only hold practices, but exhibition games are being arranged now to those entering into the provincial Juvenile playdowns. Another year it is hoped that Belleville will have two Junior O.H.A. teams in operation. In all probability with two junior squads functioning in Belleville a better and more constant group will be afforded the junior pockchiefs. In the meantime it should be the boundless duty of everyhockey-loving fan in the city to support Belleville boys playing hockey for the old home town.

'Tis sad Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, plans to carry nine pitchers this year, and six of the places are already assigned. Newark recruits are favored for the three open jobs.

"CORRECT CLOTHING FOR MEN"

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers hopped two points nearer the Nation's Hockey League's top point-maker, Gordon Drillon of Toronto, when he scored two goals and added in another as Rangers handed Maroons two weekend beatings, 5-3 and 4-1. Dillon had to be content with a single assist in a 2-1 defeat and a 1-1 tie against Chicago, while Syl Apps of Toronto tied Dillon for second place with 34 points, five less than Drillon's total, with a goal and an assist. Paul Thompson of Chicago and Clint Smith of Rangers entered a last-place tie in the Big Seven with two goals and a goal and an assist respectively.

It was with profound regret and shock we heard of the untimely death of W. J. "Billie" Hume, who died suddenly in Rome, Italy, yesterday. Although Mr. Hume was never one to seek undue publicity, he would be keenly felt by all who did know him. The late Mr. Hume could truly be said to be a self-made man. He rose from the ranks and never forgot he was once 'one of the boys'. Incidentally we know Mr. Hume was entertaining plans to return the artificial ice to the Belleville Big Seven with two goals and a goal and an assist respectively.

As no change from the present course of Dr. Cristea was foreseen, spreading reports of the impending reorganization caused no nervousness.

Goga Has Heart Attack

The anti-semitic former Premier whose government was dissolved last week by King Carol to make way for the Cristea regime, departed with his wife for Switzerland for treatment of heart and circulatory ailments. Goga suffered a heart attack Saturday. After spending some time in Switzerland, he plans to rest at the French or Italian Riviera.

It was learned that a commission is planning a new constitution to replace the one suspended by King Carol. It is understood to be studying various proposals for limitation of the right to vote and hold office.

Whether he is rich or poor, highly placed or humble, everyone seeks news.

The desire to know what is happening in the world is strong and instinctive; the need to satisfy this natural curiosity urgent and persistent.

Before newspapers were available, few enjoyed the privilege of regular dependable news of events, ideas or achievements . . . men, manners or markets . . . beyond the restricted boundaries of their own communities. The settlers journeyed weary miles to maintain the necessary contacts with affairs and friends. Roads were few and primitive. Travel was difficult. Mails were infrequent and means of communication slow. In winter the "snowshoe express" took weeks to travel from Montreal to Niagara. Foreign news was scarce.

Today all the news from far and near is brought to every Canadian, quickly and completely, by his daily newspaper. No matter what his interests or occupation may be, it serves his needs. Day after day it provides up-to-date information which influences his opinions, plans and purchases. There is no phase of community or national life it does not touch; the aspirations and accomplishments of the world at work, and at play, are recorded in picture and story on its pages.

Unfailing performance of this service to the individual has made the daily newspaper indispensable to more than two million Canadian families and a constructive force in every community.

Obituary

MRS. LOUISA SYMINGTON

MRS. EMILY YOUNG

Mrs. Louisa Symington, probably the oldest resident of the city of Belleville, passed away at an early hour yesterday morning at the family residence, 10 Alexander St., after a brief illness from pneumonia. She had reached the remarkable age of 96 years.

Another Mrs. Emily Young, widow of the late Rev. Chas. Young, passed away only ten days previously, after a decade of partial-ysis. Mrs. Young was 90 years of age.

Mrs. Symington and Mrs. Young were daughters of Rev. Smith and were born at Smithfield, Ontario. The village received its name in honor of the Smith family which was of United Empire Loyalist descent.

Mrs. Symington was the widow of the late John Symington. She and her husband came to make their home at Belleville thirty years ago after having been engaged in farming operations in Hastings and Northumberland counties.

Young and modest, of retiring nature, Mrs. Mary Rowe, came to reside with Mr. and Mrs. Symington about ten years later. Mr. Symington passed away about eleven years ago and Mrs. Rowe predeceased her sisters by several years. Another sister, Mrs. Thorne, had her home at Belleville and passed away here some years ago. An only brother, Mr. Isaac Smith spent his life at Smithfield.

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Symington were women of devoted Christian character and their funeral service in the religious work in connection with the John Street congregation of which they were members. After the destruction of John Street Church by fire they united with the Tabernacle congregation. They also gave much practical assistance to many charitable causes.

An unusually wide circle of friends will regret to learn that these long and useful lives have drawn to a close.

A double funeral will be held tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon, the service at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home at two o'clock. See announcement on another page.

Mrs. Young had an only son, Mr. Percy A. Young, well known business man of California. Unfortunately, he was prevented from passing through a very severe illness and will therefore not be able to attend his mother's obsequies.

SCHOOL LOG

S. S. No. 10 Sidney

Meadowdale

The first school in the section was built on what is known as "Armstrong's Hill."

Finding this unsatisfactory both for seating accommodation and for outdoor sports it was replaced by a new brick school at the foot of the hill, on a one-roomed school containing no halls and with windows in the rear.

The drainage system, however, was unsatisfactory and gave a great deal of trouble. Finally an underground drainage system was laid in June and in the year 1918 decided upon and two hundred feet from the old foundation. This system of drainage has been very satisfactory and no trouble, has been encountered since. At this time the grounds were extended to take in one acre and the first well on the present property was drilled. The school was not yet completed in September of that year for twelve days' lessons were taught in a large tent. Weather conditions proved a hindrance in getting the tent and the plan was postponed before and was finally abandoned. No more teaching was done until the third week of November, when the school was completed and furnished in accordance with the pupils. This building was equipped with two girls' cloak rooms and library, with windows on only the south side of the school room.

In 1931 new lavatories were built in the grounds.

Among the visitors worthy of note are Inspector VanderBilt and J. Wilson, Mr. Rogers, the trustees who were present on Dec. 1927 when we put up the cup to the school signifying S. S. 10 to be the most efficient in 1927.

In the first school under Inspector Ross the teachers were Miss Hall, Miss Hazelline, Mr. Labouiller, Mr. Jw. Rose, Mr. J. Munn, Mr. Vanderveen, Miss Corson, Miss Pinkie and Miss Vandusan.

During the time Mr. Johnson was Inspector the teachers were Miss Young, Miss Fisher, Miss Merrill, Miss Robinson, Miss Best, Miss Jackson, Mr. Hendrick, Miss Southard, Mr. Mabee, Miss Dame, Miss Calahan, Mr. Hodder, Miss Addison, Mr. Scarlet, Miss Losee, Miss Anderson, Miss Sine, Miss Bywater, Miss Faulkner. Teachers following these were Miss Anderson, Miss Erickson, Miss Gowsell, Miss Watson, Miss Thompson, Miss McArrory, Miss McCutcheon.

It was in the year 1926 during the teaching term of Miss Anderson that Mr. H. J. Symington was inspector.

After Miss Fleming, Miss Drewry taught in 1911-14 followed by Miss Lane 1915-16, Miss Anderson 1916-17, Miss Potter and Miss McElrath 1917-18. During the summer of 1918 a new school house was erected and in the fall Miss Bradley came. Following her came Miss Goodson. Miss Taggart until 1932 when Miss Dejohn became the teacher. Miss Dejohn taught until 1936 and was followed by Miss C. Wilson, the present teacher.

In the present year 1938, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees is Mr. Bert Bush. The other trustees are Mr. Keith Young and Mr. Albert Rowe. The Secretary-Treasurer is Mr. Emerson Hough.

Any further facts in regard to the school history of S. S. 10 Sidney would be greatly appreciated by the teacher Miss Wilson.

Letters to the Editor

The Railway situation

Belleville, February 12, 1938

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,

Dear Sir,—

While there are so many people protesting their views on the railway situation I thought I would chip in and add my opinion.

Everyone knows that the country cannot stand two railroads competing for business as the cost of duplication is too great for the taxpayers to bear.

Co-operation does not seem to be accomplishing much and cannot be expected to do so for it is impossible to co-operate and compete at the same time or one will always get the knock and go to the wall at the same time. It is certainly a mess and what to do is the question that is racking the brains of those in authority.

My views are somewhat different from those of a great many, but I cannot help that for it would not do for all to think alike.

I have summed up the situation something like this. At the time the Government of the day saw that all the roads were going bankrupt but it was a hard matter to know what to do.

The Government would not advance them any more money so it was a case of one thing or the other; either let them go bankrupt and the country as well or take them over and operate them for the people. I imagine when it was all settled and Premier Mackenzie King had engaged Sir Henry Thornton as president of the C.N.R. the Prime Minister took Sir Henry into his confidence and told him that it was up against a tough proposition.

To make a long story short, Sir Henry tackled the bill and saved the C.N.R. from going bankrupt. It is an easy matter now to compete with the C.P.R.

For instance Sir Edward Beatty said that the important thing is to get the country to accept the principle of unification and that details are to be worked out afterwards.

Imagine anyone objecting to that deal like that. He has said that we can travel on one road as the other. Well if we travel on one road it will help to pay our debt and on the other it will not, that is my opinion.

In a speech not long ago at Windsor, Professor Jenkins is urging unification of the C.P.R. and C.N.R., and that eventually the Government had not courage enough to face the issue until the public opinion was compelled it to do so.

For my part I wish they had courage enough to put out the bill and tell the taxpayers that is the best way to see the money if they want to see the money spent, and get busy and travel on their own rose, and why not? For they get the rate and it is the same time it helps to pay the debt.

But they have got to pay in the end anyway.

Interested Taxpayer,

Heavy Mail Today For St. Valentine's

Stationery stores of the city also report business in the sale of Valentines good during the past week, with a particular rumpus being noted on Saturday. "We have sold many more cards than last year, more expensive ones have been sold for some time past," it was stated by the manager of one of the larger stores.

U. S. STRATEGISTS

This decision, says the despatch, results from studies of fighting in China, Spain and Ethiopia in which the general conclusion has been reached that attacks of civilian populations produce no military advantage comparable to their cost to the attacker.

So far as concerns the American General Staff, added the despatch, it seems to be generally believed that air forces can be promptly employed in case of invasion in addition, first of all, the destruction of an enemy's battleship fleet before it can get itself firmly based on land.

Also receiving the problem of National Defence, any attempt to invade the United States successfully would involve a landing force in some adjacent territory, such as Canada, Mexico, or one of the Caribbean countries, the despatch pointed out.

The enemy would have to establish beach heads against situation probably concerted attack against frontiers of this country, (United States).

POLICE COURT

"You were given consideration previously in this court but I warn you that if you don't keep to Belleville again and appear in this court you will be sent to the Reformatory" declared H. J. Butler K. C. warning a man who police say is J. Swift on a charge of speeded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, when he appeared before His Worship in local police court.

Swiftee informed the court he resided at Bunker Hill in Prince Edward County. He was arrested by local police after Sergt. Frank Ketcring in the downtown area early Sunday morning. His Worship gave the accused a stern lecture and instructed him to leave the city and refrain from returning. Two kindred states admitted their guilt, when charged with drunk. One of them was given time in which to raise a ten dollar fine, the other dismissed with a reprimand.

John Murray, Thrasher Township, also appeared charged with assaulting his wife. The hearing was adjourned until Friday at the request of Jacob Goodman, local barrister, who appeared on behalf of the defendant.

"There may be grounds for a civil action here but I can see no indications of criminal negligence," commented His Worship as he dismissed a charge of reckless driving preferred against Gilbert Thompson, arising out of a collision on the intersection of the Oak Hill road and Highway No. 14, when a car driven by Thompson collided with another motor car, driven by Bertram Salisbury of this city. Charles A. Payne K. C. appeared on behalf of the defendant, while B. C. Donnan K.C., local Crown Attorney, prosecuted.

Automobile case, held in camera, concluded the day's docket.

25 TONS SAND, CINDERS USED

Thirty Men Engaged in Sanding of Roads

An estimated twenty-five tons of sand and cinders were used yesterday afternoon by city streets, roadways and intersections today, one of the largest on record of the Department of public works, it was estimated. Glassy surfaces left in the wake of Sunday's rain and following lower temperatures on roads and streets caused considerable inconvenience to work overtime late last night on the work of sanding and scattering rails and roads. Today a force of thirty men is engaged on parking lot restrictions and on road sanding. Up to nine o'clock this morning thirty calls for free sand had been registered at the city hall.

POLICE DOG PROTECTS TINY PEKINESE

Lost in the woods, "Tinker", tiny Pekinese dog owned by William Hendrick, Trenton, almost became a victim of exposure but for the intelligence of his canine pal, a husky police dog also owned by Mr. Hendrick. Both dogs left in the afternoon for the woods. When they did not return home the next day the owner instituted a search for them. After considerable walking in nearby woods, the owner, hearing his dog heard familiar barking. Making his way to the location, he found the small Peke lying on the ground in a clearing exhausted. Over him stood "Pete" the police dog, barking excitedly for help.

District to Benefit By New Bridge Chamber Thinks

Completion of the new International tourist bridge across the Niagara River at Ivy Lea near Gananoque, to which bridge considerable space is devoted in this issue of The Daily Ontario Intelligencer, is viewed by Belleville with optimism and hope by the local Chamber of Commerce.

From the past the local Chamber has been active in the furtherance of this bridge, looking upon the construction as being of direct benefit to the trade and tourist area of this district.

"It should and probably will add considerably to the number of tourists from New York and adjoining states who will later this more direct 'short cut' to this part of the province." it was stated by the Chamber.

WEST BROM. ALBION GOADIE MAKES A SPECTACULAR SAVE

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I was looking out the window on account of not being aloud to go out on account of the weather being drisly and the streets being partly wet, geting wetter, and I said, Ma, hay ma.

Now dont start a flood of itby nah, I'm trying to put this seam straite, me said, and I said, But hay ma, when I grow up can I do anything I feel like?

Such a boy, such a question, ma said, and I said, Well hay ma, can I? I mean when I grow all a ways up? I said.

Well naturely every adult grown pedson has a perfect rite to act just the way they feel as long as they have law abiding instincts, so it's just a question between their common sense and their conscience, ma said. But I dont understand what you're worrying about for said sakes, it will be many a blue moon before you're grown up, she said, and I said, know, mal, but supposing I grow up and get a sudden ambition to go out in the rain and nobody cant tell me not to, and suppose my common sense isn't good enough to tell me when I've been out there long enough and I catch my death of pneumonia, what then? I said.

When you're grown up you'll discover that you wont find the idea of getting soaked in the rain so attractive, so dont worry, ma said, and I said, But just in case I do, ma, dont you think I ought to give my common sense a little innocent practice my going out in alite drizzle like this one?

O my hands for goodness sakes I mite of known you had an ulterior motive up your sleeve, now you better find something to do or I'll find some work for you, ma said.

Two of Six Ministries Resign in India Today Over Political Prisoners

Demands For Release of All Political Prisoners Voted

MORE MAY RESIGN

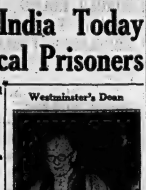
Patna, India, Feb. 15—(CP-Reuters)—The Indian constitution inaugurated last April, propelling autonomy for the Provinces of British India, was confronted with its first important test today when ministries in two of the six provinces controlled by the congress party resigned in a dispute over political prisoners.

Premier Shri Krishna Singh, in Bihar, and Premier Gobind Pant, in the United Provinces, submitted their resignations to governors Sir Maurice Hallett and Sir Harry Haig, respectively, when their demands that all political prisoners be released immediately were vetoed.

Others May Resign

Quickly the leadership of Subhas Chandra Bose, himself a prisoner for many years in Bombay, the radical wing of the congress party was reported working to bring the question to an immediate head on all-India basis.

Conservative elements in the Congress party's working committee were believed to favor a policy of moderation in dealing with the question and it was considered likely they would be able to minister a majority in the congress party.



But Bose is believed certain of election as the next President of the party, succeeding Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Internal Dissension

Political observers predicted these internal dissensions centring on the issue of prisoners but in reality more concerned with the wider

LEADERS FAVOR A DISTINCTIVE NATIONAL FLAG

Supported Resolution to Form Committee For to Adopting Flag

NO VOTE TAKEN

Justice Minister Honored on 34th Anniversary of Entering House

Ottawa, Feb. 15—(CP)—From a discussion of a Canadian national flag the House of Commons today turns to the practical matter of voting money for the maintenance of government services. For the first time this session the House will go into committee of supply on estimates for the Department of Pensions and National Health.

The flag question assumed a more concrete aspect yesterday than in any previous session when the leaders of the two major parties, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative Leader Bennett, declared themselves in favor of a distinctive national emblem.

They both voiced support of a resolution sponsored by Cameron McIntosh (Lib. North, Battleford) calling for the establishment of a special committee to consider the advisability of adopting a distinctive national flag.

Lastly opposition from a group of private members, the Conservative side prevented the motion from going to a vote and T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) was on the floor at adjournment hour, declaring the Union Jack was good enough for him.

Up Again Wednesday

The resolution will be up for debate again on Wednesday.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said now was the appropriate time to deal with the flag question. Relations with the United Kingdom and other parts of the empire had become very harmonious. Canada's action should it decide on a national flag could not be misunderstood in any quarter, all the other self-governing Dominions had already adopted flags of their own.

The present practice was anomalous and confusing. The Union Jack was the official flag in Canada, but outside Canada, for reasons of necessity, the red ensign with the Canadian coat of arms on the fly was used. It would be ridiculous to fly the same flag on the Canadian legation in Washington as the Town on the British embassy, the Prime Minister declared.

STERILIZATION OF GOLD MODIFIED

Bank Deposits And Credit to Grow Under New Decree

Washington, Feb. 15 (AP)—Partial abandonment of the United States Treasury's gold sterilization program, officials said today, in effect will increase total bank deposits and thus increase the amount of money which banks can lend to businessmen and others.

Treasury officials explained the new policy also will check the growth of the federal debt—now at the unprecedented total of $37,576,000,000 — and reduce the government's interest charges.

Under the sterilization policy inaugurated Dec. 24, 1936, the treasury borrowed money to buy gold. This was designed to keep the credit supply stable.

Purpose of Changes.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau announced late yesterday that hereafter the first $100,000,000 of gold which the treasury acquires each three months will not be sterilized. Instead, the metal will be used as a base for gold certificate currency which the treasury will spend through the federal reserve system.

Officials linked the new policy directly to the business recession, but

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Tabuteau
Science Service Meteorologist

Shortly after the first of the new year, the question is asked, "What future! How often one hears of the good, old-fashioned winters. A study of records with long records, say " 100 years, show that "hard" and "soft" winters and winters of heavy and light snow have been. In the long run, equally distributed. There may have been a series of mild winters for ten years, and may have been a mild one in the middle of this period. The point is that the first 50 years would average about the same as the last 50. How about the new-fashioned winter? There is every reason to believe that it will be much like those of the past few years, so far as averages are concerned; but individual records of snow and temperature may be broken.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Synopsis —An area of unusually high pressure extends eastward from the Lower Lakes across the Prairie Provinces to the Yukon with relatively low pressure in the southwest Plains. Light to moderate snowfalls have occurred in many parts of Eastern Canada also light snow in southern districts of Saskatchewan. The weather is now cold in all provinces with unusually low temperatures in the west.

Lake Superior—Moderate winds; fair and continuing cold today and Wednesday.

Western Provinces—Fair and decidedly cold today and Wednesday.

Execution Date Set 7 Times Yet Vincent Macchione Alive

Faces Trial Third Time After Tieing Legal Processes Into Knot

SENTENCED FIRST IN '36

By CHARLES NICHOLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Feb. 15—(CP)—Vincent Macchione, Born May 3, 1902 Died .....

Seven times the law authorities of British Columbia have prepared the legal figures in Macchione's life statistics. Seven times he has been told a date—each time different—on which he must hang for the murder of Michael Hudock of which he has been convicted twice.

Today Vincent Macchione is still alive.

Two judges of the British Columbia Supreme Court have told the 36-year-old Sicilian he must die for the slaying. Twenty-four men, empanelled as two juries, have heard evidence telling a circumstantial story of the death of Hudock—like Macchione a railway section hand. All have called him guilty.

Facing Third Trial

Today Vincent Macchione is still facing trial for Hudock's murder—innocent unless for a third time he is convicted.

Macchione, short, stocky, sandy-haired, is held in Oakalla Provincial Prison awaiting his third trial, won by the writ of court quashed, heralded by circumstance, tied the legal processes of the province into knots.

Macchione first was told he must die Aug. 12, 1936, for mortally wounding Hudock with a shotgun slug on the ice-rimmed edge of Elk River near Fernie, B.C., six months earlier. Lodging of an appeal resulted in postponing of the execution. Macchione was told he would hang Nov. 6. The appeal won a new

Singapore Basi Marks New British Policy in East

Hong Kong to Assume Lessening Importance in Trade

TO MAINTAIN PEACE

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 15.—(CP-Cable)—Inauguration of the Singapore naval base marks a major change in British policy in the Far East. Henceforth Hong Kong, although it is still the base of the China squadron of the Royal Navy, will assume lessening importance in Great Britain's plans to defend her arteries of trade.

Termination of the Anglo-Japanese alliance marked the turning point. While the alliance was in force Britain felt she had no interest from Japan to fear. Hong Kong as her principal base in the Far East was adequate. Britain palbered her pre-war strength to meet the menace of Germany.

New Situation

The defeat of Germany changed the scene. Anxieties turned toward the Pacific. The end of the Anglo-Japanese alliance created new problems. Britain had to safeguard against the possibility of attack in the Far East.

Over a period of years Hong Kong had been neglected. Its equipment could only cope with pre-dreadnought type ships. To make it thoroughly efficient meant heavy expenditure. Hong Kong had the further disadvantage that it could only serve as a base for the China seas. ere Britain has large trade interes but little territory.

Out of a Swamp

So the British naval authorities rned to Singapore. There, out of swamp, Britain constructed the ost powerful base in the world. sixteen-inch guns guard its harbor. Underground tanks hold ough fuel o supply the fleet for months.

Whereas Hong Kong could only ve the China seas, Singapore rves the dditional areas of the dian Ocean and the route Australia. The Indian Ocean Britain ireves practically her whole supp of rubber, tin, manganese anulde and most of her Australian ain and New Zealand eat.

British Strength in China

Britain'svesent military strength in China ipproximately 8,500 men. The Chinese board at Hong Kong consists ofhree eight-inch-gun cruisers, 1 six-inch gun cruiser, plus one bi-type cruiser. There also is thighth destroyer flotilla consisting nine ships, with submarines ofescort vessels. Approximately oaif of British military strength China is stationed at Hong Kc

INTENSIFY SEARCH AFTER CONSTABLE D. SHERVILL DIES

Shot in Stomach by Prowler While Investigating Breakins

BLOT CLOT DEVELOPS

Police Have No New Clues to Aid Them in Hunt

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 15—(CP)—Search was intensified today for the unknown prowler who mortally wounded Provincial Constable Donald C. Shervill at nearby Orchard Beach last week. Shergill was shot in the stomach while investigating a series of break-ins and died last night.

Immediately after learning of the constable's death police of Hamilton and Provincial Headquarters assisted by Inspector Ward of the Criminal Investigation Department, redoubled their efforts to locate the mysterious gunman.

Police said they had found no new clues to aid them in the hunt. They were confident, however, the gunman possessed a criminal record and shot rather than be captured and would receive a stiff prison sentence for house-breaking while armed.

MRS. H. A. NAYLOR TO HEAD CLUB

Re-elected as President of Women's Conservative Club

Mrs. Harry A. Naylor was re-elected to the office of President of the Belleville Women's Conservative Club at the annual meeting and dinner of that Association held in the Belleville Conservative Club rooms last evening. A large and enthusiastic crowd was on hand for the occasion during which R. D. Arnott K.C., M.L.A., was the chief speaker of the evening, delivering a discourse of interest and importance to the local Conservatives.

One of the unique features of the evening was the luncheon which was prepared and served by the executive members of the Men's Club, the men acting as hosts during the evening.

A signal honor was bestowed upon Miss Hazel Harold, treasurer of the Belleville Women's Conservative Club, who was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by former political workers as she answered the invitation to serve during many years of faithful service as treasurer, and in other capacities in the Club. The address of appreciation was read by Mrs. Naylor, while Mr. L. Wright presented the roses to Miss Harold.

A musical program proved highly delightful, while Harry Rollins, president of the Belleville Conservative Club, was among the speakers on the happy, successful meeting of the newly elected officers.

The meeting was opened and the delicious repast was served by President Mrs. Naylor and her active body of assistants. The Club voted to forward a report to the annual meeting to this year's efforts.

The programme included community singing, piano duet by Mrs. Franklin and Mrs. Rollins, readings by Mrs. McCluskie, vocal duet by Mrs. Arnott and Mr. Bankier,

Saint Valentine Never Heard Of Such Goings - on Before

Musical Valentines And Printed Kisses in Lipstick on Blanks

IDEA POPULAR

New York, Feb. 15—(CP)— St. Valentine's Day breezed into New York today in the cha-cha and some quaint goings-on. All over the metropolis and in surrounding districts people were answering their telephones and girls' voices would say, "Hello, Valentine, darling, what would like to give to over the phone?"

Then to the tune of Bel Mir Bist Du Schoen, they would sing:

Oh dear Valentine
I send you this line,
Oh will you be mine,
Sweet Valentine?

The sentiment as slightly affected in each case by the circumstances that the girls had to say at the end, "by permission of the copyright owner of Bel Mir Bist Du Schoen."

After the recipient was in a state to be talked to, following the serenade, the girl would say from whom the message came.

The one to the tune of "Bel Mir" was the 13 word Valentine greeting, 10 cents in the city.

There was a more lavish one, 34 words for 34 cents, including sales tax. It was the-35c one of the four-piece

Miss Elizabeth Arnold, a blue-eyed brunette, paused in the midst of her telephone warblings at a mid-town office, and declared bouquet was terrific, the idea was "very popular." This is the first year the company has provided musical St. Valentine's Day greetings.

A rival concern with facsimile equipment was offering to let girls print kisses in lipstick on telegraph blanks and send them by wire.

Administration of Justice Cost Cut is Forecast By Att'y General Conant

Local Crown Attorneys to Handle Cases at Assizes

ECONOMIES SOUGHT

Most Perpetrators of Crime in Canada Are Caught

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario today promised the Ontario legislature council he would investigate the Province's jury system to ascertain where economies might be effected. He also forecast reductions in government expenditure on general justice administration.

The Attorney-General, opposing heavy expenditure on sending special crown counsel from Toronto for important cases throughout the province, declared Crown Attorneys should handle their own cases or give way to someone who could. Only in certain cases, would special counsel be sent, he added.

Expenditure Worthwhile

Administration of justice in the Dominion cost money, Mr. Conant said, but the expenditure was worthwhile. In the United States the "vast majority" of perpetrators of crimes were not apprehended. In Canada the opposite was true.

Ontario was proceeding with reduction of its expenditure in this department, Mr. Conant said. There was a $40,000 reduction from 1934 to 1935. He promised a further decrease.

Political Patronage

"The question of special crown counsel has largely been a question of political patronage, especially in the years 1933-33 and 1934-35 when we were paying $25,000 and $35,000 for crown counsel," he said.

"I am of the opinion that local Crown Attorneys 'first handle our cases. If they are not capable of doing so they must give way to someone who can. Crown counsel will only be used in special cases."

Canada was the most over-governed country in the world, the Attorney-General went on. It was necessary to do something about this cost to make conditions in the Dominion "liveable."

Burden of Social Services

"Social services have reached the point where we must be careful whether we have swamped the ship," Mr. Conant said. "Unemployment insurance is on the horizon. Some advocate health insurance. The tendency of all social services is once they start they increase.

"Unemployment insurance, while most desirable will undoubtedly have to be said. "It will progress in practically the same way as all other social services. That was the way in the past.

At one time the basic work week in the unemployment insurance in England had been a work week of six days. Now it is five and Saturday that had been reduced to three days.

Administration of Justice Cost Cut is Forecast By Att'y General Conant

Local Crown Attorneys to Handle Cases at Assizes

ECONOMIES SOUGHT

Most Perpetrators of Crime in Canada Are Caught

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario today promised the Ontario legislature council he would investigate the Province's jury system to ascertain where economies might be effected. He also forecast reductions in government expenditure on general justice administration.

The Attorney-General, opposing heavy expenditure on sending special crown counsel from Toronto for important cases throughout the province, declared Crown Attorneys should handle their own cases or give way to someone who could. Only in certain cases, would special counsel be sent, he added.

Expenditure Worthwhile

Administration of justice in the Dominion cost money, Mr. Conant said, but the expenditure was worthwhile. In the United States the "vast majority" of perpetrators of crimes were not apprehended. In Canada the opposite was true.

Ontario was proceeding with reduction of its expenditure in this department, Mr. Conant said. There was a $40,000 reduction from 1934 to 1935. He promised a further decrease.

Political Patronage

"The question of special crown counsel has largely been a question of political patronage, especially in the years 1933-33 and 1934-35 when we were paying $25,000 and $35,000 for crown counsel," he said.

REPLY TO DR. HOGG

Difficulty in Foretelling Power Demand is Noted

Toronto, Feb. 15.—(CP)—Had the policies of the present Hydro chairman, Dr. T. H. Hogg, been instituted with regard to the original Niobec contracts, the Commission would have paid last year to the generating companies more than $7,000,000 in excess of what actually was paid and the reductions in charges to the municipalities would never have taken place, according to T. Stewart Lyon, ex-chairman, and Arthur Roebuck, ex-commissioner, in a statement issued yesterday.

Delegation to Council Asks Culverts Near Victoria Park Be Reopened to Allow Flow

Told Present Situation Only An Experimental Stage

ACTION PROMISED

Gasoline Odours to be Investigated by Toronto Officials

"We are only trying this as an experiment and if it does not work out something else will have to be done" declared Alderman Glencoe Thompson answering a delegation to the regular meeting of the City Council last night, who requested, that the culvert leading from the Bay of Quinte into the Victoria Park be again opened. The delegation stated that the culvert carried into the Bay was not going away due to the closing of the culvert by the City Council. The cost of the action was one of the shortest of the year so far, as business being completed within an hour after the meeting. Those present at the meeting were Mayor Bone, Aldermen Wills, Thompson, Baragar, Ellis, Mitchell, Marshall, Mahaffy, Rushing, Rollins and Barlow, Alderman Bridge being chairman of the committee of the whole.

The delegation after stating their case to Mayor Bone, chairman of Public Works, that it was only an experiment and that action had been granted by the Harbor Commission to the Park Board to close the culvert. The north culvert has been closed for some time. One of the delegation stated the inner harbor had never been so filthy as it has been since the north culvert was closed. The spokesman stated that unless a wind was blowing there was absolutely no current in the inner harbor and consequently refuse simply stayed in the water and it was almost unbearable. The harbor was also growing a fine crop of weeds each year and the cost owners during the late summer had hardly able to use the part of the harbor, and. Logan suggested that the Harbor Commission be forks report from time to time on is condition. Another member of the delegation stated that residents felt that district would have the advantage that if the closing of the divert did rot prove satisfactory it relieve the condition existing and some other could be done and Mayor Bone gave that assurance.

Letter Received

A letter was received from Charles Mold, city engineer, regarding the gasoline odor that was prevalent in residences on St. Paul Street and Victoria Avenue, the residence of Jack Robbin. A letter was also read from the Medical Officer of Health respecting this nuisance and he had made the recommendation "that the city engineer be requested to arrange for the investigation of the Fire Marshal's department to come to this city in regard to the source of these leaks or occurrences in the river harbor". The letter from the city engineer respecting the matter follows:

Belleville, Ont.
February 14, 1938

His Worship the Mayor and Members of the City Council
Belleville, Ontario.

Re: Gasoline Odours at Jack Robbin's Residence

Gentlemen:

As requested at the last Committee meeting of the Council, an advertisement was inserted in the daily newspaper prohibiting the throwing or placing of refuse containing gasoline, grease or oil of any description into the waters of the city sewers and drains. I have also inquired from sewers' Service Station about the river leaks as to their drainage, and they claim that there is no serious amount of refuse of this description leaving their plants. The only way I can make sure is to have the Fire Marshal test all of the drainage from their stations along the river bank after the ice has gone.

Yours truly,
CHAS. A. MOTT,
City Engineer
February 14, 1938

His Worship the Mayor and Members of the City Council

Dear Sirs:

In order to co-operate with Mr. Charles Mott I made an inspection of the premises of Mr. Jack Robbin at 80 South Front Street, and found the same to be filled with strong odor of gasoline fumes and in my opinion is not fit for human habitation at the present time.

Sincerely yours,
G. S. ORONK

Your committees recommends that we be authorized to proceed with this arrangement in co-operation with the committee of the County and that the cost be divided equally between the City of Belleville and the County of Hastings.

Your committee discussed at the same time ways and means of providing facilities for Belleville and Hastings County to the travelling public and recommend that traffic to this locality. The letter from the Public Utilities Commission is given herewith:

Belleville, Ontario
February 14, 1938

His Worship the Mayor and Aldermen,
City Council,
Belleville, Ont.

Gentlemen:

On November 8th last we wrote your Honourable Body to bring to your attention the fact that many of the Water Department ledger cards were turned over to the Commission when there were a large number of accounts in arrears which bore no relation to the year 1937. They totalled $584.71. Another list totalling $1,186.94 was also turned over against city property, no notation was on the latter cards.

In the final statement the above accounts totalling $1186.94 were not included. In our letter the City Clerk sent us a copy of a report of the Water Committee dated March 10th. It recommended that the list of accounts of $1186.94 be turned over to the Commission. This was the first occasion this commission had of the accounts should have been turned over and your Honourable Body instructed your officials to turn same over together with any collections which may have been made on same. In this way all the records in connection with the Water Department would be complete at one location.

Very truly yours,
OSWALD E. SCOTT
Secretary-Treasurer

The S.S. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. was granted $50 towards the tag day, which is Rose Day for that organization. The Library Board was granted $500 according to the estimates for the year. There being no further business the council adjourned.

Pectin Discovered As Wound Healer

Bloomington, Ind. Feb. 15—(A.P.) In the pectin used by housewives use to make jelly, Indiana University medical experts have discovered a quick-clotting agent for wounds. The details were made public in here today.

Pectin is a jelly that comes from boiling fruits and vegetables. Apples are rich in it. Carefully set to why scraped apple helps to cure diarrhea led to the wound clotting discovery. It was already known pectin was the effective part of the apple. Further tests narrated pectin might have the power to kill germs of the organisms that cause diarrhea was undertaken by Dr. Hilli Haynes, biologist of Indiana University School of Medicine, Miss Grace Washburn, dietitian, and Dr. Charles A. Tompkins and Dr. Matthew Winters.

Pectin proved to be a powerful germ killer—but only under certain circumstances. The effects depended on the acidity or alkalinity of the medium in which it was applied.

PARKED CARS ON FRONT ST. ENTERED

Bond Papers, A Spare Tire And Tube Are Lifted

Two main street robberies, with traffic in full progress, were successfully carried out in Belleville the last night resulting in the loss of bond papers, a spare tire and valuable papers from two parked cars on Front street in the city.

Early last evening an automobile owned by D. R. Lee, 486 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, was parked at the upper end of Front street while Mr. Lee was making a nearby business call. Upon his return Mr. Lee found a rear case had been stolen and of his parked automobile. In the brief case were bond papers and other valuables, Mr. Lee informed the police, also discovering his loss.

Later in the night John Vanalstine, Napanee, parked his automobile in the vicinity of the City Hall while he partook of a meal in a nearby restaurant. Upon his return to the parked automobile, Mr. Vanalstine found a tire only gained but chagrined to find the spare tire, tube and rim off the rear of his motor car had been stolen.

Police are investigating both cases.

Seed Inspector Stresses Need of Care in Seed Sales

Two convictions have so far this spring season been registered in the Belleville district under the Dominion Seeds Act which prohibits the sale of seed grain that is not graded according to the requirements of the Seeds Act. It is stated by Inspector William Michael, Dominion district seed inspector of the local office.

The latest conviction has been given against a Belleville man and one other in the case of a farmer-to-farmer sale of seed in Port Hope area.

Seed for sale purposes is graded into three classifications. Samples of these seeds have been taken by inspectors and graded by the department, some of the seed sold had been far below standard, thus resulting in convictions.

The penalty for buying and owning good seed grain is stressed by the local representative.

B.Y.P.U. CONDUCT YOUTH SERVICE

Mr. John Jury of B. C. I. Staff Occupies Baptist Pulpit

An interesting service was held Sunday evening in Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, with the young people's union in charge. A large number attended despite the unfavorable nature of the weather.

Following singing of the doxology Miss Audrey Rowland pronounced invocation. Miss Edna Johnson read the scripture lesson from the eleventh chapter of Corinthians. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Nellie Collins and the young people's choir sang their convention hymn: "Living for Jesus". Miss Audrey Rowland led in prayer and announcements were read by Mr. Wm. Hains.

The subject preached by Mr. Jury evolved around the question: "What does Christianity mean to us?".

"We have come to take for granted some of the things which Christianity means to us because they are a part of our civilization," declared the speaker; "things like high-living standards and better moral conditions, free schools, hospitals, and ideals of personal freedom are due to the influence of Christianity. They have come because of Christ's emphasis on the value of the human personality, and the importance of the individual. We Baptists made a point of upholding the importance of the individual. This means not only that we are as good as anyone else, but anyone else may be as good as we are, and is worthy of our respect.

Asks Personal Question

"To be more personal, does Christianity mean anything to us? Does it mean more than pious habits like going to church? Paul said, 'If any man be in Christ he is a new creature.' Is this true of us? Can our friends notice the difference? In our daily work are we more conscientious, more patient and more loyal because we are Christian? We should be. It is not enough for us to be merely as good as someone else. 'If you love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not even publicans the same?' Nor is it enough to be better than someone else. Remember what Christ said about the Pharisee who thanked God he was not as other men. As Christians we must be the best we can; it is our duty to lead."

The speaker outlined some of the things Christianity meant to St. Paul, "It can, and if we are sincere it will, mean similar things for us," he said. "It may not involve physical suffering, but there are other kinds. Things we do may be misunderstood by those whose good opinion we value. It will take courage then to stand fast; and Christ knows suffering that comes when we are misunderstood. Christianity may also mean the pain of loneliness, and Christ experienced that when His disciples fled from Him after Gethsemane. Christianity is bound to mean suffering and sacrifice—sacrifice in the sense of replacing what is mean and unworthy with what is high and noble."

Mr. Jury in closing pointed out that if Christianity is to mean our best and enduring suffering, it will not be easy. Christ knew that when He said: "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow Me." That is the greatest challenge ever uttered. No man can meet it alone, but if we have faith we will be "more than conquerors through Him that loved us".

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. G. Sinclair.

Activity in Lumber Industry

Considerable activity has been noted in the village of Wilberforce, North Hastings, lately with the erection of a new plant by the Wilberforce Lumber Company for the manufacture of lumber products and basket bottoms being the chief interest. At present the company has a force of men in the woods, cutting timber for the plant. It is estimated that two million feet will be handled this season. The addition, carloads of birch are being cut and shipped for outside factories for veneering purposes.

Ishbel MacDonald to Wed Village Handyman

London Feb. 15 — (A P) — Ishbel MacDonald daughter of the late J. Ramsay MacDonald once campaigned for use of the term "bachelor girl" instead of "old maid."

Now she says she doesn't care.

The former Prime Minister's daughter—friend of many of the world's famous figures—has surprised her family and Great Britain by disclosing she plans to marry a village handyman. Miss MacDonald announced she would become the bride of Rodney Ridgley, who beats the drum in the Speen, Buckinghamshire, village band.

The wedding is expected in the near future, but the date has not been set, because of the recent death of her father, it will be a quiet ceremony.

The versatile but taciturn thinker who, like his fiancee is 34 years old, has been a regular customer at the Old Plow, Speen Village Inn, Miss MacDonald operates.

A former house painter, electrician's helper, and ditch digger, Mr. Ridgley was described by Dr. Alastair McKinnon, Miss MacDonald's brother-in-law, as "one of the best dart players in the village."

"Alastair," said Miss MacDonald, "You mustn't say things like that."

Mr. . . . . * of Montreal, has married daughters living in Toronto and Philadelphia. Yet, they've been coming home every Sunday night for nearly a year—by Telephone.

The procedure is simple. Our operator makes the connections for the "Conference Call" at the time set. Mr. . . . . lifts his receiver and at once is chatting to his two daughters—with his unmarried son joining in from an extension telephone upstairs.

Thus a family that might have drifted apart, is bound together—and at a cost that is trifling compared to the great happiness each weekly meeting brings.

Reductions in telephone rates—local and long distance—in 1935, '36 and '37 have effected savings to telephone users in Ontario and Quebec of nearly one million dollars yearly.

LEADERS FAVOR

Minister declared.

When Canadian troops took part in Empire manoeuvres and pageants as at the Coronation a distinctive flag was needed to distinguish them from British troops.

Mr. Bennett said the resolution did not commit the House to anything. The proposed committee was simply to study the advisability of adopting a national flag. He could see no reason why the House should not appoint a committee to consider the advisability of anything.

For his own part, he said, he had long believed Canada should have a flag which would distinguish it from other countries.

Supporting the resolution besides Mr. Bennett, Mr. King and Mr. McIntosh were Vital Malette (Lib., Jacques Cartier), G. R. Elliott (L. G. Kindersley), Charles Bothwell (Lib., Swift Current), J. A. Bradette (Lib., Richmond, Que.), Mr. Cardin (Lib. Montmagny).

Opposing it were F. C. Betts (Cons., London), John R. MacNicol, (Cons., Toronto-Broadview), Mrs. George Black (Cons. Yukon), Gordon Graydon (Cons. Peel) and Mr. Church.

R. L. Baker, (Cons. Toronto-Eglinton) did not indicate his views but suggested words be inserted to make it clear the Union Jack should be included in any flag adopted.

Justice Minister Congratulated

Justice Minister Lapointe received congratulations from all quarters of the House and a bouquet of roses on his 34th anniversary of his entry into the House. He is now the dean of the House.

An unusual attempt was made by John Blackmore, Social Credit member, to change the sentences imposed on G. F. Powell and Joseph Unwin at Edmonton. Mr. Blackmore attempted to move adjournment of the House to "discuss a matter, of great public importance" but Speaker Pierre Casgrain ruled the question was not of "urgent public importance."

Powell, Social Credit expert assisting the Alberta government and Unwin, Social Credit member for Edson for the Alberta legislature, were sentenced to six and three months respectively for criminal libel arising out of publication of a pamphlet. Premier William Aberhart appealed to Mr. Lapointe and the Prime Minister for their release from prison.

MINING FOR HEAT

Mining has been an industry ever since man learned to handle metals. Early history tells of Phoenicians visiting England for the tin the rock contained. The incentive mining has given the world sent ships all the way through the largely unknown Atlantic in the days of the dawn of history to bring back shiploads of the metal. Ever since mining has been developing, new methods are being utilized.

Since deep mining has now become general, facts have been assembled concerning the amount of heat which might be secured from holes sunk deep into the earth. Since science came to the conclusion that the earth's interior is hot, there have been men who have pondered over the question of mining for heat.

Port Arthur News-Chronicle refers to the view expressed by Angus D. Campbell, President of the Association of Professional Engineers for Canada, envisioning the day of mining for heat:

"First reaction to the announcement is that it is not an altogether new idea. Since men, by burrowing into the earth, have learned that there is heat at depth there has been an idea that it could be gathered and distributed economically. Feasibility has not yet been demonstrated but engineers and scientists continue to do things that have never been done before.

"Fortified by the knowledge that gold existed at depth they have shown their ability to go down and get it. As there is no doubt heat exists at depth it may be that they will find the way to bring it out, too.

"Advances in engineering during recent years have sent mining down to a depth of 7,000 feet, which is well into the second mile. At 7,000 feet the temperature is found to be from 90 to 100 degrees, or five to eight degrees warmer than a room should be at a sitting room.

"From the rapidity with which temperature rises as further depth is reached it is evident that at one thousand feet or so the rocks should be warm enough to provide a great deal of heat. How to harvest it and convey it to designated places is the problem for which the engineers have not yet provided a solution. Their efforts may be materially assisted by the fact that depths upwards of 5,000 feet have been reached in some of the mines, thereby giving them a chance to attack the problem from a much more advantageous position than the surface.

"Boring to 10,000 feet or more would be possible and there would be plenty of heat there. How to procure the circulation which would cause it to move in a conveyer is the difficulty."

FLOOD'S SUSPENSE

Those with homes and businesses along the banks of the Moira River within the city limits have naturally been in a state of suspense through the break-up of the river which took place ten days ago. Conditions have changed in many respects and hopes are growing that the final movement of the ice may take place without further interference with business or the home life of the people. Should the river ice go out quietly in the near future, of course, every possibility of flooding later towards the end of March will have been eliminated.

Fortunately the river has done nothing spectacular this year, though it has caused great inconvenience to the merchants on the east bank of the stream. This only goes to show that the river does not have to act in a spectacular manner to cause loss and damage, for cellars and basements have been flooded for some days, the most of the water now being out of the cellars.

Absence of a great head of water has been a favorable factor of the winter break-up.

WHAT IT MEANS

The motorcar driver may have had a nervous time trying to direct his car this winter but the pedestrian has had the worst of the deal as regards weather. Walking conditions during the past few months have been anything but pleasant as postmen, milkmen, breadmen and a few other classes know from their calling. Even the pedestrian has felt the strain of walking on slippery walks and he has had also to negotiate slippery roads.

It is difficult enough to have to walk on sidewalks which are slippery but when it comes to the streets the milkman and the breadman and other deliverymen, who have to use clear and uncleared walks on private premises, and possibly climb slippery steps to make their deliveries whether it be mail or milk or bread or groceries or parcels, it is much worse.

One has good reason for wondering how the postmen and others have managed to make their rounds on time and have got off so well as to escape serious injury by falls.

Routes which take a considerable length of time, cannot but take more time and use up more energy in a winter with so much ice and water to be encountered as this one of 1937-38.

TIME

The patient sky bends down to hold
The hill, the moon, the winding road
Wherein climbs, heavy with his load
Of agitated rule, that old
King of the world and lord of plan,
A solitary man.

The road before he has not trod;
The road behind he will not trod.
The kingly, small, advancing head
Eats up the road and Time and God;
And yet he cannot reach me here,
Except by coming near.

Could he but leap the road between,
Twere nothing more to launch a moon,
Or could he be where he has been,
Then might he be nineteen again,
And shun the steeps of pain.

A PHOTOGRAPH OF EIGHT NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS of the 15th. Argyll Light Infantry, taken a number of years ago, is being sought by one of the group who lives in the United States. He understands that the photo was enlarged and framed. One of the non-coms in the picture was Jack Hoyes, now of Toronto, another was Frank Robinson, of Moscow, Idaho. Anyone having knowledge of the whereabouts of this picture or copies thereof will confer a favor by conveying such information to this column.

NECESSITY IS STILL THE MOTHER OF INVENTION, and when the winds blew and the floods fell upon certain stores in the business district of Belleville, causing much damage and put of commission, causing much discomfort and inconvenience. Stoves and other methods of heating were commandeered and heating was resumed in makeshift fashion. Outstanding instances of ingenuity were displayed in several cases, notably by the management of the Canadian Department Stores, who have the largest store area to heat in the city. The management secured an upright portable engine and placed it in the basement adjoining the store where it has been supplying heat to the entire store. Another case of ingenuity rewarded concerns the Zeller store where the manager went out into the country and secured the services of a huge road roller and engineer, placing the machine at the back of the store and supplying heat for the entire building aswell as the Public School in this city, and that in this connection the co-operation of said commendable action of the Separate School Board be cordially invited. Col. Ponton gave notice also of a motion that the regulations be appealed which make it compulsory for pupils to leave the school grounds at once and prohibits them from playing on the grounds after school or on holidays.

"SNOOTY THING", an exclamation from a young miss of fifteen or so, at a local matinee performance of "Stage Door," when a girl in the cast picked up a box of flowers addressed to another girl with whom she was on the stage and enclosed note from a male admirer.—The exclamation came at a moment when a sudden silence had descended upon play and audience and sounded so loud that it exploded a gale of laughter which echoed all over the theatre.

CATERPILLARS FORETELL THE WEATHER according to a farmer in the vicinity of Brockville, experienced in the ways of nature. He claims that according to him the worst of the winter is over and he bases his prediction upon the coats of the caterpillars now venturing out for a look-see at conditions. Says he: If the caterpillars are a heavy black color the winter will be severe and long. If they are of medium length look out for a long, hard winter. If the front of the caterpillars is black and the rear half brown it means the early part of the winter will be severe and the last half mild, and vice versa. Last fall the caterpillars had heavy black "fronts" and light brown "rears" which means, according to the aforesaid observer, that this winter's severity has been passed.

MONOPOLY

The game was very one-sided, just after half-time the captain of the losing team approached the referee. "I say, can we have another ball?"

"Well," grumbled the captain, "those chaps want that one all to themselves."

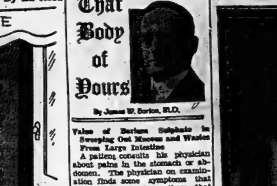
Van Buren Arkansas Advertises

A few days ago the News-Chronicle carried the story of a well bred young man who came home from an automobile trip south. It seems this resident had stopped, while en route, at the hotel of Van Buren in the state of Arkansas. The town has been made famous by a native character.

His car, it is alleged, was so parked as to violate some of the local regulations in that southern town. The owner was apprehended and taken before a magistrate or justice of the peace or judge or, perhaps, merely the chief of police, and brought face to face with a stiff fine, he answered a question about his home, informing the majesty of Arkansas law that he was from Detroit, Ontario. The cops might have known that from his license plate. Anyway he made it different. It was not merely all right for a resident of Ontario to violate the parking laws of Van Buren. He deserved a banquet for no other reason than having stopped there. Which he did. Andy out and gave him a dinner, and they say Andy appreciates free publicity.

In due time he came home and told the local newspaper about his experience in Van Buren and how well they treated him when they found he was from far away Ontario. It made a good newspaper item.

Furthermore, it was one of the finest pieces of publicity Van Buren in this city. How many more Port Arthur people in months to come are going to stop in Van Buren with the prospect of a free dinner and a chance to talk about the hospitality and the good food in Arkansas!



If they do give free meals to all, or even a portion of visitors from distant states or provinces like Ontario, Arkansas, has found an unusually good way to get itself talked about.

Even the tramps are said to put marks on the homes where a good meal or handout may be expected.

There might be a hint in it for Port Arthur.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

For Sweet Charity's Sake

The self-comforting but specious opinion that anything is good enough for charity is apparently more widely held than the large number of genuine givers would lead one to believe. Charitable institutions as a convenient distillate in which cast-off clothing and other oddments no longer fit for human use can be deposited with a minimum of trouble—thus obtaining for the givers a fictitious glow of godliness and at the same time saving them the bother of burning the articles at home. For this, then, is the use that the average institutions have to do with the rubbish. After all, charity may cover a multitude of sins, but it must cover something. Blankets that are but shreds of their former selves, gloves without fingers, hats without crowns, coats that let in the four winds of heaven, and other rags that shame gilded alms can cover nothing but the recipients' confusion and the donor's hypocrisy. In such cases the charity that begins at home might well end there.—Johannesburg Times.

Value of Barium Sulphate in Sweeping Out Blossom and Wastes From Your Alimentary Canal

A patient consults his physician about pains in the chest and abdomen. The physician on examination finds some symptoms that suggest ulceration of the stomach, others that suggest a chronic appendicitis and still others that suggest colitis—inflammation of the lower bowel.

In an attempt to get more definite information as to the condition of the stomach and intestine the physician has the patient undergo an X-ray examination after swallowing four ounces of barium sulphate in buttermilk or bismuth subnitrate before any food is eaten and the patient has films taken of the barium sulphate a very white substance—which makes a black shadow all the way down through the stomach and intestine.

It is a matter of three or four days to a week before the barium sulphate is completely out of the intestine. He either examines the stomach and intestine by report from the X-ray operator recording among other findings the length of time the barium sulphate remained in the stomach, then in the small intestine, then in the large intestine before finally leaving the body. From this report the physician is able to get much help as the X-ray films show whether there is an ulcer, inflammation, obstruction—present, cancer—a little hill on the wall of the stomach or intestine—the condition or position of the appendix, any unusual delay or obstruction in the bowel.

Sometimes the films show practically a normal condition but the physician awaits the return of the patient, to tell him the good news in his interview with the patient it is all; he finds that the patient has ulcers of the stomach.

Why has the patient neglected to return?

It has been found that barium sulphate and latterly kaolin—a white clay—are excellent for the lining of the stomach and intestines, more particularly the wastes and excess secretions from the lining of the large intestine, and with the removal of these wastes the symptoms also disappear. As the patient feels better for weeks and months afterward, he doesn't bother to visit the physician. He should have a check-up however that the barium sulphate, if used, should be obtained from a reliable or graduate druggist or from the hospital X-ray department.

MOVIE EARNINGS

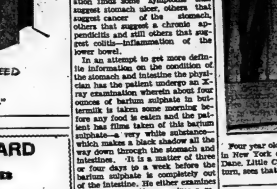
There is one theatre seat for every twenty people in Canada, and the average admission price is 23 cents.

Each man, woman and child person, you spend $2.48 a year on the cinema, unless you live in Montreal, where you spend $4.14. And also where you spend $1.02 each year to get your fun at the movies.

The high point touched by box office receipts was $38.5 millions in 1930.

Toronto still holds first place in Montreal, with 24 theatres, whose pay admissions of 94% millions annually rule nearly $3 millions. Montreal's 22 theatres seven day a week showings, comes next with over 20 millions and $4% millions in receipts.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, during 39 movie houses with over $100,000; $50 from $10,000 to $100,000 and the remainder from $5,000 to $10,000 — the first group or just 6 per cent of the total seating 23 per cent of the total receipts. The 23 per cent of the theatres which grossed under $5,000 each took in but 6 per cent of the total receipts.—Canadian Business.



MUSICAL MONKEYS

There is one musical matter and widely known, the new, young and vigorous District Attorney, may have his overloaded hands full in going concern to the New York Herald Tribune because it is a big one, and has been given valuable to other prosecutors.

"It is not enough merely to catch little fishes and drop him into a dungeon. If possible, the miscreant should have a punishment and deterrent distinction," the Herald Tribune points out, "and he has not earned that by his colleagues, one should be given him. Mr. Dewey, in recent years, has dealt out some fascinating names as 'Lucky' Luciano, 'Bo-Jo-Jo' Jaffe, 'Dutch' Schultz, 'The Dove' and 'The Gorilla Boys'. The names of the four gunmen in the Brownsville Democratic leader in 1913 were of such quality that they enhanced the dramatic interest of the prosecution they were 'Dago Frank' Abbatemarco, 'Red Head' Rosenberg, 'Lefty Louie' and 'Whitey Lewis'.

Recalled are other odd names associated with famous criminal cases, such as "Kid Twist", "Politico" Caserta, "Dopey Benny" Fein, "Kid Dropper", "The Teacher", "Sally the Cheese Cake", "Joe Peas", "The Artichoke King", "Louie the Lamp", "The Marquis" and "Dopey Benny". In the west were such crook celebrities as "Pretty Boy", "Scarface" and "Machine Gun Jack".

"Whatever the source, such names are peculiarly American, and add to the flavor of the language," in the opinion of the New York newspaper. —Toronto Telegram.

Memories by the Wayside

A few years ago, as I told some of the men there, I was just a young lad trotting by the Queen's Hotel on my way to the shores of the Bay of Quinte in my bare feet! writes Wallace Havelock Robb in The Canadian Countryman.

A lot of water has gone over the dam in the Sagonaska River since then. As a matter of fact, the dam itself has gone over the dam itself, so to speak—for it is no more. Maybe one of these days the old town will wake up and push the whole river blocks over the dam and let the good stream return to its former beauty both in nature and in name, for it is now the River Sagonaska. However, the Queen's Hotel hasn't gone any place; it has been "going" for over 90 opposite the Town Clock and Market Place all these years and, on the other day, when I walked into the Queen's as an Ayrshire breeder, to attend and speak at the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders' Club—what! Well, now, I'm telling you folks, I had to just pinch myself, that's all, to see if I was not, suppose some; I has been "going" to come along, now, and point out the "I" was me" of my childhood days. I don't care two pins about who I should have pinched in the eye to hear them telling you that I was pinching me, just to see if I hadn't been dreaming.

I'll tell you something else in the pinching business! When I was a barefoot boy around Belleville we used to go for a swim at the dam there, on certain days, after our swim we used to go over to a cheese warehouse and shipping dock and get under the platform and pick up the pinched samples of cheese which the inspectors had thrown away. I think they knew our liability for some pretty really fine cheese would be cast down between the cracks. Many and many a sample of pinched cheese I pinched of again, during those carefree days of my life.

Speaking of this pinching business, I pinched more than my memory the other day in Belleville. I pinched the Cheese Inspector! I'm told his title now is Dominion Dairy Instructor but that is not the way I, J. L. Irwin, local D.D.O. there at Belleville, is the fellow I pinched. You see, Belleville is the home of the Canadian cheese business, and the Queen's Hotel has always been the home of having high grade Canadian cheese on its tables. Not long ago, the local newspaper, The Ontario Intelligencer, had an editorial about the Queen's and its splendid cheese. So, when we all sat down to the banquet table, we, the Ayrshire Breeders and friends, I was on the lookout for the cheese dish. Presently, along came the cheese. It looked delicious, very tempting, indeed, and it was—all of that. It was a good piece of cheese.

When I arose to speak, I didn't look away down the line to where J. L. Irwin was seated, because I knew that he was interested in seeing what I was going to say about the cheese as it was. I didn't look at him. I just started in to complain about the usual poor quality of the cheese! Oh, oh! Everyone looked most pained but, undaunted by my remarks, not only because they knew that what I said was true, but, also, it was a personal matter on top of that with many, because J. L. Irwin is as big hearted and personality as he is in body, and he has a heap of friends. The cheese was really delicious and I presently said so, but I took this "layman" no notice of leading up to a compliment in order to get up some real interest in this one point: If all the hotels and restaurants would serve such good cheese, the consumption per head in Canada would go up.

It was a splendid meeting; the best ever held, as some of the men expressed it. Clifford, my own lad, and a neighbor's son, Harold Ferguson, Calf Club winners, were there, and a clever little girl, Miss Gertrude Rutherford, daughter of F. M. Rutherford, Ayrshire breeder, Bonar Law, who is decidedly attractive, gave some songs, accompanied by her mother at the piano. What the business was doesn't matter; it was all accomplished in good order, and we all had a splendid time. Including Jamieson Bone, now Mayor of Belleville, who pinched himself, doubtless, to see if I was I and he was he.

War Fought on Plum and Apple

The death of the head of the Tickler's jam company recalls the soldiers of Imperial and Dominion' soldiers of the Great War the inevitable question of Tickler's "plum and apple". There was no complaint that the jam was not good; for, in fact, the jam was not good; it was excellent. Tickler's jam was a weekly treat each week, month after month and year after year.

More than a century ago the British army was said to have gone on a plum and apple jam. They also joked and laughed about it in a great deal. Possibly they would remark that it was apple and plum today and plum and apple tomorrow. One can hear Britain-father's priceless cartoons shoved "Oh! — Tickler's jam again!"

When the 'ell is it going to be strawberry jam? An Old Bill never grouses about—Fort Arthur. It was always plum and apple.

Tickler's product became immortal in song and story. It is a somber joyous story, which may or may not be true, about a Tommy who brought home a pot of Tickler's jam from No Man's-Land with a message which he wrote in a dugout scribbled on a staff officer. And when it was opened it was found to read somewhat as follows:—"Sir, —of two cartons of plum and apple jam (Tickler's plum and apple was even occasionally referred to as "one of the 'orrors of war".

One of the unique trails of the British people is that they can see the humor even of tragedy. They possess something of the Mark Twain quality of humor that no other nation has. They were the only people who extracted humor from war, despite the tragedy and horror of it all. And good old plum and apple jam was one of the touch jokes that never failed.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

ILLUSTRIOUS RULERS

Although their hearts are said to have been set upon a male heir to their throne, the Netherlands are celebrating, with royal and loyal good will, the birth of a daughter to Crown Princess Juliana.

Why do most nation seem to prefer men to rule them instead of women?

Queen Elizabeth gave England, and Queen Victoria gave the British Empire, two of the most illustrious reigns in history.

And under Queen Wilhelmina who came to the throne on the death of her father in 1890, the Netherlands escaped involvement in the Great War, which raged all about them, and have generally enjoyed full opportunity to exercise the industry, commercial acumen and racial and religious tolerance for which their people have long been noted.

What more could a king have given?

Among civilized people living under constitutional monarchies, a male ruler is not so essential as he is in savage tribes, which look to the doughty warriors on their primitive thrones to lead them to victory in battle.

The people in the last analysis are their own boss.—Detroit Free Press.

With color the predominating feature of the affair upwards of two hundred members and guests of the Belleville Kiwanis Club laid aside the cares of business and paid homage to St. Valentine at the annual ball of the club held in the Johnstone Dancing Academy hall last night. The tripping rhythms of Tommy Mason and his orchestra left nothing to be desired from a musical standpoint. Gaily colored balls distributed by members of the club added a gay touch to the general festivities while noise-making apparatus gave the affair a decided "New Year's touch. Novelty dances, spot dances and other different forms of the dance were greatly enjoyed by the guests while the "balloon dance" that saw a cascade of multi-colored balloons float gracefully in the air added to the general enjoyment. Shortly after midnight a delectable lunch was served by members of the host club, an added attraction was a special performance of the "Big Apple" the latest dance sensation, given by a number of guests present. A number of out-of-town guests were present.

Advice to the Lovelorn

by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

They Don't Speak

Dear Miss Fairfax:

You have solved so many people's problems, I hope you can help me out a little. About six months ago my boy friend and I had a quarrel over a little, insignificant thing. I have seen him several times since but ignored him although I'm sure he'd like to make up. We moved out of his neighborhood and I haven't seen him for a long time. Now I've begun to realize that I love him and I want him back. Please tell me how to get him back.

Lucile

Just come down off your high horse, and the next time you see the boy on the street, speak to him. And it wouldn't seem so terribly wicked if you just happened to walk casually by some place where you'd be likely to meet him. As for this business of "stop, look, log." It's silly, and half the time those who indulge in that form of sport are just making love a little bit harder. That kind of "hate", specialists tell us, is just a kind of peevish love.

How to Mark the Wedding Silver

Dear Miss Fairfax:

One of the officers in the firm where I am employed has fallen in love with me, and I with him. And I'm just wild with joy over my good luck, Miss Fairfax. I won't a petter or a drinker, and he says that's why he liked me in the first place.

The firm is going to give us our silver, and they've asked me how I want it marked. As he is an important member of the firm, do you think I should have it marked with his name, or mine? If it was just "poor little me", there wouldn't be any silver at all.

J. U. R.

Don't be so humble, my dear. If you hadn't been charming, the member of the firm would not have asked you to marry him. Silver, trousseau and household linens bought before marriage are always marked with the bride's initials. It's an old custom, and the idea back of it is to keep a record of the family names on the distaff side of the house. Here are my best wishes to both of you.

A Present for a Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Since last September I have been going "steady" with a girl I've lived out of town. He gave me a set of beautiful bookend lamps for Christmas and also a five-year lock-ed diary. Is it proper for a girl to buy her boy friend something for Easter, and what would be suitable? We both like each other very much.

Sue

It's always in good taste to give books, if the young man is fond of reading, and a magazine is a good man's standby. Handkerchiefs make a nice present, too, and if you are clever with your needle, you might embroider his initials on some handkerchiefs. You can make a charming gift, too, by making a bandanna and pin cushion to bear in mind to get something which would look well on him. Leather goods are acceptable—perhaps a leather collar boxes for travelling, or military hair brushes in a case, or a billfold.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The ladies of the W. A. of Shannonville United Church held an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Murphy on Wednesday, Feb. 9.

A delicious pot-luck dinner was served at noon to forty-two at 15 cents each, the proceeds amounting to $7.15.

After dinner a meeting was held which was opened by singing the theme song and all repeating the Lord's prayer. After singing a hymn the minister, Rev. Craig, led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Rob Rollwitz, vice president. Mrs. Sam Elliott gave a reading entitled "Home and Chance" urging members to make use of opportunities as they come each day.

As the secretary, Miss Ella Sheaver, sent in her resignation, Mrs. Coral Simpson was chosen to supply.

It was agreed to pay Miss Florence Terry who sends greeting cards to the aged members of the community, for this society, the sum of $1.00 to carry on this work. The sum of $2.00 was also given to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church. A hearty vote of thanks was given the hostess for her kindness in opening up her home to the meeting. The visitors were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Murphy, all the members. After the closing hymn all joined in repeating the W.M.S. benediction.

Modern Child Can't Live in The Past

Unfair Not to Allow Him to Do Things His Companions Do

By LISA ORENELLE

MRS. SNOW would not allow her children to attend the movies; definitely not. Her modern method of "bringing up children on the movies" Mrs. Snow considered simply scandalous. She couldn't imagine how parents in their right minds could allow their "ti lamb only the immorality", she said, "but the excitement, the vulgarity—the ideas they put into their heads!"

Besides, Mrs. Snow was often heard to say, her children didn't enjoy the movies. They preferred such wholesome amusements as going to the zoo, riding the merry-go-round, seeing an occasional puppet or juggler show or an operetta.

Nor did Mrs. Snow allow her children to listen to those dreadful children's skits" that came over the radio—no hair raising, no vulgar! The same went for certain children's columnetators. There was no taste there, she said, according to Mrs. Snow—no imagination, no culture.

Would Be Different

No, Mrs. Snow's children would be different. They would keep the old-world charm and delicacy . . . taught to stand around the piano and sing delightful old French nursery songs, as Mrs. Snow had done herself as a child. Sitting on their mother's knee, they made such a charming old-fashioned picture, while she read them some of her own old favorites, like "Peter Rabbit."

We moderns really have missed something, haven't we? But can you turn back the clock?

It isn't healthy for anyone to live in the past, and it certainly isn't fair to ask it of children. It's their own childhood, in their own age, that they have a right to live, that they naturally want to live. They don't want to repeat Mother's childhood.

Perhaps you may think this is a vulgar age, but our children were born in this age, for better or for worse, and they can only alter that fact.

Whether we like it or not, the movies and the radio are part of this period, part of our children's lives, even if they are never allowed to see or hear them. We can't fight actual time. Why try it? Why not pick out the best our times have to offer, and give it to our children? Teach them, not to turn their back on the present, but to take the best of it.

GOOD MANNERS

by MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Personal Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Is it proper to give a "personal" shower for bride-elect? This would include lingerie, scarfs, toilet articles, and so forth.

2.—Is there any way in which to indicate to some of the bridesmaids . . . perhaps older friends, for instance? If so, should they read the procession of ties or three pairs of bridesmaids, or do they walk singly?

3.—Is it proper to send only invitations for a wedding, which would include friends and relatives not of the city who would not be expected to be able to attend? Is it the custom I believe to send announcements to them but they may feel that they have been slighted by not knowing of the wedding beforehand.

4.—Is it proper for the gentlemen to wear tuxedos for a four o'clock wedding?

5.—What is the usual procedure for receiving congratulations after the wedding ceremony? Do the parents of the bride and bridegroom stand with them? If so where in the party do they stand? If the congratulations are received at the church do the parents stand with them?

6.—When receiving congratulations after the wedding ceremony does the bride" to a friend who has not met her before even though the friend is a gentleman?

7.—How do recently married couples introduce each other to close relatives and friends? Is it correct to say "This is my husband, John", or "This is my wife, Mary", or should they simply say, "This is John" or "This is Mary".

8.—When one member of a group of four or five women is introduced, and is then asked to present the others, should she introduce the oldest women first; or in order not to complicate the introductions is it correct, for her to introduce them in the order in which they are seated, even though some of the young women would be introduced before some older ones?

9.—You have stated several times that when a gentleman is walking with two ladies he walks on the outside next to the one with whom he is breaking company. What is the custom when two gentlemen are with one lady? What is correct when he is keeping company with neither of these two ladies nor the lady with netner of the two gentlemen the three being just good friends?

Gloria

1—Yes a "personal shower" is often given for a bride-elect and an excellent, kind of shower it is, of real service to the bride-to-be.

2.—There is no way in which you can show greater honor to some bridesmaids then to others. As a matter of fact, the bridesmaids should walk in pairs, the shortest leading. So it is only to their height that we can give honor!

3.—It is entirely proper to send only invitations to a wedding. And indeed this is the usual custom. For just the reason that you have named; an invitation to a wedding is even sent to a person whom we know cannot attend, is a compliment to that person, more important, more personal, than an announcement.

4.—That is a personally problem-ing you. . . . "It is the custom, I believe, to send announcements to them" . . . is not the usual custom. The emphasis not on the fact that you know they can't come, but on the fact that you are giving them the opportunity of sending them an invitation.

5.—No, dinner coats (Tuxedo suits) are not properly worn in the day-time. For a formal four o'clock wedding the men in the wedding party should wear cutaway coats and appropriately formal accessories.

6.—Usually, in the wedding receiving line, the mother and father of the bride (the hosts of the occasion) stand first, then the father and mother of the groom, the groom's mother at the left of the groom. Then the groom, with the bride at his right; then the maid of honor, and then the bridesmaids. If the felicitations are received at the church, it would seem to me more consistent with this informality if there were not a receiving-line. The people then might stand near the bride and groom, but not in a formal receiving-line.

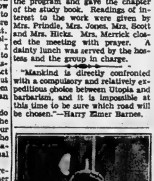
8.—No, everyone is presented to the bride.

9.—Both of these forms of introduction are correct, but they would be adapted to the circumstances. That is, to a relative or friend who knows that "John" is the husband of "Mary" the wife, it would not be necessary to say "my husband" or "my wife". When it is necessary "my husband" or "my wife" should be added to the "John" or "Mary".

1.—In a group of only four or five women it would be easy to give honor to the older women of the group by making the introductions first to them. In a larger group, the introductions would be more simply made by making the introductions in the order in which the guests are standing or sitting.

9.—When a man is walking with two women he walks on the side of the pavement nearest the curb. I cannot remember ever having said that the man would walk next to his fiancee de to the woman whom perhaps he knows better. As a matter of fact, I should say just the opposite. Let's say that he and his fiancee and a woman friend of theirs are walking together on the street. The woman not his fiance would more appropriately walks between the engaged pair in the sense of being their guest, being given attention from both sides". When two men are walking with one woman the woman walks between them.

Maybe This Is Why You're Constipated



Perhaps the kind of food you eat doesn't give your bowels anything to work on. Meals, instead of bread don't form the kind of soft, bulky mass that will help move your bowels.

If so, a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. Thousands of tasteless may need to work properly. And in addition, it contains the intestinal tonic, vitamin B, which helps to tone them. If you want to get at the cause of your trouble, eat some Kellogg's All-Bran every day—as a cereal or baked in muffins. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by every grocer.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The February meeting of Carmel W.M.S. was held in the home of Mrs. Arnold Scott with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Simmons, opened the meeting and conducted the worship service assisted by several members. Bedden Homans was chosen as delegate to the Provincial in Napanee. Mrs. Horton, group leader, took charge of the program and gave the chapter of the study book. Refreshments of interest to the work were given by Mrs. Frindle, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Hicks. Mrs. Merrick closed the meeting with prayer. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and the group in charge.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

a clock drawn on the Merchants Trust Company, for twenty-odd dollars, and signed Thomas M. Chisholm, Jr. The check was folded on to a sheet of yellow practice paper used by students, and the paper was blank. It left Maydra feeling oddly hollow, and uncertain in the pit of her stomach.

The signature was thick, very bulky, and contained seven pages all closely set on both sheets with hurried handwriting executed in green ink and dotting frequently with large blots of darker green ink.

Maydra carried the thick letter into her bedroom, and read all of it, every word. "Maydra, my darling," to "always yours, Tommy" and the final blank monstrosity after the reading she wished, rather tertibly, that she had never seen Sara Jordan or even Wakefield Ballinger for that matter.

Then Gerda came with a Manhattan for her, perching on the foot rail of the Colonial bedposter bed to sip hers, and eye her room-mate.

"Letter from the bad headache down in New Jersey?" she commented.

Maydra nodded silently, folding the thick letter back into its envelope again.

"Wake called?» Gerda offered. "Said to tell you he was going to try to get around for a few minutes tonight, late. After the second act."

"Thanks, Gerda," Maydra murmured, still too weary to respond.

"If you'd quit reading his emotional spasms," Gerda offered mildly, "maybe you'd appreciate Wake more. Or is it to be Sam?" Nodding toward the dresser, where the two calling cards reposed, awaiting their return to the owner.

"Not Sam," Maydra said positively. "Not Wake, either— probably", she added thoughtfully. "It's all pretty confused, Gerda, but there must be money ..... even large fortunes ..... attached to people who aren't quite such a dubvious bargain as those we've encountered to date!"

"Not any that I've run across yet, Infant," Gerda assured her briskly. "You have to accept that. Like nerves along with black coffee, and cigarets with large meals. They're fairly inseparable! And Wake is a pretty good pet at men, go. He's consistent, if not too consistent. And I'm not sure that constancy wouldn't be monotonous, given enough of it! Maybe we're uneven, as a social group. Maybe we have to restrict ourselves to a new pattern for each individual— by it's logical to assume that you can't change the entire structure of human lives, without the alterations affecting our social alignments!" She sighed a little, and fixed out what I really can have in the way of bargains with Hell in a sling with Sumne and —mark time!"

"You're letting Sam frighten you Gerda assured her. "But after you get used to his type of slug you'll find him quite fun in circles. And even if you should let your mind wander, you'd come right back to the original plan again. You'd hate, inside wearing shabby clothes, talking off creditors, robbing Peter to pay Paul! No contest, Maydra. Stick to your guns and you'll have no regrets!"

"I'm going for a walk up the street —I need to get the fog out of my mind!" Maydra said suddenly.

She walked farther than she had intended, and coming back passed a parked coupe with two people in it. Sara Jane Carmichael and Sam Stone. They were arguing hotly about something, and Maydra, feli guilty, was hearing only a single sentence of their quarrel.

"I mean it now, I do feel. Like! You know I can't!"

She caught a glimpse of Sara's pale, tearful face as she passed, and shivered. She looked as sullen and defiant as Sam charmed! Sara had been weeping, and her face was swollen and red. She looked anything but smart and poised.

No conquest, Maydra's subconscious reasoned flatly: there were a million miles between Lindy Moore and Wakefield Ballinger. Or was it just the millions, countless millions of dollars?

She returned to the apartment thirty minutes later, to find Bill Lord playing one of his compositions to Gerda.

"Darling, it's for me," Gerda complained, "so he can go over there!"

"Big nothing," Bill contradicted her cheerfully. "I came around to offer you a wedding ring. That is in case Locke is getting Hollywood notions with all those movie theaters he owns owned!"

"Thanks, Bill; I'm not scared. And not in the least in love with you!"

"Still, with a perfectly legal husband to spring on him, he wouldn't stand a chance of starting anything violent."

"And just what would we live on?" Maydra inquired coolly.

"Well, we're both getting by, as we are, and marriage wouldn't increase our expenses, would it?"

"Overlooking the fact that I don't love you, Bill," she repeated.

"Well, did you love Sam Locke when you agreed to wear his diamond engagement ring?" "And I suppose you're just crazy over Wake Ballinger?"

"You suppose altogether too much, Grandpa," Maydra mocked. "I'm simply weighing over my affairs for a while, will you?"

He stared a while longer. He played a number of selections on the piano, and his music was haunting, ragtastic and he talked in his most brilliant vein. Between illustrations on the campaign they were doing jointly, and various other subjects.

Not until long after he had left did Maydra remember that Wake was supposed to have come.

"Do you suppose he some and heard Bill here, talking, and didn't come in?" maidra hazarded.

"No! Wake," Gerda said briskly, her golden eyes lively and eager. "If we were holding a special session of Congress here, he'd breeze right in and join the discussion! He was probably detailed."

"Perhaps Kay is ill again. She really should have this appendix attended to."

"Perhaps she's throwing that first baloney at him!" Gerda amended.

Maydra went on into her room, and got ready for bed. The bell rang just as she turned out her light, and in faint exasperation she waited until Gerda had answered the door.

"A woman, Maydra —says she works at Suzanne's. Name of Brownley. Want to see her? She looks rather ill!"

"I'll be right along, Gerda. Thanks."

Sara was still dabbing at her eyes and nose when Maydra came out.

"Maydra, could I stay with you just for the night? I—I've lost my keys and can't get in until morning!"

Maydra nodded, thinking. Remembering the parked coupe, the brief sentence she had inadvertently overheard. It was Friday, and Steve must be home, because this was his "long" alternate week-end.

Had he locked Sara out? It was impossible to do more than guess, because invariably she rambled on and on, following always the pattern she wanted you to believe — not what actually was, what really had happened!

It was a restless, hectic night, and Maydra woke tired, unrefreshed, and oddly irritated at Gerda's comical, humorous pantomime. This, said her eloquent clowning beforehand, you get when you blend your colors to anything less than a tall, mighty dollar sign. This was how these work-and-share, 50-50 marriages turned out! And the one pay envelope plan was even worse, because that meant bitter privation humiliating want.

By noon, Maydra was thinking incidentally about Wake, Wonder-ing why he had failed to keep his engagement of the night before. Reasonably certain that he would look her up and explain, during lunch hour.

But she went out to lunch, ate, and reluctantly returned to work again, without hearing a word.

"Any calls for me, Benny?" she inquired.

"No calls, Miss Maydra! Don't worry ... that colleen boy sweetie of yours is way out in Indiana by now. They're playing Notre Dame this week-end, and I'll bet the Tigers clean 'em up! Boy, have they a team this year!"

"Yes, Benny? Only I'm sure I don't know what you're raving about! I've no 'sweetie' and I don't collect football stars!"

She went on in to change to the shop uniform, a smock over a trim gown, with Suzanne's embroidered in gold across the pocket at the upper left of the smock, and a sheer, gold, chiffon handkerchief tucked pertibly into the pocket for contrast.

The day dragged to a close, and finally Maydra was again through for one more week-end.

Sam was waiting outside, without his chauffeur, and he held the door open as she came out.

"Please, Maydra? I do want to talk with you, and I'd planned such a nice Sunday for us. The house, we were to look at again, and a dinner at the Linbrook Country Club, in Connecticut. Is there any reason why we shouldn't have fun together, without all this serious business of our future?"

The memory of Sara lay like a heavy pall across her weary spirit. She felt crushed, defeated somehow, and betrayed. As if things were all wrong, and she couldn't find the key to right them.

"Come, my dear, you don't actually dislike me, now do you? We've had fun, and I've let you make the rules, so far. You can keep on making them, so far as I'm concerned."

Maydra wavered. She hadn't heard from Wake, and a gnawing suspicion that he was standing her up for no good reason rankled. Men with as much money as this were as likely as not to go prima donna on you, as a temperamental actress.

SKATING CLUB GIVES PROGRAM

Belleville Skaters Provide Excellent Entertainment For Large Crowd

Tweed, Feb. 18 (Special)—The appearance of the Quinte Skating Club of Belleville at Tweed Arena on Friday night was one of the highlights of the winter season. The Belleville club has appeared here annually for the past three or four years and has never failed to delight the crowd of admirers of the figure-skating art. The attendance this year was larger than usual, and every number presented by the members of the club was well received and greatly enjoyed. Tweed band, under the baton of Bandmaster Reg. Wilson, provided the music for the various numbers which were under the direction of Mr. A. Leslie, Master of Ceremonies.

Performances of particular excellence were supplied by Gordon Davies, Mike Ridley, Georgia Scott, Barbara Leslie and Myrtle Smith. The costumes of the various performers greatly enhanced the beauty of their graceful numbers.

The following program was presented:

"O Canada"; opening number, the entire club; foursome, A. Smith, J. Scott, M. Ridley, B. Verrow; solo, G. Scott; comedy number, Leslie walk, B. Leslie, M. Smith; ten step; solo, G. Davies; trewzers, G. Scott, M. Ridley; waltz; waltz, J. Scott, A. Smith; solo, Ridley; grand finale.

Tweed

Tweed, Feb. 18.—Reeve Sayers, Commissioners A. J. Meyers and Joe Rashotte and Mr. M. Johns, manager of Tweed Hydro, attended the annual convention of the Ontario Hydro at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto last week.

The regular meeting of the girls' branch of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. George Freeman on Friday evening. Following supper the meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Laura Thompson. The Scripture lesson was read by Marion Clark. The attendance at the meeting included twelve members and two visitors. After the discussion of certain items of business, several contests were enjoyed. Mrs. Swayze, Lois Clark, Doris Elliott and Marion Clark were the prize winners. The meeting adjourned following a vote of thanks to Mrs. Freeman for her hospitality.

Rev. R. B. Herrington of the Thomasburg Circuit occupied the pulpit at the United Church on Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. Hitchcock and gave a very fine address.

Plainfield and Eldred hockey clubs played to a 1-1 tie at the local arena on Thursday night.

A number of friends were entertained at a dinner bridge at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. W. L. Kelly on Wednesday evening.

Advantage was taken of the opportunity to present Miss Lois Chesson with a lovely blue satin quilt at her residence, speaking over made by Mrs. F. E. Moffat, B.A., on behalf of the guests. Miss Lois Chesson will leave in a short time for Kingston where she will enter the General Hospital as nurse-in-training. The bridge prize winners were Mrs. S. H. Connor and Mrs. A. B. Allen.

Mr. D. H. Morrison is still confined to his home through illness.

Miss Frances Graham left last week for Toronto where she will undergo an operation at Toronto General Hospital.

Bill Glowacki, former pitcher for Canadian Steel Works softball team, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his home in Kingston. Bill has been starring for the Kingston intermediate hockey team as goal keeper until his illness.

"Chuck" Leal is making a great name for himself at McMaster University. He led his year in several subjects at the mid-term examinations and is now a member of the board on the defence for the Marcon hockey team. Chuck is also a keen boxer trying to live him up or the balance of the season. On Friday night he represented the Central Collegiate in a debate against a representative of the girls' residence, speaking over CKOC, Hamilton.

Tweed Public Library enjoyed a successful year in 1937 according to the annual financial report. Receipts totalled $361.17, made up of balance for 1936, $24.49; grants: village $100, county $75, legislature $46.14; membership fees, $70.45; fridge party, $10.50; cooking school, $2.50; magazines, $10.12; miscellaneous, $11.00; total $356.22, made up of books and magazines, $106.12; insurance, rent, light, heat, $131.86; librarian, $111.00; miscellaneous, $6.04; leaving a balance of $4.35.

During the year 65 new books were added to the library and 36 were discarded. There are 1253 volumes of adult non-fiction, 1809 volumes of adult fiction, and 907 volumes of juvenile fiction. The total circulation for the year was 4301 books and 606 magazines, a grand total of 4907, which is far below the total for the year 1936 when 10,065 books and magazines were borrowed. During the year the Board held six regular meetings. The chief difficulty confronting the library is the question of finances, and on more than one occasion they have discussed the question of the advisability of closing the library. However, they still carry on, although it means hard work for a few. This is greatly to their credit as the organizations fill as important a palce in the life of a community as the library.

The number of borrowers during the past year was 95, of whom a considerable number were listed under irregular or transient as they subscribed for only a part of the year.

The following are the members of the board for the year 1938: Honorary Chairman, F. E. Moffat, B.A.; secretary, S. H. Connor; treasurer, W. K. Spackman; executive, Messrs. A. W. McGuire, W. S. Gordon, I. D. Corcoran, S. R. Curry, H. W. Coe-hle, Mrs. A. C. Locke, Mrs. F. E. Moffat, B.A., Mrs. Roy Allen, Miss J. McMeiklohn, Miss A. M. Rayburn.

The choir of Tweed United Church had charge of the service on Sunday evening. A most interesting program of music was rendered entitled "An Evening With Some of Our Best-Loved Hymns". The program opened with a male quartette, "Let the lower lights be burning", Messrs. Gordon Coe, Ernest Matter, O'Connor.

Mr. W. K. Tummon, who was in charge of the program, gave an interesting commentary on the hymns. Circumstances which led to the writing of the hymns, and evidence of the help which many have received from them were given by Mr. Tummon. The following hymns were used: "Tried not in temptation", Mrs. W. E. Tummon and ladies of choir; "There were angels by and sing", B. Wilson and choir; "Jesus, lover of my soul", R. McFeeter and choir; "Sometime we'll understand", Mrs. Grier; "What a friend we have in Jesus".

In spite of the icy condition of the streets there was a good attendance and the musical program was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. W. S. Gordon is confined to his home through illness.

Mrs. E. C. Sills of Foxboro was the guest of her sister, Mrs. S. H. Connor for a few days.

The condition of Rev. R. R. Nicholson, who has been ill for some time is considerably improved.

Sudbury Wolves Defending Title Won by Kimberley Dynamiters

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 15 (CP)—Thousands of hockey enthusiasts arranged today to see top-flight clashes between Great Britain and the United States, the 1936 champion, and Canada, runner-up in the 1937 tournament, also includes a contest between Canada and Czechoslovakia.

The Canadians were expected to defeat the host team but the Great Britain-United States clash was considered an indication of the forward strength the Canadians will challenge to get into the world annual amateur championships. In which an Ontario team playing as the Sudbury Wolves are defending the title won at London last year by Kimberley Dynamiters.

Actually here is nothing but practice games in the Britain-United States contest. Much leading hockey players names in his pool has qualified for the semi-finals group play. After tonight's games six clubs will drop out and eight advance.

Five Teams Certain

Five of the teams to make up the semi-final have made certain of their places, Canada, Switzerland, Poland, Great Britain and the United States. Germany and Hungary are expected to advance with the eighth place uncertain.

The eight clubs will be drawn in two groups of four each and each team will play each other team in its group with the top two teams in each group going into the final round of four clubs.

The Canadians made certain of their place with two weekend victories, over Sweden and Austria.

Britain, the United States, Poland and Switzerland clinched their places yesterday. The British team, with a backbone of Canadian-trained players, including Moose-town's Jimmy Foster in goal, defeated Latvia 5-1. MAROONS MUST WIN TONIGHT TO STAY IN RUNNING

If Amerks Beat Canadiens And Maroons Lose to Bruins Its All Over

BRUINS NOW IN

Boston Has Become One of The Great Units in N. H. L. History

(By The Canadian Press)

Only 16 months have passed since Montreal Maroons' Tommy Gorman and Boston Bruins spinning from National Hockey League playoffs in the first round, but in that time the pictures of the clubs' relative strength has changed almost completely.

Bruins have become one of the great units in N.H.L. history, leader of the American Division since the season's start; Maroons have faded until they stand on the brink of elimination from the playoff race. When the two teams collide in Boston tonight Maroons' chances of reaching the Stanley Cup series may slip away almost entirely.

The Canadian Division's second, third and fourth teams will be in action tonight and if New York Americans, in third place, can defeat Montreal's second-place Canadiens, Boston can make Maroons' chances hopeless. After that, Detroit Red Wings would have to win games in 13 while Americs were taking only five in 15 to force a play-off for third and last playoff spot. And the rules is which the two have been going indicate nothing of the sort will happen.

Poor Hard Task

The Montrealers face a big wall in their Boston invasion. They have lost three of four games to Bruins this winter and tied the other. Two defeats by New York Rangers during the last week and a half extended their streak of losses to four.

Bruins have been the first of the league's giant clubs to reach the playoffs, piling up defeated Chicago 1-0 Sunday. Detroit, in last place in the American Division, has practically mathematical chance of catching Boston and would have to win every game while Bruins were losing every one to tie the New-York club.

Canadiens have gained three wins and two ties in the last seven appearances but the record doesn't mean so much in the New York game. The Habitants are badly crippled all along the line and Americs have shown strength in repelling a recent bid by Hamilton Tigers, skipped by G. Campbell, were eliminated 8-4 by Eric Cornwall of Detroit yesterday. H. E. Chisholm's Toronto, runners-up to Hall last year, went down 12-8 in the same event, before W. H. Kellar's Midland quartet.

A. G. Gardiner's Barrie four, 1937 victors in the Ritchie-Hills-Ryrie, were beaten 15-12 by R.E. Travers, Kingston, in the Royal York initial round. Favored to make a good showing, Dave Walker's strong Port William rink also were put out of the competition 16-5 by J. M. Rothschild's Toronto Strathconas.

But last night, in the first round of the North American Life trophy, these capable quarters showed their ability by trouncing their opponents.

Campbell defeated H. W. Sanders, Stouffville, 12-8. Chisholm beat G. Robinson, Peneiangishene, 10-9, Gardiner emitted L. Beacon, Lor-rust Hill, 18-4 and Walker vanquished H. F. McGuire, of Bala, 13-11.

FOURTH VICTORY FOR "Y" SQUAD

Defeated Napanee Grads 29 to 15 in Close Checking Game

Continuing their undefeated course towards an O.A.B.A. group title, the Belleville Y.M.C.A. intermediate basketball squad registered their fourth consecutive victory, without defeat, in the Y.M.C.A. Quinte conference, when they defeated the Napanee "Grads" by a 29 to 15 score in Napanee last evening. The victory practically assures Andy Williamson's Belleville squad of hoopsters their group honors and does assure them of top seeds in the play-off for first place.

Led by the elongated Art Cole, the Belleville "Y" hoopsters rang in 17 points in the first half, as they limited the hoosiers to five. In the second half however, Coach Egan's Napanee rapers staged a rally and were only outscored by two points as Belleville pocketed 12 to the homesiders ten. The pastime was not without its comercial, as eight local fouls were called on the homesiers and seven upon the visiting Belleville quintette.

On the limited Napanee floor the shooting eyes were not functioning, which tended to keep the scoring to a minimum. Art Cole led the scorers of the night with 14 points, Gord Edwards, a team-mate following offensively. Callaghan and LeMaestre were the more prominent floor performers for the losers.

FIVE SURPRISE WINS IN FIRST ROUND MATCHES

11th Annual Bouspiel Gets Underway at Toronto

BANQUET TONIGHT

Kingston Rink Scores a Seven-ender And Loses

Toronto, Feb. 15 (CP)—After a first day of upsets, curlers gathered here today for the second round of the main event, the Royal York, in the 11th annual Ontario bonspiel. Two other competitions, the Selkirk and Seagram trophies, open illness and the annual banquet tonight tops off the day's proceedings.

Yesterday's first round play was featured by five surprising results. Hall's great Kitchener four, 1937 grand aggregate winners and holders of the Royal York trophy, suffered an 11-10 defeat by Stan Bert Palmerston rink in the Ritchie-Ellis-Ryrie after surviving a close match in the Royal York.

Hall's quartet get their chance to show their wares today in the Selkirk and Royal York events. Interest-ness in the Royal York first round qualify for the Ritchie-Ellis-Ryrie and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie while losers move into the Seagram and North American Life competition.

Campbell Out of Royal York.

The former Canadian champion Kingston rink, skipped by Dr. Campbell, was eliminated in the Royal York first round by Dr. Malcolmson's Toronto four 20-7.

Another surprise was registered when Dr. Watson's Detroit four received the Royal York bye but lost to Dr. J. C. Malcolmson's Toronto in the Birks. Beaten in the main event, Dr. R. Beattie avenged himself 16-8, defeating W. C. Gohn of Unionville in the North American Life trophy last night.

Western Canada was also well even on the late night play in the North American Life. H. T. White of Orangeville obtained a 10-8 victory over R. Gay of Cabaret. L. Smith, Mount Forest, won 16-8 over J. J. Robertson of Ottawa. M. J. Chisholm's four defeated C. F. Rumsey's Meaford's 13-8.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines with
Ken J. Colling

Out of respect to one who has done so much towards the assurance of a decent hockey league this rink for Belleville, last night's senior O.H.A. game was cancelled after it was learned of the sudden death of Wm. J. "Billie" Hunn. One does not need to expound upon the many fine qualities of the late Billie Hunn, as he went quietly about his various benevolent gestures and always kept out of the limelight; the citizens of Belleville have the late Mr. Hume to thank for the many benefits that will not only filling last night's game should be cancelled under the circumstances.

Squadron Leader Tommy Lawrence, who officiated the game between the Flyers and Redmen be played at a later date as the "W. J. Hume Memorial game", "it is our hope to play this game and devote all receipts for the R.C.A.F. Benevolent Fund, a worthwhile cause, I'm sure you," stated Mr. Lawrence today.

In the meantime the fans are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the date for the next fixtures between the Belleville Redmen and the Kingston Frontenacs for the second half and the Flyers and Peter-ans on the other. The Peter-ans are the last team on the local ice and are taking no chances, they're out to win every game in the series opens at the Belleville Arena on Friday night, the Kingston team having defeated the Peterboro one week from tonight and the Flyers on Friday in Belleville on Friday, Feb. 25th. It is necessary the fourth game be played back to Peterboro on the 28th of the month and the possible fifth game scheduled over for March 2nd, if necessary. Mr. H. Scott, Canadian National travelling passenger agent, is in these parts today endeavouring to arrange some of the dates of these games.

The Belleville-Queen's intermediate "A" play-off will be of the home and home game nature with goals to count on the round. The first game was held in the Kingston on Wednesday night, Queen's defeating the locals 4-3, while the return game on the local arena next Tuesday night. Skipped Thomas is very keen on these play-off games and decided the better plan would be for any of the the sturdy Queen's outfit in Kingston and have some home ice for the deciding game.

There seems to be somewhat of a controversy between the Belleville and Peterboro scribes relative to the size of the various rinks throughout the O.H.A. senior loop. Motor City scribe come out emphatically to say the Oshawa ice surface is much larger than that of the Jock Harty arena in Kingston. Frankly speaking we hope the Oshawa scribe hasn't saved his summer's wages and is attempting to a wager, as we were always under the impression that Jock Harty's rink surface was the largest in the province, equal to that of the Maple Leaf Gardens. The Oshawa scribe suggests that the Generals which, of course is entirely possible, but we are not prepared to say definitely which of course is entirely possible, but we are not prepared to say definitely as his statements regarding the old Mosque Marshall stadium some years ago.

Commenting on last Friday night's Flyers-Redmen game, Belleville's City scribe scribbled as follows: "Phil Caldwell's brilliant goal in the overtime. He wasn't looking especially flashy but he was certainly deadly when opportunity presented. Bill got five goals and three assists in the game, a total of 16 in a mighty fine average. Harding also shone with his fine work in the net. He confessed his strike who had him skated for beach 'cause he needed a few last game. The rest all went well and Doug Gibson continues to show improvement as he finds his true condition after a long layoff. The referees are busy today looking over the players to see if they have gone ineligible by playing too many games. Some dope on it by Monday. And the Flyers are still looking for knock the Peter. Just remind 'em of the 15-1 licking they took at the Flyers. 1937 Ontario champs on the latter's ice."

For the lovers of speed and fig-ure skating the Quinte Skating Club is planning a mid-winter skating exhibition, both speed and figure skaters have appeared in this city previously and on this night, at Cobourg, Campbellford, Tweed and other communities for the exhibitions with marked success this season. Chairman Ivan Ellis and his committee are spar-ing no efforts to make their show on March 24th, outstanding in its particular phase.

Andy Williamson's Belleville Y.M.C.A. intermediate O.A.B.A. hoopsters made it our straight in the Bay of Quinte O.A.B.A. group last night by way of a 29 to 15 victory over the Napanee "Grads" at Napanee. The local cagers were all over the homesters during the first half, but Coach Egan's team made matters somewhat even throughout the second stanza, but on the subject of basketball we find tonight's Belleville at Port Hope, which was originally postponed until Thursday night at the request of the latter's managers. Tonight the local lassies must win this game to keep in the O.A.B.A. race.

HODGE PODGE: Tis sad "Schoolboy" Rowe's arm has responded and will be out of baseball for a month or so. McCarthy's worries were cut yesterday when Pitcher Mickey Cochrane signed their Yankee contract. Lou Gehrig to sign before sundown today, however.... Umpire-baiting Bill Callahan leads the Detroiters' setters this winter with 15 goals and six assists, three ahead of Roy Wilson, chief marksman on the Redmen.... Roy has nine goals and an equal number of assists.... Incidentally, Wilson played nine games, scored nine goals and had nine assists, something of a 9-9-9 threat guy.

HAWKS AFTER PLAYER

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP)—Some player in the National Hockey League would be worth $10,000 to Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of Chicago Black Hawks—but he won't tell who the player is.

The Major has offered that amount to another N.H.L. magnate, and has revealed only that the player is a forward and would be of immense help to the injury-ridden Hawks.

Random Pick Ups!

Goldsworthy and Welland completed the rout five seconds later before Leafs or Bruins had touched the puck or their tonsils twice in gasping over that first stanza.

Goldsworthy "stood" by your Leafs' game at an almost equally critical juncture. Leafs had fought into the third before this second inversion of form occurred. The score was at 4-1 for Bruins when Hollett was bolsted and Drillon knocked down one in on a gang pass from Davidson.

Smith, who had flagged Hollett, chased Cowley and Davidson for tripping. Leafs turned on a terrific gauging act and Mitz shot a pass that should have gave him as the home team's goalie came to the Leafs raged and fought for possession in front of Simmon's cage.

That, with the lapse by Broda earlier, was the double jay-only Bruins had the odd man now instead of Leafs. They were loose.

Actually this break, while it went against Leafs, also helped them because Bruins lost a goal they had legitimately scored except for the fact that Smith had stopped play for a Leafs' man.

This may sound a trifle mixed but not any more so than everyone was out of the ice while they huddled and yelled and screamed at one another and at the referees over what to do.

Boll almost scored as he came down to the ice when he shot the puck away from Shore and went right in on goal to be smartly frustrated by the alert Thompson. He was the only one beaten.

Bobby Bauer put the game on ice when he flashed around Davidson, went in alone and beat Turk with a fine, low drive that Goldsworthy and Hollett went in together for Bruins' sixth.

No defence player in hockey breaks away faster than the blond-thatched Jimmy. When he slops a rush with his stick, he is in full flight almost at the same instant. Usually he flies straight like an arrow in flight, for the goal.

This is not without employed finesse. As he passed the first opposition he flung the puck on one side and to Chamberlain's stick. Murphy went in fast and as he saw Fowler converging on the net, he slung the puck to him obliquely and Jimmy smashed it behind Kerr with a shot that left the goalie breathless for an impassioned instant ere it broke and cascaded to the floor of sound that rocked the magnificent amphitheatre.

Need for Revision Of British North America Act

Rotarians Told That The Constitution Framed by The Fathers of Confederation Seventy Years Ago Is Not Suited to Modern Conditions.

Canada's constitution as embraced in the British North America Act and in operation for the past seventy years was the subject of discussion before Belleville Rotary Club Monday, the guest speaker being R. A. Pringle, barrister, who explained the Act in its various ramifications, particularly its division of authority between Federal and Provincial parliaments. Framed, by the Fathers of Confederation to suit conditions of seventy years ago the British North America Act is unsuited to present conditions and in the opinion of the guest speaker should be amended to suit modern conditions. The Fathers of Confederation were not to blame because they could not foresee the changes which would come in the years ahead, nor was the Privy Council to blame for its interpretations, being governed by precedents age-old and hoary. It was up to the various provinces to get together and co-operate in such manner that the constitution could be changed to suit modern conditions. It is up to Canada to govern the constitution, not be governed by it.

Various decisions of the Privy Council on questions of jurisdiction of Dominion or Provincial governments were cited by the speaker as instrumentalities of the British North America Act, notably social service legislation brought down by the Bennett government, most of which was declared ultra vires. This practically nullified the legislation because the provinces could not afford to bring such legislation into force.

Under the B.N.A. there were 28 specific clauses giving authority to the Dominion parliament and sixteen specific clauses conferring authority in various matters upon the provincial government. Under those clauses it was left for the courts into court the first task of the legal lights concerned was to determine whether the issue came under provincial or Dominion jurisdiction.

Canada, Dr. Pringle declared, was handicapped in various ways by the constitution. No treaty can be made without the consent of the Dominion, and other obstacles are placed in the way of Dominion jurisdiction. Federal power has been so cut down by the many decisions of the Privy Council in its interpretations of the B.N.A. that responsible government in many instances has been destroying.

Mr. Pringle, the guest speaker, was introduced by Howard Clarke, while Rotary appreciation was voiced by Archie Cameron.

A tribute to the memory of the late William Ponton, a charter member of the Belleville Rotary Club, was evoked by President Fred Ketchabaw, and in respect to his memory the usual community singing was dispensed with.

Encouraging reports were given as to the condition of Rotarians ill, and through illness including Past President J. B. Joyce and Ed Bennett, also Wallie Patterson and Wilfrid Holmes.

DID HE BEAT HITLER?

GEN. LUDWIG BECK

An interesting "inside" story on the German situation has it that contrary to general belief, all that happened last week in Berlin was a Nazi reverse, not a Hitler victory. Blomberg, the war minister, a strong Nazi, was—according to the story—Hitler's military pet. The army demanded his dismissal. He was dismissed, but through General Von Fritsch, the army spokesman who led the rebellion against Blomberg, also was dismissed. General Ludwig Beck, chief of the general staff, and the real power behind the army, remained. The fact that Hitler did not dare touch Beck, and swept away such a secondary army leader, would seem to show that the army kept the upper hand in this "first round." General Ludwig Beck is shown here.

The sheriff who arrested the lad treated him to pie.

EXECUTION DATE

trial and execution was stayed.

A second trial came in May, 1937, and Macchiono again was found guilty. Mr. Justice A. Masson sentenced him to hang the following Aug. 4.

Another Stay Granted

Again an appeal was started and Macchiono was told, in his cell at Oakalla, he would have until Nov. 3 to live. As the appeal was being prepared another postponement of the Sicilian's date with death was made. He could have until Nov. 26.

While the court pondered the appeal the execution date was set ahead until Dec. 17. A decision still lacking, it was put off until Jan. 31.

The appeal court ordered a new trial.

Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer said he would challenge the appeal court decision before the Supreme Court of Canada and went to Ottawa to do just that.

While he was there Clement Carmichael, Macchiono's counsel found what he said was a discrepancy in various stenographic copies of Justice Hinkson's charge to the jury which had convicted his client. He moved to re-open the appeal.

INTENSIFY SEARCH

Sherriff's death came unexpectedly.

Ten minutes before the fatal bullet crashed into his brain, the wounded officer chatted with his physician. The constable's condition was thought to be encouraging and hope for his recovery was held until a blood clot developed and his condition rapidly turned for the worse.

Held Doctor's Hand

"It's tough to be having such a good day," he said while grasping the doctor's hand just before he died.

Sherriff who was 47 had been a member of the Provincial Police since 1923.8. He was stationed at St. Thomas, Ont., until he came here in 1934 as High Constable for Wentworth. He had a distinguished record for bravery. He was born in England and settled in Alberta when he came to Canada. His wife, daughter and son survive.

The constable driven to Orchard Beach early last Wednesday to investigate reports a prowler had been seen around the cottages there. While inspecting the cottages a man jumped upon him from behind a tree and in the ensuing struggle Sherriff was shot. He managed to reach his car and drive almost half a mile for assistance. An emergency operation was performed when he reached the hospital and he showed steady improvement until the sudden change last night.

LYON AND ROEBUCK

"On the other hand, had government support of the policies of the former Conservative administration Hydro today would not have been the gigantic success it is, with power available for power that is unneeded, and the existence of the principle of public ownership, by a Conservative majority of our own hydraulic power resources, which has been transferred for at least a generation," the statement read in part.

The authors of the statement, replying to a recent address of Dr. Hogg's at Niagara arising from the policy of the former Commission was something for which the members must accept full responsibility," declared that the policy of Hydro until the date of the sale—Oct. 1, 1925 was generation of power in Canada without the payment of royalties upon Quebec companies as the only assured market for power.

Contracts With Companies

(Contracts with the Quebec companies, drawn up before 1934, were voided by the legislature in 1935. Amended contracts were signed to reduce the original purchase price of the power and eliminated controversial clauses were signed last Dec. 10. When the new contracts reach their maximum in the year 1943 years, a total of 610,000 horsepower of electrical energy will be delivered to the Commission).

It was in the spring of 1926, "under a cloud of power scandal and public enthusiasm for public ownership," that the first of the Quebec power contracts was entered into, the statement declares and was followed by further contracts. Referring to the Beauharnois contract, the statement says:

Beauharnois Contract

"The 25,000 horsepower from Beauharnois will suffer a 10 per cent loss or more. That alone will mean that the power users of the Niagara system will have to pay over and above the cost of the Beauharnois power put on the lines near Montreal, that has leaked through Beauharnois, reaching Toronto. The revisions made by the Commission of which we were members, and for which we are proud to assume the responsibility Dr. Hogg now disclaims, saved the power consumers of the Niagara system—some of whom are unemployed people—the great sum of $7,500,000 in 1937."

The power contract of the Commission was a reversal to the policy of the Magrath-Cooke-Maguire Commission in 1920-30, it is charged by Messrs Lyon and Roebuck. If the yardstick used to gauge future power demands proved no more reliable than the yardstick used by Mr. Gaby, the Hydro Commission would have to pay the bills for unused and unusable power, it is charged.

Difficult in Forecasting

"Dr. Hogg admits that no one can foretell the future with certainty," continues the statement. "The engineering staff of which he has long been an important member has not supply demonstrated this truism with regard to anticipated increases in power demands. It would be equally difficult to refute the prophesy with regard to international and interprovincial relations respecting the use of boundary waters and ship is not that the case were the Ontario authorities really desirous of overcoming the obstacles.

"Dr. Hogg's lengthy disparagement of the policy of public ownership on the ground of immediate difficulties, does not explain, much less justify, tying his electrical system to private producers until the year 1978."

ICE CARNIVAL AT STIRLING

Colorful Costumes, Races Feature First Event in Village

Stirling—Stirling had its first and most successful ice carnival on Monday evening in the skating arena. Shortly after eight o'clock the ice surface was transformed into a wonderland of colour as many brilliantly costumed skater took to the ice.

The event was sponsored by the Stirling Agricultural Society and after three weeks of careful preparation was planned to coincide with Valentine's Day. The successful location of the roads due to the recent rains no doubt attracted the attendance, still the society is to be complimented on the success of the affair. The organization was ably directed by the following group of committee workers under the leadership of Mr. H. P. Ellis, chairmen of the program committee of the Stirling Fall Fair, W. J. Weldy, V. W. Solmes, Arthur Brunton, R. E. Thompkins, Wm. Pitcher, Jas. Strickland, W. Patterson, James Lagrow, B. Bleecker, J. B. Thompson, R. A. Patterson, Mrs. Arthur Morton, and C. A. Wells. SHANNONVILLE WINS A PAIR

Take Point Anne And Deseronto All in One Night

Shannonville, Feb. 15 (Special)—Shannonville emerged winners of two fast and well played games on the local rink on Saturday night. In the first game they defeated Point Anne by the score of 7 to 5 while in the second game they eked out a 6 to 3 win over Deseronto after twenty-five minutes of overtime.

Point Anne vs. Shannonville

In this game both teams turned on the speed and as a result both goalies were called on repeatedly to make many slops with Bardy in the Shannonville net donning the wonderful goal-tending exhibition. Hunston scored the first goal of the game after about five minutes of play when Sager laid over a perfect pass. Whitehead knotted the count immediately after the face-off when he beat Bardy from close-in. The game continued even throughout the second and greater part of the third with neither team having the edge. A scrambling melee but Shannonville scored two fast goals in the latter part of the third.

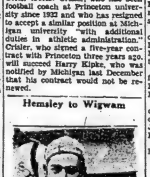
For Shannonville Hunston their star right winger who scored three goals and Reginald Sager, on the defence were the best while Scero was selected to be the pick of the Point Anne team.

Shannonville vs. Deseronto

This game was the better of the two as Deseronto allowed surprising speed and team work in the first period and as a result had a three to one lead when the first period ended which made Shannonville turn on the speed in the next two periods. They failed although they were rather fortunate as Deseronto were leading five to four with about one minute to go in the third when Hunston tied the score. In the overtime both teams appeared to be tired and as a result there was not much speed shown. Harold Marnicle won the game for Shannonville when he sailed in on the Deseronto goaler and beat him with a wrist-high shot. Moon and Dies appeared to be the best for Deseronto, while Bardy in the nets for Shannonville gave a good exhibition of goal-tending.

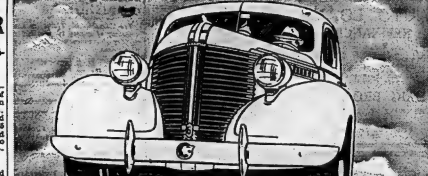
Goal: J. Scero, defence Scott and Spencer; forwards N. Scero, Whitehead and Lott.

Deseronto: Goal, Sharpe; defence Vanallaine and Moon; forwards Hunter, T. O'Ray and Dies. Sube L. O'Ray and Whitton.



Shannonville: Goal Bardy, defence Stan Hall and Reg Brack; forwards Hunston, Reid and Sager. Alex Harold Grove, Jack Marnicle, Eugene Marnicle, Fred Paxson, Jack Spencer; forwards R. Liddle. Referee: Robert Hunston.

MICHIGAN'S COACH



A characteristic study of Herbert Orrin (Fritz) Crisler, who has been coaching football at Princeton university since 1932 and who has resigned to accept a similar position at Michigan university "with additional duties in athletic administration." Crisler has served a five-year contract with Princeton three years ago, will not disclose his salary. He was notified by Michigan last December that his contract would not be renewed.

BOTH CONTESTS GO OVERTIME

R.C.A.F. And Benedict Proctor Winners in Trenton Loop

Trenton, Feb. 15 (Special)—Town league hockey fans were given their money's worth last night. They saw two matches go into overtime. The first game was won by the R.C.A.F. team and Benedict Proctor clinched the second affair to take a strangle hold on the loop leadership. Taking full advantage of their scoring opportunities in the first minute of overtime period the Air Force squad banked Continental Cans a 4-3 setback in the opening contest. Haffey hunkin met defeat at the hands of the Silverplate organization after holding their rivals to a tie until the last period of the regular playing time in the second fixture.

The Proctor performer ran in a single goal in the extra session to edge the stubborn Haffey crew out by a 6-5 decision. The Maddin, Lamoore, Plouffe line shone for the Flyers and accounted for three of their team's four goals. Hewson netted the other for the losers after a great effort in the overtime frame. The Benedict-Proctor scoring honors went to Blakely Johnson 2, Hood and Lott while Inglis, Lawrence, and Hubbis accumulated the Haffey team's total.

M'CARTHY PREDICTS ANOTHER PENNANT FOR HIS YANKEES

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Providing we have no serious injuries" said Marse Joe McCarthy, after having carefully crossed his fingers, "I guess we have as good a chance to anybody of winning another championship."

The Yankees' manager was in an unusually optimistic frame of mind yesterday. Having just learned that a pair of his stand-bys, Bill Dickey and Myril Hoag, had decided to do business with the club and wouldn't quit baseball, after all.

"I don't mind a bit about those injuries," he hastened to insist. "They will work out okay. Dickey never would have beaten us out a few years ago if Dickey hadn't broken my finger."

The teams the Yanks will have to beat, he predicted, are Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland, in that order, "but we're counting coming up.

"The team that ought to be a lot better is Cleveland. Rollie Hemsley has been a good receiving catcher. He should help Bob Feller's pitching. And Detroit, of course, will be a lot stronger if Schoolboy Rowe comes back with a good arm."

Banking On Gordon.

As for the Yankees themselves, Joe has honest enough to admit they shouldn't be any weaker. Particularly, he expects great things from Joe Gordon now Newark to make a whole new infield second baseman, he wouldn't be surprised if the Canadian cluster, George Selkirk, proved a knockout manager-outfielder in the league.

"If you only realize that boy was leading the league with 17 home runs when he hurt his shoulder last year," he asked impulsively. "He can hit a ball as hard as anybody I ever saw and that includes Babe Ruth, Hack Wilson, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx and every other one.

"Our pitching staff might be stronger, than last year. This Alley Oomphald was 19 and lost only 10 at Newark and Joe Begg's record was 21 and four. That's pitching in any league.

Incident Revealed.

In discussing his left fielder, Myril Hoag, McCarthy revealed an incident in the last world series that probably missed. While the Yankees were trying to go of the final game, Hoag twisted out with the bases loaded, and in a fit of anger heaved his bat into the Yankee dugout. Everybody knew that they didn't know that the hurtling timber cracked Lefty Gomez, who was pitching for the Yanks, on the leg.

"It's been an awful time getting Lefty out to pitch those last two innings," McCarthy recalled. "We crowded out in front of the dugout so those Giants couldn't see what was going on while Doug trainer worked on Lefty's leg. He was in a lot of pain and could hardly stand, but I told him for the love of mike not to limp.- He didn't much, and he set those Giants down. A great fighter, Lefty."

MARKET COMMENT

The industrial section of the market conditions in the goldruns, the only interest evidenced being in the mining group. The first day of spring is only a little more than a month away, and if the excitement in the metals borne out, a better market should prevail immediately spring influences become felt. A cautiously optimistic market attitude is being advised.

Technically, the facts are being advanced that the market does not go down on bad news and that it has not made a new low in nearly three months. But after the first engulfing feeling of confusion, bear markets are note. lously unresponsive to developments— months usually ensuing before any substantial upspreads among investors who give usually considered a speculative debacle. With brokerage loans well under $600,000,000 and with restricted accounts down to around 7 per cent., obviously there are no weakly held stocks pressing for sale. In addition to the absence of a menacing loan structure, financial or commercial facts are the SEC rules that greatly limit short selling and prevent pyramiding operations by a scattered bear interest.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Leading shares drifted listlessly to the minus side in today's stock market after early gains generally failed to hold.

Steels led the setbacks, both up and down. Coppers, aircrafts, and heavy industry shares failed to hold advances as the opening of a break in grain prices in Chicago pushed speculative issues lower.

Canadian issues took a narrow path. Dome gained around ½ points and Hollinger around a point. Base Metals and Intyre Porcupine dropped as much.

Stocks fluctuated a point or more lower—many of them after morning advances including U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, International Harvester, Allis Chalmers, Du Pont, Standard Oil of N. J., and N. Y. Central.

Rails showed a few gains. Montgomery Ward, American Smelting, Goodyear, General Electric and U. S. Gypsum.

ALL YOUR SHOTS IN THE BULLS-EYE!

"Outers" mean wasted ammunition — in target-shooting or advertising. Be sure to concentrate inside the "bull" for scores that win.

And there's nothing else in the world can match the daily newspapers, when it comes to concentrating all your advertising shots just where you want them to hit.

The newspapers carry your message to the thousands — and to the millions — as you like, and where you like. They enable you to concentrate in weak markets or strong markets at will. They permit you to score your advertising, tailoring ideas and "copy" to suit varying conditions in different sections or localities.

Because they make it easy for you to select desirable markets and concentrate in them, newspapers give you more effective advertising for less money. You pay only for the circulation you want. You pay no rate penalty for effort wasted on the four winds, or the far corners of the country.

This advertisement was prepared for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association by MacLaren Advertising Company Ltd.

Others said only that the original purpose of the sterilization program was gone. At the time it was started, prices were rising—too rapidly, the administration thought, and hence it acted to neutralize the inflationary effect of gold imports. Now that the country is in a recession, that action no longer is necessary.

KINSMEN ENJOY VARIED PROGRAM

J. Storrs Draws Cartoons of Members And Lebaar Shows Motion Pictures

Showing a market ability with chalk and crayon, Mr. J. Storrs, member of the faculty of Albert College, evoked rounds of applause with his clever cartooning and impersonations relative to several members of the club at the regular banquet and meeting of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville Kinsmen held in the Queen's Hotel last night.

Particularly entertaining was Mr. Storrs's humorous chalk conception of Dr. Sir Robert Falconer, and other subjects that originated from a few simple strokes and developed under the magic of his swiftly moving fingers. Quite funny characters that drew the well-merited applause of those present.

Plans for the annual Motor Show and Fashion Parade that takes place during the latter part of the month or April were discussed, the committee in charge of the meeting by committees in charge of this phase of activity, a report from which will cap any previous attempts at this form of entertainment that has been arranged for, it was reported.

Following the close of the meeting and one that was enjoyed by members present, was a showing of motion pictures photographed by Kinsmen Elmer Lebaar. Many interesting scenes of the various members of the club were shown, particularly those of the screen. Pictures of the Akron Kid Kar Derby, the speed boat regatta and the Kinsmen Miniature Tiner "Cambria" flying over the city were shown to advantage while a Mickey Mouse cartoon was also produced by the club.

A trumpet solo by Kinsmen Fred Jenson, with piano accompaniment by Phil Huddleston added to the entertainment. Impromptu speeches by George Carver and Alexis Lafferty were given with the latter being roundly applauded for a fine dissertation on St. Valentine's Day.

The meeting was held under the chairmanship of Recent Cleo Colling with Kinsmen Gardner Duby acting at Sergeant-at-Arms.

COLDER WEATHER HELPS SITUATION

There is little possibility of the ice jam that has choked the lower stretches of the Moira river for the past eight days moving towards the river-mouth until further diminution of the ice-field below the railway bridge takes place, city officials felt today.

While a further lowering of water levels was noticed today, the rapidly moving current has not changed in the natural channels along both sides of the riverbank are gradually wearing away the side of the solid field north of the bridge.

A general movement of the entire ice-jam that stretches for three-quarters of a mile from the mouth of the river has been apparent since Sunday. A slight breaking up of ice cakes in various parts of the field, noticeable yesterday, was delayed today as freezing temperatures weld-ed the field into a solid mass.

Prediction Made

Predicted heavy volumes of water resulting from the heavy rains of the week-end failed to materialize yesterday and as a consequence Front street residents and residents of the threatened areas along Coleman street breathed easier as threats of another immediate flood dwindled away.

Cellars of buildings on Front street are now practically dry although some firms are still relying on temporary sieves for heating purposes.

Merchants, however are taking no chances on a repetition of flooded cellars and are refraining from replacing merchandize in basements and cellars.

Upper stretches of the river are practically free from floe ice. Solid fields are still in evidence above the Cannifton and Canniffton dams. Reports from these districts state that there is no immediate danger of a breakway at these points although a fairly heavy volume of water is flowing down the river from the northern areas.

Motorists Warned To Secure Licences

"Returns on file in the Highway Traffic Department of the Ontario Government show many chauffeur and motor car operators have not made application for the renewal of their motor driving licences for the current year as provided under the Highway Department", announced Inspector Gardiner of Provincial Police district headquarters at Belleville today.

"As from the 15th inst. I instructed all of my officers throughout District No. 2 of the O. P. P., to call upon all motorists to produce their individual licences for examination and where it is found that 1938 chauffeur and operators' licences have not been received, delinquents will be summoned into court to answer charges according to instructions issued by headquarters and received today," further Inspector Gardiner in substance said.

"There will be no further excuses accepted by our officers and we have strict instructions to enforce this section of the H.T.A. in the future, as it is the duty of all that chauffeur and operator licenses of every description be carried on the person of the motor vehicle operator at all times," concluded Inspector Gardiner.

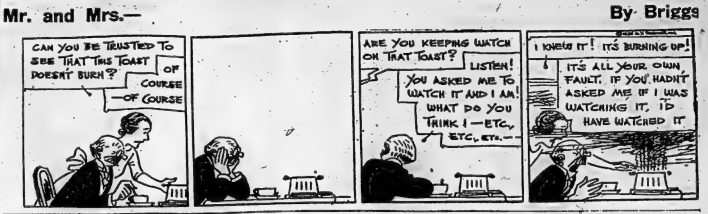
We was eating breakfist and ma said to pop Willyum you're sadly in need of some new socks, do you want me to get some for you at Hookstorers when I'm downtown this afternoon?

No thanks, a man's socks are just as personel to his ankles as his neckties are to his Adams apple, and if he has a spark of pride in his own individuality he ought to pick them out himself, in person, and no wife, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum you know very well if I leave it to you you'll come home with some horrible gaudy monstrosities.

Why will I for Pete sake, pop said, and ma said, Because the last time you brought your own socks you selected the worst one, she.

Well I know my size now, it's eleven, and anyway when I remember back to my school days I recall that the biggest dumbells were always the best in the class at mental arithmetic, so what's that to do with it? pop said, and ma said, It's got plenty, if you dont know a simple thing like a size, how can you be trusted with an intricate thing like a complete pattern?



Yes gods you mite as well say a man is incapable of composing an opera just because he cant drive a nail strate, pop said, and ma said, certainly you mite, because if he cant control an inanimate thing like a nail with the aid of heavy hammer, how is he going to control inanitive objects such as music notes with nothing but a lite pencil?

Yes gods it's a womans world, get me some socks and if you want to take advantage of my weakened condition pick me out some neckties too, pop said.

And he folded up his paper and left for his office still shaking his head to himself.

GALES STRIKE SOUTH LEAVING WAKE OF WRECKAGE

When driving rains, sleet, snow, high winds and leading tides visited California bringing to the sunny southland a touch of King Winter's might, trees, signs and derricks toppled, windows were smashed and ships threatened. Top, an 80-foot eucalyptus tree crashed down on the roof of a porch in Los Angeles where baby Lucy Cicchino, 2, was sleeping and nearly killed her. One of the many autos hit by falling trees when the 78-mile-an-hour gale struck was the machine shown (ABOVE), which was almost demolished by a dead tree at Burlingame. Gordon Leader, a Burlingame employee, is starting the task of chopping away the tree.

Little accurate idea is available on the full extent of the Red navy, but most of the world's experts consider its heavy battleships outdated and its light detachments comparatively weak. AUSTRIAN INDEPENDENCE FEARED DOOMED

Hitler Ultimatum Called Similar to That of 1914, Is View of French Press

No Illusion in London or Paris to Meaning of Latest Event

NAZI CONVICTS OUT

'Capitulation' Says Pertinax, Followed Futile Appeal to Italy

By George Hambleton

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 16.—(CP Cable)—Chancellor Hitler wins Austria's independence is doomed.

In his Reichstag speech next Sunday Hitler will, it is expected again proclaim the ballot in Austria's independence. But neither in London nor in Paris is there any illusion as to the meaning of the latest Nazi cabinet shuffle. It will be independence in name alone. Germany will pull the strings.

"Concessions that end independence!" says the Daily Telegraph's headline.

The Paris press compares Hitler's ultimatum to Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg—Nazis German troops massed on the Tyrolean frontier—with the Kaiser's demands on Belgium in 1914.

"Conscience!"

Austria's "conscience!"

Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hitler's nominee, becomes Austrian minister of the interior. That appointment means that control of the Austrian police passes into the hands of the Iron Nazi symbolizer.

A Germanophile, Guido Schmidt, as Foreign Minister, is to be independent of von Schuschnigg's control;

Removal of Field Marshal Franz Janza as Chief of the Austrian General Staff. Janza is alleged to have been in close communication with General Werner von Fritsch, recently removed from a corresponding post in Germany under Hitler's purge;

All political prisoners in Austria will be released. Among the many imprisoned Nazis who will benefit is Leopold Thas, Nazi leader whose arrest precipitated the Austro-German crisis.

Amnesty Depended on Reich

Hitler is believed to go still further. Details of the Schuschnigg-Hitler talks with von Schuschnigg, now leading one, show Hitler regretted that:

1. Austria should have a pro-German foreign policy, dependent entirely on the German Reich.

2. Austria should put an end to Communist pact;

3. Austria should agree to military co-operation and should abandon all thought of friendship with Czechoslovakia.

Von Schuschnigg rejected Hitler's demands on the ground they would make Austria a vassal state. But Minister Mussolini's more strongly quiet and von Schuschnigg was thrown on his own resources. His proposals for cabinet reconstruction were opposed by many of his own supporters, even, it is stated, by President Wilhelm Miklas himself.

What Next by Hitler?

Now the sensational changes are questioning what Hitler will do next. He has nominally, politically in the Austrian government. A move for an Anschluss (union) with Germany can now be expected. Beyond lie the German minorities in Czechoslovakia.

"France and Great Britain can do nothing to prevent the Nazi annexing a European war," comments The Daily Herald (Labor). The day is past when, because after the war they were immeasurably more powerful than any other European state, they could impose their will on the end of the continent to the other. The League of Nations, which on paper guarantees the existence of Austrian independence of Austria, is hamstringing and powerless.

Will Austria Submit?

"There is some prospect" says The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) "that Austria, with the examples of Germany and Danzig before her, will not submit tamely to be gradually absorbed by the Nazis. It may be useless of her to remind England and France of the declarations they made in the past about the maintenance of her independence. But will it be enough for any one for her to expect assistance from once so diligent, but now embarrassed Italy.

"But there is a strong enough spirit of independence in Austria for resistance to be offered to Nazi pressure, though it is likely to mean tragedy rather than success."

France Concerned

Paris, Feb. 16.—(CP)—Concern over future consequences was expressed by the Paris press today in commenting on Vienna's "capitulation" to Berlin.

The well-known commentator, Pertinax, writing in the Rightist Echo de Paris, declared France was faced with one of the great events of contemporary history, an event whose repercussions cannot be measured."

"Adolf Hitler who adopted an extremely violent attitude toward his predecessor (Engelbert Dollfuss and Schuschnigg of Austria), threw an ultimatum at Austria—an ultimatum comparable to Bismarck's sent to Belgium on Aug. 2, 1914," Pertinax said.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Winter's wind! Where do the winds of winter come from and what is the cause?

Most of the northern portion of the United States and eastern Canada they come from the north-west, but those in southern part of this country they blow from the south more or less northeast. This is because in winter the air pressure is low in the interior of North America, with the centre lying over the Lake Region and the adjacent Canadian provinces. Air flows counter clockwise to the centre of a high pressure area, —outward and clockwise. This results in wind directions as stated above. The variations are caused by storms or cyclones as they sweep over the continent.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP)—An area of high pressure centred in the far northwest Mackenzie valley southeastward across Manitoba and the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, and the weather is fair and cold in nearly all parts of the Dominion. Temperature is relatively low over the south-western states and lower Mississippi Valley.

Lake Superior—Mostly fair and cold today and Thursday; snowflurries near the Soo.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday with scattered snowflurries and a tendency to-wards slightly higher temperature.

Alberta—Mostly fair today and Thursday with slightly higher temperature.

SPECIFIC CHARGES CORRUPTION ASKED BY PRIME MINISTER

Want-of-Confidence Vote Not Put After Debate Closes

BITTER DEBATE

Ghost of 1930 Beauharnois Scandal Stalked Across Floor

Ottawa, Feb. 16 (CP)—Positive assurance that all proper investigation would follow any specific charges of political corruption was before the House of Commons today. It came from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, accompanied by a denunciation of what he called vague insinuations reflecting on the honor of parliament and the efficacy of democratic institutions.

Motion reflecting on the honor of parliament and the efficacy of democratic institutions.

Motion censuring on a Social Credit motion for an inquiry into political contributions and the Mackenzie King lashed out at all three opposition parties, Conservative, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and Social Credit.

He challenged any member of either party to make a single specific charge, accused Conservatives of Bennett of resorting to a time-honored ruse of stirring up scandal by "mere insinuations and attacked the House amendments to the election act which he said would tend to make undesirable practices more difficult.

Amendment Moved.

The debate arose as the government moved that the House go into committee of supply on the estimates and Hon. Grote Stirling (Yale-Fraser River) moved an amendment that a committee be appointed to investigate charges of electoral corruption made earlier in the session by Conservative Leader R. J. Manion.

The motion amounted to a want-of-confidence vote in the government and the prime minister said it was deliberately put in that way because the alignment of the Conservative and Social Credit forces wanted to force Liberals to vote against an inquiry into political corruption. They would then tell the people the government is afraid of an inquiry.

No Vote Taken.

Mr. Pelletier denied any such intention and without his amendment the debate ended. The want-of-confidence amendment, was not put to the test of a vote.

Mr. Mackenzie King said the debate on the motion showed that the courage to make a definite charge, expressed by Hon. Ernest Lapointe in commending on Vienna's "capitulation" to Berlin.

The well-known commentator, Pertinax, writing in the Rightist Echo de Paris declared France was faced with one of the great events of contemporary history, an event whose repercussions cannot be measured."

"Adolf Hitler who adopted an extremely violent attitude toward his predecessor (Engelbert Dollfuss and Schuschnigg of Austria), threw an ultimatum at Austria—an ultimatum comparable to Bismarck's sent to Belgium on Aug. 2, 1914," Pertinax said.

'It Wasn't Any Storm at All', Says London Editor to Query

San Francisco Editor Tries To Get Even With London Papers

LONDON NOT IN SEA

San Francisco, Feb. 16 (AP)—San Francisco reversed London with reverse English today when a morning newspaper of Thursday's reporter, weary at queries from London newspapers about housing and sewage disposal asters here, phoned the London Daily Sketch to ask if a storm had struck that city into the North Sea.

A few weeks ago when a gasoline tank at the Standard Oil refinery, part of the business district, the London papers telephoned to find out about "streets running with flame". Last week when a gale blew down a few trees the London papers phoned to ask if San Francisco would be rebuilt.

"Are you there?" asked the San Francisco reporter seeking verification of the London inquiry. replied he was, the reporter asked, "Well is London there?" He explained he had heard reports the storm had nudged the city into the North Sea.

"Oh, no," replied the editor, "it isn't like that at all." He put the reporter in touch with an assistant who could clear up the storm reports.

"It was rather a good storm," said the assistant, "but the wind was running five miles, but that happens fairly regularly."

"Isn't the city almost done in? Didn't your subway flood and drown everybody?" he asked.

"Oh, good gracious, no. You see,

"Didn't his Majesty and the royal family have to flee Buckingham in a punt? Didn't London bridge fall down? Didn't . . ."

"Oh, I say. Are you pulling my leg?"

To which the assistant replied with finality: "It wasn't any storm at all." And hung up.

Dutch Settlement To Honor Birth Of Princess

Holland Landing, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—Unusual activity today upset the routine of the residents of this small Dutch settlement, thirty miles north of Toronto.

Although thousands of miles from their homeland, the Dutch people are mobilizing their meagre resources to celebrate Monday the birth of a daughter last month to Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands. The event will be a colorful one in the villagers who fashioned bones on the Holland marsh where there are no telephones and where the small Dutch cottages are illuminated by oil lamps.

Evergreens and orange colored trappings fashion the banner and children joyously cry: "In naam van oranje, doet open te poort." (In the name of the house of Orange, open the door.")

Abraham Havinga, one of the committee in charge of the preparations, said that a wood be spent for decorations. They are being made by the willing hands of the villagers themselves.

CAR SLIDES DOWN BANK; OCCUPANTS ESCAPE UNINJURED

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kaiser, Cressy, Were Hurrying to Hospital

Car Skids on Ice

Hurled over a fifteen foot embankment at Rock Hill, a few miles away from their home at Cressy, Prince Edward County, when the car in which they were riding skidded on the icy roadway and plunged down the steep incline, Mr. and Mrs. August Kaiser, miraculously escaped injury early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Kaiser, an expectant mother, was being rushed to the maternity ward of Prince Edward County Hospital in Picton when the accident occurred. Neither occupant of the car was injured.

Kaiser, who was driving the car, lost control when the vehicle skidded on the icy roadway near the cut. Attempting to swerve the car back into the road, the machine went over the edge of the cut, the car plunging a distance of fifteen feet down the incline.

Mrs. Kaiser was taken to hospital by a passing motorist who also helped to be resting quietly. The car was badly wrecked.

TRAFFIC LAWS TO BE ENFORCED

Hon. G. Conant Says Law Against Drunken Drivers Will Be Enforced

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—Ontario traffic laws will be "aggressively enforced" in 1938, Attorney-General G. D. Conant, but in his opinion it is up to the public to think about the necessary improvement in conditions "if we are not to be the only country in this modern era to view our modern civilization, the motor car."

"Our accident rate has increased enormously," he told the Canadian Automobile Club last night. Mr. Conant said the law against drunken drivers will be enforced by the police.

NAZI INFLUENCE IN AUSTRIA GIVEN A POWERFUL ROLE

Great Britain Pictured As Anxious For Reconciliation Between Countries

DANGER OF COUP

Austria By Change Will Retain Her Independence

Berlin, Feb. 15 (AP)—Great Britain played at least as important a role as Premier Mussolini in persuading Chancellor Hitler and Austrian Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg to bury the hatchet, diplomatic dispatches indicated today.

(Mussolini was said to have urged the conference between von Schuschnigg and Hitler which preceded last night's Austrian cabinet shake-up, in which Nazis were given a powerful role in the cabinet change.)

With Austrian independence guaranteed anew and Austrian Nazism defined as an Austrian domestic problem, Berlin believed here there was every reason for von Schuschnigg to welcome closer collaboration between Germany and Austria.

British efforts have been for a reconciliation between Austria and Germany, friction between the two countries being regarded as a possibly endangering European peace.

This is how diplomatic sources viewed Britain's role in the Germano-Austrian, Hitler-Schuschnigg crisis.

Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Germany, was in almost extremely important messages to Hitler when he arrived from London Feb. 8 and has been in constant touch with his government since.

Against Forceful Means.

Since he came to power, the cornerstone of Hitler's policy has been to decry for an amicable arrangement with Austria. The one thing that a stumbling-block to European peace has been the constant danger of a coup d'etat by the Nazis in Austria.

Sir Nevile Henderson is said to have impressed upon Hitler that any attempt to bring about "anschluss" or closer union, with Austria, by forceful means would cause the gravest counter measures by Great Britain and France.

On the other hand Sir Nevile was said in some quarters to have been instructed to offer Hitler concessions in the realm of access to raw materials and colonies if Austria—as a reward for the end of friction between Austria and Germany.

Probably British Loan.

There were rumors here that a British loan to Germany would be forthcoming in the event of an Austrian settlement. Emphasis also was taken for granted that British diplomacy would be exerted in Rome, Vienna, emphasizing the advantages to Austria and to all Europe of a friendship between the two central European German states.

Hitler's speech, the exact nature of the new relationship between Austria and Germany, and a communique announced, however, that "measures which will guarantee the establishment of a close friendly relationship between the two states and will correspond to the history and the general purpose of the German people" had been decided on.

Without waiting for details, the Nazi press welcomed the change.

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—Thrown from the cab of his truck after it went out of control on the Hamilton-Port Dover highway early today and crashed into a pole and tree, Clarence Adkins, 31, this city, was killed.

Police said the accident happened at the early morning run from Toronto to Hamilton. The truck crossed the highway, crashed a power pole and swung back to the other side, upsetting a 15-inch tree. The driver was thrown from the wrecked cab after the collision with the tree and the driverless truck continued, travelling 162 feet across a field before it stopped.

Appoint Competent Testers To Improve Quality of Milk

Named By County Associations And Paid By Provincial Organization

SELL OVER BOARD

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP) —The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, backed by the provincial government, will make a determined effort to improve the quality of its product. Competent testers will be appointed to test milk destined for cheese factories.

The move was decided upon at the annual meeting of the association here yesterday after George Barr, Ontario Dairy Commissioner, said production of second-grade cheese cost the dairy industry $40,000 last year. Recommendations of the government, appointment of testers in an effort to restore what he said was a decline in the quality of Ontario cheese in 1937.

Hon. D. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, promised the dairy industry the aid and guidance of his department in practical plans to improve the quality of its product. He advised the association to strengthen its ranks. "Now that you have become organized, for goodness sakes stay organized," he urged.

Among Each Patron

The testers, to be appointed by county producers' associations, will be paid by the provincial organization. Each patron will be assessed 50 cents. It was expected the move would enable the dairy industry to devote more time to instruction in milk-producing methods on farms. A resolution adopted advocated enactment of legislation to provide a minimum price for cheese.

Another urged that all cheese manufactured in the province be sold through organized cheese boards except cheese that may be disposed of under the supervision of the marketing board.

Dr.-George I. Christie, principal of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, told the convention that dairy farmers were giving far greater value for the consumers dollar than was the case 25 years ago. Close inspection of cattle and the guarantee of health stock that now was required were indications of improvements the farmer had put into effect in his industry.

Persons familiar with the question represented the president as being unopposed to this additional power from Canada, but that power electric rates to consumers, but concerned because there was no guarantee it would be available uninterruptedly.

NEW TRANSVERTER PLACED IN BELLE

Eliminate Possibility of Future Cancellations of Programs

With characteristic foresight in catering to the entertainment of their patrons, officials of the Belle Theatre have just installed a new Universal Transverter. This new device, unique in mechanical appliances for motion picture projection, will eliminate the possibility of future cancellation of programs due to mechanical breakdowns. The mechanism of the new transverter is such that should a breakdown occur in transfer to the second operating part of the dual-equipped machine is possible without the audience being aware that anything has happened.

The machine is the first of its kind to be installed in Canada. In addition to the transverter, a new Walker screen has been installed in this popular place of entertainment. Of perforated silver, the new screen underwent its first test performance with the new transverter and officials of the theatre were highly satisfied with the fine results of the test.

Matches Set Fire to Boy's Windbreaker

There was a pungent smell of burning cloth as 10-year-old Sidney Hughes trudged down the road home from school on a near Waupoos the other day.

A short distance away an automobile back-fired as its driver attempted to start it. This, to 10-year-old cherubic Sidney, "it smells as if Herb is burning rags instead of gasoline."

As he neared the new furnace driver, Sidney felt a sudden glow in the region of his pants. Looking down he emitted a cry of terror. Smoke was issuing from the lower part of his windbreaker. He had forgotten that he had placed some matches in his pocket that morning. The flames burned a large hole in the new windbreaker, a new shirt and Sidney's trousers before the blaze was extinguished. They were also scraped with a slight scorching.

Beaches Association Meets Thursday

With the Belleville Beaches planning for the coming season during which it is hoped that a bathing area will be made towards the object of providing bathing facilities not only a beach but a park, it is important that there should be a large attendance of everyone interested in this project at the meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. building at eight o'clock Thursday evening. It is planned to elect officers and committees and there will doubtless be discussion of moment on the progress of the undertaking.

Mr. Reg. Monerieff, the prime mover in the undertaking, stated last that there was a very important time and stage towards the success of the undertaking. He made an appeal for a large turnout of citizens at the meeting.

Mr. Frankish Styles Gives Brilliant Piano Performance

Miss Jessie Tuite Assists With Excellent Program of Readings

Making his first appearance as a pianist before a Belleville audience, Mr. Frankish Styles of the staff of Albert College created an abiding impression on the large audience by his brilliant artistry and command of the piano at Memorial Hall, Victoria College on Tuesday evening. Miss Jessie B. Tuite, head of the expression department, assisted artistically in the program with three numbers which she gave in a performance which added new honors to her successes, as an interpreter of character and a reader of gifts.

Last evening's program was the first of a series of programs to be given in support of the project which the Victoria Artists Council of the college has sponsored of raising funds to furnish Memorial Chapel, Mr. Harold Johnson, president of the S.C.M. stated. Principal Dr. Ross Howare was in the audience, spoke highly of Mr. Styles' gifts in music.

The Bach chorale "Sleepers Wake Us by Thy Grace", as arranged by Rummel and Mr. Styles opened the program to show his ability to secure warmth of tone and color. The Chopin nocturne in C Sharp Minor" Prelude and Fugue in D Minor" proved further proof of his ability to grasp the musical content, and to express possibilities for color and tonal interpretation.

Brahms' Variations

The next number, "Variations on a Theme of Handel" by Brahms, furnished the artist with the opportunity for study of Mr. Styles' ability in securing the utmost musical result out of the variations. Before playing he demonstrated on the piano the themes on which the composer Brahms had built up these variations. Such a number calls for every resource, in the technique of the piano to secure the ultimate beauty of execution. In the very variety of these variations by a master, the audience had every opportunity to study the excellence of the art of Mr. Styles himself.

The next group brought together a Chopin number, Mr. Styles' own arrangement of Bach's "Toccata" setting of the famous Ben Jonson song "Drink to me Only with Thine Eyes" and two Debussy numbers, the group adding laurels to Mr. Styles' reputation. The "Waltz in C Sharp Minor" by Chopin caught the spirit of the Polish master of music. The Debussy "Drink to Me Only" being very familiar to the audience, gave more opportunity for Mr. Styles to reveal his art and to his audience its mastery of the subtlety of his technique. In the two French numbers "Reflets dans l'Eau" and "Clair de Lune" Mr. Styles caught the peculiar Gallic quality of refinement and delicacy in execution of Claude Debussy. These two numbers were marked by the artistry.

In the final group Mr. Styles played Albeniz-Godowsky's "Tango", Grofe's unique "On the Trail" descriptive of a cowboy on horseback, accompanying a herd of cattle through the canyon and the young pianist succeeded in gaining his audience's unstinted admiration. The number "Malaguna" by Lecuona completed the pianoforte recital.

The audience saw in Mr. Styles a very brilliant young master of the pianoforte whose sense of rhythm and sound, technical as well as temperamental and emotional control promise for him a great future in his chosen art.

Miss Tuite's Performance

Miss Tuite, head of the expression department was a whole stage in herself in the three numbers in which she appeared. Her program was unique in its "Lou" number which played accompaniment by Mr. Styles, one act play by Dorothy Sayers, with her setting by description and acted the parts of three persons, and finally a modern number, "A Radio Talk" by Mofat.

"The Barrel Organ", by Alfred Noyes was Miss Tuite's first number. This delicate fantasy built up with a barrel organ heard in the street, with lovely descriptions and rich reactions interpreted as only Miss Tuite can interpret, was an early gem of art that swept the audience by its sheer beauty of performance, heightened by the exquisite accompaniment by the pianist.

"A Wee Diamond Rin ' by Irma Jones" was the second offering of Miss Tuite in study of national characteristics of Scottish and French characters, and in the sweep of dramatic movement. In this she created a noble idea of character in her performance, every one of the three characters, Sandy, the Scot, who had after a long courtship, had been engaged for six years, and succeeded to refuse, Margie, his fiance, and the little eighteen-year-old French demoiselle, lived. The three were given their due place in the structure of the one-act play as only a single artist can create it. Miss Tuite is well known for her gifting in life in the study of the Scottish character, but few have had her gifts in the psychology of the French girl, as she revealed it last night.

Her third and third number, "A Radio Talk", was a very clever study presenting the comedy in the radio announcements and also in the radio announcer, at which the audience can hardly be quiet but Miss Tuite here took the radio announcer's job at her study and gave a rattling fine interpretation, snuffed full of comedy and genial satire. It was finished after a few minute and Miss Tuite extracted all the possibilities out of each character.

Miss Tuite has given many fine programs, but for variety, for living and to their perfection the characters, in these numbers she excelled in the study of many anything she has previously achieved. A fine program in the naturalness of the reading of "The Barrel Organ" from the book.

It will not be surprising if the success of entertainers in acting alone a whole set of characters and in acting every character in a short play will not gain in popularity. Such a number calls Miss Tuite's performance substantiates this view.

CONSERVATIVES PAY RESPECT TO LOCAL MEMBERS

R. D. Arnott and Dr. H. E. Welsh Welcomed At Springbrook

FINE PROGRAM

Dancing Enjoyed By Large Assembly Till Early Hours

Stirling, Feb. 16 (Special)—Braving the glassy-like ice-covered side roads of Rawdon Township, over one hundred and fifty enthusiastic supporters of the Liberal-Conservative party met in spirits of fellowship, even in Springbrook on Tuesday night to pay their respects to Messrs. R. D. Arnott, M.P., and Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., members for West Hastings in the Dominion and Provincial Legislative Assembly for West and East Hastings respectively. Mr. Wilfred Hayden presided as chairman for the evening and the entertainment included short speeches by prominent men of public life from both the Dominion and Provincial offered by satisfying artists. Luncheon and dancing was enjoyed until the wee hours of the morning.

Among those assisting on the program were Mr. Jack Baker tenor soloist; Mrs. Hayden accompanist; Mr. Haggerty, baritone, and Arthur Duncan of Stirling, who offered humorous selections. Dancing, prominent among the chief speakers of the evening was Mr. Arnott, who mentioned above were Mr. Geo. Mr. Arnott and Dr. Welsh were both loudly acclaimed on their arrival at the hall, Dr. Welsh officially introduced to the gathering by Reeve Geo. Thompson of Rawdon recalled the excellent example shown by eastern Ontario in the recent election, when was a tribute to excellent organization on the part of the various committee workers. If the same energy and skill been displayed in all parts of the province the result would have been vastly different.

Richard D. Arnott, M.P.P., for West Hastings later introduced by Rev. Canon Swayne expressed his gratitude for the loyal support he had received from the voters in this part of the riding. The victories of Hastings County will give results beneficial to all supporters in the days "to come," he declared. The organization of this part of the Province will be held forth as an example which will ultimately be climaxed with Provincial success, he declared.

Dr. Welsh speaking briefly added his salutation to the voters of the district "the Conservatives will appoint to their recent efforts will be gratified in the not far distant future."

The latter part of the evening was spent in round and square record election. This was a tribute to the splendid work of Mr. Maurice Bell and Mr. James Bell acted as floor manager in his usual capable manner. The ladies served refreshments in the course of fall and dancing was later resumed.

The government, he said, was ready to adopt any workable plan to stop corruption. There were laws already on the statute books to deal with it and the government would propose amendments this session.

Weekly Sermonette Blister.

The ghost of the 1930 Beauharnois scandal stalked across the floor of the House several times as the debate became bitter. Mr. Pelletier suggested Mr. Mackenzie King feasted another Beauharnois scandal and so was afraid to investigate.

Conservative leader Bennett said if the people had lost faith in parliament it was due to the scandal connected with the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company from which the Liberal party received $1,000,000 before the 1930 election.

Mr. Bennett went on to say it was not federal politics alone he had in mind when he made his earlier speech. He had in mind some provincial elections and understood a big campaign fund had been accumulated in Ontario "with respect to funds supposed to be coming from this same Beauharnois".

The country was being destroyed by electoral corruption, said Mr. Bennett. He had no allegations to make against any member of parliament or the government but he wanted to point to a general condition which had to be corrected if parliamentary institutions were to be saved. Levies were being made upon contractors and persons obtaining positions.

Finance Minister Howard.

Finance Minister Dunning said Mr. Bennett was trying to rehabilitate the fortunes of the Conservative party by throwing mud at everyone else. He said in 1926 the Conservatives had employed similar tactics. It was a coincidence that the then member for Peace River was the tool of the Conservative party" in 1926, he added.

Mr. Pelletier who represents Peace River was on his feet in a minute denying he was anyone's tool and Mr. Dunning said he was referring to the former member.

From John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, came a suggestion that at the next election all four parties should be provided with funds by parliament out of the public treasury. They should be given radio hookups and allowances for campaign literature, transportation and general party expenses.

Mr. Blackmore charged "hidden hands", used vast funds to thwart the will of the Canadian people, that somewhere in central Canada was a giant octopus whose tentacles reached into every part of the country to throttle any movement arising among the people.

Joseph Bradette (Lib., Cochrane), and the Social Credit members to task and accused them of bribing the electors with promises of $25 a month. This, he said, was the worst form of corruption ever seen in Canada.

LATE WM. J. HUME

The removal by death, when he had barely reached middle life, of William J. Hume, at Rome, Italy, whither he had gone in quest of that already overtaxing possession, health, brought genuine sorrow to citizens of all walks of life in Corbyville, Belleville and in Walkerville and wherever he was known. Combining a likable personality marked by kindliness and generosity, and a somewhat retiring nature to which was joined a sense of thoroughness and reliability in business, Mr. Hume had steadily risen in the estimation of his friends and citizens and in business through sheer native gifts.

Mr. Hume was a man who possessed the sense of loyalty to his early associations, which kept him in touch with his native Corbyville and with Belleville, even after he had left this city to reside elsewhere at the call of business. This district will remember him for his friendliness, his approachability, and his generosity. He was a loyal supporter of local enterprises, in his support of which benefits accrued far beyond the range of those he could personally know. His interest in as skating and hockey led to the construction of the Arena rink at which young and older have enjoyed health-giving exercise and where the spirit of good sport and the creation of the atmosphere of local esprit de corps have opportunity to develop.

An incident which throws a light on the interest he manifested in others is told. When ever opportunity offered on a visit to the city he would go to the Arena in the late afternoon when hundreds of children were skating and would there remain watching with zest the enthusiasm of the young skaters at play.

He was a good member of the Belleville Club. He staunchly supported various other sports, and in him the Bay of Quinte Country Club found an open-hearted member whose interest in its activities is not forgotten.

Mr. Hume will be missed here in Belleville.

THE AUTOMOBILE ON THE RANGE

Motorcars will replace or supplement all horses on the U. S. federal ranges this coming spring, Secretary Ickes of the United States announced. The motorization of the cowboys is a step in keeping with the trend in armaments, in the movement of gipsies and even in the actions of rustlers who are now said to crowd cattle into trucks and speed them to market in this rapid way. It is said that the honest cattleman is also seen more of the time in a car or in the garage or service station than in the stable.

What will "home on the range" be like now? New York Times writer sees a song from the modern "mike" ballads and no more reference to the "lone prai-rie."

The motorcar has proven a great adjunct for the farmers in all parts of the world. It is traffic enemy and so much speed per gallon instead of the feed of hay and oats, and the creak of the democrat or lumber wagon or buggy or phaeton.

SINCE IRVING WAS BORN

Will the fame of great movie personalities linger generations beyond their death? That great stage artists live beyond their life is shown in the honor paid the memory of Sir Henry Irving who was born one hundred years ago and who now reposes in Westminster Abbey. To many people is seems impossible that a century separates today from the London of the time when Irving was born. One feature of the recent centenary celebration in England was the memorial service in the tiny Somerset village Keinton-Mandeville at which one of the boyhood playmates of the artist attended, this man being now in his 100th. year.

Since Irving's day there has come a vast change in the theatre with stressing of present day life, the numerable revivals of the poetic drama, and the coming of the moving picture with its great asset in sound technique.

The motion picture has developed and is developing a technique of its own, which is not that of the stage itself. There is no danger of one crowding out the other. The living tradition of the stage will carry on and movie-dom, still in infancy, will continue to grow. From the motion picture the stage will probably accept certain developments just as the movie has benefited by the stage.

Nothing can do me damage except myself. The harm that I sustain I seldom forget about me and I never am a real suffered but by my own fault —St. Bernard.

RIGHTEOUSNESS EXALTETH A NATION

HAVE YOU
READ YOUR BIBLE
TODAY?

"The Word of the Lord endureth for ever." 1 Peter 1,25.

Such was the text of the full page advertisement inserted in the Montreal Gazette, Monday, February 7 journal, issued by the Scripture Gift Mission. The centre of the page represented a facsimile of the Holy Bible opened at the 55th chapter of Isaiah, the entire chapter being reproduced in large type, beginning:

Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.

2. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

3. Incline your ear and come unto me; hear and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David.

4. Behold I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and a commander to the people.

5. Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

There are nine other verses in this chapter well worth reading, as it is all the great literature full of promise and cheer in the Old Testament. It is worthy of note that the religious society which paid for the advertisement has found something discovered long ago by shrewd businessmen. That to get a message over quickly to the most people there is no medium which can even approach the newspaper in effectiveness. That one page in the Gazette no doubt found more readers and occasioned more talk than a year's effort handing out tracts and free Bibles.

FOUR DEATHS RESULTED FROM AN EFFORT TO COLLECT TAXES amounting to $6.40 recently in France. Some one has said that the most certain things in the world are death and taxes, but France had to show that death and taxes can walk hand in hand to eternity. A widow and two sons refused to pay the tax collector. He summoned the gendarmes and the battle which followed the widow and one son were killed also two gendarmes. In addition the house was wrecked and the barn burned.

WILHELM, EX-KAISER OF GERMANY, All Highest of the Hohenzollerns, celebrated his 79th birthday recently at his exile home, Doorn, Holland, surrounded by all the Hohenzollerns alive, big and little, and dressed up like a Christmas tree in the glittering uniform of the old regime of the Imperial German Army. A good time was had by all present but many non-present harbored thoughts none too kindly for the man who dared to call God his partner in military and naval affairs. One student recalled the time when he demanded that the fugitive Kaiser be dragged back and hanged by the neck until he was dead, as a horrible example to all would be world conquerors. MacArey, of the Toronto Globe Mail, harboured the occasion with a blast in which he asserted that he was in favor of hanging the Kaiser when that gentleman fled to Holland after doing as much mischief as he could—and he was still in favor of the sentence being carried out. Attoboy Mac, the Macs never forgive and never forget.

However, Wilhelm will be called ere long to appear before a tribunal where glittering uniforms and medals will have no place and the naked soul will be judged upon the deeds done in the flesh, and, we are led to believe, receive just punishment.

Dementia Praecox — Persistent Dream State and Its Treatment

When it is realized that dementia praecox—schizophrenia—is a persistent dream state as it is usually described have their beginning before the boy or girl has emerged into manhood or womanhood it certainly gives us all food for thought. That apparently average everyday normal boy or girl can develop the "day dreaming" which dreams calmly them with life is hard to understand. Sometimes however as parents or friends think back a little they will remember that the individual was just a little 'odd,' had peculiar notions about some things, seemed always satisfied in his or her mind that the way they did things to others or in the home was the right way even if it was different from the way it was usually done by others. This today we find parents, teachers, and physicians watching more closely for any of these signs in their children, pupils, or young patients.

Just how the youngster or sometimes the adult develops this line of conduct can often be traced to certain circumstances in the past, even before the school age, whereby the youngster, by reading, playing, watching movies, listening, perhaps fighting with, or studying with, others, could not satisfy the desires created in his own mind, instead of going out among others and living with them, he pictures himself in his dream state, but just one of the crowd, and by so doing he is the leader and a commander in physical ability.

The Quarterly Official Board of Judge Rutherford says that the main point's to take in the fascination the world is the real world, not the world others live in. In the doctor's want this desired; he knows that in the outside or real world of action he will not be gratified or successful.

Also he has to understand these wiry parents, teachers and physicians try to get these boys and girls to mix with others, particularly in group games and study and so gradually learn to adjust to world to enter the real world or life.

THE UNATHOMABLE FAN

Sometimes the adoration of motion picture stars takes extreme forms, as in the case of the Nevada fan who has named her baby Clark Gable and left most of his estate to Miss Norma Shearer, the latter being one of the executors. The stories we have it that this miser, an obscure dreamer named Lloyd Sherrod, had been an admirer of Miss Davies for something like 20 years, and, after travelling forty miles to see one of her pictures, Mr. Sherrod's boundless worship is unusual enough to cause a stir in the news, and yet he was known to have starved himself at times, except in degree, from millions of other fans.

The fan is among the most valuable props of the motion-picture industry. Fans have grown great and disillusioned can remember when they thought the movie-house was ill it would be Clara Kimball Young or Mabel Normand who would be the saviour and even turned loose on this generally unsatisfying planet; Theodore Roberts, with his family, left daughters in college, who refused to leave their parents, Grace Meighan and Henry B. Walthall. The lonely Mr. Alvord, chipping away at the mountain of Nevada for gold, is a member of an eccentric and unsuccessful theatrical stock company. The existence of such persons, in such numbers, is proof that the motion-picture stars make big salaries. It also helps explain why producers are always in resentment at the news that a business man has come to the conclusion a large salary, the American people seldom complain about the money paid to the stars of the screen.—New York Herald Tribune.

EDITORIAL PAGE etc To an 6,000,000 TREES

In an experiment that is expected to take ten years to complete the Dominion Government will plant about 2,000,000 trees in the drought stricken area of Alberta, 6 feet on high winds, rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil, and the loss of snow cover. The expense of this experiment will be born by more than 100 farmers who have applied for farm rehabilitation. In addition 4,000,000 more trees will be distributed through the ordinary channels.

While a total of six million trees seems most impressive, it should be realized that these trees are planted ten feet apart, they will occupy only 120 acres of square miles, which is a negligible two per cent of the annual Canadian cut of lumber. This will nearly take a thousand square miles a year. Nevertheless the experiment is a good one, and may be the beginning of a new milestone in the history of both the wheat and lumber industries in Canada.—Toronto's Falls Record-News.

"Man, who is an adaptable animal, will adapt his business life to a somewhat changed order."—Thomas F. Lamont.

Expert in Wonderland

No Hollywood studio would think of embarking upon a tale of any specific phase of life without a technical expert. A newspaper man was once engaged as technical adviser for a thrilling drama of a city room. When shooting began, with the scenes rushing madly about, each worked by a handful of "extra" people, he asked, "Why don't they calm down? Reporters never move that fast. And what are they doing with all those proofs? Reporters never see galley proofs."

"They look good," was the reply.

The picture proceeded. Reporters dictated headlines over the phone, ordered the compositors to hold the presses, told the managing editor where to get off. Through it all the expert sat, a resigned look upon his face. It couldn't be stopped and he was getting $25 a day and everything was going fine. When the picture was completed, the director told him he was also finest technical adviser he ever had. His fame spread and in a few weeks he was called to another studio. There things went in much the same way. The only time his counsel was heeded was when the cameras were set up in the editor's office. He noticed that the lettering on the door reading "Managing Editor" had been put on backwards. As the workmen changed the door, he heard the director say to his assistant, "I wonder did you get that guy? Say, he's invaluable!"—New York Times.

Alligators in Florida

Ed. Note: This is the ninth of a series of letters written by Mr. Arthur Jones who is now in the South.

ALLIGATORS IN FLORIDA

Clearwater, Fla.

One mile south of Clearwater city limits is the alligator farm of Mr. R. LaVallen. This farm, also, contains a snake den and curio shop and is well worth a visit. The alligators were the chief attraction for the writer. At this farm you can see four pens of these native reptiles. In pen No. 1 are the 15 to 25 year old ones which are about four feet long. In pen No. 2 are the 10 to 50 year olds which are about six feet long. In pen No. 3 and 4 are the babies 100 to 200 years old which run around 9 to 11 feet in length.

In the pen No. 4 are the females ready to reproduce. The female laying 30 to 90 eggs in a mound of mud which are hatched by the sun in about two months. She comes to feed twice a week with beef, fish and will eat only when hungry. The male takes special attention and experienced alligator farm hand, pealled the strong fence into the pen containing the largest alligators numbering about 30 or 40 in the pen and patted them on the heads. They opened their jaws and showed their sharp but small teeth. These reptiles do not fight with their jaws but will rear over and strike tremendous blows with their tails.

Green informed us that you have to know your stuff to jump into these pens. Also that the feeding with rice is a favored dish with some people down here. This farm sells around 200 baby alligators each year. One dollar each will place a tag on a dollar bill for your reptile.

Court House Snake Hereof

Quelcas County pays a bounty of one dollar for each dead rattlesnake brought in. Returning from the alligator farm, my companion instructed me to park opposite the court house in Clearwater. We are also taken a look at the snake hereof, he says. What the heck is a "Snake hereof" I wonder. Well, we go behind the court house and he lifts the top off a large garbage can and with a forked stick hanging along side, he fished about and pulled up the dead coiled rattlesnake and one coral snake. That will do we implored, just to think moments a young man approached carrying a quart sealer in which he had a small snake that was out to slay in four minutes when struck by one of those rattlers. Quite calmly the venomous snake was dropped into the sealer and he asked, "Down the road a few miles there lives a man who knows more about snakes than any man in the world. He has a den of them here he is sure would have brought them in."

We took the snake in front of the jar and when measured it went forty inches which is large, so come in and get your dollar.

Negro Head Work

No one ever picks up a darky in Florida on the highways. One morning a negro went out to get some fruit for his dog. On breaking off a pine stump he disturbed a six foot rattlesnake and was severely bitten. Quickly he seized the snake by the neck and with a knife in the mouthed started for the highway. Motorists passed him until at last he felt unconscious by the roadside. Cars still passed. Just another drunken darky he thought. Finally a passing car whose back seat occupants took a look at the dead reptile discovered by the man's side. The car stopped and the driver made an examination and found out that the darky was suffering from snake bite so he loaded him in the car, without the reptile, and rushed to the nearest hospital in his life was saved. That is a true Florida snake story, believe it or not.

Some Comparison of Taxes

Some people—and some newspapers with an amusingly provincial outlook—are disposed to view with great alarm the increase by 50 cents a year, from $2 to $2.50, in the cost of radio licenses in this country. It is, they seem to think, the last straw that is to crush us down into bankruptcy; we may survive, but that's not to the point.

Really, we should not utterly ruin ourselves by this increase if we consider this question. We spend, in this country, four cents a week for our radio. Under the new rule we have to pay five cents a week. That is a cent a week, one-seventh of a cent per day. Ruinous! Hardly.

The service we get from the family radio is one of the greatest things we buy. One cigarette a day, or one stick of gum, costs more than either. Take away the drama speeches, entertainment, news, then at the rate of a cent for every member of the family. Hosts of men and women spend a dollar a week on cigarettes—$52 a year, 31 times what the radio license costs. Or a weekly movie for one person costs far more than the cost of the radio home entertainment for the pleasure of perhaps half-a-dozen persons. One car ride a day means more than 50 cents a week—eight times the cost of the radio license. Even a bottle of beer a week costs as much as radio —and the average family spends more than that on perfumery.

The man with a car thinks nothing of a $50-dollar five cent a summer evening—and in gasoline alone the little trip probably costs him 75 cents. If he buys hot dogs for his party the evening expenses run to a dollar—which would pay his radio fee for twenty weeks. If he smokes cigars he pays for them, he takes it as just "one of those things," but if he begrudges the five cents more than the total cost or his radio license. "The child on the corner wants candy for a cent, one ice cream cone per week spends as much of the family income as the radio costs for all in the household. And all of us spend in little luxuries and with no qualms of conscience, much more than we pay for access to the programs of the air.

And people ask what they are getting for this $2.50 the government proposes to collect for use of a radio receiver. Well, let us tell about broadcasting. Several transmitters across the country are now being received in Belleville from at least one station. Reception from outside stations has been unsatisfactory for winter, at least in the Ottawa area. Everybody ends the year hearing single-side story of the Farr - Braddock fight. With most receivers, however, it is a case of only in patches from the New York station. But because the Canadian Broadcasting corporation had spent money for a chain of stations and for more and other things—and the ringside story broadcast was worth every penny they was disappointed. Thousands listen these days to broadcasts from the New York Philharmonic orchestra—brought in clearly over CBO, also, from the Ottawa station, cannot hear New York stations, and we suppose that is the reason every excellent programme if it were not for the enterprise of C.B.C. and the money we pay for licenses.

These are but instances of the direct service rendered the Canadian people by the Canadian Broadcasting corporation — services apart from a long daily schedule diversified to suit the tastes of all, and including nowadays some of the most splendid of the United States commercial programs which otherwise would not be available here in evenings of bad reception.

Radio is in fact, a tremendous bargain, and it is not fair to argue that all this service should be free, because it is free in the United States. That country has ten times our population, and a commercial development of wireless quite impossible to expect in this country even if it were desirable. In South Africa the license is $5 and in New Zealand under a Labor government it is still higher.—Ottawa Journal.

ED PAGE—MOVIE EARNINGS BREVITY

A man proffered notice to quit from his landlord. Believing it could not be enforced, he replied immediately:

"Dear sir,
I remain,
Yours truly."

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

"All right, Sam.. Only don't forget your stipulations! And, oh, yes stop off at the apartment and get those rings. My scent is having a fit worrying about them!"

"Suzanne? So she is blocking me!" he commented thoughtfully, as if he had decided that someone was influencing her unduly; as if her decision to delay her engagement, the ring acceptance, and the house hunting, could not possibly be her own. Must be another's!

"Suzanne! Probably no interest in my affairs, or what I do! Maydra assured him spiritedly. "Please, Sam can't we be a little less theatrical about all this?"

He smiled quietly. The term was not unfamiliar with him. Yet deep in his heart he believed that the movies were dear, vital, vivid moments of life, revived on the screen. Often he himself was the star of those, and as often he found things he believed he would also be able to liken his own experience with— some day.

"And, what will you do, Maydra? Tomorrow? As if our unhappy disagreement had never been?"

"All right, Sam. I'll go. But I'm awfully sorry, and you'll have more fun, have a better companion, if you asked someone else!"

She left the apartment thinking listlessly about the morrow, donning her new hat, her new blue suit, and the fur coat, her last gift from Sam, that slipped free into her shoes, and put them on the floor to wait.

In the studio Gerda was hard at work, and after dinner she coaxed Maydra to put on the lavender wool and the mink coat and pose for minutes on end, programming glowing, vital, radiant health.

Maydra was grateful for their little chat— time girl who came in and made desserts, prepared salads, fixed the coffee ready to perk, and the chops or steak or cutlet ready to grill. She turned on the gas and then, when she heard the outlets, took the salad out of the refrigerator and set the table.

The coffee bubbling cheerily, some rolls she had bought and fully, and Gerda came out to get strong in the cake box for the meal. Maydra brought a pan to put them in, opened the oven door, and the bell rang.

"Telephone?" she asked Gerda. "Or door?"

"Oo see," Gerda grinned. "I'm dee tired. Gosh, what a life!"

Wake stood there, leaning against the door and at first Maydra never thought he was drunk, because he seemed to be holding to the door with both hands.

Then he lifted his haggard eyes and looked at her, and she drew in her breath sharply, at the tragedy, the despair and bear-it break written there.

She's gone, Maydra," he said harshly. "Dead! This morning, at five-thirty, Emergency appendectomy. They knew her, trying to save her, and it was no use. Nothing was any use ..... "

He stumbled into the room, and flung himself face down on the divan and wept. The terrible, dry soul-searing tears that men sometimes weep when their world suddenly cracks under their very eyes, though they have battled savagely desperately, to keep it from cracking.

"Doctors, nurses, surgeons—the best of them. God, how they bellied ..... Maydra, say something! Don't stand there looking at me like that! Say something! Tell me it isn't so ..... that she didn't die because I couldn't follow a stupid, drab, hopelessly humdrum outmoded pattern for existence! She didn't want to die! I didn't want her to! I ..... we were so fond of each other! We had ... such ..... fun!"

Maydra felt her knees wobbling. Felt them fold, suddenly. Blindly she reached for a chair, and there was none. Then the floor struck her hard, joltingly, and there was nothing more, after that. Nothing but purple black silence, swirling and swirling and echoing and rushing about her. And Wake, sobbing those horrible those shocking, horrible sobs.

Chapter 22

Gerda poured more brandy down her throat, and the burning, liquid fire dragged Maydra into consciousness. Blankly she stared at her room-mate, then at Wake, sagging, haggard and utterly lous over her.

"I'm all right," she whispered shakily, "quite all right, Wake. Please don't worry about me. You've —quite enough to bear as it is!"

"Come out to the kitchen, both of you, and I'll fix you some hot, strong coffee! You need it!" Gerda ordered briskly, and they followed her quite meekly, glad to have someone decide things for them.

"Now," Gerda suggested tersely, after they'd had a second cup of the strong hot brew, "You'll have to go back to your place, Wake, and keep one eye on Madame Grumpy the next few weeks, at least. That is, if you've the slightest interest in Maydra's name ... and, mine!"

"Of course, Gerda." Wake agreed wearily. "I'm sorry, I'm not myself. You know!"

"You should hope not, Wake!" Gerda said briefly. "And for the sake of appearances, Maydra must go to Toronto with you. It's not doing any gossip —or scandal. This — this requires a slightly different technique. Have you seen Rena Graham Wake is familiar with?"

"Why, yes. I met her in Connecticut tomorrow with Sam." Maydra remembered and repeated all about it, with this dreadful thing happening."

"I feel as if it couldn't be," Wake protested, lacing shaking fingers through his hair tensely, "as if I'd wake up and find it all a ghoulish nightmare. I've worried so much, lately, about her trouble with that appendix. I've said argued with her, pleading with her to have it out and over with. But she wouldn't. She had a horror of operations .....a positive phobia She ..... it can't be so, dead!"

Maydra's worried eyes lifted to Gerda's and something passed between them, wordless, eloquent, mute.

"Give me the keys to your car, Wake," Gerda said tersely, "and I'll run it back to your garage. You can't go wandering around in this frame of mind!"

He passed her his key-ring without argument or comment. He seemed beyond thought or words, beyond even understanding what anyone said to him. He sat on the gay bright little enameled kitchen chair, his slightly rumpled blond head lowered between his two clenched fists, elbows resting on his knees, and his gray eyes were closed tightly, wearily, as if to shut out the pain, the doubt and horror pounding away on scars already bruised and sore from their battering.

"Wake," Maydra whispered softly, touching the soft, smooth hair, straightening a few of the stray locks. "Wake, if you cane in and lay down on the divan, couldn't you rest a little? You can't go on like this, not sleeping, not resting at all. And you'll need your strength! That's what you to —to carry on. Be a good —trooper!"

He got up, listlessly, and walked a little unsteadily to the divan. As if he couldn't see. As if he moved stiffly, in a grim nightmare, and was afraid he'd stumble and fall.

Maydra untied his shoes, and slipped them off. She loosened his collar and removed his tie, and hung his coat over a chair back. Still he made no protest, seemed unaware of her ministrations. Even when she brought the thick satin and wool comforter from the bedroom and tucked it about him he said nothing —did not move.

She turned off the light in that corner of the room, leaving only the soft, rose-shaded one at the other end of the studio on, and pulling out the club chair, sank down, quietly.

The minutes crept by, and the chaos and confusion in Maydra's mind began to fall into order. Wake wasn't asleep —he knew that—but he had flung one arm up, across his eyes, though there was only shadowy darkness in that corner at the room. He lay so still, though, that he was like one lost in the deep abandon of exhaustion.

"Maydra?" he said thickly, softly, in a blurred sort of whisper, "Maydra?"

"Here, Wake," she answered steadily. "Try to rest!"

He asked that several times during that long, minute-by-minute night. Once, when Gerda tiptoed back and handed Maydra his key-ring. Once when footsteps sounded along the hall to the apartments on the floor below. Once when the first milk-wagon rattled noisily past, and the Sunday morning paper truck stopped and departed.

"Sleep, Wake," Maydra answered gently each time. "Try to rest."

Miraculously, he did, after that. When dawn reached lacy fingers through the curtains, and lifted the shadows from the big room, Maydra heard the first deep regular breathing of the man who had remained tense, tense, rigid position there on the divan, the long night through. Then, presently, he was breathing quieter, lower, and sleep had lifted the bitter burden from his tired mind and Maydra could relax, knowing he would not now.

Girl's Family Embarrasses Her By Asking Boy Friend's Intentions

Third Degree Questions Prevent Her Bringing Youth Home

By VIRGINIA LEE

"SAY DEAR MISS LEE: I'm 24 and I happen to be in the same boat as L.E.G. (whose letter was recently received). She has my sympathy. Added to her home environment her father and brothers were unkind to her and her mother). I can't bring fellows at home unless they are serious and going to marry me. What is a girl supposed to tell a fellow if he asks such a girl out? Does she have to meet him in the street and then leave him there, in order to avoid the third degree questions and embarrassment she would put him to with the folk at home?

"If a girl goes out with a fellow for the first time she doesn't know beforehand whether she cares enough for him to marry him. I ask you, how could a fellow who asks her out for the first time be expected to answer those ridiculous questions? Some parents seem to think we are still in the year 1400.

"Although I have the same circumstances as L. E. G., I have a different slant on the men folk. I personally think that there are very few duplications of our home difficulties (you'd be surprised). I would like the same type of man as L. E. G.—a man who is a gentleman at all times. Where do you think we shall find such a man? Where could I seek one if I don't go to college or business and don't go out much?

"Thank you for writing this column as I enjoy reading it very much, and I hope you continue to DEPENDED."

Instead of being an uncommon problem, yours is quite a common one, Depressed, especially where there is a large family. Everyone is interested in sister's new boy friend, and they all make embarrassingly frank remarks. They wonder if he is THE one for sis, and the poor fellow is either frightened away, or meets her on the corner.

If you can't discipline your family by telling them that sort of thing isn't done any more; that you don't know the boy and don't know whether you like him any more than as a casual acquaintance or not, maybe you can refer to the matter laughingly to the boy himself. Tell him, "You know how big families are. They are all interested in a new boy friend such as yourself, so don't let them get you down if they ask what your intentions are. Tell them we two know and the rest can find out when the right time comes."

That will stall them off, maybe, save embarrassment and give you and the boy a chance to get acquainted on at least rational boy friend.

As for are 28 years old, could you not go out and take a position? It would be excellent experience, and I believe every person should know how to earn his or her own living, for a time, at least. Then the chance you crave for meeting some young men and women.

SOMEONE BLUE loves a good-looking fellow who also loves her, but who never has any time to give her. True, he comes in to the daytime and plays in an orchestra every evening, but when she calls him up and leaves a message he never calls her up.

There is a very young man who also says he loves the girl, and he tries hard to make her forget the first young man. He wants her to marry him, and she wonders whether she should.

I wouldn't marry this very nice young chap when you are in love with the other fellow, B. B. It would be playing a pretty mean trick on him. We have known a number of wife who is always thinking of another man. Just as the first one isn't interested in you—even if he tries to make you think he is—why I'd do my best to forget him if I were you.

MRS. B.: At one o'clock church wedding you'll should wear dressy daytime clothes, which would be suitable to travel in if covered by a long coat. A hat to match or with a dressy blouse would be nice to wear. This would be correct for the reception afterwards. Sending a gift would be sufficient acknowledgment of the invitations unless the reception invitations said R. S. V. P., when you would have to say whether you were going or not.

Take the invitations with you and present them if you are asked to do so as neither family knows you. No one else should be allowed to use your invitations.

NON-COM'S GIRL: Well, my dear, you can't very well shut the mouths of all these people you think are talking about your boy friend about you. So the best thing to do is to keep on being perfectly frank with him, keeping him informed of everything you do, and telling him to not believe anything he may hear, as they are not true.

Then try to forget worrying about the matter. After all, if he loves you he surely should have faith in you. If he hasn't if you don't see what you can do about it. Sorry I can't suggest any sure fire way to keep him trusting you.

SHORTY: You may be young, Shorty, but you are not too young to stand by your friends when other people say mean things about them. If this boy treats you well and you like him, find him complainable, why pay any attention to what "they" say? You never will have a boy friend, probably, what every one of your friends and relatives think is perfect. As long as your parents don't object to your friendship with him, enjoy his companionship and don't worry.

A Few Tips On Caring For Skin

Alice Frost
A lass with a lovely skin

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

IT HAS BEEN a long hard winter for those of us with dry skins. There's nothing that is quite as fatal to the skin as cold steam heated rooms. The heat seems to literally draw all the natural oil and moisture right out. English girls with peaches and cream complexions are always complaining about the "overheated American houses", and quite right they are so. The cold weather and wind has also added its bit toward helping to wreck our complexions.

About this time of year it's a great idea to give our skins a little high powered attention. This is the way to get a face to look more like a face and less like a still of oil parchment. A method that this department swears by is very pleasant to do, it really makes your face feel like a million, and gets back on the fever complected side in a remarkably short time.

Unfortunately the majority of American women have dry skins, and they feel uncomfortable besides looking weather beaten. Some good general corrective rules are to drink lots of water, eat plenty of fruits and green vegetables, and try to keep in all round good condition. With this as a starter, the dry condition can be corrected by working on the skin from the outside.

Should Be Washed

This type of skin really ought to be washed with soap and lukewarm water at least once a day. Work the lather well into the nose and chin, where enlarged pores are usually to be found. Then rinse the face with warm water and dash it with cold. Cold water is also good tope in astringents for the dry skin. If your skin is one that is extra sensitive and you ordinarily don't want to wash it try using olive oil instead. If you think it's advisable to remove bunions. Do you know of any case in which this operation was successfully done?"

Answer: In my experience cold incantations are lots of easy help. Bunions are successfully treated by applying cold cream in a serious enough to indicate such treatment. I have had many successful cases and in fact I cannot think of any unsuccessful case.

Poems That Live

THE BRAVE OLD OAK

A song to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who hath ruled in the greenwood long;
Here's health and renown to his broad green crown,
And his fifty arms so strong.
There's fear in his frown when the sun goes down,
And the Dryads dance in the west fades out;
And he showeth his might on a wild midnight,
When the storms through his branches shout.

Then here's to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who stands in his pride alone;
And still flourish he, a hale green tree,
When a hundred years are gone!

In the days of old, when the spring with cold
Had brightened his branches fair,
Through the grass at his feet crept maidens sweet,
To gather the dew of May.
And on that day by the rebeck gay
They frolicked with lorrecone swing;
They are gone, they are dead, in the churchyard laid,
But the tree It still remains.

He saw the rare times when the Christmas chimes
Were a merry sound to hear,
When the squire's wide hall and the cottage small
Were filled with good English cheer.
Now gold hath sway we all obey,
And a ruthless king is he;
But he never shall send our ancient friend
To be tossed on the stormy sea.

When Light Treatment Is Helpful

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE SPOKE briefly the other day of the uses of ultraviolet light, either artificial or from the sunlight. Its most important uses are in tuberculosis of the bones and joints and in skin diseases. Tuberculosis of the lungs is usually not benefited by sunlight or by ultraviolet light. In fact, great injury has been done patients by too prolonged and extensive treatment of this kind. Treatment by ultraviolet light, properly applied, and of not too long duration, should be followed by a sense of well being and exhilaration. Headache, lassitude and vertigo are indications that too much light has been given for the treatment.

In tuberculous enlargement of the lymph nodes of the neck, X-ray and ultraviolet lights have offered the quickest and most uniform results. They are especially valuable after surgical removal of lymph nodes to prevent recurrence.

Epoch Making Work

In tuberculosis of the skin, Finsen's work was epoch making.

Direct and indirect sunlight get well in the majority of cases under treatment for this kind. Ringworm and various ulcers yield to the bactericidal properties of the ultraviolet rays. In whooping cough, the ultraviolet rays given as a general tonic by radiation give relief in a great many cases. Fractures which have not knitted, are frequently helped in this way.

The infra-red rays, at the opposite end of the spectrum, produce a reaction in a short time, with local congestion in the skin and sweating due to dilation of the small vessels.

Although extravagant claims have been made for the infra-red rays they are not very much supported by scientific proof. The form of heat which they produce is soothing and gives speedy relief in muscular rheumatism and neuralgia.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. B.: "Do you think cold inoculations are of any help? I would like to know if you think it is advisable to remove bunions. Do you know of any case in which this operation was successfully done?"

Answer: In my experience cold inoculations are lots of easy help. Bunions are successfully treated by applying cold cream in a serious enough to indicate such treatment. I have had many successful cases and in fact I cannot think of any unsuccessful case.

Bolero Dress Tops For Spring Season

Chic Small Jacket Is Shown as Part Of Dress or as Separate Accessory

By LISBETH

"THE BOLERO" seems to be fashion's early spring theme song. Bolero suits are appearing in more guises than the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, and for all the materials you can think of.

Gay little printed boleros with matching scarfs that girdle your waist, not your neck, are being published by eagerly by the girls who have dark dresses that they feel need livening, and from there you can play all the tunes you can improvise on your wardrobe with this theme.

Courtesy Bonwit-Teller
Spring "Polly Tucker" dress of black rayon crepe with bell-hop bolero trimmed with buttons, stitched and pleated skirt.

Do you know Polly Tucker? She is the heroine of a novel by Sarah Pennoyer, and she is depicted as a very modern and successful young business woman in the business of stylist or merchant. A frock was designed and named for her—the type of frock a chic young business woman would be likely to choose.

The dress with the bolero shown here is a second or spring edition of the Polly Tucker dress. You can see it is a very fetching second edition, too. It is planned for the working girl with the limited budget, but who has unlimited chic and likes her clothes with variability.

Bolero Button Trimmed

It is made of black—or navy or string (very smart for spring)—rayon crepe. Its bellhop sleeve is elaborately trimmed with buttons, and it covers a sleek little dress with a neckline contrived for "junk jewelry", and a full, whirling skirt of stitched pleats that won't come out.

STOP BABY'S COLD BEFORE IT GETS WORSE

A FIREMAN will tell you big fires are little fires when they start. That's why they always hurry to put them out. Don't let your baby's little cold develop into a "big cold" or something worse. Be in a hurry to check it. Let Mrs. Geo. McBride of Scarborough tell you how. "My baby of 26 months caught a nasty cold this spring, so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she seemed to throw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on."

Baby's Own Tablets are safe and sure in their action. They correct the cause of baby's trouble. Effective in clearing up teething troubles, constipation, simple fevers, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic and summer complaint, irritability, simple croup and colder of "baby's" ailments. Yet they are utterly free from opiates or stupefying drugs. An expert's report is given in each package.

Fisherman Garb Is Theme of Suit

By Central Press

BACK TO THE soil seems to be the slogan for families when financial insecurity threatens. And back to the peasant go fashion designers for new themes to glorify the Modern Woman.

The attractive lounging, working or what have you costume worn here by June Travis, one of Hollywood's young featured players, is inspired by the garb of the sturdy French fisherman.

It is in three pieces and is black. There are the wide trousers with a couple of pockets, loose and comfortable for leisure hour wear. They have an overall top which may be worn with a white sports blouse—which is just what June is doing.

Then there is a matching top with broad shoulders, yoke and slide fastener at the front. June is carrying it over her arm. Don't fail to notice the monogram on the pocket of the overall top, too.

Style Whimsies

Plain weaves in dress materials are as important as prints for early spring wear.

Why Queen Bess' Ruff Collapsed

WE WHO keep our neckwear in a state of perpetual freshness by washing after every wearing can sympathize with the laundryman whom Queen Elizabeth ordered beheaded because one of her favorite neck ruffs went to pieces in the wash. The treading henchman, the legend has it, was saved only at the zero hour when Sir Walter Raleigh intervened and convinced his irate ruler that it had been necessary to use strong chemicals to get the royal neckwear clean.

The queenly cleanliness standards might nowadays raised eyebrows if we didn't know that all this happened some 400 years ago. If good soaps were available at that time the royal ruff would have been put in the wash long before strenuous cleaning methods were called for, thus preserving it for the queen's adornment and for the interest of posterity.

English Flower Arranger

Mrs. Constance Spry of London, England, is a flower arranger par excellence. She is in America to lecture before various garden clubs in places she "has never heard of," she states.

Mrs. Spry believes that flowers should be used to decorate rooms just as curtains, rugs, wall papers, etc. They are not a sentimental touch to a room, she asserts, but a decorative accent.

Mrs. Spry decorated the room at the chateau in Cande last summer in which the Duke of Windsor and the then Mrs. Simpson were married. She says the duchess has "frightfully good taste".

USE YOUR LIBRARY, URGES DR. MYERS

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

EVERY NOW and then I urge my readers to make more use of the public library, to borrow books from it for their own self-improvement, and to encourage their children to borrow books from it. To go with their children too young to read, for books from which to read to those little ones. On several occasions I have told of the unique Mothers' room of the Youngstown (O.) Public Library, designed to encourage mothers to read to little children at home, to help them select the proper books for that purpose. Recently I directed a two-day institute for young parents in that library, when a number of us who think we are experts discussed the usual problems connected with young children. And what a fine attendance we had!

Many parents have written to say that they are reading to their children from the ages two to six. Some have written for a list of books for this purpose, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. More copies of these lists are still available.

From the vice president of the Border council, Home and School Associations, Windsor, Canada, comes the following:

How to Keep Library in Mind

"Dear Dr. Myers: I read recently in your column something about a planned program for a Parent-Teacher library. We have co-operated here in Windsor with the public library board, and the Teachers' institute is establishing such a library. Many of our public school children and teachers, are in the library for books only which are specified in the new curriculum recently put into force by the department of education, Ontario, in all elementary schools for Grades 1 to 8 inclusive.

"In order to keep the library in active use by both parents and teachers, we are considering some program which will keep the library before the public constantly. I thought I had seen some reference to this in our paper, but with just such an idea as we had in mind.

"I would appreciate it if you will send along any information you may have and can give me on the subject at your very earliest convenience, as we are making our plans for the coming year."

In reply I told of a program put on by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Youngstown, O., known as the so-called "Library Week", they set out to sell the library to the city and country. The slogan was, "Read, R-E-A-D." Public, civic associations ,newspapers and radio stations co-operated. In banks and other places there were library exhibits. Special trains made pilgrimages to the public library, and from the plains, platform, newspaper movie house and radio the citizens of that city were attentively made familiar with their free library and its services.

In spite of all our noise and "pep programs", we in the United States might learn more from our neighbors in the north than they could from us about using their public library. Let us learn how to induce our people to read more good books.

Daily Care is Needed to Keep Complexion Smooth and Lovely

GLADYS S WARTHOUT
Whose lovely complexions claim attention everywhere

(By Helen Follett)

BE KIND to your complexion; it has a hard life. Constant exposure to harsh winds and strong sunlight are no help to the satiny texture. The skin has work to do, and likes to be bothered. It sends off waste products through the pores, it renews the epidermal coat soft and smooth; it has a lot to do with keeping the temperature of the body normal; it is constantly throwing off dead cells and growing new ones. It is as busy as an old cat with kittens.

Overheated homes play the skin which becomes dry and harsh. When there is moisture in the air it thrives. Women who live in foggy countries have better complexions than those who live where the air is dry.

Keep faith with the cold cream jar; next to soap it is the best of all cosmetics. Don't be casual when applying it. Puting on a light film doesn't help much. Rub in the emollient, smooth the flesh with flattened fingers, tap lightly until your face is warm and glowing.

Before the age of 30 and from 30 on until old age, the nightly cream-ing should not be slighted. Apply cream after the face has been washed or make-up removed with cleansing oil. Massage should be given to a clean surface; otherwise dirt and cosmetics are forced into the pores, producing blackheads which are hateful.

Add a can of corn to a plain omelet and serve it for dinner or lunch, or you can serve it with fish, bacon or ham.

C. G. I. T. Groups Present French-CanadianEvening

Displays of handicraft, for which the province of Quebec is famous and pictures by artists of that section gave the atmosphere of a French-Canadian village to the Sunday School hall of Trinity United Church when the C.G.I.T. groups presented a French Canadian evening last night. The hall was especially attractive with its tiny white houses, reproduced from a Clarence Gagnon water colour. The beautiful hand made blankets and a quaint spinning wheel added to the interesting scene. The girls of the various groups were costumed in styles of early French Canada and gave a delightful program of music and drama.

Numbers from the treasury of French Canadian folk songs were sung in splendid voice by a chorus of C.G.I.T. members directed by Mrs. J. F. Bradley, who acted as pianist for the evening. The singing was very acceptable as the girls had to respond to demands for several encores. Miss Irene Michaud was chairman and introduced the various items which made up the interesting program.

A play which told the story of Madeline de Verchers, heroine of the Indian days was well given by the girls. Madeline was shown to be a girl who longed for adventure and far off places rather than the monotony of routine of household tasks. When her mother pointed out that courage is for those who have to endure duties as well as great issues she decided to overcome her restlessness and, in the little village, found her opportunity to be a heroine. The parts in the play were taken last evening and the girls were highly praised for their performances. The setting was also appropriately arranged. Those taking part were:

Madeline Verchères—Myra Goodfellow.

Madame Verchères—Mary Redmen.

Lucie De La Motte—Irene Mitchell.

Suzanne—Peggy Doolittle.

Bertha—Marie Embury.

Louis—Doris Hanna.

Alexander—Gertrude Nunn

Villagers—Loretta Stark, Bernice Cooke.

Miss Jean Catcher directed the play.

Among the interesting numbers between acts were a tap dance by Eileen Bowen, violin solo by Wilma Judge, accompanied by Miss Muriel Wardaner and talks on the C.G.I.T. The first of these, in the form of a dialogue, was given by Bernice Cooke and Corinne Walmsley, who explained the purpose and aims of the organization. They pointed out that in the Tabernacle Church there were four active groups. These are Wanakeeta—under the leadership of Miss Muriel Wardner; The Marians— Miss Marion Fisher; The King's Navy— Miss Jean Catcher and Miss Jean Williamson, and the Sunshine Workers—Mrs. C. Lent and Mrs. Templeton. Peggy Doolittle and Loretta Stark demonstrated the meaning of the uniform insignia.

At the conclusion of the program, Rev. D. T. McClinton expressed the appreciation of the audience for the splendid program. Refreshments were served by the gracious young hostesses. The tea table was presided over by Mrs. McClintock and Mrs. French.

Delicious candy and home cooking were offers for sale at a booth which also had hablitant decorations, the centre of attraction here being a thatch covered miniature building. The girls in charge of the booth were Miss Marion Risher, leader and Misses Margaret Kilpatrick, Jean Parks, Barbara Greenleaf, Dorothy Hanna, Kitty Loudoun, Olive Treverton, Marjorie Kennedy, Jean Redfern and Betty Redfern.

The decorating committee whose artistic work was highly commended included Mrs. Lent, Misses Muriel Wardener, Helen Agrow, Helen Loft, Helen Weiden, Catherine Bateman, Wilma Judge, Dorothy Poste and Ruth McClelland.

Fireside Group Hear Talk on Switzerland

At the Fireside Hour last Sunday evening, the Young People of Bloomfield United Church were fortunate in having as their guest speaker a native of Switzerland, Mr. Ernie Mater, now a resident of this city. His address on Switzerland contained some very interesting facts.

Switzerland, if its shape were slightly altered, could be put into Lake Ontario. A part of the country is occupied by the Alps and the Jura Mountains. Even so, the inhabited areas contain four million people. Of these 70 percent speak German, 20 percent French, 5 percent Italian, and 2 percent Romansh. The German spoken is a dialect, but the school texts and newspapers in the German speaking districts are written in high German. To show the difference between High German and the Swiss dialect, Mr. Mater read a lullaby in the dialect, then in the High German.

The story of the first watch made in Switzerland was recounted. Now Switzerland exports one million dollars' worth of watches annually. Since the Great War the railways have been electrified. When Switzerland entered the League of Nations, one of the conditions of her entrance was that she should not be forced into any foreign wars. Since 1291 Switzerland has been at peace. With plenty of time to cultivate the arts of peace, the cultivation of apples, pears, cherries, according to popular opinion, is well advanced.

In the latter part of the nineteenth century a native of Switzerland observed the horrors of war in Italy. The result of his observation was the founding of the Red Cross movement.

Mr. Mater's address was made still more interesting by the use of maps and pictures.

After the splendid lecture on Switzerland, a social half hour was enjoyed by those present. Refreshments were served under the capable leadership of Miss Gertrude Lester. Mrs. Charlie Earle, and Mrs. McCabe

Kingston Road W. A.

On Wednesday evening, February 9th, the W.A. of the Kingston Road United Church, held a very successful "All Home" in the form of a Valentine Party, at the home of Mrs. Wilfred La Rue Jr.

A large number assembled consisting of the members of the W.A. and their families and friends despite the foggy night.

The programme was opened by the President, Mrs. R. Wallace, with "What a Friend, We Have in Jesus" followed with prayer by Rev. Farnsworth.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Miss Jean Gasely, Community singing followed with "O Canada" and "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean". A guitar and mouth organ selection by Mrs. John Kingston, accompanied by Mr. W. La Rue Sr., with the violin was much enjoyed.

Mrs. E. Emry then favoured with a reading entitled "Laura". This followed with more community singing "Comin' Thro' The Rye" and "When You and I were Young Maggie". Little Miss Barbara La Rue gave a valentine recitation in a very pleasing manner.

Mrs. J. Kingston and Mr. La Rue Sr. also favoured with musical numbers which were greatly appreciated.

"The W.A." was composed and read by Mrs. Emry.

The W.A.

The Women's Association,
Is as busy as can be,
We're always holding meetings
And serve a cup of tea.

Just a jolly get-together,
With a bit of work and play,
Quilting blocks and piecing quilts
Is the order of the day.

Just to make a little money,
For the good old church's work.
Every member does her part,
Can you find one who will shirk?

So a valentine party
The work we'll hold tonight,
To have a social time together
And do the thing up right.

So the men were asked to come along
And join our bit of fun—
We're going to ask them for a dime,
Before the party's done.

Mrs. La Rue was very kind,
To offer her home on-night,
We know she'll let us come again
If we behave just right.

So with songs and games and refreshments,
We should have a jolly time.
No doubt, we'll hear the young men say
"Won't you be my Valentine?"

We hope you like the programme,
And enjoy the lunch the same,
If we treat you nice enough this time
Perhaps you'll come again."

How could the men e'er prosper
Without the ladies' fair?
How could the church e'er get along Without the W.A.

Then Mrs. La Rue took charge of a Valentine contest with two questions and two lists at separate tables putting a Valentine together in lag-saw fashion. The winning table being Mrs. R. Ridley, Miss J. Casely, Mr. J. Kingston and Mr. T. Casely. The prize was two hearts of candy.

A second contest followed with questions of 'Cupid' if he grew up would be a bachelor which was won by Mrs. Walkom, Mrs. Minore, Mr. Donaldson and Rev. Farnsworth. Cupid's prize also being a box of candy.

Cookings was enjoyed for a short time followed by a very tasty lunch served by the ladies.

Miniature Household Tools

Welcome

You may wonder why little Susan still enjoys the battered cleaning set you gave her at Christmas when you have bought her another wonderfully rabbit that squeaks and wiggles. Perhaps it is because psychologists, her behavior is perfectly normal. Childhood loves toys and enable their own creative powers to have full play.

The same reason why miniature housekeeping tools are always welcome gifts to children at this time of the year. As the child sweeps and scrubs, bathes her dolls and makes their clothes, she has a sense of importance in doing the things her mother does. Watching a corner of the kitchen floor with her own little scrubbing brush and pail while mother scrubs up will give her more satisfaction than a mechanical toy that performs by itself. Meanwhile she is getting a wholesome introduction to the tasks that she will probably have to do, or at least to supervise, in later years.

Reward Only Brilliant Pupils?

The Basis For Scholarship Awards Discussed By Writer Grenelle

(LISA GRENELLE)

"YOUR SONS marks do not warrant a scholarship," said the principal.

Mrs. Phelps cleared his throat uncomfortably. "But, I can't afford —Raymond is very conscientious."

"Yes, I know," the principal said, pressing the tips of his fingers together. "Raymond's teachers report him to be very conscientious. He never misses a class unprepared. He passes all his examinations, although not always brilliantly. He never copies anyone's else work. He never causes any trouble. He is always courteous and co-operative. Raymond is popular with the pupils and his fellow students; everybody seems to like him. He is one of the best officers of student government, a boy both the boys and the teachers trust. Mr. Phelps, you have a son that does you credit, a boy who is a good influence—the kind of boy we need in this school Mr. Phelps. I don't think we can afford to lose him, and to not have a scholarship."

And he stopped and put his signature to a piece of paper. "There are very few of the scholarships we've given since I became principal here that I feel so confident will really benefit the student. I hope you will let your son know the conditions we all have in him, Mr. Phelps."

Served as Challenge

Yes, that's a true story. And Raymond, to whom the scholarship was repeated, whistled with pride and awe. "Gee! That kind of makes me feel awful," he said.

"Why, Raymond?"

"Well, I wouldn't want to let the school down, after this."

And Raymond didn't. His marks improved, although they were never outstanding. Raymond was not a brilliant boy. But he answered to his credit the challenge offered by that scholarship. Raymond did not let the school down.

And the school did not let him down. For he kept on being conscientious, honesty, courtesy and self-control are appreciated. He carried went out into the world with the support and comfort of that kind of belief. Perhaps in after years he may be shaken—but people have a way of coming back to their first beliefs; for better or for worse.

Valuable to School

As for the school, the principal was right. It could not afford to lose Raymond. No school can afford to lose the good influence of boys or girls. There aren't too many of them. But on them the standards of the school depend—the order, the honor, the ambition and even, indirectly, eventually, the accomplishments. Because, without order and standard, co-operation and ambition, but with all the brilliance in the world, children cannot learn, and cannot grow for long.

The Raymonds are invaluable in any school. They would be worth paying a salary in order to keep them there, if it could be. Certainly they deserve, and no school can afford not to grant them, a scholarship if they need it.

Brilliant scholars are interesting and a source of pride to any school, and occasionally that brilliance really does flower later on, and the school gets some of reflected glory. But it is the "good influence" student who keeps the school a going, honorable and respected concern.

FISH CAN BE COOKED IN PAN IN BROILER

Broiled Fish Potato Puffs

Lemon Pudding Cheese Wafers
Tea

Any fish may be broiled. I usually do my broiling in a dripping pan which I put in the broiler, removing the grating. It seems easier to me to clean the pan than the broiler. Also, the pan is more amused evenly over the pan will keep the fish from sticking. Don't use more than a thin covering, however, or it will flare up. Season with salt and pepper while cooking. Broil slowly, with the pan about three inches from a low flame. When done remove to warm platter.

Today's Recipes

DRAWN BUTTER GRAVY — One tablespoon butter, two tablespoons flour, mix smooth over low heat. Cook to boiling water, one tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, stir until thick; season with salt, paprika and two tablespoons fresh chopped parsley.

LEMON PUDDING — Two cups water, one cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in a little water, the rind and juice of lemons, one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Cook in double boiler and when thick remove from fire and add to the yolks of three eggs. Chill and serve in sherbet glasses.

Baking a Ham

"It is easy to bake a whole ham," says Janet B. Wilson. "Some economist, "and this is how it is done; Put it in a deep pan, lay side on on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not cover, and do not add water. Put in in a moderately hot oven" 1300-350 degrees F.) and bake until done. Allow approximately 35 minutes per pound for baking a whole ham.

"Forty-five minutes before the ham is done, remove it from the oven and pull off the rind if this was not done at the market. Score the fat, cover it with sugar and cloves. Rub over it brown sugar which has been moistened with ham drippings and seasoned with a bit of mustard. Return it to the oven to finish baking and to glaze.

"If you are serving it for a special occasion, just before serving, decorate the ham with maraschino or candied cherries. This is where you may let your artistic temperament be your guide. Cut the cherries into slivers and outline the scoring with them. Or slice the cherries and decorate the ham in clover leaf design with the red cherry rings. Or as a decoration for the platter, for Washington's birthday, use the cherries, together with candied pineapple or citron, to represent a cherry tree."

Americans Four Full Games Ahead of Maroons by 4-0 Win Over Canadiens in New York

Likely to Beat Big Red Team Out of a Playoff Berth

BOSTON BRUINS WIN

Boston Had No Trouble Defeating Maroons By 5-2 Score

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal Maroons may as well forget those hopes that New York Americans would fall to pieces. Their ideas about cutting in on the playoff money can be tucked away for another season. For the red college kids from Gotham Americs now and that restorative can't be beaten when it's used on a band of veterans.

The New Yorkers were doing well enough before Ted Dutton got hurt. But when they heard yesterday that their manager was in a plaster cast from a back muscle injury suffered in practice they was no stopping the slightly screwy Dutton gang.

They forgot they were the daffiness boys and became Frank Boucher's well oiled machine after the injured coach. In that state of mind they had practically no trouble at all crushing Montreal Canadiens 4-0 in New York's meeting four full games ahead of Maroons.

Four Point Week

It was a "four point" win for Dutton's team because Boston Bruins whipped Toronto 5-2 in Boston and the New Yorkers not only won two points but Maroons failed to pick up the two that were at stake in the Canadiens-Americs tilt so all went under the management of Ching Johnson's veteran defencemen, but Dutton may decide his back needs more than the five or six days the doctors have prescribed. Many a hockey manager would become a permanent invalid for a chance at the Stanley Cup.

It must be admitted, however, that Canadiens were without Babe Siebert, Wally Dendall and Don Wilson when Americs met them Siebert's absence left their defense shaky and the Frenchmen were not flying as they usually do.

Neal Scores Leads

Nels Stewart, probably the oldest of the American band of veterans, led the team to their win. He scored in the second and third period, the second time on a brilliant solo rush. Bert Sutcliffe, another old-timer got a goal in the third period and Sweeney Schriner added another in the last.

While the Maroon management was busy denying reports that players would be sold, Bruins widened their lead over the fifth place National League's American Division. They now are three points up on the Montreal team with a game in hand on them.

Maroons announced they had turned down a $15,000 offer for Hank Goldup, centre with Chicago Black Hawks and a $10,000 bid for another, unnamed player from the same club. Hawks made no announcement that they had tried to buy Montreal players.

Deadline Reached

The midnight deadline for trades and sales between N.H.L. clubs passed without reports of any deals. The clubs now have until March 1 to get minor leaguers. After that they can obtain only players from their farm clubs and amateurs.

Bruins took an early lead in the first period of the game with Maroons but played raggedly after that. A Boston report of the game suggested a change from scraping to sweeping as the best method of their play. The sweeping was said to have begun the last period by removing the snow from skate cuts.

Bill Cowley, Bobby Bauer and Charlie Sands scored the first period goals. Ray Getliffe scored in the second for Bruins and Woody Dumart got another in the third. Gus Marker scored for Montreal in the second period and Northcott marked up the skier in the final session.

PROVIDENCE REDS ENJOYING TOP SPOT

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds took a turn today at enjoying first place in the section of the International-American Hockey League. In the last five weeks the Reds and Philadelphia Ramblers have changed about in that spot, and often on a head nicker finds a new owner.

Reds climbed into the top berth with a 2-1 victory last night over Syracuse Stars, league champions, while Cleveland Barons played a 1-1 overtime draw with Springfield Indians. It was the 13th straight game without defeat for Barons, who are unbeaten at home this season.

However, Ramblers will have a chance to get back into the lead tonight when they play Pittsburgh Hornets while Reds are idle. The Reds only have a one-point margin over the Philadelphia outfit. Stars swing into action again tonight against New Haven Eagles.

Why's He Worrying?

Pitcher Johnny Allen's last year record of 16 wins for Cleveland Indians against only 7 defeats, earns more cheerful thoughts than Johnny seems to be enduring while undergoing a hot bath treatment at Hot Springs, Ark. Or maybe Johnny feels a swell place to wrap down and has just drifted off into the land where "stind" umpires and the daily percentage is junk to him. Here he is anyway soaking up while an attendant looks after the manager.

Roy "Wink" Wilson Leading Scorer of Belleville Redmen

Secures Nine Goals and Nine Assists For the Season

Roy "Wink" Wilson, speedy right winger of the Belleville Redmen whose bullet-like shot is a byword throughout the local senior O.H.A. group, finished the regular league schedule of nine games as the leading scorer of the Redmen with 18 scoring points, by virtue of nine goals and nine assists, scored in nine group games.

Following Wilson in scoring prowess are his two line-mates, Will and Chayt Jackson, the Deseronto "twin terminers". Will having eleven scoring points and Chayt eight.

In their nine senior O.H.A. games the Belleville Redmen won two and lost seven, their worst defeat of the season being registered by the R. C. A. F. "Flyers" who defeated the Redmen 8 to 4 on one occasion. The Redmen participated in their full quota of nine tussles during the regular schedule.

In the nine games played by the Redmen, the Thomasites scored 39 goals for an average of practically four goals per game. Defensively, however, the Redmen had 47 goals scored against them, an average of slightly over five per game. They are credited with 27 assists for an aggregate total of 82 scoring points.

Not Many Penalties

Kenneth Murphy, hard-hitting defenceman of the Redmen, was the bad man of the team, serving a total of 23 minutes in the penalty box during the season, which includes a ten minutes major penalty, however. Otherwise, the Redmen's penalty record is one to be proud of. Collectively the Redmen only served 58 minutes of penalties during their entire nine O.H.A. games played.

Manager Eddie Thomas used three goalkeepers during the season. Ab Hinton, local boy playing his first year in the senior O.H.A. ranks, finished the group as the regular goalie, after Ken Wall, who was general utility man responsible for the Redmen winning the intermediate "B" championship of the city in 1936, was forced into retirement owing to ill health. Ken Wall played seven games, Hinton nine and Ken Wall was secured upon 18 times, slightly over an average of five per game. Walt Leeder, the senior O.H.A. goalie of the season when the Redmen lost in overtime 4 to 3, in their first game, was in the nets the night Belleville defeated Queen's University 6 to 5 in the individual scoring records of the Belleville Redmen for nine games throughout their group series:

NINE ARE DRAWN IN SECOND ROUND

Canada Gets Through First Round Without a Defeat

Praha, Czechoslovakia Feb. 16.—(CP)—The five nations eliminated, the teams of nine others today prepared to battle for survival in the second round of the world's amateur hockey championships which a band of Ontario players is defending for Canada.

The "Big Three" of the tournament, Canada, Great Britain and the United States, were placed in different groups for the second round, and will not meet each other until the final round—if all reach it as they are favored to do. Britain and the United states had a preliminary bout in a Prague rink Monday yesterday. The score was 1-1.

Canada in pool two will face Germany tomorrow and Hungary on Friday. Britain's opponents in pool one will be Poland and Sweden while the United States in pool one will face Switzerland and Czechoslovakia.

Expanded Pool

Under the original rules only eight teams were to enter the second round but officials decided to expand it into nine teams— a break for Sweden which was due for elimination, having finished third behind Canada and Czechoslovakia in its group.

The Canadians, playing as Sudetenland, defeated Czechoslovakia yesterday 3-0 for their third straight win in which only two goals were scored on them. Gordon Bruce, Ottawa, Pearcy Allan, Toronto, and Red Chrystal, Kirkland Lake were yesterday's marksmen.

Germany defeated Norway 8-0; Hungary won from Rumania 3-1; Switzerland defeated Poland 7-1; and Austria tied with Sweden, 1-1.

REDMEN, FLYERS START PLAYOFFS

Locals Open in Kingston — Flyers Start With Petes Here

The two local hockey ship interests, the Belleville Redmen and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" team out for their respective group play-off waters this week with the Redmen's opening game tonight when Flyers and snipers versus the Queen's "skipmen" in the Limestone City. The Intermediate "A" group play-off at Kingston on the Belleville team at 8.30 p.m. Leading the arena last night, lumbering up for tomorrow night's tilt with the Queen's "Flat Waists" was the Redmen's practice, with the Flyers take to the ice for a short period of fast stick-handling and rush drill and nine assists each. Ernie McKeever topped this trio in the matter of goals, having ten goals and only eight assists.

According to the Peterboro scribes Flyers will Challenge

In the leading scorer of the entire loop, with 21 scoring points, we only compiled the statistics for the Flyers and Redmens. As the Peter have played ten league games, while the Flyers and Redmens only had nine group games played. Included in their averages, it seems as though the scoring of Wilson and Jackson against Lecompte is about on an average with the top scorers at the league, as goodness knows how many goals the two local marksmen have gathered in their respective line.

Getting back to the Redmen's scoring system, however, Belleville's front line of the Jacksons and Wilson were accountable, we find, for 21 of the Redmen's 27 goals, or 77 of their 62 scoring points. The absence of outstanding goal getters in the ranks of the Redmen's aforesaid scoring was more than offset by the sharp penalty at Peterboro. However, at that Murphy only served seven minutes in nine games which is not a record of a rough player, it must be admitted.

"Tosh" Halvay's Belleville Juniors Also in the Hunt for Honors

Belleville Juniors will be in the initial practice at the Arena last night, about 20 teen-aged kids, all under 17 years of age, answering the roll. The kids showed willingness to listen and learn on the occasion Halvay stepped kids in their tracks to show them the error of certain mistakes being committed. The boys should realize when ever their coach speaks to them that they should give full attention, as his knowledge is considered of importance to impart for their benefit. The nucleus of a fairly good team is present, certain players though the kids have much to learn, but they are all lusty boys and what's the time comes it is hoped the fans will give them the moral support necessary, as they will be the O.H.A. players of tomorrow. Incidentally when Coach Halvay announced practice again at 1.30 a.m. Saturday, the kids greeted the news with enthusiasm. "You've got to love the game to play it and makes you really love it, quit now," was Coach Halvay's advice after the practice. We hope the boys inwardly digested that suggestion.

We understand the public will be permitted to take in the Kiwanis-Kinsmen's inter-club hockey fiasco at the Arena commencing at 10.00 p.m. Thursday night. To see some of those veteran Kiwanian hockey skates alone should be inducement enough to assure a goodly crowd.

Our local N.H.L. (Night Hawk League), that operates in the wee small hours at the Arena weekly, received a fine large silver trophy, to be awarded the winner of the loop, President "Stew" Blain, of the Bell Telephone, informs us. The cup was presented to the league by the Belleville Aquinas Club which also sponsored a junior softball team last summer. The "Owl League" are all agog over their new cup and will continue activities with renewed interest shortly.

Remember way back when the boxers weighed in at some popular saloon and the fans downed many mugs of the foaming brew in the chiefest preliminaries....and assistants ires for hours?

It's rumored that when Capital Gardens, Washington's big sports Arena, is finished, a bid will be made for the Ottawa franchise in either the National League or the International-American circuit.

HODGE PODGE—See where 'Red' Doran, former native of Belleville, has been sold by Detroit to the New Haven Eagles; Red must feel like an elevator boy—he has so many ups and downs....Ottawa Cowboy Brother Bill, helped himself to three scoring goals as the Bruins won 5-2 over the Maroons last night.....There'll be lots of fun throughout the Montreal, and the 'take' that is what it might be.....Incidentally 'Uncle Bill' Fry, local rugby football maestro, is the C.N.R. A.A.F. is the logical point for a fourth senior O.R.F.U. spot....Undoubtedly the O.R.F.U. is to dole out its 1937 honors at an annual meeting Saturday. Cobourg is included as interminable "3" champs....A little more of the 'pooch' up-and-down and maybe we could have substituted the Panthers for the Red Raiders.....The Kingston Frontenac boxman rejected the Black Hawks' offer of $15,000 for Baby Northcott.....With the Hawks and Maroons so well fortified in the N.H.L. Baby Northcott is unconcerned about the whole thing.

MANY TRANSIENTS ARE WESTERNERS

Lack of Work There Starts Them Eastwards in Search of Work

City streets are dotted with transients of mornings late, hurrying in doorways, idling at curbs, ready to descend upon the early-day pedestrians, replete with hard luck tales of starvation and want.

Their numbers have been reduced by day succeeds day. Sadly recognizable from a distance by even the most inobservant of residents, the tattered ones have become noticeably numerous during the past two weeks or less.

From whence have they come? questioned the reporter who found himself accosted for alms no less than three times in a brief walk down Front Street this morning.

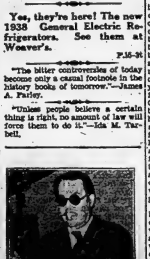
"Personally", stated the ragged one upon whose lips the echo of a dime request for "coffee and doughnuts" still lingered, "personally I'm from the West, beating my way east to Montreal as the crow flies, which I figure I'll make, if I haven't too much hard luck, just about the time that navigation opens.

"It's a tough West", commented the transient shifting a foot upon which pieces of grimy sock protruded from the split shoe.

"And it's gettin' tougher all the time. Work, Mah! Mister, I've worked all a real job in so long I wouldn't know how to start. The last place I was hired for board only, and I worked about fifteen hours a day, doin' a lyin' a new racket. I'm headin' east for the boats. I'm goin' to be a sailor, even if I never saw the sea at close range.

Starved out of Saskatchewan on a small plot of farm land left by his late, hard-working parents, with the farm now gone through the effect of succeeding years of drought, the brief-lived visitor this morning (He said his name didn't matter, anyhow) scorned relief. Like hundreds of others he "hit the trail." The hills from his western plains had been a devious one of hunger, hard hock and harder-handed 'shacks' on the rumbling, swaying freight cars and unsympathetic 'cops' in the smaller towns and cities. On the verge of starvation at times, when even a drink of water was hard to get, the visitor had worked brief periods for a sleep in the barn and food alone.

"That's where we're comin' from —the West. We're fillin' the roads. Then, too, there's other hundreds who've started to shift from the cities where they holed up for the winter, all headin' east, but they don't know why or what they'll do when they get there.



"I want to work, Mister, but what are we goin' to do. That nickel and a couple of more nickels and dimes I might get if I ask enough people will just keep me from starving today. Then I'll repeat that tomorrow until the next cop picks me up and slams me in the 'big house'gow. But even there it's warm, or generally warm, and we manage to get a little rest. So it ain't too bad after all. Maybe we'll all be better off there".

Yes, they're here! The new 1938 General Electric Refrigerators. See them at Weaver's.

BIGGER SHIPS FOR BIGGER NAVY

Soviet Russia Out to Outstrip Nations in Naval Development

Moscow, Feb. 15—(AP)—Soviet Russia has set herself the ambitious task of outstripping all other nations in the naval armaments race.

Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff announces a program of bigger ships for a bigger navy, Peter Smirnoff Naval Commissar, went even further, saying Russia would build not only the best, but the biggest navy.

Reports spoke of 35,000-ton battleships.

Foreign experts agree Russia still has far to go to match the navies of rival powers. Molotoff indicated the U.S.S.R. is trying first to outstrip her potential enemies among the naval powers—Japan, Germany and Italy, allies in a pact against international communism.

Russia's present naval strength, like her planned strength, is closely guarded secret. About all that has been said by Soviet authorities is the statement in "The Star," the army newspaper, that the Soviet Union has an "excellent navy" armed with most modern guns and fighting apparatus."

Soviet shipbuilding, thus far, has consisted mostly of submarines and light craft, including many torpedo boats.

Robert Hewton' Coe Hill' Recalls Early Days of That District

One of the better known residents of Hastings County is Robert Hewton of Coe Hill who was born in the Township or Tyendinaga in 1854 and has lived in Coe Hill district since he was four years old.

Mr. Hewton's parents were born in Ireland and ranked as one of the original settler families in the country, coming to Canada when quite young from Ireland and settling in Tyendinaga where they took up the heavy task of clearing the land, building their own home and wresting a living from the then rocky land. Robert, the eldest son of the small family was in his 4th year when his parents moved north from Tyendinaga and settled near Ormsby on the Hastings Road. At that time the land was covered with heavy stands of virgin timber and again the task of clearing their farm devolved upon Mr and Mrs. Hewton. Years of toil were necessary before sufficient land could finally be cleared to make other than a bare living from the rich soil. Maple at that time was the closest settlement and location where cash could be milled and marvelous bought.

When Robert Hewton was still a boy memory recalls that the founding of Ormsby was commenced with the construction of a small school house. Later the settlement was named. It now has two churches, a grocery store, service station, a school, a C. N. R. station and a number of residences.

Though Mr. Hewton's schooling was stricky and broken, his fundamentals and the three Rs were well learned at his mother's knee, he recalls. Later, at the age of 23, Robert and a cousin, Harry Foster, went further north and started in the bush forest and located a section of land in Faraday Township where they cleared all of the southern second, built log houses for themselves and about a year later became married.

Robert Hewton worked the farm in summer and in winter cut telegraph poles, railway ties and cordwood. For a number of years he served on the Faraday Township council.

Retiring from active work at the age of 66, he later took up residence with his daughter, Mrs. Norman Gilroy of Coe Hill where he resides, still active, healthy and content in his memories of the years that have been in North Hastings.

"We must be respected not only for our justice, but for our strength."—Herbert Hoover.

"The peace and goodwill business is still a mighty long way off."—General Robert Lee Bullard.

LIGHT NOW FLOODS HER LIFE OF DARKNESS

Five-year-old Alice Harris, imprisoned all her life in a dark room, is below shown (ABOVE), how to play with dolls by Nurse Marietta Jackson. The child's mother and grandfather, in whose home at Uniontown, Pa., the child was kept hidden, are facing charges of cruelty and neglect. So undernourished was the little girl she was found to be a cripple.

Pat O'Brien, Sybil Jason and Humphrey Bogart, starred in "The Great O'Malley" now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

LADY BOWLERS BID GOOD-BYE TO MRS. COUSE

The ladies of the afternoon Five Pin League at the Y.M.C.A. gathered in the parlor of the Association yesterday afternoon to enjoy light refreshments and a social half hour but particularly to bid farewell to Mrs. Couse who will leave for Australia in a few days.

Mrs. Couse has bowled in this series for several seasons and made many friends. Other members of the family are loyal members of the Y.

Mrs. Scott, captain of the team on which Mrs. Couse bowled presented Mrs. Couse with a lovely little gift from her bowling friends, as a token of friendship and a memento of many Appy hours. Mrs. Couse replied in very appropriate terms.

Mr. Shortt on behalf of the Y.M.C.A. delivered a brief farewell message and expressed the very best wishes of all for health, happiness and success to the Couse family in their new location.

KI-Y LEAGUE

Frank Cunningham's O. S. H. pocksters won and lost in the local KI-Y league at the Arena last evening, the O.S.D. juvenile winning their scheduled Juvenile group game over the Bruins, while the O.S.D. "Pee Wees" lost a midget series game.

Two games of midget hockey were played with the B.C.I. Gorillas trouncing the Queen Mary Wildcats 7 to 1. Gene Illsey was the outstanding scorer for the winners, tagging four of the B.C.I. counts. Hickey with two and Weller being the other marksmen, Barnum was the lone Wildcat marksman. The Gorillas marked their checks well and out-classed the losers throughout, scoring three goals in the first, two in the second and a brace of counters in the final frame.

A three goal splurge by the Flying Wings in the middle frame ultimately gave them a 4 to 4 victory over the O.S.D. "Pee Wees" in the other midget game. The boys from the Deaf school scored two in the first and last frames, being held off the score sheet in the middle frame, when the Wings assumed the offensive for three counters, after scoring one in the first and registering the winning counter in the final play.

Hutchison, Redner and Smith scored goals for the winners, as Bush sank a brace of counters. Hood and Cork accounted for the losers' four counters on an even basis.

BATTLING BARMAN BARRED FROM FIGHT WITH THOMAS

All the furious fighting poses that bristling Tony Celenta could put on didn't impress the New York boxing moguls of his ability to fight Harry Thomas in a scheduled, Feb. 18 bout and so, after glancing at pictures showing the New Jersey barrel-man training on the beer he dispensed over his own bar they cancelled the fight. Johnny Adamick will substitute against Thomas. Tony's backers squawked loudly that Tony had been gyped, that he was a scrapper of the fighting school that he'd take on anyone, anywhere, anytime, and Tony sprung a few poses like this to aid the campaign along. Itdidn't work; Tony stays out and Johnny steps in.

Canadians Hold Records Of Thirty Years as Fair Sec'y Treasurer

In the January issue of "Fair Times" a George Hamid, Inc., publication of New York City, devoted to the amusement and fall fairs interests of the continent, the following paragraph concerning R.H.Ketcheson, local secretary-treasurer of the Belleville Agricultural Society appears:

"In a previous issue of this publication it was mentioned that R. H. (Dick) Ketcheson, of Belleville, Ontario, Canada, was a secretary credited with the longest continuous service with any agricultural society.

Now the name of Walter Stevens of St. Stephen, New Brunswick, comes up with a record of 30 consecutive years in the Fair and Exhibition business. This paper is anxious to settle the matter. Let the chips fall".

"As near as I can tell, Mr. Stevens has about the same period of continuous service as I have", stated Mr. Ketcheson this morning. "We both are starting our thirtieth year in the fair business, I believe."

"I would like to point out that America leads the way in the number of living women novelists."—William Lyon Phelps.

TAYLOR—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Jessie Taylor, who passed away Feb. 16, 1936.
What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see;

Beyond the toil and strife
And clasp each others hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.

DEATH-DEALING COLD GRIPS ROCKIES

Denver, Feb. 16.—(AP)— Death-dealing cold gripped the Rockies, mountain and plain sections of the great plains area, and Oklahoma streams ran in flood stage today as a long-delayed blast of winter whipped southward out of Western Canada.

Montana and Nebraska reported deaths by freezing, and icy highways were blamed for death in Colorado and Kansas. Two to six inches of snow covered Colorado and Wyoming.

In Virginia a tax of thirty dollars a year was once imposed on all bathtubs.

London, in spite of its fogs, continues to have the lowest mortality record, per thousand of inhabitants, of any city in the world.

MARKET COMMENT

The latest announcement from Washington to the effect that the gold sterilization program on which the U.S. Treasury embarked in Dec. 1936, to protect the nation's credit structure from the flood of gold which was then coming from abroad, has been revised, effective Jan. 1, to the extent that only gold which enters the U.S. over and above $100,000,000 in any one quarter will be sterilized, indicates that the Administration is continuing to make an effort to improve business conditions. If business and the Government combine to arrest the business recession, success is bound to come. Any such efforts which lends encouragement to the belief that the decline in business will be arrested before the current year is very old.

The developments across the line are very closely watched on this side for the reason that our industries are closely interlocked with those of the United States. It is an accepted fact that Canadian stock markets will not embark on a sustained advance until Wall Street leads the way, which explains why so many local traders follow the trend of United States business conditions.

Total income of Imperial Oil for 1937 is expected to approximate $1.80 a share on the basis of present rates as compared with $6 cents a share reported in 1936. This security is regarded as one of Canada's prime investment mediums, affording a satisfactory return and boasting sound prospects. In considering Imperial Oil's prospects, one should not disregard its important interest in the Turner Valley which may prove extremely valuable and profitable in the immediate years ahead.

Calgary and Edmonton

Plans for 1938 call for 36 wells to be drilled in Calgary and Edmonton land, under existing leases and prospective leases to be issued if options are exercised. It is as yet too early in the year however, to forecast how many are actually to be drilled.

HITLER
'Confronted by Wooden Face'

"Von Schuschnigg, in turning toward Rome, found himself—for good reasons—confronted by a wooden face. Undoubtedly von Schuschnigg received expressions of sympathy from London and Paris. However, since such expressions are of no avail when confronted by ultimatums, he ended up by capitulating.

"We are sorry for him, we do not blame him."

The article entitled "Finis Austria" in the Socialist newspaper Le Populaire, Andre Blumel declared Italy was an "accomplice" to Hitler. Great Britain and France were the countries entitled to guarantee Austrian independence, he said.

Nazis Annexited

Vienna, Feb. 16—(AP)—More than 2,000 annexited Nazi convicts began leaving Austrian prisons and concentration camps today on a reorganized cabinet with Nazi influence in the key posts under assured control.

Some sources set as high as 3,000 the number affected by the amnesty, including those convicted or facing sentence for illegal activity as members of the Nazi party.

British Cabinet Meets

London, Feb. 16—(AP)—The cabinet today considered Germany's new thrust toward absorption of Austria, but there was no indication it was planning any active steps.

The Foreign Office was in frequent consultation with Paris.

Most of the London press, while reflecting concern over the fate of Austria and other small European countries, favored a hands-off policy.

Tomorrow will be the fourth anniversary of the tri power declaration by Great Britain, France and Italy on "the necessity of maintaining Austria's independence and integrity." Since then, however, Italy has become friendly with Germany and the rift with Great Britain and France.

The tri-power declaration reunited from Austrian allegations of German interference with Austrian internal affairs.

ICE JAM REMAINS UNCHANGED TODAY

Cold Weather Allowing Excess Water Opportunity to Flow Freely

Receding of the water in the Moira River to a point only a few inches above the level was noticeable today in the open channels that are flowing in and around the heavy ice-field that is choking the lower stretches of the river.

Temperatures of last night again aided materially in welding the ice-field into a compact mass. Above the footbridge a distinct setting of the jam is noticeable as heavy cakes of ice are dropping to the level of the water that is flowing at a lower level below the footbridge.

Pressure waters that inundated parking areas in the rear of buildings on the west side of Front Street are now again elsewhere of ice. Water that flowed over the banks has now receded and there is no trace of the water in cellars or basements of the main street properties with the exception of a few places where outward seepage is prevented by the solid ice immediately outside the buildings.

Stores and other places of business affected by last week's heavy flood that poured into cellars and basements are now gradually approaching normalcy. Fires are being lighted in furnaces of heretofore flooded basements with the Municipal Department Stores reporting a return to normal heating conditions tomorrow. This store has been forced to use a temporary furnace during the emergency for heating purposes during the past few days.

Impossibility of a general movement of the ice-jam that stretches nearly three miles west of a mile from the river mouth is further enhanced by the general receding of the water in the river. Should some quarters the opinion was voiced that the movement of the ice-jam in the river would be insufficient to cause a general movement should a rise in temperature accompanied by a heavy rainfall or the breaking away of ice-fields in the harbor are solidly frozen above the dams at Canniffton and Stirling.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Wall Willyum, the house next door has been rented and we're about to have new nayburs.

I hope they're decent law abiding people, or if they're not I hope they dont shoot through the walls, pop said, and ma said, Such a thought, well I know one thing, they're not the world's brightest people.

If they were we wuld have some trouble living up with them, so let's hope they're not the world's dumbest people ha said, and ma said, Wall if they're not they run I themselves a close second. The woman came over to look over the condition of the house today and I happened to be at the front door so I met her informaly. Their name is Snickerbee, ma said.

Well, you can handle Mams the man for that, although the woman could of avoided it, unless perhaps she was escaping from something worse, pop said, and ma said, I dont know where they came from, but it must of been somewhere around the Equator, because they're certainly backward as far as the world's fallward progress is concerned.

Yes gods, did you put her through a questionaire of your short acquaintance? pop said, and ma said, Well hardly my dear, but I did happen to mention a little something about bridge because I thought it would be very handy to have a 3rd and a 4th for bridge rite next store if they were the rite sort of people, and low and behold it seems neither of them knows a single iota about the game. It seems they claim they've both been too busy reading books to have any time left to learn bridge. Did you ever hear of such ignorance in this enlightened day and age, Willyum? ma said.

It makes me shudder to think of it, why didn't I think of it before it was too late? pop said.

Meaning on account of him knowing how to play bridge already and generly not enjoying it.

DOUBLE EVENT IS CELEBRATED AT W. HANNA'S HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hanna Honored on 61st Wedding Anniversary

SISTER, 15 94

Mrs. Symanthia Dix Celebrates Her Birthday On Same Day

Stirling, Feb. 13 (Special)—Happiness was radiant at the Stirling home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hanna on Tuesday of this week, when in conjunction with the celebration of their 61st wedding anniversary, the groom's sister shared the festivities as she celebrated her 94th birthday. Mrs. Symanthia Dix is doubtless one of the oldest residents of Hastings County and the joy of the occasion was radiant in her clear blue eyes as she received guests conveying personal wishes and greetings at the home of her brother. Alert, she greeted us as we entered the happy home and insisted that we remain until the large birthday cake bearing ninety-four tiny candles was cut. We must also remain for afternoon tea along with several other guests present. Born on the Hanna homestead in River Valley where her parents settled about years ago, she recalled attending school in Stirling walking the distance daily. At the age of twenty-four she left for U.S.A. to continue her academic training in a fashionable ladies' college. Now enjoying excellent health, she resides at the home of her baby brother Wm. Hanna and happily busies herself assisting with the routine household duties.

Brother Married in 1878

Her brother Wm. Hanna eleven years younger than she is observes—markedly and modestly admitted that Feb. 15th sixty-one years ago will be happy wedding day. One having a patriotic love for the county of Hastings could not be greeted by this trio of pioneers from another day, without sharing a pride that is indeed justified.

Many, many years ago a settler weary from travel stopped with his family in clearing near the river. Trees began cutting down trees built himself a shelter and established what later became the Hanna homestead. The children grew to be men and women. Symanthia going away to school and William courting the girl of his dreams further up the river. Miss Sarah Anderson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anderson after whom Anderson Island was named. Both families were United Empire Loyalists of Scottish and Dutch descent. Sixty-one years ago on Monday on a day, when the weather was much the same the bridal couple left in a horse and cutter for the town of Brighton, where they became man and wife starting a long and happy companionship. After their marriage they returned to the home of the groom's parents where they resided until their retirement.

Speaks of Changes

Speaking of the changes in the mode of living in the present day, Mr. Hanna considered the farming with less work but with increasing problems with the influx of modern machinery. I well remember using the cradle and grass scythe sowing fields of grain by hand. I remember being lifted to the horse's back to drive the old fashioned horse rake or threshing machine. "I think I owned the first binder" stated he, "and I was proud of the action," stated this most interesting man who had learned at first hand the value of experience. For many years an ardent fisherman and hunter this son of the sport in days gone by were much enjoyed. Fishing in the River for the canal certainly had its effect upon the fishing. Did they have floods in those days? we asked.

Tells of Floods

"Yes Belleville has been the victim of flood seasons far longer than I can remember". We were married in the flood season" he added with a smile. "One day we returned from our wedding trip the roads were muddy and water ran freely down the ditches, Asked what caused the floods, "In his estimation, there was a twinkle of merriment in his eye as he answered water, of course". But seriously I agree with many, that clearing of the land, and the end of the old lumbering along with the cleaning of all the ditches are main factors in the annual flood experienced by Belleville. The waters of the northern lakes and rivers were dammed back for the purpose of floating logs down years ago that lowered the water level of the marshes near the city. There are very few dams and even on the small creeks now and the water travels towards the lake much faster.

We were called back to the dining room where the blaze from the ninety-four candles on the birthday cake looked like a bonfire to the centre of the table. Laughing eyes w ' hed with eagerness as the guest of honor blew out the candles them all out and then proceeded to cut and serve the guests. It was a most enjoyable event and somehow we felt strangely "old" as we wished all three much joy and many future days. As we were leaving we heartily accepted the invitation to return again next year to take part in the celebration of two fold significance.

DURING MOTHERHOOD

WOMEN who dread motherhood, who suffer from loss of appetite and nausea, should be helped by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read what Mrs. J. W. Flanagan, 16 La-best Ave., Toronto, said: "Before the birth of my little girl I had pains in my back and no appetite and was very nervous. I could not sleep. I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at a time and can say it stimulated my appetite, restored my feel strength and seemed to give me new life. It is excellent for weak mothers!"

ADVISES CAUTION IN LOAN TO ITALY

Financial News Fears It Might Stimulate Rearmament

London, Feb. 16—(CP—Havas)—The Financial News (independent) warned today that the granting of a loan to Italy would be "worse folly" unless the Rome government formally guarantees the effective end of the political rapprochement which should follow.

"The granting of such a loan without the firmest political and military guarantees would be fatal" the newspaper said in commenting on frequent reports that the opposition of this nature is in the offing. "The more one considers the various aspects of the loan proposals the less attractive and useful they appear."

Italy's Unstable Regime

"At best the loan would serve to bolster up the somewhat unstable internal regime in Italy. At the worst it would stimulate Italy's rearmament program and would at some time in the future lead to one of worse tension and uncertainty in the Mediterranean and the near East.

In this connection the Yorkshire Post, conservative, influential provincial newspaper which is largely owned by Mrs. Rupert Beckett, published a markedly conciliatory editorial on the problems confronting Italy.

Considering the Spanish "adventure" has become unpopular among Italians, the Post placed credence in reports that Italy would be forced to withdrawal of foreign volunteers.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE ELLIS

"Throughbreds Don't Cry"

Three children, a motherly landlady, and one of the dirtiest horse races of the American season mingle in a drama with heart interest, love, and loyalty in "Throughbreds Don't Cry," drama of youth and the turf to be presented at the Ellis tomorrow (Thursday) and Friday, matinee daily.

Ronald Sinclair, new English boy actor makes his bow in his first important role, teamed with Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney and Sophie Tucker. He plays an English boy who owns a horse, Peter, plays the jockey who tricks him, and through remorse and friendship finds regeneration. Miss Garland sings a new song, "Ootsa Pair of New Shoes" that turns out a distinctive hit. Miss Tucker has the sympathetic role as the landlady, and extracts every ounce of drama from it.

Based on a story by Eleanore Griffin and J. Walter Ruben, "Throughbreds Don't Cry," provides many racing thrills and adds from the heart interest. Hundreds of people appear in the race sequences filmed at Santa Anita race track. Principal players include Charles Judels, Fay Percival, Darryl, Charles D. Brown, Frankie Darro, Henry Kolker and Helen Troy.

The equality of women gets better than an even break in "My Dear Miss Aldrich," the amusing comedy which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer provides as the companion feature on the same program.

With Edna May Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan and Walter Pidgeon supplying a first-rate cast, this picture ranks as one of the better laugh films of the month. It tells the story of a school teacher who inherits a newspaper. The managing editor, sensing in the belief that no woman is fitted for work beyond the home, attempts to block her at every turn until, of course, falls in love with her.

It is first rate comedy entertainment and you will love it.

Romance of Radium

Romance of Radium, an unusual subject portraying the story of time in motion pictures, the drama, and danger involved in the discovery and in the use of radium will be presented on the same program. It also impresses with the danger involved in filming this "miracle mineral." The theme presented in story form by capable actors and with new radium was discovered accidently by Professor Rene Desquerel and isolated by the Curies. In history, the unusual power of its rays to pierce armor plate twelve inches thick, the danger involved causing untold expense and giving the mineral the value of $20,000 a gram its life saving properties, as well as its destructive powers, how it is kept, actual photographs of the mineral with its power to give off rays from capsules within itself, Pete Smith's off screen narrative makes this a subject that will be found unusually interesting, and will be long remembered.

"Ebb Tide" Departs

The first sea story filmed in Technicolor moved to the screen last night by popular request when "Ebb Tide" opened at the Ellis theatre. Taken from a story by Robert Louis Stevenson, the film is played by Frances Farmer, Ray Milland, Lloyd Nolan, Barry Fitzgerald and Oscar Homolka.

A very interesting News of the Day, a smart musical revue O Kay Chesterfield and Wayburn and an amusing Paramount Paragraphics completes a splendid program that will be repeated tonight for the last time.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Great O'Malley"

That ever-popular Irish film star, Pat O'Brien has the title role in "The Great O'Malley", a melodrama of life in New York's colorful East Side which opens at the Capitol theatre today as screen bill No. 1, showing until Thursday nite.

Pat's a policeman this time, he's Officer O'Malley, a tough, hardboiled copper who cannot see beyond his rule book until his idolic crippled girl and a lovely school teacher humanizes him. By routine the final fadeout ends the story he's a regular fellow, just as Pat always is, in films indeed, in real life.

Sharing stellar honors with him, Humphrey Bogart, who scored so greatly as the killer in "Black Legion", again turns amuck of the law.

Ann Sheridan, another recent discovery of the studio, who was a high school girl in Dallas, Texas, only a year ago, plays the school teacher. Fortune has been good to Ann. This is only her second picture, "yet already she is a leading lady—at 21!

The little crippled child is played by Sybil Jason, the 7-year-old South African child actress who created movie audiences in "The Little Big Shot" and "The Singing Kid."

Frieda Inescort, who is a fairly new comer to the screen, although a veteran stage actress, puts real pathos into the role of Sybil's mother.

"Escape By Night"

"Escape By Night", which is shown as bit No. 2 on the same program, offers, in addition to entertaining films of the month, considerable food for thought. Can a criminal rehabilitate his life, once he has come within the net of the law? Does environment play an integral part in the formation of criminal instincts, or are these instincts hereditarily and passed on from generation to generation against the will or desire of the victim?

"Escape By Night" proves, in an arresting and colorful manner, that these criminal traits are created or modified by environment. The story deals with five criminals who are forced to hide out in an abandoned farm house. This compulsory environment is irksome to them at first, but their gradually renewed interest by the idea of repairing the farm, its buildings and fences, repairing the farm machinery, planting gardens and fields and raising stock, until at last, when the case is ripe for them to return to the city, they find a reluctance to leave the serene simplicity of their clean, out-of-door lives.

TO PLANT FISH FROM AIRPLANE

Quebec Will Replenish Fish Preserves With Young Fish From Aloft

Montreal, Feb. 16—(CP)—The Quebec fisheries department plans "bomb" Laurentian mountain lakes with young fish to replenish supplies of trout. Experiment has proven, according to Dr. Gustave Prevost, director of fish culture in the Laurentian area, that fish weighing up to three pounds each can be dropped into lakes from a speeding airplane without injury to them.

Fine cotton nets were spread just beneath the surface of Lake Ouimet, 90 miles north of Montreal, and a seaplane dumped out the fish as it sped across the lake at more than 100 miles an hour and at an altitude of 400 feet. Of the fish that struck the net area, 96 per cent were unharmed. The other five per cent were killed in striking the wooden frames around the net.

Other tests were made by dropping fish from the feed pipe of a tail-flying plane into nets set out with the object of finding out just how a fish would strike. Experiments showed they landed on their tails.

By "planting" trout fingerlings by airplane, the work can be accomplished more rapidly and inexpensively, the fish expert said.

BRITAIN'S VIEWS NOT INVITED SAYS EDEN

Austrian Developments Are Followed Closely By Britain and France

British Informs Berlin British Interest in Austrian Issue

INFORMED OF MEETING

Britain Consults With France Over New Situation

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 17 (CP Cable)—The British and French governments are acting together over Austria.

Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, had been instructed to explain to the German government "the interest which the British Government have and has always taken in the Austrian question."

The British government has been in consultation with the French government, Mr. Eden added.

Anxious to Learn Story

The House was eagerly anxious to learn the story of Berchtesgaden. But Mr. Eden was able to add little. He had received certain information in regard to the Austro-German agreement. As, however, the terms of the agreement had not yet been made public by the parties subscribing to it, he was unable at this stage to give details. He hoped, however, to be able to make a statement at a later date, perhaps tomorrow.

Informed of Proposed Meeting

"Meanwhile, in view of statements in the press," the foreign Secretary added, "I should perhaps add that His Majesty's Minister at Vienna was informed of the proposed meeting between Dr. Von Schuschnigg and Herr Hitler on the eve of the meeting, but the views of the British government were not invited in regard to that meeting.

"While I am not in position to make any statement as to the terms of agreement, His Majesty's government are following the developments with the closest possible attention. The British Ambassador at Berlin has been instructed to explain to the German government the interest which His Majesty's government take, and have always taken, in the Austrian question."

Mr. Eden, in answer to one of the opposition, asked whether the Foreign Secretary could clarify the British government's attitude towards the integrity and independence of Austria, he based on the 1936 declaration.

Prepared For Consultation

"That declaration was re-affirmed by the Locarno conference, when machinery was agreed upon for consultation," Mr. Eden replied. "Further I should make it clear that as far as His Majesty's government are concerned the Treaty of Locarno and still are prepared, for consultation."

Mr. Attlee then asked what was the present government's attitude toward Czechoslovakia.

"This country always has had the friendliest feelings toward the Czechoslovakian nation and is fully aware of the services which that Czechoslovakia with other powers."

Winston Churchill, Conservative, questioned whether, in view of the international commitments, the League of Nations Covenant and the duties and responsibilities with respect to the independence and integrity of Austria.

Willing to Act With Others

Mr. Eden: "The Right Honorable gentleman is perfectly justified in his description of the 1936 declaration we are willing to act with others, but we do not think it lies with us to take the initiative."

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, questioned whether during the last few days the Austrian government had asked the British government if it could expect any measure of support.

Mr. Eden: "No such request was ever made to His Majesty's government."

"AN AWFUL JOLT" TO MUNICIPALITIES SAYS THE PREMIER

Minister of Labor in Ottawa Refuses Request For Increased Relief Grants

WANTS PROPER SHARE

Hepburn Says Ontario Is Not to be Milch Cow For the Dominion

Toronto, Feb. 17—(CP)—No longer will Ontario allow itself to be "swindled between a reluctant federal government and impoverished municipalities," according to Premier Mitchell Hepburn, whose government is determined to obtain proper Dominion authorities a "proper share" of income and mines taxation.

"Ontario is going to cast off the role of milch cow for the rest of the Dominion," the Premier said last night in criticizing the announced refusal of the Federal government to increase its contribution to Ontario's relief costs. "The time has come to put a stop to this in the province of Ontario."

Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, said in Ottawa yesterday the joint request of the Ontario government and the Union of Municipalities Association for increased relief grants had been refused. He said the Dominion would continue its $425,000 monthly payments, apportionable between the cost. Dr. Tarbis asked for a 40-40-20 split, the municipalities paying 20 per cent.

Inspector Warns Barbers Against Accepting Fees from Apprentices

Students Must be Registered With Department of Labor

SEVERAL COMPLAINTS

Stern warning to hairdressers and barbers of the city and district relative to acceptance of fees from student apprentices was issued by F. J. Hawes, inspector of apprenticeship in the Provincial Department of Labor, yesterday afternoon, as a joint meeting of these trades held in the Y.M.C.A.

Members of these trades accepting fees from students are liable to a heavy fine under provincial statutes, the inspector pointed out after thoroughly discussing the Apprenticeship Act in all its phases. Right enforcement of the act will take place if violations take place, he stated.

Apprentices must be registered with the Department of Labor and properly indentured by potential employers and at the conclusion of the apprenticeship term must come under the Minimum Wage Act as set down by the Department, the inspector added.

Mr. Hawes advocated thorough organization of both trades. The meeting was the culmination of complaints received by the Department that certain members of the trades were accepting fees from students taking courses of instruction in their places of operation.

ONTARIO CLAIMS RIGHT TO INCOME TAX—HEPBURN

Premier Says 'Hogging' by Dominion Not Intended by B.N.A.—

CITES MINING TAX

Tendency is to Drive Wealthy People Out of Country, He Says

Toronto, Feb. 17—(CP)—Premier Hepburn announced today that Ontario in its brief to the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations will claim for the province the right to income taxation now "usurped by the Dominion."

The Dominion's invasion of this field of direct taxation constituted "a violation of the spirit and the letter of the confederation agreement," Mr. Hepburn said.

His statement followed a statement that Ontario will no longer allow itself to be "swindled between a reluctant federal government and impoverished municipalities." This referred to the Dominion government's decision refusing increased relief grants to Ontario.

Mining Tax

Despite Ontario's contribution of about half the Dominion's entire revenue, the province's mining tax is "actually slightly and opposed" by the Dominion, Mr. Hepburn charged, the province "paid the bills" for developing the Northern mining areas, the Dominion stepping in and "collecting" $3 of every $4 of mining taxation.

Failure to Apply Sanctions Cause of Present Situation

Prof. Shaw of Queen's University Tells Local Audience

TRUE PACIFISM

Nations Must Avert or Meet Forces of Aggression

Reluctancy on the part of the leading member nations of the world to apply full economic and military sanctions against nations since the Great War has been the main reason for the actual failure of the League of Nations to maintain peace and order in the world, Dr. J. M. Shaw, professor of Theology at Queen's University, told members of the Belleville Lecture and Study Group in an informative dissertation on "Peacemaking" given in the library of the Collegiate Institute last night.

"It is a mistake to say that the League has failed," declared Dr. Shaw very emphatically, "behind the League that have failed to be loyal to the covenant of the League of Nations, and for this failure, Canada as a member of this League has to accept her full share of the responsibility".

The covenant of the League adopted at the peace conference and signed by 32 nations, which was to secure agreement on world peace, was a new hope in a war-torn world," Dr. Shaw said. But this hope has suffered a serious eclipse through a series of incidents, the first of which was the invasion of Manchuria in which Japan was found guilty of being an aggressor nation failed to check that nation and accordingly confidence in the League was shaken. The disastrous consequences of this was seen years later in the Italian invasion and conquest of Ethiopia.

Criticize Workability

"The apparent criticism of some nations to apply full sanctions to the aggressor nation in the case of Italy in the invasion of the workability of the League and application of collective sanctions," Dr. Shaw continued, decided here that Italy had broken each her pledges and had taken an aggressive attitude part.

The way was opened for Germany to remilitarize the Rhineland and his majority was cut only as the last few polls came in.

Dr. Shaw declared that the "vindication of the government's rural policies" by the vote is a "clear standing victory" in view of the fact that Liberals had held the county since 1900.

The win gave Premier Maurice Duplessis the legislature's 90 seats. The Liberals were left with 13. The Nationalists, a group formed by dissident Duplessis supporters after a split with the Premier over policy last year, hold the other five.

UNION NATIONALE SURVIVES TEST

Candidate For Party is Victorious in By-election

Acton, Yale, Que., Feb. 17—(CP)—Quebec's Union Nationale government, with one more seat added to its crushing majority in the provincial legislature, survived its first test against the Liberals since Premier Maurice Duplessis was swept into power in the 1936 general election.

Bagot County electors, in the first provincial by-election since the Liberals dropped their 40-year reign, returned Dr. Philippe Adam, Mayor of this small town, 30 miles southeast of Montreal, over Cyrille Dunoyer, Liberal, who polled the election battle yesterday. Adam went in with a majority of 50, his Nationalist colleagues won with a lead of 32.

Adam's lead was not threatened once. He held a lead of 100 in the first returns were brought in to Returning Officer Joseph Bernier Bellandes and his majority was cut only as the last few polls came in.

Premier Duplessis' claim that the declaration we are willing to act with others, but we do not think it lies with us to take the initiative."

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, questioned whether during the last few days the Austrian government had asked the British government if it could expect any measure of support.

Mr. Eden: "No such request was ever made to His Majesty's government."

First Taste of Outside World In 8 Months Given Scientists

Decide to Stay on Floe Until Icebreaker Reaches Them

IN GOOD HEALTH

Moscow, Feb. 17—(AP)—Soviet Russia's first drifting scientists drank beer and ate langerines today and decided to stay on their ice floe camp until the icebreaker Talmyr reached them.

Their first taste of the outside world after more than eight months on the floe came yesterday when two airplanes landed from nearby rescue ships off the Greenland coast and delivered a half dozen bottles of beer and a bag of langerines.

Ivan Papanin, the camp's commander, sent back word to Alexei Ostalleff, chief of rescuers aboard the icebreaker Talmyr, that he wanted to move out all the scientific equipment the party used in polar weather observations before quitting the floe.

The explorer added small planes could start from which land near the floe would require too many trips for the transfer, and said the expedition would start out on three months longer if necessary. It was prepared to take energetic and necessary sacrificial action in a crisis, he added.

Ostalleff advised Moscow he is confident the Talmyr can succeed in ploughing its way up to the camp. The greatest obstacle, he said, is five miles of thick pack ice about the explorer's floe.

Gennady Vlasoff, pilot of one of the planes which reached the floe, and the explorers kept in excellent health and spirits and that their equipment was in good condition.

Ivan Cherevichny, the other pilot, remained with the campers.

FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO SNATCH PURSE

Mrs. Arthur Denyer is Successful in Beating Off Assailant

Holding firmly her purse as a would-be purse snatcher tried to wrench her grasp, Mrs. Arthur Denyer, 109 Dundas Street East, successfully frustrated an attempt to steal the purse and then had the would-be purse snatcher near her home late last night. Unsuccessful in his attempts to steal Mrs. Denyer's purse her assailant ran south on George Street and disappeared under the shadow of archways. Subsequent police investigations failed to locate the lady's assailant, however.

Shortly before 10.00 p.m. last night Mrs. Denyer was returning home from a nearby corner grocery, when she observed a man following her rapidly along Dundas Street. At the intersection of Dundas and George Street, however, the assailant fully crossed man accosted Mrs. Denyer and said, "Give me that purse, or you think I'm following you?" the man asked Mrs. Denyer, she told police.

"No not exactly," replied Mrs. Denyer she became suspicious of the man's actions and she said how long more firmly to her purse in precaution.

The man suddenly made a snatch at her purse, grasping it in the battle, but fortunately Mrs. Denyer held the purse with the quite cruelly to hold it, the handle being cut off by the man in his attempts to wrest the purse from the grasp of Mrs. Denyer.

Mrs. Denyer wrestled with the man and shouted loudly for assistance, but apparently was unheard by anyone in the vicinity along George Street. Mrs. Denyer immediately took courage from confidence and related her attack and the police were immediately notified.

Constable Evans and Taylor arrived on the scene later searched the entire southern portion of the city for the assailant, but failed to find him.

Mrs. Denyer informed the police the man was of stout build, wearing a dark hat, dirty windbreaker and a peaked cap. He was between 25 and 30 years of age, Mrs. Denyer thought.

EXPORT TAXES BOAT CAPACITY

Many Live Beef Steers Being Sent to English Market

Ottawa, Feb. 17—(CP)—Heavy export of live beef steers from Canada to the United Kingdom is taxing the capacity of boats plying between Canadian and British ports, the Dominion Department of Agriculture said today.

The export increase is due largely to the relatively high prices for live beef in the United Kingdom and the slump in prices in the United States markets.

The matter was brought up in the House of Commons by Miss Agnes Macphail (UFO-Lab. Grey Bruce) who said Western Canada farmers were unable to obtain ocean shipping space to export cattle to the United Kingdom.

Paul Wright May Be Freed Tomorrow

Los Angeles, Feb. 17—(AP)— Convicted of manslaughter, yet paradoxically, held to be innocent of the slayings of his wife and his best friend because of temporary insanity, Paul A. Wright may walk out of court tomorrow a free man.

The effect of a jury's verdict late yesterday, holding the former airport executive to have been insane Nov. 9 when he shot Evelyn Wright and John Kimmel, was to exempt Wright from the penalty for two counts of manslaughter—one to 20 years in prison. The same jury or four women and eight men who convicted Wright of manslaughter said they believed he killed when temporarily deranged.

Wright's defense was that he suffered an emotional shock in finding his wife and Kimmel in what he claimed was an abnormal embrace.

Today, a county lunacy commission, composed of four psychiatrists, will examine Wright. The commission's findings will be reported to-morrow.

Under California law the jury was bound to determine Wright's sanity after convicting him of manslaughter because of his crimes, plea, innocent, and innocent by reason of insanity.

CHEESE QUALITY TO BE IMPROVED

Too Much Second Grade Cheese Turned Out Last Year

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 17—(CP) Members of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association were pledged today, after a two-day convention here, to a program of striving for improvement in the quality of Ontario cheese.

Association members, who decided at convention closing yesterday to follow a resolution adopted at a 1936, heard of plans whereby it was hoped to eliminate the production of possible milk producers turning over inferior milk to cheese factories.

Speaking to the Ontario Dairy Commissioner, said only five per cent of the cheese shipped overseas were to blame for inferior milk being used by the cheese factories. The quality grade cheese turned out under this process was said to have cost the Ontario dairy industry $1,000,000.

To further the improvement program it was decided to appropriate $11,000 or $12,000 to pay part-time field testers. Dairy instructors would be appointed and they were required to clean up the industry at its source, cleanliness in farm home and other places where milk for cheese was produced.

Stricter regulations might be put into force this year to make the Ontario cheese industry on a par with dairy conditions said Hon. P. M. Martin, Provincial Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Dewan said these conditions were costing much producers unnecessary loss.

Vegetables, Meat Dropped By Plane for Snowbound

San Francisco Newspaper Sends Fresh Food to Isolated Men

SNOW 20 FEET DEEP

Tahoe City, Calif., Feb. 17—(AP) —Four hundred snowbound men, women and children feasted today on fresh vegetables and meat, flown to them by airplane to relieve a diet of canned goods and, in the case of at least one man, hospitals.

Two hundred pounds of foodstuffs were dropped on the golf course last night from a plane after a flight sponsored by a San Francisco newspaper (Examiner).

There was plenty of canned foods in Bert Bechtold, inn-proprietor, said a horse had been killed for its meat.

Snow—20 feet deep in some places —has closed roads leading into the Tahoe district 10 of the past 17 days.

Block of Wood Saves Bridge Worker's Life

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 17—(CP) Jack Hunt, 31, had his right forearm fractured today when a steel girder weighing a ton fell on it as he worked on salvage operations at the wreckage of the Falls View Bridge.

A piece of wood prevented Hunt from being crushed by the girder. He was working with two men, pushing steel in the haul of the crane when the girder slipped. He was taken to hospital.

Work on salvaging the wreckage of the bridge crashed by an ice jam in the Niagara River at the base of the Falls, resumed today after a delay yesterday when the operations were ordered stopped until a boom was posted guaranteeing any further damage caused the wreckers to Niagara Park Commission property.

BENNETT STATES HANSARD REPORT IS NOT ACCURATE

Ottawa, Feb. 17—(CP)—Declaring the Hansard report of his remarks in the House of Commons Tuesday night had inaccurately quoted him, opposition leader Bennett yesterday told the House he had not meant to infer that Ontario Liberal party had received a donation of $200,000 from Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company.

Premier Hepburn of Ontario yesterday issued a statement flatly denying that Bethune Smith, treasurer of the Liberal party, had received contributions from Beauharnois or any other Quebec

Mayor Bone Indignant Over Failure of Gov't To Increase Grants

"Premier Hepburn should call an emergency meeting of all Ontario Mayors at once for the purpose of demanding that the matter be settled at the next move," declared Mayor Jamieson Bone this morning upon receipt of the information that the Dominion Government had decided to grant any increases in the relief grants for the province.

"That is certainly a real set-back," added the Mayor. "All our work and visit to Ottawa were just for nothing, it appears."

"That is another instance of the incompetence of our government to deal with the problems of the day. It is clear that the urgent advice of twenty-three Ontario Mayors representing over one million people has been thrown back in their teeth. It means that the municipalities of the province, already saddled with preposterous costs of education, roads and have gone just another step backwards. It means that there will be no building revival and that the taxpayer of the province will have to bear his crushing load. It means a stagnation of all our future hopes and plans.

"I am waiting eagerly for the expression of the views of other cities on the matter. Perhaps there will be more to say when this matter has been fully aired."

In a communication received by Mayor Bone from Premier Hepburn this week a personal invitation was given to "call the next time you are in Toronto," was extended to the Mayor.

"I am interested in learning more about your views on international matters and the present system," wrote the Premier.

ROADS ICE SHEETED

Cobalt, Ont., Feb. 17—(CP)—Rain that froze as fast as it fell, covering highways and city streets today into ice sheets that left motor drivers baffled. Cars skidded into ditches and against trees and hilly hills could not be negotiated unless sanding crews got to the top. REV. W. J. WALKER
SPECIAL SPEAKER
Baptist Men's Banquet
Is a Decided Success

The Brotherhood of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church held their monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the church club room. Rev. W. J. Walker, B.A., B.Th., Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who was guest speaker for the occasion, bridged his hearers from the realm of business as he opened what international brotherhood meant to the world. "Christ came to the world, not for the salvation of one particular group, but for all mankind," he declared and yellow men as well as white men", declared the speaker. He further pointed out that to live as isolated units is unnatural and undesirable. Just as the individual should love his fellow man so should each nation have a feeling of love, understanding and kinship for its neighbor state. The love of David and Jonathan for each other was cited as a particularly beautiful example of brotherly love. Though one was a shepherd and the other a prince, their hearts and minds were harmoniously entwined.

Competition a Deterrent

The speaker went on to say that unfortunately men seem to be so imbued with the instinct of competition that it crowds out human life. That this feeling in the individual viewpoint is hard to overcome. It is a case every man for himself, forgetting that we depend on one another in every phase of life.

"Through Jesus Christ, however, we are able to overcome the selfishness that threaten to conquer us," said Rev. Walker, further adding that international goals could only be accomplished when international brotherhood is established through acceptance of Christ's teaching, became a reality.

Rev. J. C. Sinclair introduced the speaker and at the close of the address Rev. Canon Gordon Bray expressed his sincere appreciation of Mr. Walker's inspiring message, which sentiment was confirmed by the general applause that followed.

Under the able leadership of Mr. Frank Whittle several favorite hymns were sung and Mr. Arthur Wynne pleased the gathering with a vocal solo. Mr. Ken Bray accompanied at the piano.

The banquet prepared and served by Mrs. Hogle's class, was a delightful repast and was greatly enjoyed by all.

ALFRED SCADDING RECALLS ORDEAL AT MOOSE RIVER

One of Two Survivors of Cave-in Pays City Visit

NARROW ESCAPES

"Had we decided to continue on our way to the surface after visiting the lower levels of the Moose River mine, instead of halting at the 142-foot level to investigate matters there, the now famous rescue of Dr. H. E. Robertson, the body of the late Herman, Magill and myself would not have been flashed around the world." Alfred Scadding, Toronto, one of the survivors of the famous rescue who was in the city yesterday stated in a graphic account of the harrowing experience that drew the attention of a group of interested listeners in the lobby of the Quinte Hotel.

A Narrow Escape

"Approximately thirty seconds after we had disembarked from the cage that brought us up from the lower levels, the cave-in occurred. My hat was torn from my head and blown a distance of fifty feet above the level by wind-pressure from the cave-in," Mr. Scadding declared.

Upon his companion in the disaster, Dr. D. E. Robertson, who was in Bellville a few weeks ago, Mr. Scadding bears ample scars to tell the story. Dr. Robertson's rock-strewn abrade of the Nova Scotian hinterlands. Minus all his front teeth and suffering from hospital six weeks after the rescue, Mr. Scadding told of the hardships and suspense in the hospital operating room as surgeons did the best they could to restore missing lips at the knees. "I had the finest surgeon in Toronto," he said, "but Dr. Robertson did and his assistants did all in their power and I'm grateful in skill and knowledge that my legs were saved."

Desire To Talk.

The thoughts of the listeners of those harrowing ten days in the Moose River mine, however, and so forty feet below the surface of the earth. "We did not mind the darkness," he said, "as with a small flashlight, that lasted until the rescuers reached us, we had all we cared to burn candles. It wasn't light we wanted. We wanted to talk with someone."

Pelting rocks and timbers in that distant chamber soon added to the horror and suspense of the ordeal, Mr. Scadding said. Fortunately, or rather luckily we did not suffer a scratch from the debris that, following the cave-in, fell in the section in which the rescue party came to us. A small flashlight, that lasted until the rescuers reached us, was all we had to burn candles. It wasn't light we wanted. We wanted to talk with someone."

A small flashlight, that lasted until the rescuers reached us, was all we had to burn candles. It wasn't light we wanted. We wanted to talk with someone."

Sleep a Great Relief.

Asked by a listener if they slept during the ordeal, Mr. Scadding replied in the negative. Dr. Robertson and I took turns resting. We slept, alternately, for two hours or so and were able to sleep I am afraid of what might have happened to our companions."

Mr. Scadding refrained from comment on the fact that Herman Magill died. "We did what we could but it was inevitable. The strange as it may seem did not have an alarming effect on us. We were glad to be in a position near the spot where his body lay, but knew that we could rob us of hope of ultimate rescue."

Tribute To Draegerman.

"Quiet, nervious—absolutely unafraid." Thus did the speaker describe Draegerman Wynne in paying a brief tribute to the Canadian draegerman who effected the rescue of the six entombed men." There was no brag or no bluster about these miners," Mr. Scadding declared, "and I talked about the job of hauling us out as if it were part of the day's work. I have not say too much for the quiet bravery, coolness in the face of emergency, and absolute imperviousness to danger that characterizes these unsung heroes of the Canadian mining areas."

Scadding Gets $2,000 Letters.

He smiled as he spoke of the days that followed his rescue. "We were swamped with letters from all parts of the world," he said. "Personally I received the neighborhood of twenty-five hundred missives postmarked from all parts of the globe. Some contained offers of marriage while others were written about various subjects. Perhaps the outstanding of the entire collection came from a lady in Seattle who wrote me a ten-page letter on, of all things, birth control."

Faith in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Scadding voiced his faith in the future of Nova Scotia as a gold-producing area. "In five years with present day methods of development it will rank with the outstanding gold producing areas in the world. There is plenty of free gold down there. At one time a solid nugget weighing one hundred ounces was found in the Moose River mine. Prospectors and capital are flowing into the country and it is only a matter of time before things will be booming down there.

While I have severed by connection with the Moose River project, I have every intention of returning to the Nova Scotian goldfields because I believe they have a fine future."

Tweed Council Considers New Post Office Site

Names Committee to Act as Deputation in Regard to Question

Tweed, February 17.— (Special) —Tweed Village Council met again on Monday night in the Council Chambers, called together by Reeve W. H. Sayers to further consider the question of the location of the post office.

Clerk G. D. C. Morton read a letter from Mr. Chs. A. Cameron, M.P., in which he acknowledged receipts of the resolution forwarded to him last week and promised to lay it before the Department of Public Works at Ottawa. On Monday Mr. R. Myles received a telephone message from Belleville, in which it was suggested that the Reeve call the Council together and in conjunction with the Liberal party decide upon a Bellemoby site and present the entire matter before Mr. Cameron when he returns from Ottawa at the end o the week and a recommendation satisfactory to all the citizens of Tweed would be obtained.

C. H. Kerr—It is my opinion that we should now act on the opposition made at the public meeting held at the Township Hall, and a delegation be sent to Ottawa to lay be matter directly before the Department of Public Works. I still know of nothing that has taken place to change my opinion that thats the wisest course".

Referring to the selectia of Quinn's lot as the definitely sosen site for the post office, C. E. Wyse said: "I told Mr. Kerr the the post office would be put on the Quinn lot but he would not believe it".

Reeve Sayers: "I also told R. Kerr that that was the site but is still would not be persuaded".

Councillor Rigney Kerr said: "I do so think we should go over Mr. Cameron's head right now before we are exhausted."

C. H. Kerr: "Do you mean the we have got exhausted every mean but going over Mr. Cameron's head would have had no other course open for delegation but for Belleville today."

Reeve Sayers: "I think the Courneyes property would suit the majority of citizens.

C. E. Way: Jack McNaught's is more central and could be bought for $2,000. Here is valley to sell.

C. H. Kerr: "Was there not a petition circulated by the Liberals to put this post office at Quinn's Corner?

Reeve Sayers: "Yes, it had about 25 signatures."

R. Myles: "I think Mr. Cameron would like to have Reeve Sayers, and a representative of the Liberal party, come to Belleville and meet him."

C. E. Way: "When Mr. Cameron knows there is this strife in Tweed over the position, why doesn't he come out to Tweed and personally look over the situation?"

C. H. Kerr: "I am still of the opinion that we should go to Ottawa. You will make it much easier to get results. Then Mr. Cameron would be able to throw over the whole thing and the Department of Public Works would be justified to accept responsibility and relieve Mr. Cameron."

Reeve Sayers: "I understand that the Quinn property can be turned back to Mrs. Quinn for the Corner property again."

C. E. Way: "Then by all means let us do it."

R. Myles: "If the people of Tweed can secure a property suitable to the majority and get definite price on it, and take the proposition to Mr. Cameron, I am satisfied something will be done."

C. H. Kerr: "The Liberals have already fulfilled their political obligations as a Liberal by the purchase of the Grier property.

think that now a suitable property should be secured whether from a Liberal or a Conservative."

The discussion continued for some time with little progress being made. Finally C. H. Kerr moved, seconded by C. E. Way that the council as a body go to Ottawa and wait on the Department of Public Works and write to Mr. Cameron to arrange the meeting. The motion was lost.

This was followed by a discussion of comparative prices of the Courneyes property and the comparative properties of Mrs. Asher and J. McNaught. The cost of the former was given as $2,000 and the latter as $3,000.

Finally, after further unavailing discussion, it was decided to call up Mr. Wilfrid LeSage as a representative of the Liberal party in close touch with the matter and invite him to attend the council meeting to assist the council in settling upon a property suitable to all interests. Mr. LeSage arrived a few moments later.

He was given permission to briefly review the whole question in which he made clear the position which he had taken. Mr. LeSage explained that the offer which was made to exchange the Grier property for another property at the same price was one of several properties were considered and the prices were obtained. The Courneyes property had practically been settled when it was found that to move Mr. Paul King and Mr. Marshall Bradshaw would be necessary. Mr. Courneyes stated that while would be paid to Mrs. Courneyes there would be a loss in the neighborhood of $2,500, or $1,000 more than the Grier property. This was outside of the question and I told Mr. Sayers that the whole thing was off.

This brought up the question of the Quinn property. It was not favourable to the Quinn property as the cost entailed was great and he rarely anxious to do what was best for the village as a whole. However a favourable word from Mr. Cameron that he was going to do something and that decide something definite within 30 days and how the Quinn property was to be chosen as a fair and equitable one honestly did not seem to secure a suitable property.

Reeve Sayers then explained to Mr. LeSage that they had called him in to help them decide how to secure a place that will meet with general approval. He stated: "I feel satisfied, Mr. LeSage, that if you and the Council can get together it will meet with Mr. Cameron's approval."

Mr. LeSage: "I still think that Courneyes's is the best location if changements can be made. Perhaps Wray McNaught's place is idle enough and will be a splendid location."

W. LeSage: If the Department are willing to spend a little more money and purchase F. Arber's and McNaught's properties, it would give the question and meet with general approval. I cannot, however, give any assurance to that effect."

C. E. Way: I suggest we submit to the Department a proposition that it will take over the Grier property and obtain options on surrounding all what McNaught and Arber will ask for their properties and see what sums of it."

In response to a question, Clerk G. D. C. Morton pointed out that Arbaugh's frontage was 47.5 feet and Arber's 35.5 feet, a total of 83 feet. These were measurements of the surveying engineers for water mains. As to feet was the minimum requirement for the post office, neither property of itself was big enough but both together would make an excellent site.

Reeve Sayers and Mr. LeSage, as representative of the Liberal Association to express his opinion as to what was best to be done, but Mr. LeSage said that in view of what had been done he was loath to again open the question with Mr. Cameron.

Finally a motion was made by R. Myles and seconded by C. E. Way that Reeve Sayers, C. H. Kerr and Wilfrid LeSage be a deputation to go to Bellegrin on Thursday, if advisable, be carried and the meeting adjourned.

'POWERFUL RESOLVE FOR PEACE'

Whatever Orientals say of foreign possessions in the Orient, they must admit that British money bought the land where Singapore now stands and created one of the great centres of trade in the Far East. It was purchased from the Sultan of Johore one hundred and fourteen years ago, long before Japan began to think of carrying the burden of the Chinese who do not want her help or domination. The same may be said of other possessions in the Orient, which have been given an impetus towards progress and development by the enterprise of Western nations.

Today Singapore is in the nations' eyes as one of the greatest of naval stations in the world. On the opening of the new graving dock this week, a message from King George Sixth after whom the dock is named, stated that it was built in peace and that British resolve was for peace. It will protect peace, not stir up strife. It will keep its security India, the Dominions of New Zealand and Australia, through its guard on the ocean ways. Peace calls for resolution for there is a resolution for peace as well as there is a resolve for war, but probably more resolve is required to stand for peace.

This naval base is "a symbol of the Empire's powerful resolve for peace," His Majesty said.

THE OLD PLOW INN

Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the late Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, twice Prime Minister of Great Britain, and hostess at 10 Downing Street, while her father was at the head of the government, will wed "a tall and sandy-haired" citizen of Speen, who is a builder's decorator and handyman, and who may be an innkeeper after the wedding, for Miss MacDonald has been for several years the genial hostess of old Plow Inn in Buckinghamshire.

The MacDonalds despite the high place the father, the man of humble but worthy Scottish ancestry, held in world affairs, have not forgotten their close association with the primal things and the rugged simplicity which even in his latest parliamentary days Ramsay MacDonald preserved.

British inns are famed in history for their hospitality and the very mention of the word "inn" today brings up scenes of the long ago and of the healthy folk who passed through those places of hospitality. The peace of such a place as men and women and children in cities are wracked with the thoughts of tangled world problems which they cannot solve, seems much to be preferred to the anxieties of so much of modern life with useless rush and wear and tear affecting not only nerves but manners and customs.

Today thinking of an English inn, one thinks of plenty to eat, of genial companionship, of the meetings of folks who possessed individuality of character in a day when there was less pretence and veneer and an absence of artificial relations between individuals.

BIBLE AND MODERN ENGLISH

Somerset Maugham, noted novelist and playwright, has been thinking of the development and expression of the English language and as a consequence he has stated that he is not satisfied with the Bible on that account, holding the view that the King James Bible has had a very harmful influence on English prose. His reason for this is that for centuries this volume has been "the daily, and with many the only reading of our people" and so "the plain, honest English speech was overwhelmed with ornament", and "blunt Englishmen twisted their tongues to speak like Hebrew prophets."

Few people can understand Maugham in this, because the English Bible has been called the well of English undefiled. A New York Times writer wonders how the plain people have been able to read the Bible if it is as ornamented as Maugham claims, and adds "simplicity, clearness, conciseness mark the Biblical expressions that have become part of the English speech." The writer asks "how many phrases from it have struck in the common memory?" The Tinker John Bunyan loved the Bible and did not have to twist his tongue, as it was simple because the English translators, no more than what Maugham may say, caught in English the speech of ancient peasants and shepherds, poets. And Rev. John Patten, literary superintendent of the British and Foreign Bible Society quotes from "The Summing Up" as to show, such English speech as "my brother's keeper," "the seed sown in stony ground," "beauty for ashes," "the wicked spreading like a bay tree," Maugham thereby refuting himself.

English is a direct language, and simple, not in spite of the translation in the time of King James', but largely because of it. If the Bible has influenced the language, it is in a wholesome way, for it speaks truth, in simple phrases and truth refers to life.

A HOUSEWIFE SPEAKS

Sometimes we grow discouraged,
So many tasks to do;
The endless round of housework
Each morning to go through;
We think our talents wasted;
Our flags should be unfurled,
And our names should be numbered
With the great ones of the world;
But the unfolding of a flower
Still yields us rare delight,
Or the beauty of a silent star
In the deep blue dome of night;
So, perhaps, in our quiet pathways
We are learning day by day
That life's glory lies not in its grandeur
But in simple things by the way.

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive . . . . to bind up the wounds of our nation, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

. . . . that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth!"

SEVENTY-THREE YEARS AGO ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, was assassinated. The man who, a short time before, issued the above message asserting that the most important and urgent task of the moment was in binding up the nation's wounds, fell a victim to war-engendered hate of the southland festering in the alcohol poisoned brain of a dissolute actor. The hate of the South was distilled in the smoking ruins of their homes and farms and crops destroyed as well as the means of working those farms and planting the crop, all of means they knew being slave labor—a land desolate and a people despairing, groaning under the injustices and affronts heaped upon them by a horde of political carpet-baggers looned upon them when the war drums ceased to beat. Lincoln's assassination transferred that hate to the north and even preachers in northern pulpits called for swift and dire vengeance upon the murderers of "the Great Emancipator," the nation's hero, north of the Mason and Dixon line—and the whole southland was indicted as murderers of the President.

Lincoln's birthday, recently celebrated, revealed that Abraham Lincoln is still worshipped as a martyr, prophet and patriot by the North, and the multitude who hope and pray that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

One evening, Bill and Bob found themselves alone and began to talk over old times.

"That reminds me!" said Bill. "What happened to White after he failed as an architect?"

"Oh," replied Bob, "he went on the stage!"

"How's he doing there?"

"Still drawing poor houses," was Bob's unkind reply.

Big Business in Stamps

Stamp collecting has attracted can acquire stamps at that price and hold them without fear of loss, and hope for a rise. Purchase of stamps is a precaution. However, entails the same risks that attend all speculative ventures.

While estimates range from 2,000,000 to 8,000,000 as the number of persons pursuing stamp collecting as a hobby, there are but 10,000 to 15,000 who do so mainly or purely from the investment standpoint. The latter number may be expected to increase if avenues for other investment continue to close. Then, perhaps, richer returns and better quotations for service on current stamps issued in the years now expired days will be in demand.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Warming the Church

There is not so much trouble in getting people in the rural communities to attend church as there is in the cities, and that refers to men, women and children. We have heard it argued that there are not so many other places for rural folk to go on Sunday, and also that they cannot go far away because some one has to stay and care for the stock and attend to the milking etc.

There is some degree of truth in all that, but there is more to it. People living in the country have a closer personal interest in their church, and there are a good many things within a stone's throw about which people in a city would have others do for them. We noticed in a news sent in by our Trent River correspondent that the men of the district had been holding a wood cutting bee on one of the farms and that they were taking out wood for the use of the church. There would be little or none of that in built in the city church. The city men would expect the premises to be heated to their comfort, and if it were not done they might be inclined to search out the janitor and tell h'm he was loafing on the job. There may seem to be little connection between cutting wood and being interested in the church in a direct and personal way, but the connection is there and no doubt about it. The best way to interest any man in any undertaking is to get him something to do in connection with it. When men are sufficiently interested to go and cut and split wood for a day so that church may be warmed in cold weather it can be taken for granted they are going to attend the services.—Peterborough Examiner.

Weak and Painful

During examination of recruits for the war the number of cases of flat feet, hammer toe (one inward curved toe joint to lose), bunions, and other foot defects was very large. While some of these cases were due to "pointed" and narrow shoes, a great many were due to "weakness" of the feet, either inherited, or from standing too long in one position—abnormal, poisonous, germs, or from infection of the joints of the foot from colds, grippe, and fevers. To-day, fortunately, shoes are sensible built for both men and women and there is less trouble from the toes, arches, and soles of the feet. There are, however, a great many foot sufferers who try various makes of shoes, get all kinds of foot "aids" and yet have no comfort with their feet.

Now, as mentioned more than once before, feet are as important as the head in making a living and enjoying life. A pair of aching feet can take away all ambition, make the individual less active, cause getting about, and upset digestion and other body processes.

In discussing the treatment of foot disorders in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Dudley J. Morton (a name famous in foot work) of Columbia U., New York, states that the thing though to remove pain and disability in the foot. The thing to remove pain and disability in the foot. The thing causes of pain and loss of power in the muscles (atrophy), irritation, (3) deep inflammation due to inflammation, and (4) deformed joints and ligaments or bones of the foot are not being held together in the right place by the ligaments (which hold the bones together), or by the muscles which hold the bones up in their proper position.

The "treatment" are corns, calluses, warts, which should be removed by surgery, chemical preparations, etc. Naturally the shoes should be properly fitted.

Pain is often due to wrong standing, to some infective process in the foot, bunion, or hammer toe (requires rest, removal of infection, and stimulation of the muscles by hot baths, applications, and light exercise such as working the toes and fingers). Pain is a symptom, object with the toes.

In cases of disordered mechanics (as forward arch or flat middle-arch) the common flat shoes, properly fitted (not adjusted from time to time) give splendid results under the supervision of an orthopedic physician or surgeon

THE VETERAN

The Canadian Legion at its convention in Port William made a recommendation that the war service veterans out of employment that should receive preferential consideration by the Federal Government. The Veterans' Allowance Act makes old age pensions available at the age of sixty years to ex-service men who served in actual warfare. It provides also that indigent men aged fifty-five may, if living under similar difficulties, receive the benefit of the discretion of the Board.

The Legion's resolution recommends that the limit of the age of fifty-five years in order to widen its scope so as to include those who are non-pensioners without regard to the qualifications for pensions. The recommendation seems to be perfectly reasonable, because the years of war have suffered previously from the strain and hardships of the Great War and many have become victims of ordinary pensioners. As they advance in years, infirmities begin to appear more quickly than they would in ordinary life.

The veterans rendered magnificent service to Canada and to the Empire in the Great War, and thousands of them impaired their health and strength in doing so. They deserve kind and generous treatment in return, and the Pensions Board should be given discretion to deal with cases where men who have aged with the passing of their actual years would entail it. The marvel is that so many men engaged in the terrible conflict, with exposure, wounds, illness, hardships and horrors, came through with such remarkable health and strength which they have enjoyed since that time. If they break down prematurely they are not to be expected, and provision should be made for them.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

TEMPERATURE READINGS

A common explanation of the freezing of pipes is the misunderstood of temperatures by thermometers of the thermometer is usually placed by private citizens is that the official instruments are housed in boxes and "sheltered from the wind."

This, actually, should make no difference. A thermometer sheltered from the wind should register exactly the same as if it were not sheltered from the wind. The wind in itself is neither colder nor warmer than the still atmosphere. People get the idea that it is because

FISTS FLY AT BUND MEETING

Thirty Barrels of Flour

Unique in age and content, a lease signed by Turton Penn and representatives of the Mohawk band living on the Indian reserve near Deseronto was fulfilled for the 100th year lately.

Exactly one hundred years ago Mr. Penn selected the mouth of the Salmon River at Shannonville as a desirable site for a mill. Negotiations with chiefs of the Mohawks resulted in the signing of a lease whereby the mill-owner was to pay rent of 30 barrels of first-grade flour each year for a period of 999 years. An important stipulation in the lease was that the flour must be divided equally among each of the registered members of the Mohawk band on the reservation.

As has been the custom for the past century, the last week in January saw a sleigh-load of flour leave the Shannonville mill. Bookkeeping, counting and stumbling through pitch-holes, the horses pulled the heavily-laden sleigh the five and a half miles along the Quinte shore to the little frame Indian Council House midway between Deseronto and Shannonville.

There, Chief Herbert J. Brant, Chief Harry M. Hill and Chief Frank Claus, members of the Mohawk Council, signed the receipt for the flour.

Then began the momentous task of dividing and distributing the rental fee to the more than 1,400 landlords. This number is at present listed in the band, but not all are resident in the district.

Supervising the distribution on the memorable day was Chief H. J. Brant. Fish flies, the well-educated, soft-spoken chief and his table littered with "orders" from far and wide. Notes, all written in English—some as terse as "my share to John"—formed a fool-high pile, for each member entered.

Chief Brant greeted him cordially thumbed through a well worn list of names and carefully checked off another name as paid in full.

In many cases a single member of the tribe presented numerous "orders" from relatives or friends, who, either unable to be present or in no need of their four pounds of flour, asked that it be given the bearer. Evidence of the gradual dispersement of the Mohawk band was seen in the "orders," which came from as far distant as Detroit, Windsor, Buffalo, Hamilton, Toronto and other outside points.

One member, the chief stated, had presented 45 "orders," and had accordingly been given 180 pounds of flour. "We have been at the effort to put a stop to outside orders so that the chief might know "what it may have to be done in the future."

A chief member of the Mohawks to secure her share was Mrs. Wm. Claus, who recently observed her 93rd birthday. Mrs. Claus, it was observed had been receiving her share almost as long as the lease had been in operation. Mrs. Esther Shenandoah is another member having her annual part in the obtained.

Far from dying out, the Mohawk band is increasing slowly, Chief Brant and Frank Claus, Indian Agent, indicated. No accurate records exist of the number who first settled in the Quinte area more than 150 years ago, but the chief members of the band is increasing.

Few of the younger Indians speak the Mohawk tongue, Chief Brant stated. "I think less than half our people can speak the language now," the Chief said. "Even at our council meetings each month English is spoken altogether now."

As further evidence of the Canadianization of the band, the Chief pointed to the pile of order notes. Fifty or a hundred years ago the vast majority of the signatures on these notes would have represented members of the families Claus, Brant, Maracle and Hill. To-day although these names are predominant still, there is an ever increasing number of names which might be found in any telephone directory.

FRIENDS HONOR CHURCH WARDENS OF MANY YEARS

Dr. H. H. Alger And J. B. Belshaw Guests at Banquet

GIVEN WARDEN'S PIN

Gifts Symbolical of 25 Years of Service to Congregation

Stirling, Feb. 17.— (Special) — Prominent church leaders from all parts of the Ontario Diocese, Wardens of the Hastings & Prince Edward Deanery and about seventy-five laymen and visitors were guests at a banquet given in St. John's Memorial Hall on Wednesday night, in honor of Dr. H. H. Alger and Mr. J. B. Belshaw who have served as Wardens in St. John's Parish, Stirling, for twenty-five and twenty-four years respectively. In honor of these two faithful workers and in appreciation of their untiring efforts. They were presented with Warden's pins symbolical of twenty-five years' service to the congregation. The banquet was sponsored by the members of St. John's Men's Association. A splendid programme of musical numbers and speeches by some of the most prominent church leaders in Eastern Ontario completed a most pleasant evening's entertainment.

Splendid Dinner

A splendid dinner arranged entirely by men of the association with the exception of the dessert which was prepared by the ladies of the Parish was served in the body of the hall. The Committee in charge of this branch of the work are to be commended for the manner in which they carried out the guidance of J. B. Belshaw and Walter Wright completed the systematic organization for meeting the needs of the large number present.

Acting in a capable manner as Toastmaster for the evening, Mr. Nathaniel Heath, president of the organization, called upon Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of the Parish, to welcome the guests and guests. Mr. Jack Baker of Bonarlaw, secretary of the Hastings-Prince Edward Lay Association in proposing a toast to the clergy emphasized the need of greater interest on the part of all church workers in the activities of their church, those of religious Education. All laymen of the district charge with gratitude the fine work done by the clergy. But in order to assist in the work of the church we must heartily support Religious Education among our children. Over five hundred boys and children in this country depend entirely on the Religious Education of system of the Church of England for the development of their church knowledge.

Response to Toast

Responding to the toast Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, stated that the purpose of the meeting was to allow our to two possessing records in service which if accepted as standards by a churchman would have a powerful effect in increasing the constructive activity of the church in the years to come. In order to understand our task in the church's work we must have knowledge of its background and history. When we read and learn of this past, which is our past, we will fully appreciate our heritage and will more gladly look forward to our children "The Church of Tomorrow." With International and Interdenominational World Conferences being held in various parts of the world today it seems to be a moving toward the re-union of all Christendom. "What a power for stabilizing world peace and righteousness that would be."

Rev. C. Hope Swayne of Tweed, proposed a toast to the Church Wardens. The position of office which ever it may be called was first of all unique. Other denominations had stewards, deacons and elders, but the Church of England was alone in having church wardens. Natural knowledge gained through continuous association with church matters enabled those within this honoured position to be of great assistance to the rector in performing his many duties in the parish. Mr. Reginald Armstrong of Tweed, made a fitting reply to this toast.

Presentations Made

At this time Rev. A. S. McConnell rector, briefly summarized the years of service completed by Dr. H. H. Alger and J. B. Belshaw as Wardens of St. John's Parish, Stirling that had received. Both had striven to fulfill their duties to the best of their knowledge for the love of the church and its cause. Venerable Archdeacon Dumbrille of Belleville, who was unable to be present, sent a letter of congratulation to Dr. Alger and Mr. Belshaw. Dr. Alger and Mr. Belshaw expressed their deep appreciation of the kindly co-operation received from the congregation. Reaching back over a period of twenty-six and twenty-four years respectively, it was because of this excellent record, that the association wished to present them each with a gold Warden's pin. The presentation was made by President N. Heath and both Dr. Alger and Mr. Belshaw expressed their deep appreciation of the kindly co-operation received from the congregation. Coupled with the toast to the Laity were the names of Rev. Smith of Trenton and Mr. C. H. Buchard, president of the Layman's Association of the Hastings-Prince Edward Deanery. Musical numbers contributed at various points in the program included a baritone solo "The Veterans' Song" by Rev. Beaser of Roslin. Several selections by the orchestra composed of Maurice Bell, Messrs. Miller and Keechson of Wallbridge. Instrumental trio by Messrs. Fred Houston, Bud Bishop and Geo. Wallace. At the conclusion of the fine program a vote of thanks was extended to the distinguished speakers by Dr. F. A. Carleton. To the guest artists by Mr. Jack West and to the committee responsible for the dinner arrangement by Rev. A. S. McConnell. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rural Dean Caldwell of Marmora.

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated—for lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft, bulky mass in the bowels. It's this soft mass that helps your bowels move.

The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, vitamin B. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by every grocer.

Illsley, Miss Ida Thompson and Mrs. J. Chant were tea assistants. The home cooking table was well patronized throughout the afternoon and was in charge of Mrs. Chas. Sketcher and Mrs. Wilkinson. TABERNACLE Y.P.

Last evening the Young Peoples Union and Ma...son Circle of Tabernacle Church met in the Sunday school room.

A very interesting lantern lecture entitled "Sea" was given by Rev. D. T. McClintock. The work of Home Missions was depicted, dealing with Marine Mission work done among the fisher folk of the Labrador Coast, the missions in the new, fast growing remote mining towns of Northern Quebec and Ontario and in the dried out area of Southern Saskatchewan. There are many hospitals and schools supported by Missions that are ministering to the people in remote sections. Work among the new Canadians is accomplished in the large centres through the All Peoples' Churches. Chaplains are maintained at the gateways although their work has greatly decreased with the corresponding decrease in immigration.

A few slides showing coal mining, mountain climbing and the beautiful scenery of the Rockies, which had been taken by Rev. McClintock while being stationed at Prince Rupert, B.C., were shown.

The appreciation of those present was expressed by Rev. McClintock for the interesting lantern lecture.

Miss Phyllis May sang "I Shall not pass again this Way".

The meeting closed with the Benediction.

A Mother Triumphs Over Fear

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

THESE LETTERS can be of help to expectant mothers:

"Dear Dr. Myers: Since hearing from you on Nov. 19, 1936, I've wanted to let you know how much you helped me, but I am usually almost too busy to think. . . . You suggested my writing to you if I needed help in overcoming the difficulties. I had written you a fuller baccio letter, full of fears and worries over my impending ordeal of confinement. I already had two baby girls, and the memory of my horrible pain at their birth was frightening me hopelessly, and I asked you if you knew of any books or articles that would help. You knew of none, but your kindly, sympathetic and understanding answer was a turning point in my life.

"I cried over it, but with tears of joy instead of the usual tears of self-pity. For I suddenly knew that self-pity was becoming my ruler. You spoke of the anesthetic I should receive, and, but in my imagination I had already endured complete misery. I was self-disinfected, and the doctors were simply not interested. Hypos, or any other 'help' only made me wilder.

"You made suggestions, which I followed, such as thinking of my two lovely girls, and praying.

Richard Self-Pity

"First of all, however, I deliberately stopped my tendency to self-pity. I realized how sorry I was for myself, and, as my husband put it, 'I made a silent men who cannot express any sympathy.' I was making up for it myself, and not getting anywhere.

"Then I tried to put away all thoughts of the event, except to plan, and to think how I would have the baby. I found, for the first time, that it can be done, by self-discipline and positiveness, qualities which had been lying dormant in me, waiting to be used.

"For my nervousness and restlessness, I substituted a calm, rational outlook on life, and discovered how unhappy my two sweet little girls were becoming. They had been crying along with me. . . .

"I knew I would have to summon all my powers when the time came, so began to build on what I had. I gave up the hope of receiving help from others, so began to help myself. . . .

"You suggested prayer, and I prayed and went to sleep at night peacefully, where before I had lain awake hour after hour, going over every agonizing moment of past labor pains. The time came and I was ready. . . . My sense of humor was lionized, my mind was clear, and I ordered myself not to become panicky. I told myself I would make the most of these few hours to grow mentally and spiritually. . . .

"My rewards were that my very scout was lifted above my tortured body, and the pain was a dream. Before I could believe it, all was over and I was holding a beautiful little boy in my arms.

"If I seem too emotional, perhaps you will, in your great understanding, make allowances for me."

Hat, Scarf Match

Shirley Ross

By Central Press

A NEW AND clever little hat and scarf set would be a real help in brightening up the last months of winter.

Leather has come into its own this season and is a leading model in spring fashions. Shirley Ross, screen actress, is shown here wearing a stitching and band of turquoise blue suede with a stitched sentiment in black.

The hat has a bat-shaped crown and achieves height through a single loop of feather cut in the same shape as the scarf. Florence Reichman of New York was the designer of the ensemble.

Dinner Table

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

I am planning my first dinner party. Since I do not have the dishes and so forth to give a strictly former dinner in the proper manner, I would appreciate your answers to the following:

1.—There is to be a guest of honor. Is it the lady at my husband's right, should her husband be placed at my right?

2. I notice some authorities say, "Never have the heaviest course first". In most homes the hostess is served first. I'd hate to think my guests would consider me ignorant on the subject. Shall I have the guest of honor served first?

3—Is it improper not to have lace doilies under crab cocktail glasses which will be on a glass plate and dish in turn on a service plate?

4—Should lace doilies be used under sherbet glasses for dessert?

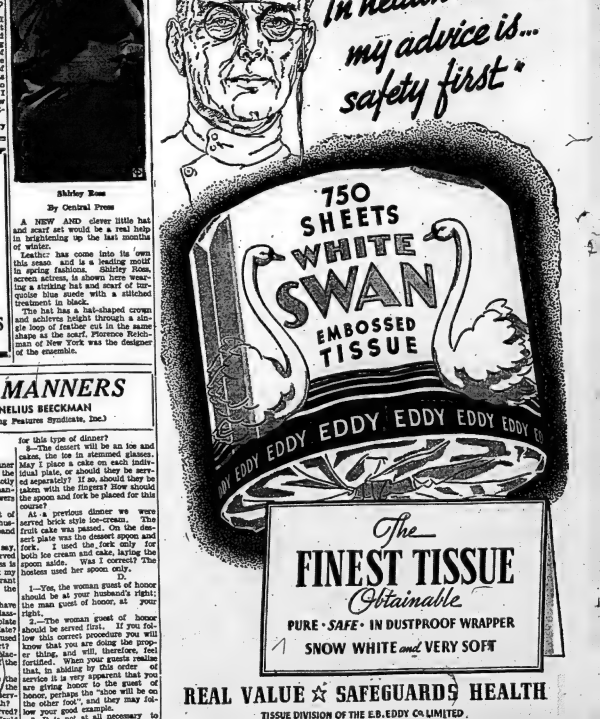
5—Should the next course be placed immediately upon removal of the plate of preceding course.

6—Will it be proper to serve the plates for the main course in the kitchen, since I do not have servers' tea glasses, dishes, and so forth?

7.—How should butter be served? I have a little butter mold. Would it be correct to serve molded butter under the crabmeat cocktail glasses? Indeed many hostesses prefer the appearance of the glass ensemble (cocktail glass and plate.)

8—This too is as you prefer . . . it is not necessary to have lace doilies under the sherbet glasses.

9—Yes.



6—Yes, since you haven't the necessary serving-dishes, you will have to have the plates served in the kitchen.

7—Yes, mold your butter and put a piece of butter on each bread and butter plate before you summon your guests to dinner.

8—It is best to pass the plate on which you have the cakes, if they are "dry" cakes, they would be taken in the fingers, but if they are heavily iced, you had better put a serving piece (a flat round serving piece, if you have this) on the serving plate.

The hostess you mention did the correct thing to serve both dessert spoon and dessert fork with the dessert. Then her guests have the choice of using both or either, she properly gave the guests the choice. And you were correct in using only the fork, if you wished to.

She was correct too in placing the spoon and fork on the dessert plate, the spoon on the right, the fork on the left of the plate. Of these dessert silver pieces could just as properly have been placed at the plate before the service of dessert.

BOLERO OMNIPRESENT, PLEATED SKIRT CHIC

Spring Apparel Is Not Very Different From Last Year's but Many Subtle Changes, Trimmings Make Mode Look New and Fresh

By LISBETH

SIMPLE TAILORED suits trimmed with patterned stitchings, revers and boleros are stressed by Paris dressmakers. There are also many redingotes.

Possibly this is not so very different than last season, at this time. But there is a decided difference in the suits and frocks of yesteryear and today.

Coats and jackets this season contrast with the dresses with which they are worn, and this, too, is similar to last year. But the jackets and coats, too, show a great difference from last year's models.

A number of designers are showing coats that have backs suggesting Watteau pleats, and there are novel jackets with rippled basques.

Piquet shows streamline suits without collars or revers. His jackets are longer and his skirts shorter.

The two interesting costumes pictured here were taken with a background of a bridge at the New York World's Fair, which will open in 1939, and is in process of construction.

Fond of Bolero

Schiaparelli is one of the "bolero hounds," if she will not misunderstand my use of that term. "All is bolero," says this dynamic and highly original person.

Her newest version of this style is shown here, in a tailored colored novelty wool dress and tiny flaring jacket just reaching the bust. It has braid collars and cuffs, and buttons to match the dress.

Molyneux loves an all-round pleated skirt, and his model is shown in a printed silk dress with semi-fitted beige-colored wool jacket, wrist-length, with buttons down the front.

Suits retain their popularity this season without much change, and worn with gay or dainty or lingerie blouses. Some few blouses revive coat frocks.

Many thin wools are used, and quaint prints. Also much linen in a great variety of weaves, and considerable satin.

Colored pinpipe, some braiding, decorative pockets, novel buttons and much ribbon are the trimmings used.

One designer binds light colored tailored suits with darker velvet even around the armholes. This dressmaker also bands black coats with colored striped black velvet ribbon.

Another features leather, especially in new cocktail suits.

A practical suit for the business or college girl is the so-called "four-way" costume. It consists of a one-piece dress, a tweed suit to be worn with the blouse; the dark blouse and tweed skirt, and a tweed topcoat. Imagine how many changes you can ring on that sort of a suit!

Require Health Cards

"Health cards" for workers in homes where there are children have been established in Westchester county, New York state. Says Dr. Fairfax Hall, director of pediatrics at the New Rochelle hospital, as reported in a story: "We owe it to our children to encourage a periodic medical examination of domestic employees as a private health measure."

It is said a survey has shown that children may contract syphilis, tuberculosis and even meningitis from affectionate contact with servants in the home.

Women seeking employment in homes who are a bit resentful of the health card, are shown that it is to their benefit as a "clean bill of health" will create a high type of employment at a higher wage.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

If you like the scoop bonnet type of hat, then you'll find this line well represented this Spring. A beauty is of black shantung with red velvet streamers and a red feather flower on the shallow crown.

Dramatic and altogether lovely is a long, full cape of sheared beaver with a silvery tone, lined with deep red satin.

A good suit for wear down south now and to be worn here later is of checkerboard in a green and white checked pattern for the pleated skirt and tailored short bolero. The blouse is of green sheer linen and there is a belt of russet brown leather.

Plenty of attention at the theatre for the girl who wore a tailored dinner suit in silver lame woven just like a glen urquhart plaid with thin black lines. With it she wore a tunic blouse of shirred black chiffon.

It isn't easy to distinguish between a nightie and an evening frock these days since the nighties are styled just like forals and are of the same lovely fabrics, typical of a new showing is a high-waisted gown with long sleeves and a draped yoke of heavy white lace. The skirt is of sky blue satin.

Get going on a cruise and take along smart spectator sports things for wear while on shore excursions. A nice model is in matse crepe with pleated skirt and shirred bolero.

This brown sugar pudding is delicious that I am suggesting it to top off this toothsome meal.

Today's Recipes

BROWN SUGAR PUDDING. — Sauce—Two cups brown sugar, one-third cup water, three tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup raisins. Pudding—Two tablespoons butter, one-half cup brown sugar, one cup flour, sifted before measuring; two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup milk, one-fourth cup raisins, nuts if desired. Place all ingredients for sauce in pan in which pudding is to be baked—4 circular pan about 10 inches in diameter and two inches deep gives best results—and boil slowly while batter is being mixed. Cream together butter and brown sugar, sift together flour, baking powder and salt and add to creamed mixture. Add milk gradually while beating, then add raisins. Remove sauce from burner, pour batter over it and bake in 350-degree oven from 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot or cold, directly from pan but each serving should be inverted.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Using Color in Home

If you are timid about using color in your home, don't trust yourself. Lean on a good fabric, advises House Beautiful. For instance, you may find a clear and beautiful lemon yellow combined with a fruity wine shade and inci dental touches of a good woody green. That can make a room. Relate all your subsequent shopping to this scheme. Take a sample of your key material with you. Don't necessarily limit yourself to the colors of the fabric, but let everything you buy be harmonious to it. Be sure that your room has one dominant color and a fixed number or subsidiary colors.

Working with the more obvious colors, there are two pointers which apply as generally that they are valuable to bear in mind. For instance, strong bright colors used extensively on walls shrink the room visually. Gentle colors make the walls recede.

Poems That Live

HOPE AND DESPAIR

Said God, "You Sisters, ere ye go
Down apping men, my work to do,
I will on each a badge bestow:
Hope I love best, and gold for her,
Yet a silver glory for Despair,
For she is my angel, too."

Then like a queen, Despair
Put on the stars to wear.
But Hope took ears of corn, and round
Her temples in a wreath them bound;
Which think ye looked the more fair?

THE SECOND COMING

The Saviour came. With trembling lips
He counted Europe's battleships.
"Yet millions lack their daily bread,
So much for Calvary!" He said.

HOW TO CARE FOR EYES TO KEEP BEAUTY

By JULIET SHELBY
Central Press Writer on Beauty

IDEALIZE YOUR eyes! With a little attention they will serve you well. Not only is it terribly important in this age of haste and efficiency to have your eyes feeling their best, but it's more healthy and clear they will be beautiful, too.

Through the ages men have sung praises to the eyes of their ladies and the modern male is no exception. So to be alluring to the opposite sex it's just about compulsory to have your eyes the focal point of your personality. Without their aid Cupid would be playing a lone game.

Caring for the eyes as a part of the morning and nightly routine is the first step. Only then will you won't really slow you up at all. Begin the day in the morning before washing your face. You'll be pleased at how this will wake you up and refresh you for the day's adventures. Then cleanse them again before going to bed to remove, all the dirt and dust.

Use an eye cup or an eye dropper and a soothing and refreshing lotion. There are lots of good lotions on the market now. If you prefer to make your own, here is a good old standby. Make a solution of boric acid. For the best results this should be made fresh every day. Take a teaspoon of boric acid powder or crystals and dissolve them in a glassful of boiled water. Let the solution cool before using.

Medicated eye pads, or herbal eye pads, are very good. If your eyes feel tired after a busy day. If you buy the prepared kind you can just saturate them in cold water and place them over your eyes for a few minutes, while you are resting. They are dandy little revivers. If you are beginning to worry about small laugh lines or wrinkles around your eyes, it's a good idea to use a rich lubricating cream around the eyes, too. This should be applied before you put the pads on.

Skin Is Sensitive

The skin in this area is very thin and sensitive and is more inclined to show lines on older parts of the face. Also the eyes show every emotion and expression, and naturally this is the first place where the wear and tear of our joys and griefs are etched. Gently smooth the cream into the skin, starting on the upper lid at the bridge of the nose and working around and down, back to the bridge of the nose.

A good way to rest the eyes if you are spending lots of time on close work such as sewing, writing or reading, is to look up about every half an hour and focus your eyes on some point in the distance. Close as it for a moment with both eyes, then close one, look at the given point, then close the other and do it again.

CONTINENTAL CAN AND AIRMEN WIN

Schedule in Trenton And District Loop Drawing to Close

Trenton, Feb. 17 (Special)— If the R.C.A.F. hockey team continues to function like it did last night Benedict and Procter will have to look for another league to lead. The Air Force lads settled down and inflicted a 6 to 2 defeat on the Haffey Juniors, to take the first contest of the four-game home-and-home series. The Airmen grabbed off a one goal advantage early in the first period, when Staples hooked the rubber behind the Haffey goaltender on a pass from Mullen. Mullen put the Flyers tied up at short time later on a perfect assist from Gauthier. Gagnon tallied the first marker of the second frame in scrimmage and then Hubble put the Juniors on the score sheet with Emerson's pass.

The Forsters broke out on another scoring rampage in the third session. Gauthier started the fireworks with a well timed shot-in on a pass from Mullen and his teammate Staples inserted the Flyers fifth count from Mullen. Flouffe notched by Fincham denied the Haffey twine with the Flyer's sixth and last goal. Lawrence completed the Juniors scoring on a pass from M. Haffey, Fincham of the Air Force was penalized for tripping in the third. Haffey was banished for roughing in the final period and Gauthier of the Flyers occupied the penalty bench for fighting.

Continental Cans Win

Continental Cans pulled themselves together and routed the Aces 7 to 1 in the second match of the BIL At the end of the initial frame the Canners were ahead 4 to 0 and they increased their command by one goal in the second and two in the third. Maitland saved the Aces from a whitewashing in the last period. Johnson copped high scoring honours of the evening with four counters. Ellis made Saldorra and Bonier accounted for the Can outfits other regulars. The teams: R.C.A.F.: Cook, Zillie; defence Hewson, Trepanier; wings Pinder, Mc. Cagnon; centre Allen. Aces: Bonier, Gauthier, Radcliffe, Sweetman, Staples, Plouffe.

Haffey Juniors: Goal J. Haffey; defence Cooper, M. Haffey; centre Johnson, Hubble; centre Lawrence; subs, Wannamaker, Reid, Emerson, J. Beale.

Continental Cans: Goal K. Mann; defence Bonier, Soniel; centre Anderson, LaMore; centre, Steenburg; sub, Wells.

Aces: Goal Cottrell; defence Brummell, Graham; wings Maitland, Donald; York; centre, Clover; subs Coe, White.

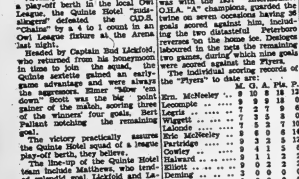
Juvenile Loop

Two well matched juvenile squads battled for sixty minutes last night in a 3-3 draw. It was big and fast all the way but the King Street Church aggregation appeared to be more dangerous than their rivals the Grace-Presbyterian team.



QUINTE HOTEL PUCKSTERS WIN

Virtually assuring themselves of a play-off berth in the Intermediate League, the Quinte Hotel "pucksters" defeated the strong Odd Fellows 7 by a 4 to 1 count in an Owl League fixture at the Arena last night.

Headed by Captain Rod Lickfold, who worked from his bourgeoning end in time to join the squad, the Quinte sextette gained an early-game advantage and were always the aggressors. Lickfold "put down" Rod, was the big point getter of the match, scoring three of the visitors' four goals. Bert Pallant notching the remaining goal.

The victory practically assures the Quinte boys of a spot in the league play-off berth, they believe.

The line-up of the Quinte Hotel team includes Matthews, who tended splendid goal, Lickfold and Le-Barr, who teamed well on the defence to halt the onslaught of the O.D.F. forwards, while Scott, Ball, Turner and Smith and Pallant looked after the front line duties. The game was refereed by Harold Bawden, trainer of the Belleville Redmen.

GIRLS' PLAY—Members of the softball league in Los Angeles start spring practice. There are 150 in the league.

Ernie McNeeley, L. Lecompte Divide Honors for Flyers

Each Has Obtained Eighteen Scoring Points in Season

16 PLAYERS USED

Scoring honors within the ranks of the Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers club, throughout the current O.H.A. season, are found to be divided between Ernie McNeeley, dynamic right winger of the "Flyers" and Louis Lecompte, sauve centre player and, line-mate of McNeeley this season. Each of these pucksters has amassed 18 scoring points, although McNeeley is credited to be in possession of ten goals and eight assists, while Lecompte has registered nine goals and an equal number of assists, in nine group games played through-out the current season.

Lecompte and McNeeley are far and away the leaders in scoring in both teammates, however, Legris, with seven points, being third in the scoring standing. The "Airmen" have chalked up a total of 43 goals against their rival clubs during group play, an average of nearly five per game, while their hard-hitting Flyers' opposition have registered 26 goals. The Royal Air Force group aggregation, two more than they themselves have scored during nine group games. The R.C.A.F. as a team had 71 assists and 43 goals, with an aggregate total of 90 scoring points.

Penalties

The Airmen's penalties were also heavy, a total of 64 minutes in penalties during the nine games, an average of about seven minutes per game. Eric McNeeley, with 22 minutes "in the cage", was the bad man of the squad, closely followed by twin brother Frank with 12. Captain Stan Partridge 12 and Johnnie Lecompte with 10 minutes for infringements of the rules.

Manager Harrison used 16 players during the group including two goalkeepers, Jack Gibson who played in the 1937 Intermediate O.H.A. Desloges laboured in the nets the remaining nine games, during which nine goals were scored against the Flyers.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs flew back to Miami last night grinning from ear to ear. . . . Jacobs' most every sheet in town (and not a few outside) went for that yarn that Sonja Henie will fly to Norway this summer with the famous Dick Merrill at the controls and the equally famous Mike Jacobs footing the bills. . . . One paper called up the Bureau of Air Commerce, which indicated it would not oppose the flight. . . . Even now about Mike Jacobs' picture which has Le Henie under contract for a lot more theatrical work. . . . Still another angle was that Manca Henie will be one of the boy riders. . . . Somebody, but she's no homesick now for those Fjords she'll probably go for those Fjords she'll probably go for those Fjords she'll probably go for home before the tour is over—and by boat. . . . Anyway, all those stories didn't do Miami's big ice carnival (starting tomorrow) one bit of harm.

This is baseball: A few years back the Cardinals traded Gus Mancuso, a second-string catcher to, the Giants. . . . Now the Cards are trying to get Ott Gus back—as first string catcher. . . . Jimmy Foxx, the mick, the Detroit heavyweight, who goes against Harry Thomas in a Detroit ring tomorrow night, has an imposing record on paper—forty knockouts in 43 fights. . . . But Jack back over the record and if there's a guy on there you never heard of (no Joe Louis or Max Rosenbloom) let us know. . . . Still, when a guy can bowl over more than 30 opponents in a row, he must have something besides the old college urge.

You can forget those reports that Bill Stewart, coach of the Chicago Black Hawks, is about to get the old heave-ho. . . . Bill has a two-year contract and not even Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the club, can crack it. . . . The way Jack Kearns is flashing those "C" notes around town you'd think he had Jack Dempsey under his wing again.

SCORING SPLURGE BY TWEED TEAM

Squad Stays at Top by 9 to 6 Win Over Campbellford

Tweed, Feb. 17—Special—Smarting under a couple of recent reverses, and realizing that their position as league leaders was in serious jeopardy, Tweed Intermediates went on a scoring splurge on Monday night such as not been witnessed on the local arena in many a season, Campbellford were the victims, and 9 to 6 the score. A fine sheet of ice greeted the players as they skated out for the opening frame, Tweed got off-to-a-flying face-off the locals left no doubt of their intentions to pile up a comfortable lead, and as events turned out it was well they did so. Losing scored the first goal on a pass from Courneyea in the first two minutes of play. This was the only diminutive centre's only attempt to score, as he made up for himself to three points on a goal and two assists. Campbellford took the first counter for Campbellford. The goal-umpire had his eye on the play as the puck had apparently hit the goal post and bounded out. He was overruled by the referee who gave Reddick credit for the goal. This proved a bone of contention for the locals as they quickly rapped in two more before the second period ended with the score, Tweed 6, Campbellford 1.

Tweed was awarded a penalty shot shortly after the opening of the final period but Turner fractured his effort to score. Merner made the score 7 to 1 on a solo effort. D. Couch secured Campbellford's second goal but this only spurred the locals to greater efforts and Bill Thomson got the goal back and an extra marker for good measure to make the score Tweed 9, Campbellford 2. J. Tunnicon and G. Wager had a lively battle for counters. Things really began to happen at this stage. Campbellford realizing that they were faced with the ignominy of the greatest defeat of the season snapped out of their apparent daze and began to shoot. Shoot they did in great team and to be reckoned with in any game. Tweed's Reddick, their star centre, they began the greatest comeback that local fans have ever seen. In less than three minutes Reddick had bulged the twine behind Thompson three times to put the visitors right back in the running. Tweed was visibly bewildered as a seven goal lead was rapidly dwindling. Pandemonium let loose in the Tweed section as

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE CAPITOL	AT THE ELLIS
"Riding the Lone Trail"	"My Dear Miss Aldrich"

"Riding the Lone Trail" is Jealousy and intrigue on the western ranges form the theme for "Riding the Lone Trail" at the Capitol Friday and Saturday as action-hit No 1 on a double-bill week end bill. Bob Steele has certainly won his spurs as a top-rank cowboy, and his picture is proof that westerns can be full of drama as well as action.

The Golden Girl Mine, owned jointly by Randall and Furman, suffers great losses when their gold shipments, made by stage, are constantly being held up. The end of the White Peril, a horse owned by Jo, daughter of Randall who is a full owner of the Lazy R Ranch This white horse is hidden by the Masked Chief at every holdup, and it is well known that no one is able to ride the horse but herself.

Into this gripping mystery comes young Bob MacArthur, Sheriff's deputy, who hires himself out to th: Lazy R. Peters, the foreman is very helpful, answering all questions and aiding Bob in all operation in his efforts to round up the gang of robbers. Finally Bob, in desperation, has his own horse follow White Peril to the outlaw's hide-out, only find himself captured.

We won't tell you who the Masked Chief really is , because that would spoil the fun, but we'll warn you that "Ridin' the Lone Trail" is as exciting a western as will be seen for many a day, and we recommend it heartily to one and all.

"Hideaway"

A triple blend of realism, drama and comedy, "Hideaway," proves to be a distinct triumph, for its veteran star, Fred Stone, and is shown on the same program Friday and Saturday as hit No 2.

As a lazy but likeable old codger with a weakness for punching and loafing about his run-down farm while his wife supports him and his children by taking in the neighbor's sewing, Stone has one of the most amusing roles of his whole career.

The story concerns the efforts of the impecunious Stone family to make ends meet until a trio of gangsters, posing as refugees from Catalonia are welcomed into the farmhouse as temporary boarders. Laugh-provoking incidents ensue as Stone bends over backwards to make the guests happy although that will be enjoyed by every member of the family.

Heart-gripping Story

Thrills of a great horse race, linked with machinations of race track crooks and hi-jinks of the betting ring, provide a thunderous background for a heart-gripping story of friendships and loyalties of youth in "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" which comes to the Ellis theatre on the same program.

Great races are run, with hundreds of people watching famous jockeys ride great horses. Yet the central theme is the loyalty of three youngsters and the friendship of a woman keeping a race-track boarding house. The simple human theme overshadows horse-racing competition of the track.

Ronald Sinclair, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Sophie Tucker, C. Aubrey Smith head an imposing cast.

Romance of Madison

"Romance of Madison", an unusual subject portraying, for the first time in motion pictures, the drama, and danger involved in the discovery and in the use of radium, is also interesting with the danger involved in filming this "African Mineral." The theme is presented in story form by capable actors and tells how radium was discovered accidently by Professor Henri Beaupierre and isolated by Madame Curie, the unusual power of it rays to pierce armor plate, steel two inches thick . . . the labor involving causing untold exposure, and after the mineral the value of $30,000 a gram . . .its life-saving properties, as well as its destructive power . . . how it is kept . . . .actual photographs of the mining with its power to give off rays from properties within itself. Pete Smith's off-screen narrative is most effective and helps to make this an outstanding subject that will hold your interest riveted throughout that you will long remember.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.15, the last complete show starting at 8.30.

"My Dear Miss Aldrich" starts daily at 2.40 and 8.30 p.m. "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" starts daily at 2.45, 7.10 and 9.35 p. m.

tension, which would have opened up a vast area, provided for development and brought in revenue to the Province, the Hamilton offer held contracts that want to add burdens to Ontario industries and private homes by refusing to exercise the right to export electricity to the United States.

Constitutional Rights

"Their attitude leaves us no choice but to stand on our constitutional rights. One of the most important of these is the reservation to the Province of our right to the income tax."

(The Ogoki diversion was a plan to divert water from this river into Lake Superior for the purpose of developing further power at Niagara Falls.)

Field of direct taxation was given to the Provinces at confederation "and on that basis the confederation was possible," the premier declared. He charged the Dominion's "vast income tax" had been appropriated to the prejudice of provincial taxing authority.

Time to Wake Up

"It is time for the people of this Province to wake up to what is going on. It is time to stop sitting back and see some millions more taken out of Ontario and distributed all over Canada. Very little of it ever gets back to Ontario.

"When we ask the Dominion to go 50-50 on relief, they come back with pay 40 per cent of direct relief costs, they turn around and say, 'Yes, in many sections of the West the Dominion is paying the whole cost of relief.'

He said there are more than $150,000,000 were made in recent years by the Province from cost of Ontario money, much of which was taken out of this province by the direct income tax." Most of the loans will never be repaid, the Premier said.

'Sterling' Not Contemplated

At another point he said Provinces "neither contemplated nor countenanced the hogging" by the Dominion of an important field of taxation.

aggression."

Peacemaking Energetic Stand

"To cry peace and do nothing about it is to be a party to the betrayal of peace. . . . Peacemaking is an energetic stand against the forces of evil and lawlessness by maintain peace by being loyal to the covenant of the League of Nations and accepting full obligation and responsibility. I suggest as did the Prime Minister of Canada, and I suggest it regretfully, that the principles upon which it has determined her stand is one of national interest and security. I suggest that Canada's attacks of too much of a safety-first and political expediency nature. If this were made universal it would mean the final overthrow of the League and what it stands for.

"If the League is to be effective as a peace-making instrument," Dr. Shaw declared, "out of the sacrifices of the past, parties to the covenant must unite in a bond more enduring than self-interest and national expediency. The nations of the League are the representatives and trustees of the collective judgment of mankind in the restraint of evil and as such can thus be called peacemakers".

Peace With Justice

"The only peace worth while must be based on justice," concluded the speaker. "The League of Nations was born in a great moment in human history. But, I regret to say there has been too much sagging on the part of the principal nations concerned. The only hope, it is to prove a more effective force in the search for universal peace, is the recovery of a modern ideal-ism in which it was born."

The speaker was introduced by Principal P. C. Maclaurin of Belleville Collegiate Institute, who presided at the meeting. At the conclusion of Dr. Shaw's address, Mr. MacLaurin voiced the appreciation of the members present for the illuminative facts on this important question so ably put forth by the speaker.

Police Blotter

Steak thieves stole a valuable bran kettle from in front of the premises of Mrs. Doran, 31 Grove Street yesterday, but the steak has been filled with sawn for collection purposes and left in front of the home. "I had placed it there for the same purpose before and nothing occurred," stated the complainant as the matter was reported to the authorities.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, leaving the cell block available for ten transients, who sought warm sleeping quarters there last night. While patrolling their beat last night, local police found the rear door of a local business house insecure. The entrance had been left unlocked inadvertently, it was later discovered.

Canadian Trade Commissioner For Ireland Visits Belleville

Jas. Cormack States Free State Imported $9,500,000 From Canada in '37

PLEASED WITH TOUR

Denies News Report That Irish Prefer Scotch Whiskey

James Cormack, Canadian Trade Commissioner for Ireland, arrived in the city late this morning. During his stay in Belleville today he will confer with representatives of the various manufacturing, dairying and agricultural industries of the district in his temporary office in the Chamber of Commerce room. At noon he will be guest speaker at the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club.

In a soft voice, mellow with the brogue of the "Old Country", Mr. Cormack declared himself well pleased with his present Dominion-wide tour of this country in the interests of trade, and viewed with an optimistic eye the situation which are apparent for the coming year in the matter of exports from Canada.

Asked on the subject of Canadian reporters and newspaper men, the visiting Commissioner was able to comment at length.

"They're a bit previous, some of them Canadian reporters. They have a habit, some of them, of jumping to conclusions. Don't mean at all. They misquote you. Twice now I've been quoted at length and broadly on the country on things I haven't said at all. One Canadian reporter asked Winston Windsor told of the stating that Ireland's preference within the Empire. I didn't say that at all. And I with they would give me as much publicity in saying I didn't say it, as they did, quoting me as' having said it.

In a telegram received at the local Board of Trade Chamber of Commerce this morning from Dublin, his home city, Mr. Cormack stated that the Irish total 1937 imports into Ireland from Canada totalled £1,900,000 and 1,- 905,654 pounds sterling for the year 1937. "Northern Ireland districts are unobtainable," the telegram informed. Imports consist largely of meat, newsprint, lumber and over one hundred miscellaneous products, it was stated.

Questioned area the Canadian West, the present wave of cold weather experienced in this district and not even felt to any extreme by the Commissioner. "Out in the West it was cold — very cold, when I was there, so this weather doesn't so bad to me."

During the afternoon today Mr. Cormack will confer with the personnel of the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Company, canning factory representatives of the Consolidated of other commodities and manufactured articles of this central district.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 17. — Fresh egg prices yesterday were again higher on Montreal wholesale produce market. The butter market was firmer and quieter with the recent sharp advance and cheese was slightly lower as ease from Monday's peak levels of the year. Receipts were 692 cases of eggs, 30 cases of butter excluding truck arrivals. Egg prices are rising owing to the seasonal shortage, early part of the production now going into incubators while storage eggs are hardly moving in the current sales.

Sales at the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 109 boxes of Quebec grass registered butter at 25½c to 26c, the closing level posted as 34½c to 34¾c, while western No. 1 were 25c to 25¼c. Butter futures were easier at the close, 5c to 14c lower, at 24¾c to 24½c for February, 24¾c to 25c for March and 24¾c nominal for April. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 25½c for solids and 26c for prints.

On the egg market graded shipments were generally 29c for A-large, 28c for A-medium and 27c for A-pullets.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

MARKET COMMENT

A very interesting development has occurred in Washington that offers some promise of improved security prices. It will be recalled that on Jan. 31st., President Roosevelt came out with the statement that commodity prices were too high and that dollars purchasing power was able to make his own adjustment, the United States Government would stop purchasing basic commodities. It will also be remembered that this heralded the end of the bull market that had been in progress for over fifteen months.

President Roosevelt brought about lower prices for practically all commodities and with this, carried security prices down very appreciably. In fact, it is maintained that the drop in steel and coal commodities was greater than the President had expected and in the light of the present administration's utterances and efforts to arrest the drop he has certainly succeeded.

While on the subject, it is interesting to point out that Major Angus has recently returned to Montreal from New York market will embark on a sustained rise within the next month or so. Major Angus' previous moves will be of appreciable proportions, and there has to be no doubt several accurate prophecies and it is to be hoped that his current prediction will be realized. The Street here and Wall Street look for a sharp rally and nothing would dispel the gloom which has been quite thick for seven or eight months.

A Montreal broker who has just returned from a trip to New York states that the number of brokers across the line have become very conscious of Canada's mining industry and that considerable business is being done in New York in our leading gold shares and Toronto brokers boast Toronto tickers.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 17 (AP) — With the Treasury's gold policy removed the recovery route in today's market.

Coppers, steels, farm implements and specialties were in the forefront as buying orders rushed in and more points were widely distributed.

Gold shares were selling largely at new 1938 peaks. Dome Mines slumped around two points and Homestake around three dollars a point. Canadian Pacific was fractionally lower. International Nickel was off slightly and small and similar gains were noted in Hiram Walker and Distillers.

On the upswing were shares of Anaconda, Kennecott, Texas Gulf Sulphur, International Nickel, St. Joseph Lead, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Du Pont, Deere & Company, International Harvester, Chrysler, General Motors, American Tobacco, Montgomery Ward, National Distillers and Union Carbide.

Rails were enlivened by another boost in price of the expert metal to around the current domestic rate of 10 cents a pound.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 17 (CP)—The early heavy selling movement in shares on Toronto Exchange today represented profit-taking on a considerable scale as the exchange opened was down at noon but the early afternoon declines and failures on the up-side. MacLeod-Cockshutt pushed along to $2.65 for a gain of 10c on the day. Base metals were also ruled higher and the industrials were steady.

Hicker, Hudson Bay, Hudson Bay, Sudbury Basin and Smelters were prominent among the base metal group and in the industrials the foods, sapolior oils and beverages were particularly strong while the utilities displayed softening tendencies. Brewers and distillers showed a gain of three points to 163½.

Okalta gained moderately and Royalite was off slightly and other western oils held steady.

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

Gerda tiptoed out and brought a puff from her own bed: wrapped it warmly about Maydra's feet and shoulders: tiptoed back to bed without saying a word. And Maydra's head slipped down, down, and presently she, too, slept.

It was ten-when she awoke to us, found his tie and coat, and brilliant sunshine. Wake had got stood smoking in moody, solitary thought at the far end of the studio, close by Gerda's easel.

"Breakfast!" he was calling cheerfully, "You'll have to make time-instead, if you're to be ready when Sam comes."

"Do you have to go with him, Maydra?" Wake protested. "Is it necessary?"

"I'm afraid it is, Wake; I promised him!" Maydra answered steadily.

He took the coffee Gerda handed him, and downed it; passed the cup for another. Then, refusing the breakfast arrayed temptingly on the little gate-leg table, he backed toward the door.

"I must be off," he said impatiently. "There's much to be done, you know!"

Maydra put down her cup and followed him into the studio.

"If I can help in any way—Wake let me know?" she said wistfully.

"Thanks dear," he answered quickly, "you really have. More than you realize!"

He shrugged on his coat, picked up his gloves and hat, and stepped toward the door. Maydra put her cheek with a light kiss, and, as he pulling his hat on, hard, flung open the door, stepped quickly away.

"Come back and eat your breakfast, Infant," Gerda called cheerfully. "It's a long way up to Shadford, Connecticut — and don't smoke a hungry stretch away!"

"Good-by, Gerda," Maydra said quietly.

She sat down and picked up the cup Gerda had refilled, and was halfway through the meal, when the ringing bell drew Gerda to the door.

Gerda brought Jim into the kitchenette, found him a chair beside Maydra, and got an extra cup and saucer from the cupboard.

He took the coffee, and talked eagerly with Gerda about her illustrating. He was still talking eagerly when Maydra returned a half hour later, dressed for street and ready to leave.

The nightmare of the hours just past faded, as the big car rolled smoothly along the Post Road: even the shock of Kay's death faded at the mellow, late fall day worked its magic. Maydra, herself, was quite gay, almost boyish as he told Jim about the Litchfield Country Club, about the time he bought the old Connecticut house, and about the place in Westbrook, on the Sound that he thought Gerda might like to rent—available, because it was only an hour and a half's run from town, while Stafford was almost on the Massachusetts line, and rather a longish trip, when you considered it as a weekly necessity.

Maydra was very quiet, listening not realizing that the tragic and lethal quality men followed "Lindy" by, worshipfully.

They had dinner at the country club, and Mike Durandy was there, having driven down for the day on his favorite partner, "Jeke" Hennessy. Jeke was a big, florid man, respectful, as a good lawyer should be to his clients, but obviously a new fiancee, and they started back to town again, stopping off at Westbrook to look at the house Jim liked.

"I'll take it," he told the agent, after they'd looking the place over from tennis court to garage, pretty good to the big, bare, shadowy attic, under the centuries-old rims. "A place like that always be disposed of without loss, if our plans do not materialize."

"I'd rather you didn't, Sam, if you're counting on me," Maydra said soberly. "Everything is so confused right now. Why must I make decisions that are so difficult? Why can't I have a little more time?"

Sam smiled tolerantly.

"Because, my dear, Kay Sheldon died yesterday morning, early, and that puts Wakefield Bellinger back into circulation again!"

"Wake was devoted to Kay!" Maydra warned him sharply.

"Wake was capable of loving two women at once, my dear child. And even though he was devoted to Kay, he was also ....still is .... in love with you!"

He sighed, softly, on that last, and Maydra knew a swift pang of pity for the sudden law in his iron strength. A pang of pity not unmixed with guilt.

"I'm sorry, Sam," she whispered. "You needn't be. he said stolidly. "I'm all right! And —you're not married to anyone yet!"

They drove back to the apartment in constrained silence, and at the curb Tommy's ancient roadster held forth in all its lost glory.

"Look, Sam observed drily, "your college boy again, Maydra." And when she was silent, unable to find anything to say to that, "Now it's my turn ....to be sorry for you, my dear!"

He opened the door and helped her out. Held her hand, briefly between his big, square, blunt fingers. Then, patting them gently, turned back to the car.

"Be a good girl, little Maydra," he said softly."

Maydra walked into the building wondering a little irritably why he was always concerned with her goodness.

Tommy opened the door for her explaining that Gerda had gone out to dinner and a theatre with friends.

"Tommy, why aren't you in South Bend, with the team?" Maydra asked, "or are you here?" Maydra asked abruptly.

"I've quit the team,' he growled "and I'm quitting college! I'm through with anything I don't like around, Maydra. Now I'm going after my share. I'm going to do what everyone else is doing, and quit playing the sucker!"

"Tommy, you're absolutely mad! Maydra whispered. "You can't do that! It can't!"

"Can't I?" he laughed shortly, violently, picked a book up and threw angrily through the air, shuffled through hair, and glared down. "Well go ahead.... try to stop me! Just try to!"

"But Tommy, why?" she pleaded. "Why, when you graduate in June? You can't throw away those years of work and study for nothing! You can't!"

"Listen, Maydra," he said gruffly, grasping her shoulders in his big hands, "and start right down at her with the quiet intelligence of years beyond his actual age, "I love you—do you understand that? Love you beyond reason, beyond argument, beyond everything. And I can't go on, marking time while all these girls and Park Avenue orchids surround you, and some millionaire comes up to get in there, and get mine, get my share, so I decide I've had enough of this, and make you listen to me. I've got to!"

"But quitting college won't help any, Tommy! You need that degree, I need degree, if we're to get anywhere in this world!"

"Then no, I don't!" Tommy declared hardily. "You where I'm going, I won't need it! In South America, to the rubber plantations you get your first million by forcing all about some mad civilized wave, Maydra! You get it by stepping on the necks of others, by climbing over heads and shoulders, and not minding too much which or whose you step on, you get there!"

"Tommy! Tommy, you sound.... so cynical!" Maydra shivered.

"Sam Lesser knocked me about Wake Bellinger's grandfather! And the mining claims he left him, rather than money. Rich, rich syndicate employer? No, you don't, Maydra. I know what I'm doing. And I'll do it, too! By hook or by crook, I'll get my share. Enough to marry you on!"

"Then I'm coming back. To get my share. Even though I have to work your bloody, shop-worn millionaire out of the way to get it! And you can't escape that, Maydra. No matter what you do, I'll come back! rich syndicate employer? No, you rich and famous, I'll come back, doing. And I'll do it, too! By hook or by crook, I'll get my share. Enough to marry you on!

"Then I'm coming back. To get my share. Even though I have to work your bloody, shop-worn millionaire out of the way to get it! And you can't escape that, Maydra. No You can't escape that, Maydra. No matter what you do, I'll come back! And when I've money enough, I'm coming back....for you!"

Maydra was crying, crying the terrible tears that had been denied her through all the final and agony she had gone through with Kay. Crying as she can't do that! I won't let you! I....won't!"

Tommy laughed softly.

"You can't stop me, either," he reminded her HIMself.

CHAPTER 26.

Fate Steps Prince Charming

Across the still, lovely room they stared at each other, Tommy with a little grin, a little defiant, and bitter; Maydra shocked, uneasy, bewildered.

In that moment they were closer than ever before in the turbulent, hectic weeks since they had first known each other. In that long, tense moment fate laid a hand on Maydra's heart and tried to stifle her, tried to make her bodily across the few feet of rich, thick rug, into Tommy's arms, into his heart and life forever.

Every fibre of her being cried out to her to obey those blind, noisy seconds. Every nerve cried, Tommy! Tommy! Don't! Don't! Can't you see this is harder for me? Much, much rder? Can't you see that I have to pay the price, while you....all you have to bear is indecision!

Then the faint, slinking rattle of a wren, high, metallic, clacking harness and whiffletree, and the loose, paper-thin shoes of a little man's front foot, clattering against countless stones; the gasping, desperate breathing of a slight, frail woman who had once been very tired, really! Tommy and Tommy was lost.

He would never know it, he would never guess what it was that had leaped across that widening area of lovely studio, to forever bar Maydra from him. He might think it was a soft, rich, luxurious mink coat; a thick, soft, costly evening wrap, or the silken, sheer dress and's gold mesh bag. Or a necklace, diamonds, beautiful, orchid. He probably would think it was one, or all of them. Perhaps many more.

But in the wide violet eyes of the girl fixed—steadily, unwaveringly on him, it was none of these. It was a ragged, whispered promise, carving from pain, bleeding lips, from a throat dry and sore with prayers that had not been heard, not answered, even in part. "Don't ever marry, Maydra, darling....unless you can have at least a million dollars! Don't ever think that love can feed you or starving body, or clothe it against the bitter cold of harsh, winter! Don't.... make.... my....mistake-Maydra, darling! Don't!

Suzanne had. Not only had she known best, she had, proved, step by step, her profound wisdom and knowledge. Her superior ability.

"My little partner now, Maydra. I'm very glad, very proud, and very, very happy."

Over there, behind that door back of Tommy, in the little left-over room, Kay lay dead. And in the crisp, new legal papers, Papers that made Maydra Graham the junior partner to Suzanne's, and was always concerned with her goodness.

Tommy opened the door for her explaining that Gerda had gone out to dinner and a theatre with friends.

"Tommy, why aren't you in South Bend, with the team? Why are you here?" Maydra asked abruptly.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon ma sent me to the baker store for a loaf of bread and when I came home she looked in the bag, saying, Well what in the world, well what in the name? Meaning on account of the loaf of bread being half there and half gone, and I said, Well O, ma, it was pure charity. You don't want us to leave people go hungry, do you, ma? I said.

What people for land sakes? ma said, and I said, Well, there was 2 kinds. I was on my way, ma, coming back with the bread and I saw a flock of mixed pidgins and sparrows hopping around in the middle of the street looking for something to eat, and here I was with a whole loaf of bread not even offering them any, so I thought the least I could do was to break off a few crumbs to throw them.

A few crumbs why there's nothing left but a few crumbs to all is 100ths and purposes, ma said, and I said, Well jummihy crickets, ma, the pidgins kept pushing the sparrows away so they could gobbled up all the bred themselfs, and I didn't want the sparrows to blame me for not giving them any, so I kept on throwing more and more to keep the pigins so busy gobbling that they didn't have any time to push the sparrows, and you ought to of saw those sparrows eat, ma, they certainly appriciated it.

Holey smokes, ma, you wouldn't of give a lot of big pidgins take advantage of a few little sparrows, would you ma? I said.

Not for the world, O goodness no, it'd cle of morification. I'd never hold up my head for shame, now you go back in that bakery and bring me another loaf of bread, and for every crumb missing there will b a slap prsent, now get started, ma said.

Which I did, and the sparrows and pidgins was still there but I waited paiend them the 2nd loaf of bread and a clear conscience.

KICKBACK

Calculated in terms of labor, it is estimated that a United States boy-scout on any silk from china would affect adversely the incomes of from 300,000 to 400,000 wage-earners. And with something like 10,000,000 people at present unemployed in the U.S., an official boycott of Japanese raw materials is not likely to be inaugurated — a fact of which the Japanese are fully aware. And they can be trusted to govern themselves accordingly.—Stratford Beacon Herald.

Annual Sale to be Held in This City The Latter Part of March

SELL 30 HEAD

Importance of Mineral Diet For Cattle is Presented

At the annual meeting of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders' Association held in this city yesterday afternoon, representing the five counties in this central district, almost an entire new slate of officers was named for the coming year. The following were elected for the coming year:

President, Earl Burnside, Madoc; first vice-president, Lorne Campbellford; second vice-president, Albert Cluney, Madoc; secretary-treasurer, Rockwell Parks, Napanee; sales manager, Dunham Foster, Bloomfield; auditors, Arthur Gallagher and Craig Nelson, Campbellford; sales inspector, R. M. Hollitt, Fort Perry.

In the report of the secretary-treasurer, submitted by F. B. Nelson, Campbellford, 15 was shown that a small but favorable balance was on hand after expenses had been paid for the past year. The past term has been a successful one, and an optimistic outlook for the year to come is held by the local group.

Sale on March 31.

Date of the annual sale this year which will be supervised by Mr. Foster and Mr. Hollitt, has been set for May 30. A minimum of 30 head of animals must be registered; of this 26 animals are already considered and was believed by the meeting. All animals must give negative blood test and be injected with haemorrhagic. It was decided following a resolution passed.

A special committee was named to revise the present mailing list of the local group consisting of Rockwell Parks, representing Lennox-Addington; Fred Hobbs, Prince Edward; Murney Reynolds, Hastings; and F. B. Nelson, Northumberland.

As one of his first official acts upon taking the chair of president for the ensuing year, Mr. Burnside received the resolution read by Mr. Rockwell Parks paying tribute to the memory and recording the loss of the late past president, James A. Cluney of Madoc, for sixteen years sales manager of the local club. A copy of the resolution will be placed on the official minutes of the club and one forwarded to the bereaved family.

Progress Noted.

Considerable progress has been made during the past year by the Associated Holstein Breeders of Canada, it was reported by Mr. R. M. Hollitt, secretary, Toronto, Ont. Ontario of the provincial association, and guest speaker. "Some of the shows which have been held this year were the best in the history of the associations," he said. The Canadian breeders have been specializing on the matter of type and udders; we have better animals in this respect than have the United States breeders. The Canadian shows this year have been particularly good. The Royal was always a good as the National Dairy Show, and the Canadian National Exhibition and the Guelph show is to be ranked among the United States shows," he declared.

The importance of minerals in the diet of dairy cattle, a new point emphasized by Mr. Hollitt who has become one of the best known men connected with dairying in an international view point. A story illustrating this need was told by the speaker:

"This herd showed unrest and the owner didn't know the reason. He was advised of the apparent lack of calcium in the feed and a nutritioned trough, containing a half dozen or so minerals, the animals in the herd, when they were about thirty feet off, they suddenly smelled the mixture. They made a rush for it, examined the various kinds and then proceeded to eat the mixture of bone meal. They ignored the other lots of minerals, but fought for the right of getting at the bone meal."

Bone Meal Praised.

"It has been found that about two tablespoonfuls of bone meal a day, with cod liver oil has been of great benefit to these dairy cattle in the production of richer milk and fat.

"Another man had a herd of eighteen cows which needed calcium. He fed them bone meal, and in a short time the whole eighteen of them were in calf.

The importance of bone meal in the diet was also lauded by Graham Foster, sales manager.

"We had a sow who was a veteran at eating bone meal. This year we fed her bone meal and she left her pigs alone. We also had a couple of cable cannibalism among the hen flock. We fed them bone meal and cod liver oil and all traces of picking at each other disappeared.

Mr. Hollitt in elaborating upon his remarks concerning bone meal and feed stuffs, issued a word of warning against "rackets" in the feed industry.

Some of the analysis of feeds have shown that some of the high priced ones have not always been the best. We learned that certain had little more than a mixture of salt, anise seed, some other grains and a little bone meal. Just get your own bone meal and cod liver oil and mix it yourself," he advised.

Breeders of Canada must pay more attention to the matter of blood testing if they are to continue sales across the border, it was stated by the chief speaker. New York State, it was pointed out, insists upon a 95 per cent. clean herd. New laws passed in Pennsylvania, where a considerable number of Canadian animals are sold require a 100 per cent. cleanness, it was added.

"AN AWFUL JOLT"

Mr. Hepburn said the announcement was "an awful jolt" for the municipalities. The provincial contribution each month remains unchanged for the present, he said. The cabinet will either be called or there will be a conference here next Tuesday of all Ontario Mayors. Toronto members of parliament will meet Saturday.

Premier Hepburn said the Dominion government obtained three dollars in mines taxation for every one that went into the Ontario treasury. Federal authorities invaded the provincial income tax field as a wartime measure and they have remained there ever since." He said they have no right in this taxation field and we intend to seek a proper share of it, at least."

Highway Estimate Made

Hon. Eric Cross, Ontario Minister of Welfare, Mr. Harris at the conference on relief questions in Ottawa last week that the gross cost of relief in this province for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1938, would be $33,000,000. For next year, Mr. Cross estimated, the gross cost would be $35,000,000.

The Welfare Minister told Mr. Rogers, that from now on Ontario would pay only dollar-for-dollar with the Dominion government. He said this would mean municipalities in future would be forced to pay 53.92 per cent of the cost as the Dominion's share last year was only 21.04 per cent. Ontario municipalities last year paid 24.96 per cent of the cost.

"If the province were to contribute only on the same basis as Ottawa," Mayor Ralph Day said last night, "it would mean that Toronto taxpayers would have to shoulder an additional relief burden of approximately $2,000,000." Toronto's tax rate would jump to its highest ratement yesterday showed he now held

Ne Decision Reached

The question of enactment of legislation to provide for new sources of municipal revenue was discussed at a conference late yesterday between Mayor Day, Mayor R. S. Service of Oak and Mayor E. S. Wigle vice of Oak and Mayor E. S. Wigle of Windsor and cabinet ministers. No definite decision was reached, it was learned. It was believed Mayor Day placed several recommendations before Premier Hepburn.

The Toronto Mayor said that after last week's representations at Ottawa by Mr. Cross and the Mayors of 10 Ontario municipalities, Mr. Rogers had been impressed with the necessity of relieving the taxation load on municipal real estate owners. "I also believe," he said, "that Mr. Rogers at that time expressed his opinion that there would be no relief in municipal taxation until his burden on real estate were eased and encouragement given to the building industry."

Hard to Understand

The Labor Minister's announcement with Mayor Day said this morning, "is hard to understand."

"It just shows the danger of talking about things people know nothing about," Mr. Rigby observed.

"Do you think it was made?" Mr. Bennett asked him.

"It appears on Hansard and it was certainly what I thought I heard on the side of the House," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said.

Then retorted the opposition leader, "the Right Honorable gentleman is the only person who heard it."

AUSTRIAN

Vienna, Feb. 17—(AP)—Austria served notice today she expects German assimilation Dr. Schuschnigg and Hitler von Schuschnigg agreement, in the near future, of Austrian political prisoners.

Officially inspired newspaper statements declared Hitler in his address to the Reichstag Tuesday should guarantee Austrian independence—directly and not incidentally, as a "German" Brother.

Should he avoid this direct pledge, the feeling here is that Austria would consider Germany as having acted in bad faith regarding the negotiations at Berchtesgaden.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart, new Austrian Minister of the Interior who is favorable to Germany and whose appointment was approved by Hitler, carried Chancellor von Schuschnigg's ideas on the subject to Berlin.

The first gestures of co-operation by Hitler are expected to include:

Strict orders to the German press to treat Austria henceforth as her "German Brother."

Dissolution of Clubs

Dissolution—by all Nazi clubs in Germany which supported the Austrian Nazi movement—the Nazi Party has been outlawed in Austria, but membership in the Fatherland Party of Austria's only legal party, is to become available in an effort to maintain internal peace. Austrian Nazis expect their party soon may be legalized.

Lowering of foreign exchange barriers, to permit German tourists again to enjoy Austrian resorts.

Participation by Austrian industry and agriculture in Marshal Hermann Goering's four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency. This, it was expected, will reduce Austrian unemployment.

Germans Capital

Investment of German capital in Austrian business.

The new foundations laid by Austria included:

The cabinet reorganization by which Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg selected Seyss-Inquart, friend and pupil, as well as two men rather sympathetic to Germany and two Nationalists.

Amnesty for political prisoners, which Nazis said affected some 3,500 persons, 94 of them involved in the unsuccessful Putsch which resulted in the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in 1934.

What new changes in Austrian government somewhere yet unseen are not fully apparent, but there was an indication from one official of an anti-semitic policy.

Austrian Diet to Meet

Vienna, Feb. 17—(CP)—(Havas)—The Austrian federal diet was convoked today for next Wednesday, it was announced.

Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg is expected to make a speech to the Diet in reply to the address which Chancellor Hitler will make to the Reichstag in Berlin Sunday.

It could not be learned whether further changes, following the admission of Nazis to the von Schuschnigg cabinet, will be presented to the Diet, or whether it will not only be asked to approve of steps already taken under pressure from Germany.

BY WADE WERNER

Associated Press Foreign Staff

Berlin, Feb. 17—(AP)—Austria's Nazi-inclined Minister of the Interior arrived in Berlin today for what may be the first frequent consultations on Austro-German economic, military and political co-operation.

Official German news agency) reports of Minister Arthur Seyss-Inquart's departure from Vienna on a night train did not indicate how long he would remain in Germany, or with whom he would confer while here.

Seyss-Inquart arrived at 8.30 and was greeted warmly.

Conference With Hitler

Later he conferred for four hours with Hitler, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Air Minister Hermann Goering, but no public statement was made.

The general interpretation was that the visit, immediately after reorganization of the Austrian cabinet with Ministers favorable to Germany, was another indication power campaign. He asked Mr. Bennett to withdraw the reference to dictators, or make specific charges.

Hansard Report

Speaking in the House Tuesday night Mr. Bennett was quoted by Hansard, the official parliamentary record, as saying:

"In Ontario today a campaign is being carried on with respect to funds which are supposed to have originated from this same Beauharnois, in connection with the local election in which Mr. Rurgess Smith, Liberal, was elected. Liberal party and connected with the power interests as well."

Yesterday in the House Mr. Bennett said the report of Hansard was "a very complex and inaccurate one, leave a very wrong impression on the mind of anyone who reads the report as it now appears."

As the report appeared in Hansard, Mr. Bennett said: "I made it as though it had reference to conditions in Ontario, Bethune Smith, Scott of course, was not the case. It refers to $200,000 that was received by Senator Donat Raymond (former treasurer of the National Liberal party) from the Beauharnois people."

Statement Never Heard

Arthur Slagel (Tth. Perry Sound) referred to the telegram of denial from Mr. Hepburn and said he was glad to find the opposition leader had withdrawn charges that Mr. Smith had received contributions from Beauharnois.

"No, the statement was never made," Mr. Bennett interjected.

"It just shows the danger of talking about things people know nothing about," Mr. Rigby observed.

"Do you think it was made?" Mr. Bennett asked him.

"It appears on Hansard and it was certainly what I thought I heard on the side of the House," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said.

Then retorted the opposition leader, "the Right Honorable gentleman is the only person who heard it."

AUSTRIAN OPPOSITION TO GERMAN COUP GROWS

Military Alliance Seen As Reward for Italy On Acquiescence in Coup

Austrian Monarchists, Catholics And Socialists Reported Opposed

AUSTRIA MID-EUROPE

Guild Leaders Threaten to Erect Barricades if Independence Menaced

By The Canadian Press

Vienna—Rising tide of opposition to German coup appeared in monarchist, Catholic and Socialist quarters. Workers' Guild leaders declare they would "erect barricades" if country's independence threatened.

Berlin—Chancellor Hitler reported determined to effect "anschluss".

—Austro-Germian customs union—and virtual Austrian unemployment with vast public works scheme.

London—Diplomatic quarters report Italy will get military alliance with Germany as her reward for acquiescence in Hitler's coup. Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Eden confer with Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi. Parliament assembles but situation will be considered in relation to central Europe as a whole." Count Grandi returned to Downing Street during the afternoon for a second conference with the Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary. It was believed he had consulted Premier Mussolini in the interim.

Paris—French Minister at Vienna instructed to inform the people of the Berlin visit of Arthur Seyss-Inquart, new Nazi-influenced Austrian Minister of the interior.

Eden Questioned

London, Feb. 18.—(AP)— Foreign Secretary Eden promised the House of Commons today the government will continue to interest itself in the Austrian problem "in relation to central Europe as a whole."

This was taken to mean Great Britain is concerned not only by Germany's thrust toward Nazification of Austria but with the future of Czechoslovakia and Germany's other smaller neighbors as well.

Fuller Statement Monday

The target of many opposition questions on the Austro-German situation, Mr. Eden answered but few of them. He said he hoped to make a "much fuller statement on Monday"—after Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech Sunday.

He reiterated that "the responsibilities are not exclusively our own."

Replying to Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition the Foreign Secretary said: "The House will be aware of the interest which His Majesty's government always have taken and will continue to take in the Austrian question, not only on its own account but in relation to central Europe as a whole."

Watching Closely

"We therefore are watching the situation closely," he added.

Asked if he would consult with the League of Nations, Mr. Eden asserted "all considerations such as those are at present in our minds."

He did not answer questions as to whether a special League council will be called to consider the situation, and whether "urgent action" is necessary now that "Austrian independence has been destroyed—by Germany."

Policy of Detachment Seen

Meanwhile, The Daily Mail (independent), quoting Mr. Eden's statement yesterday that "we are willing to act with others but I do not think it lies with us to take the initiative," added editorially:

"The main handling of this statement is that Britain has at last resolved on a policy of detachment since, obviously, no other course offers the least intention of asking the initiative."

COAL HANDLERS ON STRIKE

Toronto, Feb. 18 (CP) — About 1500 coal handlers and truckers went on strike today, bringing delivery in Toronto practically to a standstill.

All major companies were affected and have been attacked by the walkout called by the Coal Handlers' and Truckers' Union, Local 83.

Farmers Urged To Put Minerals Back in Soil

Toronto, Feb. 18 (CP)—Long use of Ontario's agricultural lands had reduced their mineral content and nutrition of animals suffered, Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, told the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League today.

Dr. Christie said nutrition was important both for animals and humans. Medical men constantly stressed the safeguarding of a human's health lies in nutrition. To-day, he present, however, little attention was given nutrition of cows.

"When the health of the country is at stake, instead of calling meetings to boycott milk they had better find methods to put that (mineral) deficiency back in the soil," Dr. Christie added later during discussion.

He had been arguing that scientists urged use of milk to provide minerals and vitamins, but that analysis those minerals came from the land. An unestimated quantity of minerals was taken from the farm over a period of milk production and was going to other countries much money to put the minerals back in the soil.

MOTOR TRAFFIC BACK TO NORMAL AS ICE SOFTENS

Traffic Nearly Paralyzed in Practically All Sections of Province

CLARE ICE ON ROADS

50 Cars And Trucks Stalled at Napanee Unable to Make Hill

By The Canadian Press

Motor traffic throughout western, central and eastern Ontario slowly was returning to normal today as rain and rising temperatures softened ice on streets and highways that for nearly 24 hours acutely hampered vehicular movement in densely-populated sections of the province.

Rain and sleet that froze as it fell, followed by a heavy fall of snow North Bay sheeting in ice yesterday, many persons were injured in accidents. Scores of automobiles slid into ditches and were abandoned by their owners and a bad blizzard in roadside hotels or farmhouses. But service in some parts of Ontario points was halted.

Traffic was all but paralyzed to the Belleville district where two women and a man were injured in falls on icy streets. Bus service to that city was cancelled. Many motorists were marooned by the snowstorm.

Seventy-eight cars and trucks were stalled on a hill at Brantford when the height of the storm struck, suffered arm fractures in Simcoe. No buses moved in or out of Orillia here during the day and the unprecedented conditions forced postponement of a funeral service. Scores of other mishaps were reported from Owen Sound where a truck overturned. Forty cars were stalled in Galt at one time.

50 Cars Stalled at Napanee

Inclement weather almost as severe as that which prevailed over Western Ontario was reported from eastern sections of the province. In Napanee, more than 50 cars and trucks were stalled at one time on one stretch of glare ice. A man who fell on a sidewalk and suffered a fractured leg crawled a block to the police officer's office for aid.

Thirty-four automobiles were stalled from Cornwall to Hope area. Hotels of that town were filled by stranded motorists. A bus skidded off the highway near Kemptville and crashed into a power pole, disrupting service in that section of the city for several hours. Many city bus schedules were cancelled.

Motorists in Kingston were also troubled by the storm. Bus service to Quinte area last night, progress being slowed by the storm. Many serious accidents were reported by city or provincial police in the immediate district. Two fatalities occurred. Buses and large transports were late in their arrival but as soon as progress was carried out with caution.

Within the city limits, however, city streets presented a glaring icy appearance, making the task practically impossible. Automobiles were abandoned in all principal thoroughfares, except the most desired, and numerous cars concluded their skiddings into the curbs and even across sidewalks.

King George Sixth Heads National Fitness Campaign

There Will be no Regimentation but all Citizens Will be Given Opportunity For Facilities of Health-Giving Exercises

London, Feb. 18—(CP)—The King, today placed himself in the forefront of the national fitness campaign of which "the greater wellbeing of our people will be the supreme reward."

He made his appeal for Britons to build up physical fitness at the Guildhall last night, addressing 1,000 representatives of private and public organizations in person, and millions of Britons via air.

Future in One's Own Keeping

"This cause is very close to my heart," he said. "And to youth in particular I would say: 'The future will be in your keeping'. The present is your opportunity to fit yourselves for a full, active, useful and therefore a happy life. The decision is in your own choice. It is for you to make the effort."

Nothing aside more to the pleasure of life and to the joy of work and play than physical fitness, the King declared. The national fitness council and its area committees planned to provide opportunity for all to make regular exercise.

"It will be their object to secure facilities for exercise, where needed, to follow his or her own inclination in the method of taking this exercise."

2 Prisoners Escape in Fog From Collins Bay Prison

Slip Away From Outside Gang on Way to Get Stone

SEARCH GOES ON

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 18.—(CP)— Fifty penitentiary guards are combing the district near Collin's Bay Penitentiary where two inmates slipped away in the fog about nine a.m. today.

The escaped men are Charles Cornell, 27, sentenced at Windsor in January 1937, for armed robbery, wounding with intent and housebreaking, and Gerald Blackburn, 21, sentenced at Guelph, last May for housebreaking.

Cornell was serving a four-year term and Blackburn a two-year one.

In Stone Cutting Shed

The men were employed in the stone cutting shed along with about twenty other inmates under the charge of two guards, instructors.

The missing pair left the shed on the pretence of getting more stone and when they did not return within a reasonable time an alarm was given.

When last seen the men were dressed in the brown prison uniform and were wearing blue caps.

No report had been received that anyone has seen them since they walked out of the stone shed into the fog.

History of Prison

Collin's Bay Penitentiary was begun in 1930 and is still under construction. The cell block is in use and the administration building is nearing completion. There is no wall around the institution, however, and it is a common sight for men on motoring along the Bath road to see the convicts employed on construction of the buildings and on the farm lands adjoining the prison.

The men are under guard at this outside work by armed guards who stand in portable towers at various points on the ground, and by unarmed instructors who mingle with the prisoners.

In clear weather the guards in the towers have a good view of convicts but under foggy conditions, such as prevailed today, their task is more difficult.

There have been one or two previous escapes from this institution but invariably the men have been recaptured soon.

The prison reservation is large and under the present weather conditions it might be some time before the escaped men to elude the search parties for some time even the prison grounds.

The routine at Collins Bay does not differ very much from other penal institutions in the Dominion. There are work gangs at nearby Kingston Penitentiary, for example, which performs jobs outside the walls. They are controlled by guards in portable towers and employed on jobs on farms or motor cycles the same conditions prevail at Collin-Bay Penitentiary, four miles from the city of Kingston.

Ottawa, Feb. 18, —(CP) — Two prisoners escaped from Collin's Bay Penitentiary at 8.55 this morning, in a dense fog and had not been recaptured, it was announced by the Department of Justice today.

The prisoners are Charles Cornell, 27, sentenced to four years a year ago for burglary and wounding, and the King emphasized there would be no regimentation in the matter. "No one need be afraid that any organized training unless he wishes to do so," he declared. He said the movement "will fail in its purpose if it does not provide a variety of facilities to attract the adult and middle-aged" as well as the young.

He commended "the great movement" to "the leaders of industry and commerce, employers and employed, and to the authorities whose power in this direction have recently been extended to voluntary organizations, especially those concerned with the rising generation and those which foster good sportsmanship and love of the game for the game's sake."

Raise Physical Well-Being

The campaign for which the King lent his support is planned by the government to raise the physical well-being of the nation. It allotted $10,000,000 ($50,000,000) to the movement, which is being guided by Lord Aberdare, a noted athlete, Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's physician, and Dorothy Round, outstanding tennis player.

Plans for 1938 are being expanded partly on gymnasium, swimming pools and playing fields, in cooperation with local authorities.

CHINESE STRONGHOLD CAPTURED BY JAPAN

Shanghai, Feb. 18 (AP)—Japanese troops have occupied Kuyo to have fought through a 20-mile zone of fortifications and captured Shihkiao, last important Chinese Peiping-Hankow railway stronghold north of the Yangtze.

Two flying columns, Japanese said pressed westward from Shihkiao along a branch of the railway in pursuit of retreating Chinese.

News of the Japanese advance on the northwestern corner of the Shanghai combat zone against Japanese conquered areas of north and central China came as foreign observers asserted the Japanese high command was being changed.

Lieut.-General Hisaichi Terauchi, who came out of retirement last August to take command of all Japanese troops in the Shanghai area, was said to have been recalled to Japan. General Shunroku Hata, Inspector General of Military Education in Japan, was reported arriving to succeed him.

Gerald Blackburn, 21, sentenced last May for housebreaking.

Information received at the penitentiary here today does not suggest some alone at the stone shed of the penitentiary and under cover of the fog escaped.

MAY SPEED UP AUSTRIAN TRADE

Vienna, Feb. 18 (AP)—The prospect of speeding up industry under Austro-German economic union was a likely practical demonstration of National Socialism's entry into Austria.

At once it met thinly-veiled opposition from some business men, who fear there would result an unfavorable trade balance and serious currency depreciation.

Austrian Catholics Rally

Austrian Catholics announced, too they are rallying their forces for an anti-Nazi campaign.

Leaders of the former powerful Christian Socialist party were reported tested to Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg's call for support in the parliamentary, democratic party government.

Newspapers reported Marshal Hermann Goering would come to Vienna shortly to meet Austrian government and industrial leaders. Reports said he reports that plans then will be drawn up to press Austrian industry into the service of Germany's four-year plan—a plan for assuring to Germany sufficient supplies from own resources, without the necessity of depending on imports.

Thus such a co-ordination of industry would carry into the field of practice the agreement for close co-operation between the two German-speaking nations.

While there are some industrial leaders who take a joyful view of the prospects of high pressure industrial activity, others fear intensified business with Germany soon will deprive Austria of valuable import raw materials.

HOUSE PROPOSES NATIONAL ATTACK ON DRUNK DRIVERS

T. L. Church Proposes Changes in Criminal Code to Help Situation

TO CONSIDER BILL

Mr. Bennett Advocates Strict Restrictions on Drunk Drivers

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—(CP)—A national attack on drunk drivers and highway traffic killers was proposed in the House of Commons yesterday by T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) through far-reaching amendments to the criminal code.

Suspension of a hit-and-run driver's license for not less than a year in jail for racing on the highway, or cutting in and out of traffic, highway killers to be barred from driving for two years, no drivers' licenses for anyone under 18 years of age; confiscation of cars for some dangerous and wrong-doing, and dealing with drunk-driving, were some of the provisions of a bill introduced by veteran Toronto member.

Promised Change

Justice Minister Lapointe moved adjournment of the debate on the bill to give time for study of the terms before presenting a government measure. He said the government bill would incorporate some changes in the criminal code, some of them dealing with automobile traffic.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department would give careful consideration to the terms of the Church bill, Mr. Lapointe added, and if anything found to be practical would be incorporated. At the same time, he pointed to administrative difficulties because of provincial traffic laws which might come into conflict with federal legislation.

Might Call Conference

The Minister agreed with members from all parts of the House that stringent methods must be adopted to stop the annual toll of lives and damage to property on the highways. Perhaps a conference with provincial officials might lead to uniform legislation of sufficient strength.

Conservative leader Bennett led the members, irrespective of party, to press for use of the criminal code in attacking Canada's highway traffic problems. Only then could there be universal application of drastic laws which would have sufficient effect in them as a deterrent, he said.

Fred Jutten (Cons. London) supported the Church bill. He said efforts to halt highway accidents by small fines and short prison terms had failed. The only alternative was to license drivers, and only through it more difficult for reckless drivers to use the roads.

SEVEN OF EIGHT TRAPPED, SAVED

Haselton, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP) — Seven of eight men trapped by a flash flood of water in an abandoned strip mine at nearby Jeanesville were found today unharmed. The eighth was dead.

Officials of the Lehigh Valley Company said the dead man was Paul Kuritz, 40, of Hazelton.

Rescuers pushing through tons of debris during the night found his body buried in mud piled up by the water that rushed into the mine yesterday when a pool left as a result of surface mining.

The others were safe in a "rock island" high above the reach of the waters.

France Speeds Up Arms Expansion

Paris, Feb. 18 (AP)—France set out today to speed the pace of her arms expansion, as Premier Chautemps called into session the National Defence Council to discuss proposals for sharply increased appropriations for the army, navy and war departments.

Officials said the amount had not been decided, but political quarters expect a 30 per cent increase in army spending for 1938, or about $133,330,000 above the approximately $733,333,333 already approved by parliament.

NEW PARTY HOPE FOR JAPANESE

Leaders of Two Leading Parties Seek United Front

Tokyo, Feb. 19 (G.P.-Havas) — The attempt made yesterday to besiege the headquarters of Japan's two leading parties to expedite their unification into a single political body may presage important political changes, informed observers suggested today.

Some 400 demonstrators belonging to the "National Anti-Communist Defence Federation" staged a small-scale "putsch" in front of Mussolini's "march on Rome" by marching into Tokyo on trucks and stopping outside the headquarters of Minseito and Seiyukai parties. They remained four hours at the former and nearly seven at the latter before being persuaded upon to leave by police, who placed 616 people under "preventive" arrest. The demonstrators included members of both major parties.

Their leaders said they wanted to "accelerate the movement for formation of a new political party which will present a united front of the nation in the face of the present national emergency."

The well-known Hochi Shombun linked the incident, however, to the campaign for a single totalitarian-type political party which has been under way since 1936. Its sponsors are the powerful militarist group around the shadowy figure of Military Minister Sugiyama of the Black Dragon Society and "the man behind the screen" in Japanese party politics.

PLAN FRUSTRATED IN 1931 IS SEEN AS HITLER AIM

Germany Feels Time Gone "When Others Can Sit in Judgment"

Berlin, Feb. 18 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler was pictured by Nazi spokesmen today as having set out to end a decade-old economic union of Germany and Austria, realizing at last a great ambition thwarted by Great Britain and France.

As Nazification of Austria proceeded, Europe's chancelleries were reported to understand that the time has passed when other powers can sit in judgment on arrangements "between German states". Seven years ago Great Britain and France, fearful of Hitler in an economic union of Austria and Germany from forming a customs union.

Monetary Union

Nazi spokesmen predicted a monetary union between the two countries to synchronize banking and currencies. A customs union was taken for granted. Hitler, they said, will first and foremost tackle Austrian unemployment with a vast public works program.

There will be numerous conferences between Austrian and German leaders in the near future, with all

British Millionaire Saved from $250,000 Swindle by Banker

Florida Banker Refuses to Turn Over Money to The Owner

A 'CONFIDENCE' GAME

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 18—(AP)—The Palm Beach Post-Times printed yesterday the story of a British multi-millionaire who was saved from a $250,000 swindle by a Florida banker who refused to give the Briton that amount of the latter's own money.

The story explained the Englishman—described as well-known British industrialist in this country on a "political mission"—related his story on condition his name be withheld. The Times said the story had been verified.

On Feb. 7, the Briton related, he arrived here and almost immediately was approached by a man who tried to fleece him in the "horse race" confidence game, in which the victim is supposed to win an enormous sum, but must produce a large amount of his own money to prove he could have paid the bet had the horse lost the race.

He related he not only saved his money but made a profit of $662.75 on the deal through a change in the rate of foreign exchange on the day he had $250,000 transferred from London to the Chase National Bank in New York. (Chance to the First National Bank at Miami.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen Science Service Meteorologist

Air pressure and wind! We feel the fierce intensity of the sun in summer, and the great force of the wind in winter, especially; but we do not feel the pressure of the air or the change in force which is the immediate cause of the wind. The pressure also varies slightly during the day; but unless the conditions are quite unusual; changes can not be detected even with instruments. But when the air pressure differs from place to place, a tempest may be in progress. Another example: If the pressure changed only one-tenth of an inch of mercury over a distance of 150 miles, the wind may be anything from 30 to 50 miles an hour, according to the extent of the storm.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 18—(CP)—Pressure continues high on the Atlantic coast and over the Maritimes, but the continent, with a trough of low extending from the upper Ottawa Valley to the Gulf of Mexico. Snow, sleet and rain have occurred in Ontario and a snow or rain or part sleet in Quebec and New Brunswick, while in the Western Provinces the weather has been mostly fair and cold.

Upper-peninsular-Northwest winds partly cloudy and colder; snowflurries over east portion. Saturday, mostly fair and cold.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy and not quite so cold as southern districts tonight and Saturday with snowflurries.

Saskatchewan—Partly cloudy today and Saturday with snowflurries; not so cold in southern districts.

Alberta—Partly cloudy today and Saturday with light snow in some districts; not much change in temperature.

Ice-Breaker Cuts Way Out, Will Be Used at Niagara Jam

Circular Saw Drawn by Automobile Precedes Tug

USED AS EXPERIMENT

Kingston, Ont., Feb.-18—(CP) — The ice-breaker Salvage Prince smashed its way through ice in Kingston harbor out of sight today as fog enveloped the district.

Bound for Oswego and then to Niagara Falls where it will attempt to break up the ice jam endangering Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario power plants, the tug, commanded by Capt. Grant Fyfe, started to break the harbor ice yesterday in an effort to reach open water.

Present position of the tug was unknown but yesterday it averaged about half a mile an hour in its lunging attack on the thick ice, a circular saw driven by an automobile preceded the tug yesterday and weakened the ice.

Sturdy little ship came a sleigh loaded with rescued trees and ice in the stretch of open water in its wake.

The tug was charged by Hydro as an experiment to see if such measure would be possible to smash the jam and avoid property damage in future years. Already the ice jam at Niagara has tumbled the Falls View Bridge and ruined machinery in the Ontario Power Company when ice poured through windows smashing the generators.

PRIME MINISTER AGAINST BILL TO EXCLUDE JAPAN

Says Canada Will Not Add Fuel to Flames of International Discord

ADJOURNS DEBATE

B. C. Members Move to End Gentleman's Agreement

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 18—(CP)—Canada will not add fuel to the flames of international discord by excluding Japanese immigration and terminating the gentleman's agreement between this country and Japan under which immigration from that country is limited to 150 persons a year.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King made that clear in the House of Commons last night as he adjourned debate on a bill sponsored by A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) which would have had the effect of excluding immigrants from Japan.

Agreed With Speakers

The Prime Minister agreed with other speakers in the debate that the immigration laws from which Columbia was grew but he failed to see that the time was apt at this time would help matters.

Aggressive measures were being taken, he declared, illegal immigration, and these would be extended, he said. The Immigration Branch, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Intelligence Branch of the Department of National Defence and other government services had been organizing for some time in stopping illegal immigration and in sending back persons found to have entered Canada outside the scope of the agreement.

British Columbia members in the Conservative, Liberal and C. C. F. parties have moved that Neill's bill and Conservative leader Bennett agreed with its principle. He thought, however, it should not pass in the form in which it stood but that it should be made effective at a given date a year or more hence or on proclamation. That would give the government time to communicate with the Japanese government and explain that it contained the will of the Canadian people.

Would End Agreement

The bill would have put Japanese immigration on the same basis as Chinese. The, as Mr. Neill explained, practically meant exclusion as only the merchant class of Chinese were admitted. It would end the gentleman's agreement under which Japan agreed to limit migration to Canada in accordance with conditions in the country.

An objection to the gentleman's agreement was that it was flexible and Mr. Neill was that it left conditions found from time to time to a client to his own use.

ROBT. MOHER INJURED BY FLAMES FROM GAS

Severely burned on both hands when gasoline in the crank case of his automobile ignited from the blow torch he was using in the Hurley Hill garage, Front Street, yesterday afternoon, Robert Moher, 70-year-gardener was rushed to Seldon's Drug Store where he was given first aid and later taken to the office of Dr. R. A. Flynn for treatment.

Moher was attempting to thaw out a frozen radiator, when a frozen mixture of gasoline and water in the crank-case suddenly ignited. The burning blaze set fire to paint on the blow-torch enveloping Moher's hands and arms in flame. Lying beneath the car at the time he struggled to his feet as the blaze swept around the engine and front part of the car, causing considerable damage to tires and paint.

Members of the Fire Department raced to the garage in answer to an alarm and extinguished the blaze by means of hand-pumps. No damage was done to the garage.

GOOD RECORD MARRED

A record of twenty-six years of automobile and other motor-vehicle operation without a single accident came abruptly to a close the other night when the car owned and driven by Alphonse Lapointe, Canadian Canners Ltd. field representative slid from the highway near Newcastle and crashed into a nearby tree.

Rain frozen in the ice on the roadway caused the Wilson car to swerve, it is claimed, the vehicle striking the rain suddenly veered off the highway, over a ditch and into the trunk of a tree, the car while badly damaged did not turn over. Wilson was uninjured.

Wilson, who resides in Wellington had the car towed to a Belleville garage, then left for his home with a friend.

HOME OF ED. STUART DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin that broke out between the floors of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stuart, at 32 Hickman Avenue caused considerable damage to flooring and bathroom on Tuesday night before the blaze was extinguished by city fire apparatus.

Rags and paper stuffed between floors in an effort to prevent frost from reaching the pipes quickly ignited as the flames swept beneath the floors. Damage to the extent of $200.00 was incurred before the fire was brought under control according to Fire Chief William Lynch.

HEARS FROM BROTHER FIRST TIME IN 30 YEARS

Like a voice from the misty past, a letter received today by Mrs. Chas. Bennett, 311 Pinnacle Street, advised of the good health of a brother she has not seen or heard from in a period of thirty years.

The letter addressed by Joseph Skeaton, from Lubbock Street, New Cross London, England told his sister that working conditions in England were at the present time "good, if you have a trade at which to work." But in the averags laborer jobs, as in Canada, are fairly hard to find.

The letter expressed the hope of her brother that Mrs. Bennett's and the health of her family were good.

MEETING POSTPONED FOR BAD WEATHER

Weather and street conditions in the city last evening forced postponement of the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Coaches Association called for in the Y.M.C.A. Only tentative plans for future activities of the association were discussed by president Somerfield and a small number who turned out. Date of the postponed meeting has been set for next week or the coming week, it was announced.

YOUNG MEN LEAVE TO JOIN IMPERIAL FORCES OF THE NAVY

Two local youths, the parents of whom for the present wish their names withheld, left Belleville this week for England with the ostensible purpose of joining his majesty's Imperial forces, or the British navy.

"We can't get jobs here, so we will go and join the army," the boys told their parents a week or two previous to their suddenly announced trip.

Making enquiries locally, the boys found that recruiting, in either the permanent forces, the Royal Canadian Air Force or the Canadian Navy was limited. Both youths have relatives in the Old Country, it was stated.

MORE MEN ON RELIEF ARE NOW GIVEN WORK

A total of sixty-one relief men, the highest number registered this year were called at the relief office this morning to fill a list of various jobs under the direction of the public works department. The average wage of workers is the result of the "more-man-hours" policy in the local office with considerable extra time must be given by the men in return for vouchers of clothing, fuel, and extras. Chief job is the removal of ice and snow choked driveable parking lots, street sanding and sewer cleaning operations.

"Those extras do look like outside rent," it was stated by Miss Lynch, supervisor of the office. "But now is the first time they have had to work for these."

The business of morning banking stood at a standstill for some time in Napanee yesterday.

Locksmiths were sent for but the key could not be removed by the local craftsmen. Finally the window at the side was broken. The door unlocked from the inside and business of the day proceeded.

Helpless to go to the assistance of her mother-in-law whom she noticed lying on the embers of the fire, Mrs. Fred Gardner, a cripple, dragged herself to the door and screamed for help. POLICE COURT

Michael Sullivan, who gave Toronto, as his home address, was sentenced to one month in the common jail after pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy when he appeared before Magistrate H. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

When first arraigned Sullivan pleaded not guilty, but later changed his plea to that of guilty. This is the first time I was ever in trouble and I think the court has been rather harsh in my case," commented Sullivan.

"How would you like to be fingerprinted", interrupted Mr. Donnan.

"It's all right with me, my conscience is clear," came back Sullivan as he was led away.

William Cumming, 19-year-old Toronto youth, appeared charged with the theft of a motor car and was not asked to plead, his case being remanded for one week at the request of Chief Kidd. Cumming is apprehended on Ottawa after allegedly stealing motor car in Belleville recently. The Toronto youth failed to answer to his name when called to face a minor charge. Crown Attorney Donnan asked that a warrant for the accused be issued.

A woman who put her name as Florence Keller, Trenton, appeared on a vagrancy charge. Police officials related the woman had obtained board and lodgings at a local hotel without visible means. "I believe this is a mental case and would suggest that she be held for examination," suggested Chief Kidd. The court agreed.

John Murray, Thurlow, was bound over to keep the peace after being convicted of assaulting his wife. During the case the accused man's daughter testified, "I can show bruises where he struck me," stated the girl.

"Well, you prefer the charges then," came back J. Goodman, local barrister appearing for the accused.

ICE-JAM LEVEL YET UNAFFECTED BY FALL OF RAIN

Free Flow of Water is Working Under Ice

Rain which has been falling during the night failed to have any noticeable effect on the ice-jam that is holding the Moira River in its lower stretches. Settling of ice is taking place large cakes in the vicinity of the lower bridge dropping in places in a depth of four feet below the main level.

A free flow of water is taking place in the channels along the river banks south of the lower bridge, while smaller channels are appearing in the main body of the jam between the city bridges.

The field south of the lower bridge is beginning to show signs of disintegration, large cakes and fissures appearing in the jam adjacent to the rapidly moving water of the riverbank channels.

A survey of the upper stretches of the river this morning revealed no floe ice above the end of the jam some fifty yards above the upper bridge. Reports from Hamilton and Corbyville state there is no difference in the present situation. Ice and solid icefields north of the dams at these places showing no immediate signs of breaking up.

The present rain and rising temperatures may have some effect on the icefield, city officials stated today, but no immediate change is anticipated.

LACK OF FROSTS GIVEN CREDIT

Fall And Winter Grain Reported as Excellent in Outlook

Lack of heavy early winter frosts is the main reason for the splendid appearance of fall and winter grains, in prominent Rednerville farmer stated this morning. "My fall wheat is looking better" he said "I inspected it the other day and the top is the finest sample I have had a healthy condition. Judging from its present appearance and if heavy frosts do not occur between now and the spring rains, I think we should have a bumper crop."

STANLEY GRAHAM GIVEN 6 MONTHS

Previously Convicted Of Obtaining Money by False Pretences

Stanley Graham, Belleville, was sentenced to serve six months in the Ontario Reformatory when he appeared for sentence before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's police court. Graham had previously been convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses, to the tune of hundreds of dollars cheqnes.

The amount involved was said to be $138. In all, the cheques ranging from five to $75.00, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. revealed.

A. B. Collins K.C., local barrister, appearing on behalf of the defendant, sought clemency pointing out to the court that Graham had a large family, that naturally would be affected if a lengthy sentence was imposed. He also spoke of the gravity of the charges, but would point out that Graham was known to respectable people in their community," added Mr. Collins.

"Graham appears to be getting fed-up with this sort of thing. There are altogether too many worthless cheques being tendered," commented His Worship as he passed sentence of six months determinate at a further indeterminate sentence of six months in the Ontario Reformatory.

Members of Militia Entitled to Periods Of Summer Training

In a communication received by the local headquarters of Canadian militia this week, attention is drawn by the Department of National Defence that on behalf of rationing security and the fact that the large part of Canada's defence is composed of members of the non-permanent militia units of Canada, employers of these men in the various units across Canada are asked to co-operate in the matter of allowing the men certain periods of training in summer camps and otherwise without losing their feeling that their jobs or out their feeling that their jobs or positions may be endangered or affected "by such patriotic action".

"The non-permanent active militia in Canada's line of defence" the Department notes, "it is to employers and officers that Canada must look for national security."

WOMAN RIDES RODS SHE STATES

Mrs. Harry Rubenston, Tells of Journey From Toronto With Husband

Claiming to be the first woman "rod-rider" in this part of the province, Mrs. Harry Rubenston, who claims Sarnia as her home, "dropped off" at Belleville with her husband early today.

Attractively garbed in a crimson windbreaker and slacks, Mrs. Rubenston, a young matron of thirty summers, told of a struggle of existence that has lasted since her wedding two years ago. "My husband and I married on the proverbial shoestring", she said, "and since then the string has dwindled away to nothing. We left Sarnia about six months ago, picking up odd jobs here and there and managing to keep the wolf from the door. We sold our car to obtain much-needed funds while in Windsor. Since then we have hitch-hiked our way all over Ontario looking for these elusive jobs. We expect to find work in Montreal if the brakesmen don't get too tough on the freight trains. I rode from Toronto here and to say the least it was a thrilling if jolting experience."

Mr. Rubenston, a husky fellow had nothing to say and corroborated by smiles and shakes of the head his wife's statements.

Chapter 27

Syd's Loyalty

Each one of the articles and stories about the woman who had "dominated her world of the theater for an intense, dramatic ten years, told everything there was to tell about the man she had married a few short months before death. Only he knew the finals to her brilliant career. There were dozens of photographs of Wake Ballinger in all phases looking as if he had but that very day posed for them. All of them taken from the well-stocky files of the newspaper, because Wake Ballinger was page one, top headline news any day of the week. And anyone connected with him was also topline news. Not all the facts, not all the glory, nor all the greatness that Kay Sheldon had accumulated justly earned in those brief, feverish years of her fight to the top of the world, could lessen that fact.

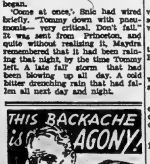
Kay Sheldon had died. But what was more important, far more important, was that the fourth, the latest Mrs. Wakefield Porter Ballinger had died. That, indeed, was news!

At breakfast, Gerda stayed very determinedly at the table, looking away from the topic that had filled all the papers for two days and had filled their minds for as long, too. She was gayly enthusiastic over her new advertising campaign, and outlined the series of illustrations she was to do. "Syd thinks and Bill Leland was going to write to accompany them.

"But you won't need to model for a few days at least, Infant," she added, as Maydra finished her coffee and reached for purse and gloves. "Not until you feel up to it!"

Maydra flung her a curiously grateful smile, and went on out, knowing full well that Gerda had done this especially for her. Because she was fond of her.

At Summers's everyone was strangely constrained, oddly silent when Maydra came in, quickly, put away her street things, and began her day. Often, through that long day, and the days to come, she would find someone's eyes fixed on her intently, curiously, and it annoyed her. Even Suzanne, for all her cool aloof poise was different. She was more concerned for her place more thoughtful and considerate, though before she had been everything that was kind and helpful, despite her position as owner and employer.



Kay's funeral was held Tuesday and the time from then to Friday night was uneventful, except for increased work at the shop, longer hours, and more sales for the new partner of Summers.

In Friday's paper, Maydra read of a spate of engagers leaving on the following Wednesday o'r South America, but no mention was given other than that the company included several recruits from prominent universities.

There was no word from Tommy since that Sunday night when she had done everything in her power to dissuade him from quitting college to go on this very dubious questionable quest for adventure and fortune. She would, now, thought briefly, after reading the item to make sure that his name was not listed among them, probably be very thankful.

Only, of course, he wasn't. She was to learn that, less than ten hours later. In fact, as soon as the early morning telegraph deliveries began.

"Come at once," Enid had wired briefly. "Tommy down with pneumonia— very critical. Don't fail." It was sent from Princeton, and quite without realizing it, Maydra remembered that it had been raining that night by the time Tommy had left. A late fall storm that had been blowing up all day. A cold bitter drenching rain that had fallen all next day and night.

Gerda, broke the silence quite deliberately. As she said afterward she had to do something quick, or else scream. There was food about Maydra's mouth, set, stupefaction that gave her the illusion.

"You're not going," Gerda stated flatly, "of course." And a few minutes later, when Maydra had said nothing to this, she went on, apparently, heard her at all. "He has probably had things before. Measles, mumps, bumped elbows and banged noses and black eyes. And he got over them."

Then sharply, lenacly: "You can't go, Maydra! Don't you see? You can't possibly go! It will mean throwing away Wake Ballinger's memory. It will mean handing back squarely on Sam Locke's fortune! It will mean . . . turning Suzanne against you. And Suzanne nothing forgets or forgives —you know that!"

Maydra looked at her then. A slow, curious sort of look it was. Mingled with pity and fear and confusion, it did something quite to Gerda's hardy heart. Gave it a peculiar, aching throb, though there were no tears in the wide violet eyes, no paroxysms of suffering or pain on the smooth, ivory-pale face.

"He has his people," Gerda went on doggedly. "His father and mother. And his friends. And his mates. He has the best doctors and nurses. And they wouldn't let you get to see him, even if you could go."

Maydra began dressing mechanically. It was late . . . almost time for work, and Gerda fried her coffee and handed it to her, still marshalling arguments and exhortations.

"If he's very seriously ill, you can't see him anyway, Maydra. And if he isn't, what's the point in wrecking everything you've struggled for, just on a whim of this mad, spoiled college boy?"

"I don't know, Gerda. You're very kind to bother with me, really. But I think I should go."

"Stop her, Suzanne!" she implored lamely. "You've got to stop her! If she does this mad thing, she loses everything!"

FILM TELLS STORY TO KIWANIS CLUB

Interesting Pictures Shown to Kiwanis at Their Luncheon

Moving pictures with sound afforded the Kiwanis members a most interesting program for their luncheon at the Queens Hotel. James Bell, representing the manufacturing firm, was the speaker for the occasion but allowed the film to tell the story, the speaker giving but a few introductory remarks. The speaker was introduced by Harold Seldon and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Fred Wright.

Albert Boynton presided at the luncheon and in opening the meeting expressed his sincere thanks to the committee in charge of the dance. "It was a wonderful success and everyone had a real good time and what more could be asked," said the president. The dance was also a financial success according to the treasurer of the club. Harold Seldon as chairman of program asked the members to inform him of any good speakers, that would appeal to the club. "It is hard to get speakers and apparently none of the members know of celebrities who are coming to the city for certain times, who would be available," said the chairman. The directory will take up the suggestion offered by Eddie Shapiro, that once a month, the meeting be turned over to the ladies for the holding of committee meetings. It was felt best time to get all of the members of the various committees out," said the speaker.

The film presented faithfully for their hockey match with the Americans and it is expected there will be some lame shoulders and hockey horses' sore legs after the game is played. The speaker of the day exhibited a film showing the installation of houses and the immediate effect of cutting down the fuel bill. The manufacture of the material was shown in detail after which it was shown how it was placed in the dwelling and the motion it created. The film was most interesting and instructive and many useful hints for the home owner.

WHEN HITLER SPEAKS

Readers remember how the cables carried a message about two weeks ago that the meeting of the German Reich set for a week ago last Sunday had been cancelled as it was felt to be inopportune. Now the time for a meeting of the Reich has been set — next Sunday, when Der Fuehrer Adolf Hitler will speak on the latest development in Europe, the acquiescence of Austria in his demands for closer union with Germany. The time for his speaking is now "opportune".

It is two years ago that Hitler staged one of the most impressive events in recent history, when he sent his troops into the Rhineland's west bank territory which had been demilitarized since 1918. This week's developments are the next great surprise or movement in Central European politics.

Hitler's latest coup leaves the chancelleries of Europe disturbed as a new scene opens, further developments of which leave doubt as to the situation. So perplexing is it that it is felt that on Sunday Hitler may clarify the public understanding.

Among the reactions of nations to the latest, is to be noted that U.S.S.R. is officially hailed in Italy but "why" is asked, because Italy has always been jealous of the fact that Germany has appeared to consider closer bonds as necessary with Austria, which is peopled by the South Germans.

Few could have forecast the new turn of affairs in which Germany is to consider Austria as her "German brother". And few can forecast the future as Hitler sees it. Conjectures are really idle, only political circles can have anything approaching comprehension of the immediate future.

STALIN'S ANNOUNCEMENT

What prompted Joseph Stalin, Russian dictator, to select the present time for announcement of firm adherence to the world revolution program according to Lenin, New York Times editor remarks that "if his appeal to the working classes of the bourgeois ever the head of their governments means anything it means an end of the United Front policy to which the Moscow regime has so ardently dedicated itself. In face of the Japanese threat, Stalin should not be going out of his way to irritate such important bourgeois nations as Great Britain, France and the United States. All the emphasis hitherto has been the other way. Communist apologists have tried hard to find a common interest between Soviet democracy and those older, better known and more easily recognizable democracies.

"One explanation of Stalin's sudden rediscovery of the world revolution might be China. The war news from that country is of the gravest. Chinese leaders make no secret of their fear that the present Japanese encircling movement may end in a huge Sedan for the Chinese forces. It may mean the collapse of Chinese resistance. With this dreaded possibility must be bracketed the recent reports stating that Soviet Russia and Shanghai reports stating that Soviet Russia has definitely refused to send help to the Chinese armies; at least help of any consequence. Sun Yat-Sen's son has been seeking assistance in Moscow and has been turned down.

"If, then, the collapse of Chinese resistance, which is now largely Chinese Communist resistance, should come to pass, with Soviet Russia standing idly by, the charge which Trotsky first flung against Stalin a dozen years ago may take on new life. Stalin will again be accused of having betrayed the Chinese revolution. He will have sold out the world revolution in the only country outside of Russia where it has ever had a chance. That is the question, or at least the doubt, which may have troubled the young Communist who wrote to Stalin. In reply the Soviet leader more exclaims his adherence to the doctrine of world revolution, but suggesting the argument from prudence and expediency. Stalin's endorsement of the world revolution will seem to his critics a case of words speaking louder than actions, but others may feel that for want of anything better a comforting word helps."

PATIENT HOUR

An interval of peace has winged
Across the dusk upon the hill,
And creeping river-mist is ringed
In pines that scent the season's chill.

Whether the path be over the down
Or winding vaguely through a field,
It waits for feet from the weary town
When twilight drops her purple shield.

The night is a door, and the country lures—
To-morrow hangs like a fluttering curtain....
Enter the silence of meadows and moors,
Where the hour is patient, and dreams are certain.

MAE WEST'S FAMOUS, OR INFAMOUS, BROADCAST, ON ADAM AND EVE is still reverberating. In its backwash came the discovery that Charlie McCarthy's stock in radio listener's favor leaped ten points after the broadcast. The jitters of the sponsor, of course, made quite a ripple on the radio stream, and Winchell reports that "over 300 letters from indignant listeners stated they would never again buy the coffee! ..... But the letters were addressed to another coffee firm." Another illustration of the fickleness of word-of-mouth advertising, the program so often dwarfs the product that the only things the listener remembers are the wisecracks.

SURE WE HAVE TO GO AWAY FROM HOME TO GET THE NEWS — sometimes. Here's a New York Winchellisma affecting Canada: "Some Hollywood people have been tipped that the BIGGEST GOLD STRIKE SINCE THE KLONDIKE is about to break on the Western side of Vancouver Island in British Columbia. The Canadian Government has control of the entire area and will attempt to regulate the filing of claims and the influx of gold-rushers. In fact, goes the legend, the Government has been trying to keep the strike under wraps for a year, but it has been slowly leaking out." Now Walter, we must straighten you up on a point or two sticking out of the above, most irritating to Canadian readers, rather, say, amusing. "The Canadian Government will attempt to regulate, etc." Now Walter, the Canadian Government WILL do all the needful regulating, as in the Yukon, Cobalt and Porcupine mining camps with no ifs and ands in the matter. Also, Walter, gold is where you find it, there is no keeping gold strikes under wraps, and gold news does not leak out, it gushes out, until it seems that strikes and rushes occurr simultaneously. All of which makes no matter but fills a hole in the column, and satisfies a perpetual appetite to show our Yankee Cousins how Canada can, and does preserve law and order even in the most remote mining camps.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CONANT SHOWS PROMISE of being as good a politician as he is a lawyer, judging by his recent activities. Recently he addressed the Women's Canadian Club of Toronto on Ontario's place in Canadian Confederation. The same week he entertained a party of leading lights of the provincial press at his home among those present being Percy Cole, who received his preliminary journalistic training in Belleville, before beginning to "cover the water front" with Commodore Jerry Snider of the Toronto Taly. Others there were irrepressible "Joe" G. Clark, of the Toronto Star, who teams up with those funny fellers Jimmy Freise and "Old Archie", as glean chasers. Musical interruptions, vocal and instrumental, by "Joe" Clark, Percy Cole and Ray Bishop, received Front Page attention, while that James lad from Bowmanville told how the Old Grey Mare won a Beefsteak and saved the farm, to the great delight of the city slickers present. Belleville was also represented musically by Reg. Geen, organist of the Simcoe Street church in Oshawa. Present members of the Legislature, members of the Toronto press, and the rural press in Toronto vicinity. It was intended to have a hockey match between teams representing the Oshawa press and members of the press gallery at Queens Park, Lionel Conacher being on hand to referee this game but it was cancelled on account of darkness or somepin—not individual darkness but a kind of collective ostigmatism which rendered the hockey sticks and pods invisible. Those that didn't have a good time, didn't come—so said all present.

TRICKS IN EVERY TRADE BUT OURS, said the three-cared monte man, and it begins to look as if there might be some slight semblance of truth in that saying. Alarmist rumor comes from Montreal that some gasoline stations have been short-measuring the customers. The charge is made by a rival concern and thus far has not been proven. Leaves a disturbing thought with all motorists who will watch their gas gauges more closely in future.

How Chambers of Commerce Promote Civic Improvement

James Cormack, Trade Commissioner, Addresses Directors' Luncheon

"The importance of Chambers of Commerce in the promotion of civic betterment and activity should be better known and recognized. Their influence is one of good for the community. Even in the matter of industry and export with which I am directly concerned they play a vital and important part."

This did James Cormack, Canadian Trade Commissioner for Australasia pay tribute to the work of these associated bodies in his remarks as guest speaker at the regular luncheon of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at noon yesterday.

Briefly and concisely in his impromptu, informal talk, Commissioner Cormack outlined the worth of exports shipped from this country during the past year and pointed out the leading position Canada has attained among the exporting countries.

Sales to Ireland

"During the past year Canada shipped and sold over fifteen millions of dollars worth of commodities and produce to Ireland alone. Gradually but surely she is building herself up among the world leaders of trade," he declared.

"Canadians, however, do not spend one dollar in Ireland for every five hundred dollars spent by the Irish in buying Canadian goods."

Cost of maintenance of his office of Commissioner amounted last year to but one-sixteenth of one per cent of total export cost from Canada last year, stated the speaker.

"I have been in office in Dublin there for the past five years, and each year, I am happy to say, has shown an increase over that of the year before. But it has meant considerable work keeping this up. Just how much work is easily recognized by no less a person than His Majesty, the King.

Meets King and Queen

"Last year I had the happy privilege of being presented to Their Majesties. They complimented me on my commissionership and stated that I must have a busy job. I hastily reverted to the ordinary slang of the day and just remembered whom I was addressing in time to keep myself from saying: 'You said a mouthful, Majesty.' But I just goes to show how seriously we take the job," remarked Mr. Cormack amid laughter.

"During my trip across Canada at present I have been the occasion to meet very many individuals and firms. I have found with them all, there seems to be a good feeling in the country as regards to business and considerable optimism exists in Belleville, through the use of the facilities of your Chamber of Commerce I have been able to get personal visit to his office in Dublin at any time was given by Mr. Cormack, who expressed himself also as glad to assist in securing any help or information needed.

Previous to the guest speaker's remarks, Mayor Jamieson Rose, Percy Kennessey, president of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association, Leo Hunter, chairman of the Town Forum Committee of the Chamber and Jos. Imlah, chairman of the membership committee and newly appointed director were introduced to the directors present. Brief reports were accepted on the progress of their various departments.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

WHAT IS ALLERGY?

A few years ago a physician didn't special work in allergy—sensitiveness to certain substances—used about 21 different substances in making the skin tests. Among these substances were ragweed, goldenrod, timothy hair, cats' fur, eggs, and whole wheat. Today he uses over 400 different substances and it is likely that in the days to come there will be many more found that cause hay fever, asthma, head colds, eczema, hives, stomach and intestinal upsets and other symptoms.

Now why should some individuals be oversensitive to ragweed and have hay fever regularly and the majority of the population escape this distressing ailment? Why also should one individual be sensitive to such nourishing foods as eggs, cats' fur, wheat and still others to oatmeal?

This sensitiveness (allergy) to various substances runs in families just as do tuberculosis, rheumatism and other ailments. It is now considered that almost two of every three sensitive children parents unable to eat wheat, and the grandchild unable to come in contact with goldenrod, feathers, or feathers, without having an attack of asthma, hay fever or eczema.

The point to remember is, of course, that not all sensitive individuals, although they have the "tendency" will not suffer with any of these allergic conditions, namely, asthma, and others—unless they eat these foods or breathe in these substances. Many drugs, soaps, and face powders are responsible for symptoms. There is always some definite substance causing symptoms and the substance or substances can usually be found if searched for long enough. This may mean, as mentioned above, a great many skin tests or other tests before the offending substances are found.

The tests are made by making tiny scratches on the skin—usually the forearm or thigh—and the substance in the form of a powder or paste is placed on the scratches.

By avoiding the foods or other substances causing the symptoms the individual would likewise avoid these symptoms. However as many of these substances must be eaten to sustain life or cannot be avoided because they are in the air and are breathed into the lungs, treatment is given by injecting minute amounts of offending substances under the skin.

In many cases the body forces gradually overcomes its sensitiveness to these substances.

Poems That Live

A DOUBTING HEART

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead,
Perchance up - some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas
They wait in June days,
The balmy southern breeze,
To bring them to their northern haunts once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears and sighs.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

The sun has hid its rays
These many days;
Will dreary hours never leave the earth?
O doubting heart!
The stormy clouds on high
Veil the bright sunny sky
That soon (for spring is nigh),
Shall wake the summer into golden mirth.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for the gloom past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

They were pictured when they visited the Irving centenary exhibition at London.

Every year this picturesque wedding ceremony takes place in St. Denis, a Paris suburb. The four most virtuous maidens in the town become brides and are embarked on the stream of marital happiness with a dowry provided especially for this purpose. A romantically-inclined resident of St. Denis left the money to be held in trust and to be doled out each year to the four girls who show, by their behavior, that they are the most deserving of the gift. MR. HUME'S DEATH SHOCK TO PEORIA

Peoria Distillery Will be Closed on Day of Funeral at Belleville

Newspapers of Peoria, Illinois, where the late William J. Hume was well known because of his association with the largest liquor plant in the world at that place as Hiram Walker, Gooderham-Worts Company presidency in the shock which the news of his death created in that city. He is spoken of as the "creator of a Canadian distilling empire" and his illness is said to have been caused by "the effects of strain imposed by organizing and administering the vast company and numerous subsidiaries in this country as well as Mexico and Canada." He had made the last of several trips to the Peoria plant last December and at that time envisioned larger-scale activities of the company in Peoria.

"Officials of the company were shocked by the cablegram that told of his death" said William R. Hall, a director of the company who prevailed upon Mr. Hume and Mr. Hatch to locate their American subsidiary's plant here at the end of prohibition:

"I know of no man with whom I have come in contact that bespeaks higher praise than Bill Hume.

"From the time Mr. Hatch, and myself made the verbal agreement to build in Peoria the largest distillery in the world, our relations have been without a cloud of argument. Everything they agreed to, without the scratch of a pen, has been fulfilled.

"Speaking as an individual and also for Mr. Hatch I say that Bill Hume was a friend of Peoria."

The plant here will be closed on the day of the funeral services at Belleville.

Advice to the Lovelorn

by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

In Love With Her Sister's Fiance Publicly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My sister, who is older than I am, has recently become engaged to the man I love. I have been led to believe that he returns my affection. However, there are two points which make it hard for me to clear up this situation. One is that as my mentor has been brave, it might be too great a shock to her if I break up my sister's first love affair, she is several years older than I am.

Still, this young man and I can see nothing beyond our love, and can't swallow the future when I am torn between the man I love and the happiness of my family.

Margaret

You say your sister has recently become engaged to the man you love. Without wishing to reflect on this man's stability of character it is difficult to see how he could become engaged recently to one sister while he happened to be in love with the other. If he had been engaged to your sister for a long time, and you suddenly flashed on the horizon, I could understand it better.

It is difficult to grasp the circumstances, in this day and age, as you describe them. If he's the super-sentimental type—the kind to faint at the sight of blood—he may have refused to "muddy"—who knows? for every girl, then you're well out of it.

I sincerely hope you'll let him alone and not take advantage of this weakness after he marries your sister. If he is genuinely in love with you and you with him, nothing could be more foolish in him than to go on with his engagement to your sister.

Don't Invite Trouble

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, but I feel and look as if I'm about 20. I am engaged to a young gentleman of 21. I say "gentleman" because he has always been nice to me. We love each other very much and want to marry. I have him so much that I would do anything for him.

But here is my problem. I will be unable to marry him for a few years due to peculiar circumstances. He is willing to wait, as he says, but I can't see him more than once or twice a week. And I know he stays home when he's not with me.

Do you think it is fair for me to hold him like this or should I tell him he's free? Another girl is bound to steal away his heart to have another girl for him. I will not do that, but I love him so much that I want him to have a good time.

Again

I think it would be very foolish for you to suggest to your fiance to get himself another girl because your engagement is likely to be prolonged for a few years. It would accepts those conditions and is will—of dishes.

Toothache That Puts One to Bed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SURPRISE usually is registered when headlines tell of famous public figures being confined to bed as a result of toothaches.

Yet dental science had reached its present stage, history was sprinkled of distinguished men of world famous personages as a consequence of infected teeth.

Dr. Clendening, noted author, associated with sprue, has a brother, the Dental Institute of America today, and at least three are not toothache at all. Or the latter, two are actually jawaches, one responding quickly to treatment and the other taking a longer period.

"The first," says the Institute, "a society of dental surgeons, is associated with pyorrheal abscesses with the cause external to the teeth. Gum tissues and bony support of the tooth become attached from the tooth. A "pocket" forms along the root, accumulating food debris which gives rise to infection. The tooth becomes loose and the 'swirling' force of chewing saves the remaining supporting tissues, or food may slip into the pocket and act like a splinter in the finger, setting up an inflammatory attack. Sometimes the quickest and surest relief and recovery is usually prompt.

"The second condition cited involves a dead tooth. The tooth is evidently dead nerve or with its nerve long removed. Infection at the root end has developed anew. This tooth may have been a chronic offender with a long period without symptoms increasing sufficiently sore to force attention, it is stated.

"On the day when the bodily vitality has been lowered the condition becomes acute, the pus swells and fever develops," says the Institute. "Then the patient is sick. The infection has invaded the bone beyond the root end. More pus is formed and the infection is being generated than the blood stream can carry away and an abscess is formed, necessitating skilful care by the attending physician.

"While the swelling grows worse, the dentists can administer only palliative measures. Despite severe symptoms increase, the disease invaders have the upper hand. Within a few days nature builds 'antibodies' in the blood stream, and against the patient pains the fever begins. But not until the 'antibodies' are sufficiently strong to overcome and tinue the fight.

"Thus we can see there can be a great difference in onset, severity and recovery between two cases of toothache that look alike to the average patient."

Chemically, water is composed of two parts of hydrogen to one part of oxygen. It may be broken down by passing a strong current of electric current through it.

EXERCISE IS ANSWER TO FAT TUMMY

By JULIET SHELBY
Central Press Writer on Beauty

WARM DAYS are not around the corner, so it's about time to get out the golf clubs and the tennis racquets and active spring sports will be going strong soon.

Those new skirts are about the most comfortable and smart sport costumes for these first days when a chill still is in the air. The sweaters this season are going to be worn over, with narrow belts. They look swell, and are really more practical since they accentuate a figure when you swing your arms. But beware of a fat little tummy. It will not be sure to stay there all the little ball will only accentuate it. So if you want to come from the winter with nothing to hide, now is the time to do something about it.

If that's your problem give this exercise a try. It will flatten the stomach and rules the spirits. Lie on your back with your arms at the sides, pull both knees straight back to your chest, kick your legs out in front of you and then raise your hips from the floor, and at the same time come up to a sitting-up position with your legs extended and your knees straight. Swing your head forward and your far you can reach. Then return to your first position and continue. Do this eight times.

Second Exercise

Next sit Turkish fashion, knees bent, hands up on your knees, and back crossed at the ankles. Pull your abdominal muscles in hard while rounding the back with your head and chest bent forward. Gradually straighten up, rocking slowly back on your buttock muscles and holding your abdominal muscles in until your head and neck are high and your back straight and shoulders relaxed. Repeat this 12 times.

This is the half-way mark, so rest a few minutes. Then lie flat on your back and pull both knees back to your chest. Clasp your hands around the knees and roll forward to a sitting position, the back straight and your shoulders and head held high and well back. Slump and roll back again. Five times is enough.

Now for the last heat. Lying flat on your back, extend your arms forward and your legs straight. Keeping your arms stretched forward, rise to a sitting-up position, about to sit in eight inches from the floor. Return to a lying down position.

Repeat this three times, then rest and do it six times more.

This may seem rather tough going the first few times, but hold out for that time when you'll get used to it this will certainly do the trick

EDUCATION WEEK IS OBSERVED AT FOXBORO SCHOOL

Interesting Program Followed by Pupils And Staff

Education Week was observed in Foxboro Public School, February 7th to 11th. During the week, a number of interested parents and friends gathered to view the various classes at their work, examination work, sewing, etc., done by the pupils.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Richard Smith, outlined his duties of the British Isles. This was of interest, especially to the older pupils who gained some valuable lessons in history and geography. Following this, was an address by Rev. Mr. J. W. MacDonald on "Success". He left with the pupils these three thoughts "Do your best, be courteous, and look for the bright side of things".

On Wednesday morning, Miss Hazel Smith, addressed the pupils on "The Foxboro of the Past". Miss Goswell held her little audience spellbound with her account of the growing and washing of the flax on the banks of the old factory, and the making of soap in grandmother's day, the mills and factories that gave grandfather's farm, and the making of homespun cloth. Much of this Miss Goswell was able to illustrate with utensils actually in use in the past.

In the afternoon, a great many parents and visitors attended and watched the teaching of the regular classes.

On Thursday afternoon, the senior class room was filled to capacity and the address delivered by Mr. E. G. Clarke, on "Pioneer Days in Foxboro". At the close of his address, Mr. R. A. Morton gave an impromptu talk on "Early School Days". Community singing was heartily enjoyed, especially by the pupils. Grade V, under the capable direction of their teacher, Miss M. Milligan sang a song "Long, long ago", Junior Grades presented a delightful Nursery Rhyme Songs. Mrs. Wanda Cole gave a demonstration of Nature Study, stressing the new activities which are calculated to stimulate the child interest in the marvelous development of his physical and intellectual powers. Mr. Morton asked the school to join with the home and church in the effort to guide the child in the formation of desirable attitudes, drawing attention to the fact that the value of our education is being moulded in the classrooms of today.

At the closing of the afternoon program, Miss Milligan called upon Mrs. Morton to give the prize awards. Mr. Morton highly complimented the pupils on the neatness of the fine display of work, mentioning especially the "Health Booklet Competition" as illustrated in the model before him which contained the best work of the entire class. Mrs. Morton then presented the various drawing prizes, after which she displayed a miniature spinning wheel, a loom, and a quilt, all hand made and greatly admired. An equally interesting display of work, especially in the junior room, where Foxboro village had been constructed by the pupils. About the room were a number of posters of other lands. Here, the Dutch displayed their quaint way in which the juniors are comparing Foxboro of the past with Foxboro the community with that of other lands.

Friday morning, school was opened by the singing of "Now the Day is Over" followed by an impromptu talk on Robert Bruce. He instilled into the young mind the desire to be high, to build well and thus develop a sturdy character manhood.

At three o'clock Friday afternoon, after watching the regular afternoon classes, the visitors assembled to the junior classroom where Mrs. S. G. Clay, a former teacher of this class, asked the adults to imagine themselves children again, while she lectured for them the life of Saint Valentine, concluding with two beautiful children's songs "What Kaily Did?" After a few valentines were exchanged by the pupils of the School Board and Mr. S. C. Gay, the teachers thanked all those who had so whole-heartedly co-operated with them by their attendance and the interest evinced, thus making the week's activities a success.

Fiend For Fresh Air Often Pest

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOR WHAT it is worth and inviting comment from my readers, I print the following letter from a correspondent:

"You're talking about colds. I seize this opportunity to weep into your vest pocket about my pet aversion—the fresh air fiend.

"In the office, on the bus, in the restaurant, he insists upon suddenly throwing open a window just as I am beginning to enjoy the caress of warmth about my back, and next thing I know I'm chilled, sneezing, blowing my nose and wiping my eyes. And I'm not the only one.

"If only he could keep his itching fingers off that window! But no—he is 'protecting' me. Thanks to his protection, I have to suffer nine to fourteen days of misery.

"Will you kindly tell such birds they are not protecting anybody, but actually are exposing everybody?

"But the air is so stale,' the fiend smirks. Now I don't believe stale air ever killed anybody; but I do know that cold air, improperly applied, has let in the germs of untold thousands.

"The fresh air fiend opens the window on a roomful of quiet, hard-working people, or on a bustful of passengers. They all start coughing and sneezing. Tell me—how much good is the air now? It is now full of cough germs, wherever before it was only 'stale'. Is there a grain? Maybe there is; I'm not arguing. I'm just asking, you know.

Doctor Was Wrong

It is possible we think too much about our health and even too much of what doctors say about it. Maude in the old days in Oneida, in upper New York state, a man was reported in 1802 as a Civil war recruit because the doctor thought he was too old. He died the other day near the age of 100.

Father Objects to Daughter Having Boy Friend, So She Sneaks Out to See Him

By VIRGINIA LEE

HOW DESPERATELY in earnest in their love affairs are some of our adolescents.

"If it weren't for HIM I wouldn't be living now, and if it weren't for ME he wouldn't now be far away," writes a 17-year-old girl.

This girl, B. R., is not allowed to have boy friends. She could get her mother's consent, but not her dad's, so she sneaks out to go with this boy with whom she is in love. That is what seems so stupid and short-sighted in parents. They think that if they forbid their youngsters to have anything to do with members of the opposite sex they are keeping them safe. Nothing is less true. A parent who has the ordinary duties of life to perform can check on the movements of a lively adolescent all the time. So one of two things happens. If the child is docile, it has been trained to absolute obedience or is inclined to rebel, be or take steps out on the sly—which I am sure any parent will agree is much more harmful in every way than if they had the parental consent and went openly with those to whom their parents approved.

If this doesn't happen, the young person minds Pa and Ma and too often left out of the fun of other young folk of her age and develops an inferiority complex, is unable later to make friends or to adjust herself, and is rebellious of her lot and thoroughly unhappy. Worse still, the unhappiness may influence her whole life.

Now how much better it is, when children come to the age when Mother Nature provides them with being interested in each other, to permit them to go out occasionally, with the limitations on the number and the lateness of the hours, and only with parental approval.

The mother and father who welcome their children's young friends to the home, get to know them and take a real interest there is nothing evil in their intentions, not only are wise and retain their youngsters' confidence, but they get a lot of fun out of the companionship with the group.

"My girl friend wouldn't even look at a fellow and my mother wishes I was more like her," writes B. R.

"My boy friend is always coming me to ask my father if I can go some place with him but since I have been caught out by father doesn't trust me nor believe anything I say.

"When my boy friend and I go out we always have another couple with us or one of my girl friends. We very seldom go out by ourselves. Therefore, we don't do anything we shouldn't nor do any place we shouldn't."

She has tried to break off with the boy, she says, but both were miserable, and a week of separation was all either could stand.

I wish your father could read this article, B. R., and I wish I could talk to him. If he doesn't and as I can't, I think the boy friend should talk to him, man to man, and try to persuade him that he is a person who can be trusted and that you should be allowed to have him come to your home and take you out occasionally.

BEES buy friend takes their friendship very seriously and wants her to go with "steady". See, however, doesn't like him well enough to do this, although she admired him immensely. However, as he likes her so well, she hasn't gone with any other boy since she told him she would not go with him alone, for fear of hurting his feelings. Do you think she should go out with other boys?

Well, if you are not going steady with him you have a right to accept other boys' invitations. See. You are going steady with him now, you know, so you refuse other invitations. If you really don't want to go steady it would really be kinder to show him you don't care enough by going out with other boys, wouldn't it? As you now are doing he will keep hoping that you like him as he likes you.

HEARTBROKEN B. S. J.: printed part of your letter and answered you some time ago. You probably will have seen the answer before you read this. Managing Child Who Dawdles

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

"DEAR DR. MYERS: I am writing this letter, thanking you for the help I have received from your articles, especially on the problem of nagging and scolding.

"I have three youngsters ages six, eight and nine, that I have to get off to school each morning. I used to find myself worn out by the time they left the house, from scolding and nagging for them to hurry and get dressed, washed, eat their breakfast, clean teeth, pick up their clothes and get off to school by 8:30.

"I have prepared a chart for each child, with a list of the different duties they must do before leaving for school. Each day that they have accomplished their duty well they receive a mark. At the end of the week if they have a perfect record they receive a gold star. They resented the idea of 'No arguing,' which they do plenty of, so we omitted that from our list and instead used two gold stars which stand for 'Good Behavior.' You can believe me, they are very proud of their charts and days they are always anxious to show their daddy, when he comes in at night, the credit they have earned.

"This is teaching them to help themselves with a sense of responsibility all of their own. Say nothing of the confusion it saves and relief it gives me."

Stars Better Than Stripes

This mother has demonstrated that stars may be more powerful than stripes. Her plan has wide application and great possibilities. Any definite plan which cultivates responsibility in the children and relieves the parents' nerves and energy would seem to be a needy.

Not all mothers might be so successful with stars as this mother was; nor will all be so able to discipline themselves. Neither will all children respond to stars.

When the child is taken to school by the mother or maid takes him, the time of going being definite, the child knows when he must be ready or he will be left. If he is, let him sit doing nothing for a few hours with his mother, as punishment for normal fun during the day. Let him take the consequences. If the school does not make them adequate punishment them yourself, but not with your speech or emotions.

I discuss this problem quite at length in "Helping Our Children Succeed at School," twelve letters to parents, all of which may be had at cost by sending 15 cents to the Health and Parent Education Service, 2535 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O.

Older Women Seem to Attract the Boys, According to Letters to This Column

By VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT IS the matter with the boys? They are all falling in love with older women.

Yesterday I had a puzzled letter from a fifty-year-old widow whose best friend was 14 years her junior. Today I have written a personal letter to a boy who is in love with a married woman 11 years his senior.

Maybe it's the girls' fault. I get letters from girls saying they love older men and boys of their own age seem very silly to them. So apparently the boys feel the same way about the girls. Young and pig-tailed girls are too immature and frivolous to be one of many second loves in the hearts of mature serious minds.

That is not a new reaction.. Most of the men in my family have married women from two to six years their elders. In fact, age doesn't seem to count when a man and a maid meet and decide that they are just "meant for each other".

Nature plays a mean trick on young people at the mating age. The very fact that they wish to attract each other makes them tense, self-conscious and not at all themselves. They try to be attractive and succeed in only impressing the boys that they are silly and self-conscious.

Boys try to put their best feet foremost and give the maidens the idea that they are "smarties".

"It is all very sad, but as a matter of fact they all seem to get acquainted, attracted and mated in time, so we needn't worry too much about it.

The girls and boys themselves, do agonize over it to a considerable extent, however, I know, from talking with them.

Poor mothers, poor daughters! Loving each other dearly, it is just too sad the distance they grow apart and how they misunderstand each other. There is a girl who writes me about her mother's nagging. Mothers says daughter nags. Daughter thinks she gets into out very little and that her mother should be pleased to have her have a good time. She says her mother must be jealous of her because her (mothers's) best days are over". "Mothers are supposed to be their daughters' best friend," says the girl, "but mine certainly isn't."

Mothers and fathers usually are keen to have their daughters popular, and yet they can't help worrying a bit about them and scolding when they stay out late or go too much.

When the children are small and "under foot", mothers and fathers often look at each other with astonishment at the noise and confusion and heave large sighs of relief when the kids are in bed. When they grow older they worry, as I have said, about late hours, choice of friends, etc. But when the children have left home for those of their own, how lonely are father and mother—always referring to the days when they had a "real home". Queer, these parents and children relations!

P. S. C.: I do not see how your wife can expect you to support her if she refuses to live where your work takes you and make a home for you. On the other hand, I would think from your letter that she is right and that you have a life long. While it would, perhaps, be wise for her to come to you and let you send her to a hospital, she would be among strangers, you know, and might be very lonely and homesick.

I hardly feel I can advise you not knowing her side of the story or more about the whole matter. Why not keep on trying to show her what a good, kind, considerate husband you are? You will never be sorry. And if, after a long time, you are convinced she never will come back to you, why then you can consider divorce, if you wish. I am sorry for your unhappiness.

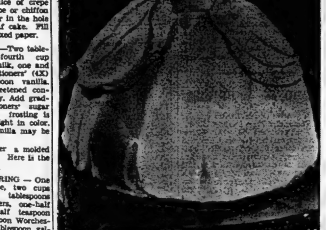
WORRIED: No, you have not been "intimate" in the accepted sense of the word. And you have done nothing that would call for a confession to the man you marry.

What to Serve for Party On Husband's Birthday

Colonial Lady, Cherry Tarts and Cheese Ring Will Please Him and Also the Guests

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

ARE YOU entertaining soon for your husband's birthday? Or maybe you have an intimate friend for whom you wish to "sling a party".



If the party is for a bachelor friend for his first party to the ladies, it is fitting to use a colonial theme to observe in a party celebrating his birthday. She is sure to be a social success if you follow the suggestions for making the frosting dress. Dress a little doll from a short-sleeved bodice of crepe paper with a bit of lace or chiffon for a fichu, and set her in the hole in the centre of the cake. Fill in any crevices with waxed paper.

MAGIC FROSTING—Two tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup unsweetened condensed milk, one and one-half cups confectioners' (XX) sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and sweetened condensed milk thoroughly. Add gradually sifted confectioners' sugar and beat until the frosting is smooth, creamy and light in color. Other flavors than vanilla may be used if you prefer.

For a buffet supper a molded cheese ring is nice. Here is the recipe for it:

MOLDED CHEESE RING — One package cream cheese, two cups cottage cheese, two tablespoons chopped green peppers, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon onion, one-half teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, one tablespoon grated olive, two tablespoons grated cucumber. Soak gelatine in cold water for ten minutes and dissolve over hot water. Mash cheese and blend with seasonings, olives and green pepper. Add dissolved gelatin and pour in ring mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Set in refrigerator to congeal. Unmold on platter and fill centre with mixed vegetables or chicken or tuna fish salad. Garnish as desired and serve with mayonnaise. This serves six to eight persons.

CHERRY TIP - TOP DESSERT—Ingredients—Two cups sour pitted cherries (one No. 2 can), two-thirds cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, tart. Heat the eggs until light yellow and creamy. Add the sugar and continue beating. Sift the flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt together and add to the egg mixture. Mix well and then add the milk and lemon extract. Pour over the cherries in the baking dish and bake until cake is light brown and springs back when touched. Bake to 350 F.

Three-Piece Tweed Suits Bloom With Spring Posies

By LISBETH

THE THREE-PIECE suit in tweed or other smart woolen always blooms with the flowers in the spring, tra la!

It is good for all winter, but in the early spring or when the winter is especially noted in the shops and costume houses.

There is a good reason for this, for in the north the air is cold for a long time after spring is officially declared here, and a topcoat to be worn over the jacket and skirt is very welcome.

The one pictured here and worn by Helen Jepson, Ohio girl who has made good with the Metropolitan Opera company and on the concert stage, is in rough tweed. Skirt and jacket are plain, but the latter is neatly belted. The top coat is collared and cuffed in fox fur.

Miss Jepson is shortly making her debut as a motion picture actress, joining the ranks of other opera stars who are successes in this field of endeavor—Lily Pons, Gladys Swarthout and Grace Moore, for instance.

Style Whimsies

Frocks in pastel colors, for wear under fur coats at the present time, are in accordance with the milady's wardrobe.

For wear under black Persian lamb swaggers, beige, cloud blue, rose quartz, and hyacinth. For brown fur coats—pale blue, foam green, wheat and amber.

New stocking colors to make harmonious ensembles with the spring shoes are "perlaine" an iridescent copper, of sunny red undertone shade. Then also is "parthieu", a navy that is perfect with navy costumes. A third shade is "partroupe", a wine shade, exactly the color of leather in shoes.

Casserole With a Salad, Dessert to Finish Meal

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

"Tilloe" Cabbage and Apple Salad
Apple Pie Cheese
Tea or Coffee

The person who submitted this casserole dish says she doesn't know what the odd name means, but the dish is a favorite in her family for generations. It is a "swell" one-dish meal, needing only a salad and dessert to complete it.

Today's Recipes

"TILITOE"— Brown a piece of steak, or of sirloin steak for the family, in a little fat. Butter may be used, but a little of the fat from the beef is preferable. Remove steak and make about two cups of thick gravy in the gravy in the pan. Into a casserole alice a layer of onions, one of potatoes, and top with one of potatoes, all raw and sliced thin. Pour the gravy on top of vegetables and pour gravy over all. Gravy should reach top of steak. Bake in slow oven about two hours, covering if steak gets too dry. Since long cooking is essential, cheaper cuts can be used. Round steak is especially good, and flank steak serves nicely.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Putty Shade Good for Walls

Putty color is increasing in popularity as a wall color in a painted room. It makes an ideal background for pictures and draperies because it is neutral. Also, it will work in harmoniously with any color scheme in upholsteries and floor coloring. Flat finishes are preferred to glossy, this season.

Add Nutmeg

Add one-fourth teaspoon of nutmeg to a cup of vegetable white sauce and use for covering cooked rice, turnips, cabbage, onions or cauliflower. It will make a pleasing flavor contrast.

Bacon Gives Flavor

One-fourth cup cooked crisp bacon added to corn sticks or bread batter when baked gives a delicious flavor which goes well with a breakfast or luncheon main dish.

Dusters-De Gay

Why dust with drab looking rags when you can use cloths in pretty colors? Some stores sell a set of ten nice-sized dusters in a package which makes dusting a pleasure instead of drudgery.

If you cannot find them, you can make them yourself of soft material. A set of these in a pretty bag would make a nice bridal shower gift. They may be chemically treated so that they are absorbent, and several colors can be used.

Treat Mixer Kindly

If you have a choice food mixer that you treasure highly, don't impair its efficiency by giving it too heavy work to do.

Don't risk or expose your porcelain or glass bowl to any sudden change in temperature. Don't immerse the motor casing in water, but just use a damp cloth to clean it. Remember to use a rubber scraper to mix down the batters, as ordinary spoons can get caught in the beaters and do damage.

And if, after a long time, you are convinced she never will come back to you, why then you can consider divorce, if You wish. I am sorry for your unhappiness.

WORRIED: No, you have not been "intimate" in the accepted sense of the word. And you have done nothing that would call for a confession to the man you marry.

For Summer Gardens

Sun umbrellas were shown in many shapes at the recent furniture showings held in Chicago. The most unusual was a double decker "air conditioned" type which made use of bugsy fringe as decoration.

There was the Italian Sclassa umbrella, the French merry-go-round, carnival, circus type, and square umbrellas, all unique and often amusing decorations.

Belleville Redmen Earn Draw With Queens Seconds in First Of Intermediate 'A' Playoffs

Score is 3-3 With Locals Being Ahead Until Last Period

POORLY ATTENDED

Donnihee Scores Two in Last Period After Gang-ing Attacks

A last period ganging attack netted Queen's University Seconds two goals and a 3-3 tie with Belleville Redmen in the first game of the Intermediate "A" playoffs for group 2 honors at the Jock Harty arena in Kingston last night, the period scores being 1-0, 2-1, 3-3. The second game will be played in Belleville tonight on the ice there next and the winner of this game will continue in the race for the finals. Queen's The Redmen had the best of the play for two periods and enjoyed a comfortable lead for "Fat" Walsh, mentor of the Queens' squad sent every man up and their ganging plays, coupled with smart passing and perfect blocking of players enabled the Students to count twice. Practically the entire game was in Belleville end of play to the Tricolor's end on the night's play and Belleville's defence team but they have not won the round yet and Tuesday night's tussle should be a wow.

Layoff Hurt

The long layoff by the Redmen did not do them any good and they only really clicked the way through the pastime. On other meetings between these two teams the Redmen were able to outskate the locals but this was not the case last night, the Redmen matching them stride for stride and backchecking much better than usual with the result that Hinton had plenty of protection and tended a steady game, the three that beat him being clearly scores. Belleville missed some beautiful scoring chances, being over anxious when inside or their shooting being off the mark. The team was reinforced with the addition of Norm Johnson and Peter McElrath teaming with Storms on the second line and this gave more balance to the team. Both the newcomers played well. McElrath scoring the first goal of the game on a nice passing play with Storms.

Donnihee Gets Two

As in the last meeting of these two clubs, Donnihee, frail but speedy and smart centre player of the Students, was the standout of the pastime from a Tricolor viewpoint, his two goals in the last period being well executed. For the Redmen, Fred Bentley, defenceman, played his best game of the year and was easily the best man on the ice. He led rush after rush, blocked well in his position and was rewarded for his hard work by the only goal he got of the pastime. The Jackson boys checked well, Clayton getting a marker but Wilson was not as effective as in other games. Murphy and Bentley both played a busy night and was decaly beaten on three occasions when lucky to save two or three others. Murphy and Bentley both played steady minutes, McCrory the extra defenceman being unable to accomplish the same and both turned in three star efforts, blocking well and making many rushes into opposing territory. For Queen's, Campbell, McLean and Holland looked best with Truman leading the defencemen thrown over the boards by Sherney Schriner in the third. But all his work was evened up by the determined play of Ross scored through Earl Seibert and Jack Shill before Gottselig clicked for the tieing goal.

The deadlock extended the third place American Legion lead over Napanee to nine points. The Montreals have only 13 games in which to catch up.

Whether Johnnie Lalonde will get into tonight's game or not only remains to be seen at game time. The 'big defenceman' received the attentions of an expert bone and muscle doctor last night, but his shoulder is still in bad condition, the ligament in the joint of the shoulder being affected. Lalonde assured us personally, however, he would endeavour to dress for tonight's game providing he was afforded adequate shoulder strapping, which are hoped to hold his injured flipper in position. 'I'm not anticipating actually starting the game, but if my shoulder swerves to the treatments, I'll give it a try as a relief player" stated the big rangy lad. Incidentally, and despite the fact we expect to see a large turnout tonight, the boys who have paid the freight all season did not take the current boost in admission any too amicably. They're really unhappy about the whole thing. Ever since Doug Brennan, former New York Rangers joined the ranks of the Bees, they have played steadier hockey. To Brennan we give much of the credit for the Pets' recent showing. He has undoubtedly steadied a previously erratic squad. The chips are down tonight, however, and much depends on the outcome of the initial frame.

Leading throughout, the Belleville Redmen player Queen's to a 1-2 draw for their initial game of their play-off last evening. Eddie Thomas' gang forged to the two goal lead in the first opening two periods and were leading 2 to 1 as the last stanza opened. "Fat" Walsh, moved five forwards in a last ditch effort to stave off defeat and the ganging act proved prolific, but the Redmen returned home on an even keel, which should prove most interesting in the return game on Tuesday. Skipper Thomas added "Stevie" McElrath and Norm Johnson to his roster, two signed lads from the Trenton loop. They added strength to the locals' shooted line. The pastime was one of the cleanest and fastest games of the current season, despite the fact there was little or no crowd at hand, as is usually the case insofar as O.H.A. hockey is concerned in Kingston.

The Redmen prayed really superb hockey and if Queen's don't come from behind to knot the count, actually mean little, as each counted on the round. We understand Fred Bentley was a standout, playing his best game of the season. Now the Redmen move into their home grounds for the last and final game of the round, here on Tuesday next. The winner must be decided in the next game, so the fans have something to really look forward to. The Redmen played head-up hockey last night and a repitition should mean victory.

"There was revelry by night," at the arena last evening when Kiwanis and Kinsmen clashed in a friendly service club hockey game, that provided more amusement and laughter for the onlookers than, perhaps the actual participants themselves. We imagine there will be unwonted business men hobbling to their daily labours today, following the match, so if you happen to see the odd person being conveyed in a wheeled chair, think nothing of it—it's either a Kinsmen or Kiwanian suffering from the results of the match. The money went to the Kinsmen chalmed a 5 to 1 victory, but both sides declared Referee "Toots" Delvaye in no way assisted their meagre ability. Although Eddie Shapiro practically stole the night's picture by appearing in the Kiwanis' nets attired in rugby helmet, baseball mask and all protection available, Alderman Eddie Legge accused us to urge every interested rugby football player to attend the sports night dickard this Tuesday as scored by the local football squad. Kinsmen and the school will be announced later.

Rangers' Clever Sparring And Careful Strategy no Help As Bruins Win in Overtime

Score is 3-2 With Dit Clapper in Hero Role

LEAFS WIN

Increase Margin by Two Points by Defeating Maroons

A good boxer usually beats a good puncher in the ring but the rule doesn't hold true in hockey. On the ice the punch that counts is the one in the pitch and Boston Bruins have packed enough solid blows so far this season to repel the artful New York Rangers.

The pounding Bruins held a five-point lead over Rangers at the top of the National League's American division today, despite the Rangers' clever sparring and careful strategy. The Bears struck twice in overtime last night for a 3-2 victory in New York over the club they are favored to face in Stanley Cup finals.

Rangers may reverse the result when the teams collide again at Boston Sunday, but for the present Bruins are safe in front and with 11 games to play seem destined to finish the schedule there. In six games with Rangers this season each has won three times.

As Bruins extend their margin, Toronto Maple Leafs loomed larger as their probable opponents in league finals and the first round of the cup playoffs. The Leafs won 2-1 over Maroons in Montreal to all but deaden the home team's chance of reaching a playoff berth. Chicago Black Hawks strengthened their hold on the third and last playoff place in the other section with a 3-2 tie against Americans that left them four points up on the trailing Detroit Red Wings.

Regis (Pep) Kelly, who came back to the Leafs this season after a winter with Chicago, scored Toronto's winning goal in the last five minutes. Johnny Gottselig was Chicago's hero, levelling the score against Americans, when only 11 seconds remained in the third period.

But the spotlight fell on the crucial test in Madison Square Garden, jammed with the season's largest crowd, 16,001 fans. It was another trial of Lester Patrick's system of smooth passing against the Bruin policy of setting up a rock-ribbed defence and striking hooky, when the breaks appear.

Dit Clapper is Here

Old Dit Clapper sank the winning goal in the extra period after Milt Schmidt scored for Bruins in the second and Gordon Pettinger gave them a 2-1 lead as the contest began. Bryan Hextall came through with Rangers' second goal as the contest ended but that only served to establish the importance of Clapper's drive.

Schmidt's early thrust was matched by Mac Colville's in the third. When the teams began the extra session it seemed Pettinger was bound to be the star as he combined with Leroy Goldsworthy to make it 3-1. But the laurels were switched to Clapper's head after he broke away with Schmidt and Porky Dumart and Hextall harnessed the margin in the last seconds.

The Montreal affair was far from typical of Leaf-Maroon combats. It was unattractive enough that only about 4,000 fans turned out and Manager Conny Smythe, Hap Kampman and Murray Armstrong of the Leafs stayed home.

There wasn't a goal or a penalty until the third period. Then Gordon Drillon, the Leafs's leading scorer, dashed in to sink a pass from his regular mate, Syl Apps. Penalty to Bob Davidson gave Maroons an opening that produced a goal by Jimmy Ward and set the stage for Kelly's winning shot. He sprinted in from the wing to bat the puck home as Nick Metz's shot bounded from Goalie Bill Beveridge's chest.

Joe Jerwa was determined but few on Jerwa's behalf at Chicago. He assisted in all his team's goals, the first by Johnny Sorrell in the opening session, the second by Nels Stewart in the second and the last by Sherney Schriner in the third. But all his work was evened up by the determined play of Ross scored through Earl Seibert and Jack Shill before Gottselig clicked for the tieing goal.

The deadlock extended the third place American Legion lead over Napanee to nine points. The Montreals have only 13 games in which to catch up.

Rangers Defeat Germans In Hockey Tourney

U. S. BEATEN

Czechoslovakian Win is Surprise Upset of Tourney

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18.—(CP)—"Goal a Game" Pearcey Allan is playing a leading part as Canada's representatives in the world's amateur hockey championship continue undefeated.

In Canada's four games to date Allan has scored five times, rallied twice against Sweden and once each against Austria and Czechoslovakia in the first round.

Yesterday as the second round opened the Toronto forward scored as Canada defeated Germany 3-2 in overtime.

The feat of the Germans in forcing the Canadians, playing as the Sudbury Wolves, into overtime—and all but defeating them in the regular 60 minutes—shared the Czechoslovakian 5-0 defeat of the United States as the surprise of the day's play.

Sweden's 1-0 victory over Poland also was unexpected. Poland went through the first round with three wins and one loss in four games while the best Sweden could do was two draws and one win in three games.

Spirit of Montagu Norman

You have the word of the Governor himself, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, that "I am not here." AT THE BELLE

"Love and Hisses"

Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie those famous feudists who put some hits thatr pass into history, are for the greatest return match in history in "Love and Hisses" coming to the Belle Tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday matinee daily. This time the reason for all the barbed wit is the fight over their new, new Latin-loved Paris, the saucy and vivacious Simone Simon, who sings operatic arias and popular ballads for the greatest surprise of the year.

This new-look musical show from hit-making Twentieth Century-Fox features a great-laugh, a second cast, including Bert Lahr, Joan Davis, popular comedienne Dick Baldwin, the Raymond Scott quintet, Ruth Terry, Douglas Fowley and Chick Chandler.

Brand new hot - and - blazing songs by Gordon and Revel head the musical score, with additional hit parade leaders by Mack and Mitchell, Raymond Scott, and Zeno and Irwin.

Darryl F. Zanuck, maker of the screen's largest hit shows, was in charge of production and Harry Lanfield directed. Lanfield also directed "Sing You Sinners," "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," "Oomph in a Million," and "Wake Up and Live."

The result is laughs and kisses, music and kisses, and a show that's got "smack" in the nose requirement for musical comedies.

The punning maxims of "Wake Up and Live" get all excited over the talents of the Ritz Brothers, imported from Paris, played by Simone. Bernie and "Old Maestro" discovers her first, and sets Winchell to help put her over by a "plug" in his column. Because she is Bernie's protege Winchell refuses even to listen to Simone, so the band leader concocts a plot.

The conspiracy works and Winchell's enthusiastic column brings hundreds of newspapers, bringing fame to the Parisian song stress. Winchell doesn't know that she is Bernie's discovery until shortly before the "maestro's new club is to open when Simone reveals her identity and expedes back to the columnist.

Complications thereupon ayears revenge on big favorite enemy and the laugh-filled climax provides the most hilarious idea in vengeance since happy endings were invented.

Woven into the continuity are bright musical numbers featuring specialty numbers by the Peters sisters, Chilton and Thomas and the Brewster twins.

The second subject, "Britain's Gambling Fever" investigates a bet and the odds 14,000,000 to 1; but Englishmen are spending $1,000,000 million dollars a year on their new kind of gambling, even though the government puts local organizations are trying to defend the fabulous resources of this latest and richest of her outposts.

The Belle World News ..... and Sports in "Hunting Change My Altitude" will be exhibited on he same program, the latest in airplane a new and thrilling adventure of the "Sky Devil" serial chapter play will be exhibited.

B. C. I. V. S. SPORTS

Keen competition marked four basketball games in inter-form history played at the Arena yesterday afternoon, decisions being arrived at after torrid struggles in all contests.

Tied one-all in the initial frame Form IB scored in the second half to nose out Form 2C 2 to one. Sam Hall notched both goals for the form winners, while L. Peets registered the loser's lone tally. The game was the first ever played between the two shocking throughout.

The final game of the quartette saw the largest score mounted as Form 3C triumphed over Form 2TB by 11 goals to 2. Ken Allin, the winner's nets, showed some fine efforts, but was given equally as good support defensively. "Bon" Gerow helped keep the winner's goal line cleared in the second half, but was relieved by the losers.

The initial game of the afternoon resulted in a one to nothing victory for Form 2A over Form 2D in a close checking game. Ken Allin scored the only goal of the tussle in the second half. Form Mills early in the first half. The teams battled scoreless from that point.

The remaining match saw Form 2TI triumph over Form 3 Commercial by a 2 to 1 count in about the tidiest battle of the night. Dick Hawley scored the winning goal for Form 2TI in the initial frame, while Ken Weller bagged the loser's lone tally in the second half. Dick Mollard in the same stanza. The teams battled at every turns throughout the entire second half.

Form 3A was exceptionally good condition and resulted in a series of good games being played. The entire team showed to good advantage by the B.C.I. & V.S., are meeting the honour and fill a goodly gallery from the student body on hand to encourage their favourites each game. Yesterday's games were refereed by Pete Everett.

NEW INDIAN CRISIS THREATENS BRITAIN

Resignation of Nationalist premiers of three British Indian provinces and expected resignation of four others in sympathy with demands for complete amnesty to political prisoners, may precipitate a new crisis between the British and Nationalist India. All-India Nationalist Congress headed by Gandhi's successor, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru (RIGHT), Viceroy Lord Linlithgow (lower LEFT), declined to intervene in the dispute which arose when provincial governors refused to grant the amnesty demanded by Nationalists. The map shows how India's states are divided. The area in red is being governed by native rules. Should Nehru make good his threat to order resignation of all Nationalist party premiers, the crisis would become India-wide.

Bennett Gives Opinion

Conservative leader Bennett said the whole question was whether traffic violations should be made criminal offences. He believed they should.

Young children up to 16 or 18 were not strong enough to handle cars on the highway, Mr. Bennett said. To allow them to drive was carelessness on the part of those charged with responsibility.

Licences were not suspended in Canada, continued Mr. Bennett. The law in this respect should be universal and not left to the provinces. In England, for instance, licences had been cancelled for life in extreme cases. The code was an ideal means of making it a crime to endanger human life on the highways. That, he said, was the real purpose of the bill.

The time had come in Canada for parliament to say it was a crime to endanger life or safety on the highways, Mr. Bennett said. He would not be prepared to suspend for life in extreme cases "because that is the only way my life can be spared and I think we should be personal and selfish about this."

Prairie Laws Needed

There should be drastic laws against drunk drivers, Mr. Bennett said, because of the relation of alcohol to accidents. A few penitentiary terms to drunk drivers would have a deterrent effect on others.

Statistics showed that most accidents were caused by alcohol, Mr. Bennett stated. There was a difficulty about deterring drunkenness but stiff penalties would be effective.

It was difficult to get jury convictions in manslaughter cases, Mr. Bennett said, but it should not be so difficult on charges of culpable negligence.

To confiscate a car which had killed a man would impress people with the gravity of the crime and make it abundantly clear Canada was determined to stamp it out, said Mr. Bennett. It might also be a cheap way of equipping police forces with cars, he added with a smile.

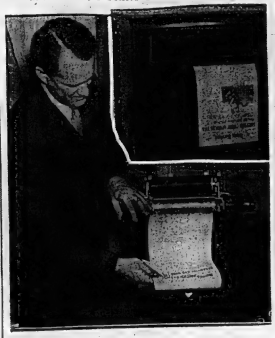
HITLER'S AUSTRIAN COUP WEAKENS BERLIN-ROME AXIS



Chancellor Adolf Hitler's dramatic coup, which placed five Nazi sympathizers in Austria's cabinet by a threat of military action, moved Germany a long stride toward the complete union with the neighboring nation which is Der Fuehrer's dream. Diplomatic observers believe that it also delivered a stunning blow to the Italo-Reich axis although Premier Mussolini, after telephone conversations in which he reportedly advised Chancellor Schuschnigg, of Austria, to yield to the German demands, denied that Italian troops were being massed across the vital Brenner Pass on the Austro-Italian frontier. Schuschnigg's complete capitulation to the Nazi ultimatum which was backed up by army divisions at border points, has upset the fine balance of power in mid-Europe and weakened the Little Entente dominated by France. At right Il Duce and Chancellor Schuschnigg are pictured during a visit of the Austrian chancellor to Venice, Italy. Hitler is at top. The map shows the relative positions of the three most closely interested nations and position of the Brenner Pass. It is recalled that once before, when Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated, Mussolini moved troops to the frontier as a direct warning to Germany not to seek domination of Austria. His failure to play a similar part in the present coup has been considered a sign of weakness in Paris and London.

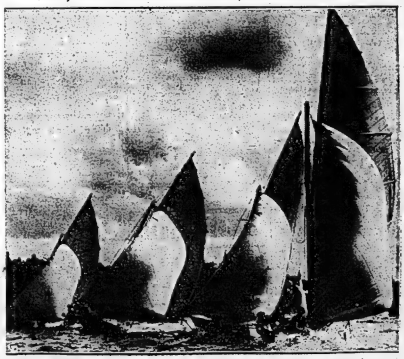
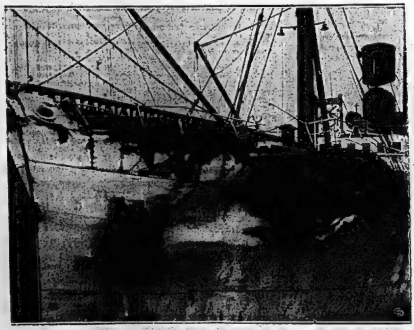
FINAL TESTS FOR TRANSATLANTIC "PAPOOSE" AEROPLANE SUCCESSFUL

The Short-Mayo "pickaback" aeroplane, Britain's novel aircraft designed for transatlantic use pictured shortly after it took off from the water near Rochester, Eng., on a test flight in which the four-motored seaplane was launched for the first time from the back of the huge flying mother ship. This was the final stage of the experiment to make a long range aeroplane carry a larger load of fuel than it could lift off land or water under its own power.



MOB STORMS JAIL HOLDING ATTACKER



A Mexican soldier who was toe confessed attack-slayer of [illegible] old girl and for whom a lynch mob burned the jail at Tlahuica, Mexico, and stormed the federal building, was allowed to "escape" and was then shot by soldiers. The burned jail after the rioters had assaulted it in their futile attempt to lynch the slayer is shown at top. Two boys and a man were killed in the attempt pictured below to destroy the federal building, when bullets fired by guards were deflected from the pavement. The mob of 1,500 men and women were finally dispersed at bayonet point and martial law declared. Mexican law permits 'escape' executions.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 18.—(AP)— With "inflation" hopes chilled by President's remarks at his press conference today, stock market leaders fell back briefly following an upturn at the opening.

The ticker tape was in arrears a minute or so on the wave of offerings. The pace soon slowed, however and recovery tendencies appeared near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were droopy. International Nickel lost nearly a point and smaller recessions were noted in Canadian Pacific, Deisel and McIntyre Porcupine.

Among the first to topple—many eventually came back—were Anaconda, Kennecott, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Goodyear, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Curtiss Farm, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allis Chalmers, Philip Morris, John-Manville and Douglas Aircraft.

MAGISTRATE ASSESSES COSTS OF COURT

Two citizens were assessed the costs of the court when they were convicted of not obtaining their 1937 radio license when they appeared before Magistrate H. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. Inspector Gervais of the Department of Transportation of the Dominion Government, preferred four charges in all, and the case being concluded today. The costs assessed were levied only after the accused person satisfied the court that a 1937 radio licence had already been purchased. The charges read "that the person did establish a radiotelegraph station without obtaining a license under the act". Other charges are pending. Inspector Gervais initiated all the conclusion of today's proceedings.

With orders to "sink on sight" any submarine found submerged or near their trade routes, the advanced ship of one of Great Britain's destroyer flotillas is shown (ABOVE), splashing through the Mediterranean. The order was the result of attacks on British shipping off the coast of embattled Spain by "pirate" submarines.

MARKET COMMENT

Interest in the mining market is broadening out to include, in addition to the seniors, a number of the junior producers, and some very appreciable advances have been recorded in this, for the industrial market has not participated in the improvement, although if the past is any criterion, it can be anticipated that in time the buoyancy in the mines will find reflection in the industrial section. A constructive attitude towards securities at the present time appears merited.

In addition to the Nos. 1 and 2 wells, Brown Oil has another well drilling at 4,700 feet, which should be completed next month and which, being surrounded by large producers, is practically certain to largely increase the company's revenue, and another well also excellently located will be started on its completion. If, as anticipated, there is any increase in prorating from 42 per cent. to 50 per cent. of capacity in the early Spring, earnings will be still further swelled. Altogether it is by no means unlikely that the company will have an earning power of 30 cents a share before the middle of the year. On the basis of its earnings, the company's shares appear greatly undervalued at current market prices around 45 to 50 cents.

Expect Rise in Gold Price

Weakness in the American dollar this week was accompanied by much European activity in gold bullion. Reports Cables report that the rumour was becoming widespread in London and Paris to-day that the American government was preparing a further revaluation of the Dollar. Much of the recent buying in the senior gold stocks was not only for account of Canadian accounts; one local bank has been receiving share buying orders for the senior golds from Europe, which orders have averaged about 6250 to 600 a week for the past four weeks.

Kewagama in High Grade

According to a report from the north, Kewagama has encountered some very high grade ore in raising above the 500-foot level some 450 feet east of the shaft. First ocurrences was in a large quartz vein which has now widened and contains visible gold in places similar to the richer ore found on the neighboring O'Brien property.

Kewagama Exploration Limited, of 5,000,000 shares capitalization, is developing the property for the purpose of taking over and developing the property of Canadian Kewagama adjoining the O'Brien Gold Mines in Cadillac, to the east.

Canadian Gold Operators shareholders received 2,417 shares of Kewagama Exploration, which is a share for share basis of transfer.

Kewagama associates, which include, Cartier-Malartic Mines took up 500,000 treasury shares at 3c and 500,000 shares on two similar blocks at 35c and the other at 50c.

BOMBING TOWERS BEING ERECTED

Practical Work Will be Carried Out This Season at Airport

Trenton, Feb. 18 (Special)— With the announcement by the construction of three R.C.A.F. observation towers at Beechcroft Point, it was learned that the bombing school at the Air Station will practice bombing practically as soon as the weather will permit this summer. Beechcroft Point is a 1½ mile strip of land protruding out into Lake Ontario across from Presqu'ile Provincial Park. Consequently, and it is from this point that observations will be made of the "egg" dropping activities of the Trenton Air Base pilots. The watchout towers are being constructed of 4 grouse wire steel frames and concrete bases. The work is in charge of Allan MacIsh, a local contractor. The towers are four thousand feet apart apiece, in such a manner that the flight of a bomber can be recorded from every angle thereabouts.

Linked by Telephone

A telephone line will link the towers with the station east of here. Thus any important information that will be transmitted to headquarters at a moment's notice, and the observers in charge of the work in each of the range will be in constant contact with the base. The east end, while bombing operations are being carried on out in the lake. The "eggs" or dummys will be directed at targets floating on the surface of the water. A small target shelter will also be erected and will be targeted for bombing. It will be reinforced on three walls by sand fill and sand bags on top. Without doubt are depositing their loads the markers will find safety inside the shelter. Before getting rid of a load of "eggs" a bomber will fly over the field at the Trenton Station and proceed to the new range which is approximately 20 miles south of six miles. After clearing their bomb racks the big ships will proceed to the base and then the bomber crews will learn how accurate they have been. The scores will be recorded by the most up-to-date instruments in use here.

TORNADO STRIKES OIL BOOM TOWN

18 Killed And Caused Damage Estimated at $4,000,000

Rodessa, La., Feb. 18 (AP) — A crackling, roaring tornado that cut a mile-wide path through the eastern section of this north Louisiana oil boom town last night brought death to at least 18 persons, injured 60 and caused damage variously estimated between $250,000 and $4,000,000.

An accurate check of the dead and injured failed to await the restoration of order here and reports from Shreveport, Vivian, La., and Atlanta, Tex., where many of the victims were taken.

Ten bodies were counted in the morgues at Atlanta. Six others lay in Shreveport and at least two were in an improvised morgue in a grocery store here.

Drs. George E. Morrison and Chas. Holt, two of the physicians who attended here, agreed the death list might run between 30 and 35 and the injured 100 or more. Together they treated more than a score in their offices, saying the "serious" cases of the injured were in a critical condition.

The storm struck at 9.42 p.m. The hands of a dashboard clock in the cab of the twister stopped at that time. It blew in from the north and raced like a freight train, witnesses said.

MOTOR TRAFFIC

Slippery surfaces of the Belleville-Toronto highway during Friday's falling rain was responsible for several rear accidents this morning. One family who arrived in the city after nearly two hours of careful driving reported piling up the high way on four different occasions. Four in spots necessitated the using of headlights the driver claimed. Two cars were noticed stranded in the ditches, motorists motorists said, patching but unable to be of any assistance due to the condition of the roads.

Farmers Donate Woodlots For Forestry Demonstration

STEEL TO OPERA

Wazyl Lemrick, (ABOVE), who will sing the role of the father in "Hansel and Gretel" in Cleveland's Severance Hall, home of the Cleveland orchestra. Lemrick, 31, was a steel worker, miner and truck driver of twin boys, before he won a radio audition that awakened him to his operatic possibilities. He is a baritone.

The Columbia River, on which Grand Coulee dam is being built, is regarded as the greatest potential source of power among North American rivers.

Owners Will Carry Out Forestry Principles Under Proper Guidance

MORE ARE NEEDED

Four woodlot owners in Hastings County, Geo. Kelleher, Marmora; Lawrence Mahoney, Hung; Sanford township; C. H. Jeffrey and W. E. Hooper of Madoc township, have consented to their lots being designated demonstration areas by the Ontario Forestry Branch.

The purpose of the demonstration by the government is to draw attention to woodlots that are being conserved and that the forestry principles applied to their management. The scheme is a co-operative one. The forestry expert advises the owner on the management of the plot and the owner does the work at his convenience. Both the owner and the forestry department have the same purpose, that is to conserve the wood, to keep it in healthy growing condition and to secure annual financial returns in order to pay taxes and obtain a fair return on the investment.

"There is a large acreage in Hastings County devoted to the growing of timber," said the forestry expert today, "and if this slash could be developed into merchantable timber the owners would plan to secure fuel wood from beneficial trimmings."

The Forestry Department wishes to contact owners who have woodlots adjacent to or within forty rods of the travelled road to increase the number of demonstration woodlots. Enquiries may be addressed to the Forestry Branch office at Toronto or Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

SNOWFALL HALTS RUSS ICEBREAKER

Fliers Plan to Drop Fresh Supplies to Polar Party Later on

Moscow, Feb. 18. — (AP) — An Arctic snowstorm today stalled the ice breaker Talmyr in its attempt to push through thick pack ice to the Camp of Soviet Russia's four drifting Polar scientists.

The Talmyr sent word that the storm, off the Greenland coast, was so heavy its crew were unable to see ahead of the vessel. As soon as the storm subsides, fliers plan to drop fresh meat, cigarettes, matches and presents to the explorers.

The North Sea Route Administration, directing the expedition, disclosed Sunday radiograms reception led to an erroneous report that Pilot Ivan Cherevichny landed at the pole Wednesday.

Cherevichny was forced down in a snowstorm and lost for two days in the Arctic Icefield. He was rescued along with his flying mate, Boris Karabanoff, yesterday by Pilot Gennady Visaoff.

Efforts were being made to salvage the plane.

Visaoff thus far has been the only pilot to visit the explorers. His was the first new human face the camp saw since they were landed near the North Pole May 21.

BRITISH CABINET DIFFERENCES AGAIN REPORTED

Italian Action is Key To Situation in Europe Is View Held in Paris

British Cabinet Called on Unexpected Urgent Business Today

EDEN'S ATTITUDE

One Report Unconfirmed Says Eden Has Offered to Resign

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, Feb. 19 (CP) — Europe faces a critical week-end.

In the council chamber at No. 10 Downing Street this afternoon Prime Minister Chamberlain meets his colleagues in a special cabinet, called to discuss, in the words of Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, "unexpected urgent ministerial business."

Mr. Chamberlain will then lay before the cabinet:

The results of yesterday's three-hour conversation with Count Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador;

The proposal from the French government for a firm stand on Austria.

Joint Anglo-French Declaration.

France proposes, it is understood, a joint Anglo-French declaration that they cannot allow the regime of a friendly state to be changed by external pressure, and that any permanent territorial change in Europe to be effected by the technique of accommodation.

Tomorrow afternoon Chancellor Hitler speaks to the Reichstag. Every chancellery in Europe is eagerly agog to know what he will say.

The conversations with Count Grandi follow on a series of personal efforts by Mr. Chamberlain to re-establish firmer friendship between France and Italy. Mr. Chamberlain has written letters to Premier Mussolini. He has had series of conversations with Count Grandi.

Rumors of Differences.

His efforts in this regard have brought rumors of differences with Foreign Secretary Eden. These differences are over the method of ap-

Brainy Mouse Earns Freedom

The Village of Zhingerzise has discovered the section's brainiest mouse.

This week a householder of the village bought a mouse trap of special design. It was a trap like affair, capable of holding several of the family mice, with openings at the bottom through which to enter.

The other morning, he found one mouse inside. He happened to lay the trap down on a rug in front of a brisk fire in a grate. He didn't occur to him that his searching for the fire threatened the mouse with being roasted alive.

When he returned, however, he found that the mouse had fled in the danger and acted. The mouse had been fulfilled on the end of the trap farthest from the fire, and the intervening space, some ten times the thickness of its body, was packed tight with nap which it had torn from the rug with its teeth, piling it as a shield against the fire.

There was but one thing to do. The mouse destined to drown in a pail. This was turned loose outside the home.

proach. Mr. Chamberlain would go ahead more quickly. Mr. Eden thinks that Italy, with heavy assistance in Abyssinia an dis army tied up in Spain, will be more inclined to make a better bargain later.

"There must be no sacrifice of principle in order to obtain results that may not be permanent," Mr. Eden said a few days ago.

Recognition of Conquest.

Italy repeats his old demand for recognition of the conquest of Ethiopia. Italian quarters of yesterday's conversations state Great Britain is now preparing to concede the point that the question of foreign, notably Italian, participation in the Spanish civil war should not be included in the agenda of any Anglo-Italian talks but should be regarded solely as a matter for the Spanish Non-Intervention Committee.

France and Italy possibly discuss the possible resurrection of the "Stresa Front", when, in 1935, Great Britain, France and Italy agreed on a seven-point program based on the collective maintenance of peace within the framework of the League of Nations. The Stresa Front ended with the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

Italy the Key.

Paris papers emphasize that the key to the Austrian question lies with Italy.

Saturday cabinet meetings at Downing street are rare. The last was Dec. 5, 1936, the Saturday which preceded the abdication of King Edward VIII.

Discussing the rumors of differences between Eden, Chamberlain and his Foreign Secretary, The Daily Mirror declares the cabinet meets today "to deal with a situation which, if it is not speedily remedied, might result in a rift in the government and ministerial resignations."

Mediterranean Problem

Mr. Chamberlain though he has not the least intention of doing anything about Austria, wants to find out from Signor Mussolini (Grandi) ideas, to begin at once to deal with Italy about the whole Mediterranean problem and about recognition of the Ethiopia conquest," the Mirror says.

"Though he could not argue with the Italian Premier in the presence of the Ambassador, Mr. Eden wants to stand firm on Spain and in fact, that however the Italians may manoeuvre, they have in fact to keep their hands off the Rome-Berlin axis and joining any kind of Anglo-French front.

"The Prime Minister and Mr. Eden found themselves in disagreement and it was clear that the whole Cabinet must be called together. If Mr. Eden is beaten the odds are that he will resign and that a number of his colleagues will follow him. Should this occur Viscount Halifax and Lord Privy Seal, is the name that will probably become Foreign Secretary."

Question to Cabinet?

London, Feb. 19 (CP)—The Havas News Agency said today that according to unconfirmed reports Foreign Secretary Eden offered his resignation to Prime Minister Chamberlain yesterday.

According to the reports, Havas said, Mr. Eden's offer was refused. Mr. Eden's offer and determined instead to leave the question to a decision by the entire cabinet.

JAPAN RUSHES REINFORCEMENTS TO CENTRE CHINA

Chinese Counter-Offensive Operations Cause New Situation

MATSUI'S REMARKS

Report Says Tokyo is Dissatisfied With Loss of Prestige

Shanghai, Feb. 19 (AP)—Japan ordered a new commanding general and troop reinforcements to the central China war zone today "to meet the new situation" precipitated by Chinese counter-offensive operations.

Savage fighting continued along the defying fronts paralleling the strategic Lunghai railway, with both sides reporting successes.

Takes Over Command.

It was reported that General Shunroku Hata, Inspector General of Military Education in Japan, had arrived to take over command of the Japanese troops which for months have been struggling to conquer the rich central China agricultural region and railway network.

General Hata was said to have been sent to replace General Iwane Matsui because of dissatisfaction at Tokyo over progress of the central China campaign.

Tokyo Dissatisfied.

Tokyo was represented as dissatisfied with the loss of prestige suffered by the Japanese army because of breaches of discipline in central China. General Matsui's public utterances also were reported to have met with disfavor, because of the long resistance to conquest.

Dispatches from the front indicated the Chinese counter-offensive was meeting with success in the Fenhsien river sector north of Pengpu, where the Japanese have been stalled in their drive northward toward the Lunghai line.

LIBERALS TALK NEILL BILL OUT

Motion to Exclude Japanese Immigrants Not to be Voted on

Ottawa, Feb. 19 (CP)—Four Liberal members held the floor of the House of Commons for over two hours last night and talked out the Neill Bill to exclude Japanese immigrants.

The Bill was not specifically mentioned during private members' hour when other items on the order paper were passed over.

The four members, Arthur Slaght (Temiskaming-Sound); Lionel Chevrier, (Lib., Stormont); J. A. Glen (Conservative, Huntington); Vincent (Lib., Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare), declared that the Bill was designed to run the risk of injuring Japanese pride by excluding immigrants "because they are Japanese" and they asked, when a quota of 150 a year was suggested.

The Bill, introduced by A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni) would place Japanese immigrants on the same basis as Chinese and amount to a practical exclusion.

The four Liberal members said they might have been willing to let the bill as one method of furthering Canada's neutrality as between China and Japan but this was no time to disturb international affairs.

7 MONTHS OLD PULLET LAYS LARGE EGG

A proud member of a flock of White Leghorn chickens owned by Mackenzie Bros., Colborne, has seven months old pullet that lays an egg measuring eight inches in "long way" and six and one half inches in circumference.

This young lady is a consistent layer, according to Mr. Wilson, who brought proof of the egg-laying ability to the office of the Northumberland County Farm Extension. For the past two months this prolific young bird has delivered an egg a day to the white section hen house.

Mackenzie White Leghorn pullets comprise the Wilson flock and are descended from Tancred strain, daily eggs.

Mr. Wilson stated.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP)—Sir James MacKeen, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and distinguished soldier, passed a "satisfactory" night and his condition early today was "unchanged" according to hospital reports. His condition was described as "extremely low" for the past two days.

What Will Hitler Say? Fuehrer Speaks on Sunday

He May Picture Latest Event in Austria as Step in World Peace—Sunday Speech Is Definite Reference to Intentions in Czechoslovakia

By WADE WERNER

Berlin, Feb. 19 (AP)—Three weeks of wild rumors of momentous changes in central Europe reach their climax, perhaps with a sign of fulfillment, when Chancellor Hitler delivers his newest message to the world tomorrow.

The old, familiar question "what will he do next?" echoed in all the chancelleries and parliaments of Europe, but until Hitler himself should say, there was no official indication of what might be his plans or in what form he proposed to reveal them.

His closest collaborators predicted it would be a "message of peace." But that was small comfort to anxious statesmen.

Hitler also talked of peace in that Reichstag speech of March, 1936, in which he announced remilitarization of the Rhineland — and thereby made the Locarno Security Pact a dead issue.

There were both hopes and fears that the night stake more precisely tomorrow his intentions in Czechoslovakia, where live some 2,000,000 pro-Nazi Sudeten Germans, close to the border of Nazi Germany.

It was taken for granted he would picture the recent changes in Austria — the naming of Nazi cabinet ministers favorable to Germany and the freeing of Nazi political prisoners — in a vital step toward European peace.

A current close to the German chancellery said Hitler would declare an amnesty for political offenders against the third Reich, benefitting both Catholics and Protestants who have been arrested on various political charges.

The suspended priest trials of Catholic priests and nuns would be quashed.

DEATHS IN MINES ARE UNDER PROBE

Accident in Levack And Yesterday's in Ronda Investigated

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP)—The International Nickel Company has "resolved" three lives in a day at its Levack Mine, located in "the best ground in the district" fifteen miles northwest of Sudbury, and uses less timber than other mines in that area, according to Mine Captain Steve Kuzyk today.

Testifying at an inquest here yesterday into the deaths of five miners in the shaft last fall, Kuzyk said under examination by Crown Attorney E. R. Wilkinson, he did not know if the company had made a record for sinking the shaft but "we went down like a house afire."

The inquest last night and will resume today.

Paul Sandberg, 35; Arvo Salanen, 40; Konsta Kinagnia, 32; Thor Gyr, 27; and Viljo Goss, 34, were killed in the mine when a "trip" of loaded 900 pound capacity shorbly after midnight Feb. 4. Five other miners were injured and five escaped unhurt in the accident which followed a dynamite blast touched off by the speeding cars.

Mine Captain's Testimony.

The mine captain testified that inspection of a temporary bulkhead after the accident showed that it had moved. "The timber could only have been dislodged as a result of the blast," Yarvey said. A six-by-eight-inch timber "was caught on the hood of the car which overturned when we made an inspection after the accident," he testified.

Clifford Stewart, mine superintendent, told the jury that the skip and shaft system are the most modern safety regulations permit, when it was pointed out that a longer inspection may be believed only fifteen men were in the mine at the time of the accident and that in addition the skip was overturned by a dislodged bulkhead timber "and not an angle in the skip compartment.

Two Killed at Ronda Mine.

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP)—Investigators attempted today to learn how two miners came to their deaths deep in the Ronda Gold Mine, 10C miles west of here.

A premature blast was believed to have brought death to Tom Ghiziki and Oscar Trygger while they worked on the 350-foot level of the Ronda Gold Mine property. Their bodies were recovered from a mound of stone and debris.

None witnessed the tragedy and it was not known what caused the blast.

The Ronda Gold Mine is situated on the famous Nickel-copper-gold Ribble properties, in McMarchy and Churchill townships.

Dr. Ingram of Gogoma, company physician, will inquire into the accident.

EXPECT REDUCTION

Woodstock, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP)—A reduction in Ontario tax rate, which will range anywhere from half a mill to a mill and a half, was assured when the City Council's Finance Committee adjourned at 1:30 a.m. today after considering the year's estimates for five and one-half hours.

Alderman James D. Hill, Chairman of the Finance Committee, announced a drop of 40 mills appears assured, with the possibility of a drop as low as 39 mills. The 1937 rate was 40.5 mills.

PLEDGES GIVEN NOW FULFILLED

Austrian Nazis Can Become Members in Fatherland Front

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

Vienna, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Austrian Government announced today it had fulfilled all Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg's pledges to Chancellor Hitler by opening to Austrian Nazis membership in the Fatherland front, the nation's only legal party.

The naming of five cabinet ministers favorable to Nazi Germany, granting of amnesty for Austrian Nazi and other political prisoners, and finally opening to Nazis political representation.

Officials indicated the least significant of the pledges, the declaration of respect for this nation's sovereignty, a promise of Germany said to help suppress Nazi violence within Austria, and an assurance of economic co-operation.

MEAL PROMISED MEN LEAVE STORE

200 Unemployed Demonstrated in Port Arthur in Peculiar Way

Port Arthur, Feb. 19 (CP)—Problem of food and shelter for 200 unemployed men who demonstrated here by occupying the T. Eaton Company Groceteria for two hours, took the attention of Port Arthur authorities.

(Mayor Charles Cox, in Toronto, had instructed city council to care for the unemployed until arrangements could be made with Ottawa or Dominion authorities to transport them to their homes. Council also added the council did not feel it was the city's problem to pay the fares of the men.)

Trouble loomed for a time yesterday afternoon when the men crowded into the store single file and stayed in the aisles among the shoppers. However, the managers request they leave.

They were prepared to oust the men if they stayed beyond closing time, but when the men left single file, accompanied by provincial and police officers, the store manager decided not to press charges.

TERUEL ENCIRCLED BY NEW OFFENSIVE

Hendaye, France, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Spanish Insurgents officially announced today they had encircled Teruel in their new South Aragon offensive.

The two thousand Government troops garrisoning the provincial capital are trying desperately to defend it.

The Insurgents said they had "liberations" from the garrison, however, and Nationalist sources like to discuss terms for surrender of Teruel.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ASKS QUESTION ABOUT CHILDREN

Reg Moncrieff Pleads For All Underprivileged Children

CASES REFERRER

Physical Instructor of Collegiate Makes Request

"What is the Board of Education going to do about the dozens and more undernourished children in the schools in certain parts of this city, some night and dine in a single room, packed so tightly, that in one case a doctor attending the sick mother child had to shoo them all out of the one room to situate his medicine?" questioned Trustee Reg Moncrieff as the regular meeting of the Board of Education held last evening.

"We annually send missionaries to faraway lands to help the needy but if we only knew it they are needed more here."

The question, brought up under the head of "new business" following the more or less routine business of the session found ready response of Trustee Moncrieff.

"I'm not exaggerating, the situation 'really exists, even worse than I have indicated," declared Trustee Moncrieff.

"About all we as a Board can do, although we are directly and seriously concerned, is to send a recommendation to city council that some action be taken on this matter," offered Dr. Kinnear after some deliberation.

Favored Suggestion

Agreement to this suggestion was given by Trustee Percy MacKinnon, chairman of the Committee of the Whole.

"We represent Belleville, as trustees of this Board, and we are interested in the immediate welfare, especially the younger ones. The least we can do is go on record as favoring immediate investigation of the conditions said to exist, by the city council to do it," added Trustee McGuffie.

"I have written a counter to the Board of Health," offered chairman of the Board, Chas. Hyde.

"I believe if the truant officer and the school nurse could bring in some definite reports on the matter we would be in a better position to deal with the cases," advised Trustee J. Alex. Wills.

"We have been just like a bunch of ostriches with our heads in the sand and fancy there was no trouble in existence as long as we were along all right. We have in the past adopted the policy of 'out of sight, out of mind'," declared Trustee Moncrieff, anxious for action.

Personal cases were referred by the Trustee to chairman Chas. Hyde, for official action, and Mr. Moncrieff

Request Made

Commencing next term, pupils of the Collegiate and Vocational School may be excused from prescribed medical certificates of health before examination by the physician, under this effect asked for by Physical Instructor George Laughlin, supported by Trustee Wills. The request was carried by the Board after due advice from Dr. Ketcheson, Medical Officer Department of Education on the matter.

In a letter addressed to Principal MacLaurin by Mr. Laughlin, and referred to the Board, the physical instructor asked that immediate steps be taken to end the latter.

"Would you bring to the attention of the Board the necessity of a thorough medical examination for each girl and boy entering school?" Mr. MacLaurin was asked.

"It is a very necessary thing, because of the fact that a large number of any physical deficiencies in your pupils would be found, and the number of one boy who took physical education classes with the girls in the Collegiate which was discovered that he had 'a very bad heart,' stated Mr. Laughlin.

COAL HANDLERS STILL ON STRIKE

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP)—Representatives of 1,500 striking coal handlers, determined to continue "indefinitely" their strike for higher wages, will meet officials of the Ontario Department of Labor today in an attempt to reach a settlement, it was announced here.

Proposed settlement terms were for 47½ cents an hour for truck drivers; $1 an hour for checkers; 40 cents for their helpers. The men seek 50 cents a hour for drivers, 40 cents for their helpers. The men seek 50 cents a hour for checkers and $1.20 a hour for truckers instead of the existing scale of 80 cents to $1 an hour.

A meeting of strikers decided to continue the walkout "until we get our full terms accepted." Negotiations for a new wage scale have been under way for several weeks and William Hayney, union organizer, said the men decided to strike because of what he said were repeated adjournments of the negotiations under the Industry and Labor Board.

Cardinal Denies Statement Made By R. L. Calder

Montreal, Feb. 19 (CP)—Denial that Cardinal Rodrigue Villeneuve instigated Quebec Province's anti-Communistic "padlock law" was issued here last night on behalf of the Roman Catholic prelate.

The denial was prompted by a speech delivered by R. L. Calder, K.C., president of the Montreal Civil Liberties League, at Ottawa, Ont., Wednesday night in which he was quoted as saying the law "resulted from a conference of Cardinal Villeneuve with Premier Duplessis and other officials."

The statement, issued through Father J. P. Archambault, S. J., follows:

His eminence Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, was through Montreal tonight, absolutely decided to make no statement on the Calder address. In a recent address that Mr. Duplessis had imposed the padlock law at his instigation. His eminence appreciates this law, but never, he said, directly or indirectly after, did he request or inspire it. He even had not heard of it before the law was preceded.

MUNICIPALITIES BENEFICIARIES UNDER PROPOSAL

Federal And Provincial Help Possible if Public Properties Beautified

DEWAN SPOKESMAN

Have Relief Recipients Work Out Money Received

Toronto, Feb. 19 (CP)—Municipalities employing relief workers to improve and beautify public properties may be the beneficiaries of support from the Federal and Provincial governments, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture forecast today.

Mr. Dewan was a spokesman at the final session of the Ontario Municipal Association Last night. He mentioned the proposal in his talk, then elaborated on it later.

The provincial minister said he is suggesting to Ontario municipalities that relief workers hired relief might be used more advantageously by having recipients of relief work the money received. He had not progressed far enough with the plan, he said, to outline its terms from municipal enterprises of the nature suggested.

No Machine Loser.

However, the minister added, he did not believe constructional work involving company and machine labor, should be established in the scheme. The money and labor expended, he said, should be used to beautify vacant municipal lands for park and similar purposes by municipalities.

Should the proposal be accepted, Mr. Dewan declared, there will be change in the administration of municipal relief.

"However," he concluded, "I believe no governmental, provincial or federal, should be established until such a plan."

Woodstock, Ont., was a district where the plan would work to advantage, Mr. Dewan believed, pointing out that city from Ingersoll a visitor "is confronted with several acres of land, which, if properly used, is valuable."

Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, told the delegates, it was not possible for a person to change fundamental views and "not improve his mind".

Matthews, K.C., was guest of an address delivered by W. H. Porter of London, Ont. He deplored the present day political trend known from without replacements being made. He said this was responsible for existing flood conditions in Ontario.

TWO FUGITIVES STILL AT LARGE

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP) — Two men who slept in a barn on the farm of Ernest McCumber at Millhaven, may be the missing convicts who escaped from Collins Bay Penitentiary in the fog about 6.30 a.m. Friday.

Mr. McCumber noticed two men leaving the barn about 7.30 a.m. today and there was evidence the men had been sleeping in the hay mow, he told Kingston police.

The police immediately notified the Collins Bay Penitentiary authorities and officers were directed to the farm, which is 4 miles southwest of here.

Reported Matter.

"They may not be the men wanted," said Mr. McCumber, "but thought it wise to report the matter."

Mr. McCumber stated he did not see the men go into the barn, but when he entered the barn at 7.30 he noticed two men come out of the barn and make their way across the Canadian National Railway tracks. He said one of the men was carrying an axe.

"They left all the doors in the barn and the hay mow exactly when they left," said Mr. McCumber who said he was not close enough to obtain a description of the two men.

This is the first clue police and penitentiary authorities have had since the young convicts made their escape.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP)—Two convicts who slipped away from Collins Bay penitentiary near here when a fog, yesterday remained at large today, more than 24 hours since their departure from the prison.

The convicts, Charles Cornell and Gerald Blackburn, were hidden from guards watching a work party by the fog. The alarm was sounded when they failed to return to the shed which they left on the pretext of getting some stone.

Premier Pattullo Supports Hepburn

Victoria, Feb. 19 (CP)—Premier T. D. Pattullo today stated the British Columbia government believed the Dominion government should have jurisdiction over all coal elections because the province "has a prior right".

Premier said the Pacific coast province would support the stand of Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario that the Dominion's invasion of the income tax field constituted a threat to the spirit and the letter of the Confederation agreement".

British Columbia first imposed an income tax in 1876, Mr. Pattullo said, and when the Dominion started a similar tax in 1917 it was declared as a temporary war measure. The federal tax, however, had not been removed.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE

"I have discussed the matter with the Medical Officer of Health, and several other doctors. Their opinion is that the most satisfactory way would be to give each student entering a card to take to his or her doctor to be filled and signed by the doctor. This card would cover a thorough medical examination of the eyes, ears, heart, lungs, etc.

Dens In Many Schools

"The card should have space on the back for health grading, such as A-1; A-2, or 3, or 4, and the record of the five years the student is enrolled here.

"This is done in many cities and I feel that a school as large as ours cannot be behind in placing the health of our boys and girls," stated Mr. Laughlin.

Support to this request was given by Trustee Rev. A. B. Payne.

"We require the teachers to have a medical certificate, and I believe that this is needed also for the children.

I would move that at the next term beginning my pupil entering this school be given a card, which would be signed by his or her own medical man. If this were made a standing rule of the school it would be of difficulty in enforcing it."

"That would be compulsory?" questioned Trustee Wotton.

"I think we are asking a bit hasty in passing this right away. I believe that we should get some medical advice on it. The examination is going to cost the parents three dollars or so, and even then we don't know if we can enforce it and close the school to those who do not have their cards filled out." warned Trustee Allin.

Question Right.

"The pupils already need a certificate to return to school after they have been away through illness," reminded Trustee Payne.

"That is only in the case of contagious or contagious disease," enlightened a member.

"I think, however if we could force this on the parents," deliberated Trustee Wotton.

We could in the case of those who are taking physical education classes," suggested medical chairman of the board, Chas. Hyde.

"Three dollars slapped right on the parents is three dollars," reminded Trustee Moncrieff.

Much letter matter was brought in plenty of time to give the matter every consideration," spoke Principal C. MacLaurin.

"I believe, however, that if the matter were put before the parents properly there would be no objection to it. Instead they will rejoice to have his child undergo this examination to find out the state of their child's health. I believe it is a very advisable thing to have. If each child attending this school had a doctor's report and okay, it would be of great value to students and masters alike."

"I'm also wondering if it just questioning the compulsory part of it," questioned Allin. "If it comes if we force this, the parent will have to pay."

Upon instructions of the board, Secretary J. B. Pinday will write the Department of Education asking information informing it of the proposed move and asking advice on the matter.

May Visit Museum.

Endorsed with approval by the railway for the children of the Collegiate and Public school classes at special rates to Toronto and the Royal Ontario Museum, was given by the board of control on April 1st this respect by Principal MacLaurin.

Under this scheme, it was explained by the Principal, children must have a minimum fee to pay as a low basis, provided with street car transportation to and from the railway station, to the museum, given lectures and a trip through the Toronto institution, and served a special lunch. The cost per child would be about three dollars. It was stated. No sense of responsibility rest on the board, it was added. The trip will probably take place some time next month or later.

Declared by the principal and teachers to be the coldest room in the school and very difficult to heat, the nutritional classroom of King George School will be given a ceiling layer of insulation as a test for the remainder of the class rooms. A recommendation to this effect was accepted by the board at an estimated cost of $50 for the one room. Leaks in the roof of the Collegiate will also be repaired and remedied when snow conditions permit, it was stated by the contractor who had replaced it.

Attendance Good.

In the monthly report of P. C. MacLaurin, principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School members were informed that in spite of bad weather and sickness in the district, daily average attendance was maintained at 96.6 per cent. month. "This past week has affected our staff more than at any time this year," it is stated by the report.

Midterm examinations in the Collegiate will start on Mar. 17, and continue for "seven or eight days". It is proposed to hold "open night" at the school on the evening of Mar. 21, at the time of the night school closing.

The morning members that nothing had been done in a follow up nature since the last tuberculosis clinic at which a communication will be addressed Dr. Brearley of the local Health Unit, certain data be asked for this work.

One of the auditorium will be given to children of the Collegiate, the four public schools and St. Michael's Academy for the purpose of holding a special concert, the funds, few which are to be given the executive of the Bay of Quinte Beaches Association for the furtherance of this work. Sale of tickets in the schools was also sanctioned.

Fable of Goats in Mountain Pass Theme of Address

Dr. E. J. Pratt, Poet, Guest Speaker at O. S. D. Teachers' Banquet Gives Brilliant And Witty Commentary on Modern Life in Guise of Fable

Poetic treatment of dictators as practised by the prominent Canadian poet Dr. E. J. Pratt, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of English at Victoria College, University of Toronto, who addressed a banquet of the Teachers and Students of the Ontario School for the Deaf last evening proved delightfully ironic and refreshing as a break in the grim and weariness of political discussion and news items.

Dr. Pratt's attitude was revealed in his recent poems, "The Roosevelt in the Old" and "The Beritone" (first called "The Dictator-Baritone") and his rapier wit touched the present world situation with satire. Those who were privileged to be guests of the Association at the Queen's Hotel last night were sincerely grateful to their hosts for an evening that is long to be remembered.

About eighty were present and the long tables arranged in the dining room was most attractive with Spring flowers, candelabras and tapers add decorations in Valentine effect. The artistic menus and place cards executed in the school colours of gold and blue were the work of the printing department of the School and were greatly admired by the guests. Dancing was enjoyed after the banquet.

Miss Myrtle Reid, President of the association presided at the banquet and in a gracious manner extended a welcome on behalf of the Association. Miss Leona Biggs, accompanied the Mr. Alec Gordon, and entertained the gathering with two vocal solos in her usual delightful style.

Mr. W. J. Morrison, Superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, was asked by Miss Reid to introduce the guest-speaker. This was a particularly happy duty for Mr. Morrison as Dr. Pratt, who had come from Newfoundland to attend the University of Toronto, was his classmate of the year 1910. While this class had produced many men famous in political life, Mr. Morrison said, he had only one poet, Dr. Pratt, who is today regarded as one of Canada's outstanding poets, and who finds time not only to write and lecture at Victoria College but also to edit a publication of poetry and to assist in the direction of the literary magazine "Commonweal."

Dr. Pratt, in recalling his association with Mr. Morrison at college, then spoke of finding in Belleville another old friend in Dr. Deacon, who was present at the gathering last evening.

The speaker prefaced reading a part of his poem "The Fable of the Goats" explaining that it was not a lesser-known Aesop fable. This told of two pairs of goats. The first pair encountered each other at opposite sides or a mountain stream and in dignified way the individual right of way succeeded in butting each other down the cliff. The second pair met face to face on a narrow mountain ledge which only one could make his way in safety. The difficulty was solved by one goat lying down and allowing the other to step over him. Thus they passed both lives. This was the only instance in history the parties settled out of court without settling an argument by conciliation.

Having decided that this was to be the theme of his poem concerning dictators, Dr. Pratt read it in a very charming and preparation, giving his hearers a glimpse of the poet from the other side of the page.

By elaborating on this theme he could make it symbolic reflecting in an ironic manner contemporary world conditions. The scene would be put in the past the action suggest world conditions of today, and the Pamir Gaspet Central Europe. He then made the action of his poem an imaginary mountain range one hundred miles long and several thousand feet high which acted as an indisputable frontier separating East and West. There was only one pass, so narrow that but one person could go through it. The pass he called Dopra, the Canyon that of St. Barnabas.

Dr. Pratt told of the care he had taken in choosing just the right geological formation of the rock on which the encounter of mutant goat and goat was to take place. He consulted with a colleague on the staff and they decided that schist was the supposedly substance. The choice was particularly apt.

"The repetition of this word in the lines of the poem suggest antagonism for I was astonished to find that so many words suggestive of belligerency and in "at" said Dr. Pratt, "Pat, chatist, antagonist, at, and in the realm of matrimony, bigamist, polyamist, misogamist and art, cubist, vortist, in religion, Calvanist, Methodist, Baptist. In fact "at" is a most suggestive word of causes, discensions and arguments."

In selecting the goat as a symbol, Dr. Pratt studied the qualities of the goat and found that it was of a restless, nomadic nature, a climbing animal, the greatest climber among the animals, to whom any height is a challenge to climb. It is most belligerent, dignified, and is immune to argument.

In his poem Dr. Pratt placed on one side of the mountain range a goat leader of the Latin tribe, whose leader Cyrus had managed to weld his tribe of allies across the pass was a race of goats equally virile, but mixed in strain, whose leader was Attilius.

With East and West thus clearly defined on either side of the pass, peaceably in the vicinity of the centre, starting in the goats a desire for them and causing a perpetual war of potentiality. The two leaders met in conference from time to time, for over one thousand years, leaders had chairmaned each other in the pass. Now, as each sought to venture exploration, a sublime unbreakable accord and an unbelievable pact into the canyon below.

Finally Cyrus and Attilius met, the two great leaders broke the deadlock. One knelt down and allowed the leader to pass over him, and to allow one race to enjoy the freedom of the other lands.

As Dr. Pratt read from his poems, the delight of the audience increased at his satire on present day despots. His description was dead pan but his author could read it. His inclusion of a pacifist and Christian element also won each horn and which was quickly killed by the Baritone.

"The Baritone" dealt in musical terms with Hitler and was sung to "The Prize Cat" and "Like Mother Like Daughter" showed the Duce and the Fuehrer.

The enthusiasm of the audience was shown by Mr. George Sexton, an art who spoke of the pleasure it had given to present to hear the delightful inspiring and interesting address from the poet's own lips and words. Mr. Sexton dealt humorously with the dictators of the Dominion, Mr. King, Mr. Bailey, the teacher, and the Gentle Dictator of the household in the manner and speech of the wide appeal of his theme.

The singing of "God Save the King" concluded an evening of rare enjoyment.

COUNCIL PASSES A RESOLUTION PROTESTING DECISION OF DOMINION GOVERNMENT ON RELIEF GRANTS

Following a special meeting of the City Council held on Friday afternoon in the Council Chamber a resolution "that this council regrets the reported decision of the Dominion Government to make no increase for the calendar year 1938 in the grant to the Province of Ontario for relief purposes and requests that the Dominion Government further consider such decision and that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Prime Minister of Canada and to Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P.," was unanimously passed. City Clerk Holmes immediately sent off the resolution to those interested.

Earlier in the day Mayor Jamieson Bone received from R. K. Servis, secretary of the Ontario Mayors' Association a telegram: "Emergency meeting Ontario Mayors Tuesday in Toronto with reference to Dominion - Provincial relief grants. Important that you be represented. Please advise by wire your message. Have your council send protest regarding Dominion decision as soon as possible," and deemed it advisable to call the council into session and discuss the matter.

The members were unanimously agreed that Mayor Bone should attend the conference in Toronto and that a resolution should be sent the Prime Minister King. Miss Lynch of the Welfare Department was present in council and gave the members figures on the estimated cost of relief for the coming year and explained that relief cost the city last year approximately $21,000 which included administration costs. As the meeting was called to form a special relief resolution, no other business was transacted and the meeting adjourned.

"Yes," Susanne agreed a trifle grimly, "she does. And I will. Gerda thanks!" Her mind had turned back the clock twenty-odd years and she was seeing another Maydra, a younger Susanne, and a like situation.

"You can't do this, Maydra,'s she had told the girl another time. It had done no good. It had been quite futile, in spite of the generation back of her appeal. Her argument had fallen on deaf ears and the bitter rankling of defeat had never quite stopped goading her.

Now ..... well, now, perhaps, she would have different luck. Now she knew more about things. About human emotions, about values. Her years of successful selling, of dealing with the public, had taught her that much and, too, it wasn't as if the child contemplated marrying that boy. After all, he was only ill with pneumonia, and it didn't necessarily signify they would marry, if Maydra went to him in his hour of need. Only deep understanding, the knowledge that it was significant, even though the boy himself never came to the surface of her mind.

So ran Susanne's slightly jumbled thoughts, as she waited, pacing restlessly up and down the silent and orchid office, waiting for Maydra's return. Waiting, and alternately hoping and praying.

"I must get out, Susanne. I must have to go somewhere ..... on ..... urgent business!" Maydra began, as soon as she entered her mother's office. Not dreaming that Gerda had preceded her with a confession on account of the smitten business!

"What's the matter with you, child?" Susanne asked gently, steeling herself against the misery, the doubt and confusion in the girl's troubled face. "After all, this is our busiest day, Maydra, and a junior partner I do think you should think of the time business! Last of your own pleasure. After all, there'll be other football games you know. Other ....."

Maydra stared at her blankly, "Twisted her head impatiently about her gloves, and soft quilted kid purse.

"It isn't a football game, Susanne. It isn't—pleasure! It's ....it's ... Tommy. He's very seriously ill with pneumonia!"

"Oh!" The college boy who borrowed twenty dollars from you? Well, then you must, indeed, go, Maydra. Pneumonia isn't so serious nowadays. With all the sera-sume and scientific aids they've perfected. He'll probably be as fit as a fiddle in a few days. Now run along and around in a week or so!"

She sounded very completely cheerful, so disarmingly unalarmed that Maydra felt her spirits lifting slightly.

"How did you hear of it, dear?" Susanne went on casually. "His people telephone you?"

Maydra shook her head.

"No, it was his room-mate. 'Mic' Hamlin. Dr. Hamlin's son. He said it was ..... very serious!"

"Doctors always overrate pneumonia, dear, after influenza," Susanne said cheerfully. "It's professional front. They're an awful horse hexer when the patient recovers, if the illness has been dramatically highly ..... And they are paid gratefully. Vicious circle," Susanne added brightly.

"But ....but Snic said to come at once. He said he'd call Dr. Hamlin, protested shakily.

"And Tommy asked for you o-mar ty him, too?" Susanne reminded her lightly. "But you didn't, child! Anyway, you'll go through life doing everyones bidding. Unless you want to be a nice little weather-vane! Also, young Tommy has the best of medical care—you can be sure of that. Big universities like Princeton do not let students catch cases of pneumonia or anything else, if they can help it. And if they can't, you'd be of small help!

"Now you don't you be sensible about all this, child! Let those pranksh, whimsical college boys try their pneumonia on someone else for a while.

Maydra sighed slightly at that, glancing around her, as if the busy atmosphere from the little shop around them had just penetrated her consciousness.

"Wait a minute, Maydra. Don't rush off into this blindly. Go ahead and live this day as you've lived all the others, and see what happens. Then, tonight, if you like we'll phone the hospital at the college, and if need be, we can drive down there in the car the first tomorrow! Let me help you in this child. You've got to let me help you from stumbling into your own worst mistakes!

Maydra nodded, but it was mechanical, almost unthinking. She felt for the door, opened it, and went to slip into her dress and smock.

"The dull blue is more your type Mrs. di Astada ..... it brings out the natural beauty of your eyes more, enhances your figure!"

"Not the suit, Madame Pupomal. Those sleek lines of that print crepe street frock are more your style ..... I'll just skip it on! Madji can model, of course, but I can show you what I mean better, if it's on you!"

"Lunch, Maydra! I'll stay until you get back!" Susanne said at noon, and Maydra, went, obediently, accompanied by Hildegarde, who had explicit instructions not to leave her alone, unguarded for an instant, "as it will mean your job, Hilda!" Susanne added.

At three minutes past twelve, Lars Anderra, otherwise known as Madji, stopped the Chanel outside the swank establishment, and made his slightly uncomfortable way within.

"Miss Graham?, he inquired of Hilda politely. Maydra Graham? I'm Spod Anderra —Tommy Chisholm's buddy."

"Yes Mr. Anderra?" Susanne came over quickly, turning one of her best, most fussiest customers over to Madji, who was promptly ushered and seated half out of her wits. "You were saying?" she added smoothly.

"It's about Tommy," Spod blurted unhappily. "He's pretty low, Miss Graham. They've got to see Maydra, that's all! He's been calling for her, and Snic says He was very red of face, and his brown eyes were dull with a milky look. He beat-heavily and his wiry fists were jammed hard into the pockets of a ..... non-conscious coat that was unbuttoned to reveal expensive, well-tailored red-brown tweeds that were badly in need of pressing, badly rumpled, and he wore a flannel shirt, collarless, and pullover sweater of a dark tan colour instead of the usual immaculate waistcoat. A thick, long, fringed scarf of heavy, rich ivory silk twisted carelessly about his throat, and a single monogram in dull crimson was on the sleeve of his coat. He wore no hat, and his thick shining dark hair had been blown wind-blown as hair is apt to be when an open car, especially a top down, races sixty-five miles an hour over smooth open roads like the Princeton, New Jersey, with Manhattan.

"Oh, boy!" Madji breathing softly not even minding too much the self-sniffing displeasure of his client and customer, who was obviously staying just to overhear this bit of Susanne's rather unfortunate slang, although she hadn't the slightest conception of having understood it. Till Susanne came to her senses, banished this nice little man, and sent came in person to attend her wants. "Oh, boy! Is he the answer to a maiden's prayer! Is he! And wouldn't you just know he'd be tied with forty? Oh, boy!" Madji, Maydra's chariot wheels — the wench! Some people have all the luck!"

.....really fail to see how all this concerned you, Anderra!" Susanne was saying coolly to the flushed, embarrassed young man. "I should have despised college senior from Princeton, and I'm sure he'll call for your little school-mate, Mr. Chisholm, as ..... Andrews, we really must let you interfere with Maydra's forthcoming marriage. She's supposed to a very prominent boy man ..... a very wealthy man, at things like that seem very important to some people! I'm sure you understand?"

"Anderra," Spod growled savagely, his face a dull crimson. "Anderra is the name Madame ..... Lars Anderra, if you remember!

"I don't care a couple of tin hoots who you think you're marrying Maydra off to! Right now I'm concerned with Tommy. Tommy Chisholin, and can you understand that? He's dying ..... not dying, perhaps, because he doesn't care a damn about living! And Maydra Graham is to blame! You'll bring her out, she's going to get what I'm driving at. She'd better, or I'll do something to make her up! I've got to! She ..... can save Tommy!

"Jean!" Susanne had yanked the silken cord imperiously, when Spod's language threatened to leap the sevile, and descend to blasphemy. Jean appeared, and crouched in rough, masculine terms that were eloquent than effective, to show this person —out! And as for you, young man, see that you do not annoy my clients, or I shall be forced to call the law to my assistance! Now run along home to school, and tell your playmate to stop his nonsense about Maydra —get him anywhere here, let me assure you! We've had other fortune hunters after her to marry into Maydra's half of this business and ....we know just how to deal with them! Tell your Tommy that he may as well make up his mind to get well ..and earn his living! Do you .....? Spod blazed impotently, confronted for the first time in his twenty-three years with the utmost, inalienable desire to slap a woman. Sock her so hard and so accurately that she'd hit the ceiling for a long, sweet session with the birdies. "Why, I'm not sure I'd take a poke at your smug hypocritical mush. Saying those things about Tommy! I guess you don't know who he is, now, do you? I guess you never heard ..."

Jean had propelled him vigorously, mutely, straight to the door and outside. And not until he was on the avenue, rather angrily shaking himself, he remembered exactly where he had started from! He dipped hastily, and fled back.

Worse ....he knew there was no use, no hope in starting anywhere again. He was —licked.

"Jeepers!" he growled settling behind the wheel of Tommy's assistant roadster. "Jeepers what a woman! And she's Maydra's aunt!! Poor old Tommy!!"

At a red sea pacing restlessly up and down the corridor outside the hospital room where Tommy battled grimly for life with every ounce of strength that a vicious, more virtuous.

"Any word to know?" he shouted violently. "You can ask that, Snic! Any word to know?"

"Of course Spod," she answered patiently "I've got to know!"

"Well it's late, he grated savagely "now! Even if you came in time, Maydra! They say he wouldn't let you see him! And Snic says he's delirious! He won't know! You've killed him, you see! That's what you wanted to do, isn't it?"

The silence screamed across the corridor, as the unconscious coat that was unbuttoned to reveal expensive, well-tailored red-brown tweeds that were badly in need of pressing, badly rumpled, and he wore a flannel shirt, collarless, and pullover sweater of a dark tan colour instead of the usual immaculate waistcoat. Little Benny's Note Book

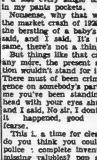
Saturday afternoon me and pop was taking a wawk and I said, "Pop, what's every single thing I have in my pants pockets.

Wednesday Uncle Sam would make the market crash of 1929 seem like the beginning of a panic, pop said, and I said, It's rue just a rumor, there's not a thing left.

But then I see that could happen any more, the present administration would see to that, pop said, and I said, No sir, I dont know how it happened, good nite that's all.



Till I, a time for clear thinking. Spent four days in jail would give police ! complete inventory of the contents of my pockets, pop said, and I said, Sure, there was a empty match box with 2 Chinese stamps in it, and a little bit made out of bird, her bands with a marble in the middle, and there was a penny stumps, 2 sharpened on both ends, and 3 corks with holes through them on a piece of string like a necklace, and 9 bottle tops in perfect condition, and a fish hook, and a tiny little medecine bottle with a cork in it, but there was not it that it was impossible to take it out again, and also other things I cant remember without trying too hard.

Dont strain yourself, you've had a serious enough shock already, pop said, and I said, O, hurrah, pop, I didn't lose them after all, I was thinking of the panic pockets of my other pants.

Good, then I wont have to get you an ice cream soda as a shock obsorber, pop said.

With his didn't till after a fearce fight.

Raising Gold Price to $35 Made Possible Large Mine Expansion

McCULLAGH AT NASSAU

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 18 (CP)—Referring to a recent magazine article which made the prediction he might one day be Prime Minister of Canada, C. George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said in an interview here the magazine writer "is far more person who thinks so."

The article credited Mr. McCullagh with being a deciding factor, through an editorial in his newspaper, in re-electing Premier Hepburn of Ontario last fall.

The publisher, who recently declaimed the credit, remarking: "Hepburn's attack on the Committee for Industrial Organization fin the Oshawa automobile strike) was a wordsity of late opposed's elected him."

Mr. McCullagh said trade conditions in Canada are "good." During the last six years "we have had amazing times."

"While we cannot escape the effect of the recession in the United States, Canadian industries have been stimulated through gold mining is playing an important part," he added.

"President Roosevelt may be condemned by people in the States but in Canada he is well liked and Santa Claus. By raising the price of gold from $20.67 to $35 an ounce, he has made our gold-mining industry."

RESERVE INDIAN DIES AT AGE 110

Simon Commanda Was Chief of Reserve For 20 Years

North Bay, Ont., Feb. 18 (CP)—Simon Commanda, who celebrated his 110th birthday on Feb. 2, died on Thursday two weeks ago, died from pneumonia today.

The Canada Lumbering Reserve Indian died at the home of his son, Joseph Commanda, on the reserve at here. Paul Commanda, noted north woodsman, said his father had talked with members of his family until a few hours before death.

Commanda's last audible words were: "I don't think I will be with you much longer, my children."

Oldest Man in Canada

Simon Commanda became for 20 years and believed Canada's oldest resident, because he was born before he was visited by Catholic priests Wednesday night when the Rev. Father Lacroix, parish priest, administered. Funeral services will probably be held Sunday.

The age of the Indian was somewhat in doubt, some claiming him to be 111 years old. Members of his family said Hudson's Bay Company records showed he was 110.

Led Railway Survey Party

Commanda was prominent in colorful episodes in the development of Canada. During the Riel Rebellion Indian uprising in 1885 the then young and robust Simon, Iroquois brave from Caughnawaga, led a Dominion survey party along the north shore of Lake Nipissing.

The Riel Rebellion found Commanda a member of the government forces. It was the only time he ever bore arms. During his cheftainship in Nipissing district Commanda was strongly opposed construction of a North Bay-Cochrane railway road, dividing the property of his tribe but the road was finally built.

Born in Quebec

Born at Lake of Two Mountains in Quebec province, Que., he came to the Nipissing district as a boy. There he first married Marguerite Couchal but his wife and children, numbering 12, all predeceased him. Only Joseph Commanda, 70, and a Friendly Welcome Awaits You.

SCIENTIST DIES IN LONELY JUNGLE

Dr. Frederick Fox, Member Of Expedition Searching Paul Redfern

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 19.—(CP)—Dr. Frederick Fox, 24, Toronto scientist and member of the Waldeck expedition searching for the lands long-lost United States aviator, rested today in a grave on lonely part of Mora Island, far up the Cuyuni river in British Guiana's jungle hinterland.

A boat that went to the relief of Dr. Fox reported that he had become stranded returned to civilization yesterday and brought word of the young archeologist's death on Jan. 5. The three other members of the party, all Indians, remained with Dr. Fox.

Venezuelan border.

Headed by Theodore Waldeck, American explorer, and consisting, besides Waldeck, of his wife, W. A. Chandler, New York sportsman, and Dr. Fox, the group left Barticia Isle on Dec. 1 and after a month's travel reached here that the native porters had quarrelled with the party and refused to proceed. Waldeck had deserted, taking the boats with them.

Dr. Fox then went to get assistance.

Besides his parents and brother he is survived by his sisters, Mrs. Roy Butterfield, home, and Mrs. Alport, Sydenham.

DOMINION ACTION ON ROAD ACCIDENTS

A Dominion-wide drive against the drunk or careless driver has been launched. It is quite safe to predict that with public opinion, crystallized as it was represented in the House of Commons on Thursday when men of every political opinion agreed that a careless or drunk driver must be removed from the highways and more severely punished, a strengthening of the forces against menace on the highways is bound to come. With every safeguard that Departments of Highways, and police patrol can place upon the roadway to make driving safe, the toll of death, injury and damage goes on apace so much so that the highways have become to many people a nightmare. There must stop. Minister of Justice Lapointe said it was unthinkable that persons should be allowed when not in possession of their faculties to endanger the lives of others and that the unanimity and intense feeling as expressed in the House were encouragement in tending to action which will minimize this terrible evil. While there was a difference of opinion expressed as to the share that drunken drivers had in the casualty lists as the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in fairness said, he reported to have said that nearly all fatal accidents could be attributed to drink, he was sorry to say, while Denton Massey, M. P., saw the basis issue in lack of attack on the problem as to who should be allowed to drive, and said he viewed the fundamental reason for accidents was that drivers were not qualified and were without technical knowledge, the fact remains that there was united opinion that the menace must be removed, the drunk driver with the other cases.

That juries are reluctant to find a driver guilty of manslaughter in a fatal accident was pointed out by Mr. Bennett who spoke for an enlightened public opinion. He stated that juries might be willing to find a drunk driver guilty of having been careless. He put in a word for the pedestrian in which most people will concur as he referred to British laws which, according to the ruling of the House of Lords gave the pedestrian the right of way. He noted what has been seen in many cases of pedestrians in this country being forced to dodge about trying to escape being killed.

No doubt more stringent regulations will be developed in the hope of saving lives and preventing injury.

Advice, pleading, and regulation have been used and counsel the possibility is that united action and more severe penalties will be prepared for infractions of the motor laws by careless, indifferent or drunken drivers.

Any method which can be devised to save lives is to be welcomed. It is clear enough that there are many persons who do not realize the potentiality of the motorcar for damage, injury and fatality.

On the question of responsibility for accidents, views were expressed at a meeting of highway officials of the North Atlantic States at Atlantic City this week. They were told that the "average driver" not the drunken or defective driver is responsible for the majority of automobile accidents and that therefore adequate policing, of highways and strict traffic couts are the most important accident preventives. Dr. Ralph Lee, representing General Motors declared the average drivers caused 75 per cent. of the nation's highway accidents. He added that highway safety was a slow job because it primarily deals with human conduct and that change is slow to arrange. "Most of the accidents are caused by doing things we already know to be wrong", he remarked. "I am surprised at how many people there are who think they are good drivers but they don't know how to take curves or avoid skidding or handle a blow-out."

Another method of improving driving safety was to lessen the number of standardized signs said another speaker, who noted that the ideal highway has no warning signs but in lieu of that only necessary signs should be used for if there are too many drivers come to depend on them and drive as they please.

NATIONAL PHYSICAL FITNESS

National physical fitness is one of the developments of this scientific age, and Britain's adoption of the scheme is along the purely democratic lines. There is no regimentation and every citizen will be provided with the facilities for regular exercise under suitable conditions according to his will.

His Majesty King George who on Thursday evening directed an appeal to the British people to take up the physical well-being programs, has always been an apostle of the open air and healthy life as his associations with Scouts and similar organizations revealed years ago. He was therefore on familiar ground when he addressed the one thousand representatives at the Guildhall in London and spoke to the millions of Britishers by the radio broadcast.

Britain has been working along progressive lines in housing and it was natural that the physical well-being of the nation should become a national interest. Good housing, which means the abolition of slums, has been a natural approach to the present campaign. Fifty millions of dollars will be spent in this effort. It will be worth the price in the betterment of health of the people generally. With better homes and healthier bodies, there is the incentive to better living, greater social and moral interest in others.

The British race has borne the badge of good sportsmanship. Britishers know how to play the game and will naturally take to the programs so eloquently approved by His Majesty the King, who has placed himself at the head of the forces for physical betterment.

THE SPEEDING DRIVER

(Written for the Ontario Intelligencer by Arthur L. Burke.)

"I'm in a hurry," he said to his wife,
As he viewed his new sedan,
"Get in, let's go, we'll be late for the show,
I'm known as a prompt young man."

The motor kicked to a flying start,
Speed was the thought in mind,
The tires took hold with lightning grip
And the dirt flew out behind.

Down the highway at fifty per hour,
Then sixty to sixty five;
"My," he said to his startled wife,
"It's great to be alive."

"Don't drive so fast, I'm scared to death,"
Said his wife of twenty one,
"Ha, ha," quoth he, "This car has speed,
I'll show you how it's done.

In and out of the traffic he flew
With the throttle opened wide,
Missing by inches each passing car
As he swayed from side to side.

"Slow down," said the wife, "there's a child ahead, Stop! Stop! She's crossing the street."
But he couldn't stop and the saw
Was the running of little feet.

He used the brakes, he stopped the car
A hundred yards ahead,
He hastened back to offer aid,
But the little tot was dead.

"How did this happen?" asked the Judge,
"Bring forth the man arrested,
I'll take the story first hand,
With all the facts attested."

The prisoner said: "You see, my lord,
There is no cause for worry,
The child ran out, I couldn't stop,
For I was in a hurry."

"Stand up and listen," said the Judge,
"To what I have to say,
It may provide some food for thought,
For others such as you.

"The evidence in this case provided
Before me has been filed,
By reckless speed you struck and killed
A carefree little child.

Your veins are full of gasolene,
Your outlook most unkind,
There's sparkplugs where your heart should be,
And speed upon your mind.

"I sentence you to twenty years,
Behind grim prison bars,
You'll never take another life
With speeding motor cars.

"Take him away" exclaimed the Judge,
Where he'll be free from worry,
He's anxious to begin his term,
I think he's in a hurry."

SAYS THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: "Over 70 (seventy) per cent. of the 30,000,000 (thirty million) motor cars in the United States are owned by families with incomes of $30 a week or less. A reduction of $50 or $100 on new cars might reduce from a fourth to a half the prices of the used cars they would like to buy. Such prices would help restart the whole industry. The opportunity that has performed such wonders in modernizing production might well turn to better distribution by modernizing prices.

Gain in Belleville Building

The building industry in Belleville is in a healthier condition than in most other cities in Canada, and in the United States, according to a survey just completed by the Commercial and Financial Chronicle of New York.

Belleville showed a gain of 72.80 per cent. in the value of building permits issued in 1937. The average improvement for all cities in the Dominion was 27.29 per cent. and in the United States, 17.09 per cent. Exclusive of public works construction and engineering improvements, the building permits in Belleville totalled $150,295 in the past year, and industry.

In 1936 they amounted to $85,065.

The favorable trend of Canadian building, which was interrupted by a decrease of activity in 1936 as against 1935, was in number and value studies in 56 cities there show. The rise in Eastern Canada was 34.31 per cent. and in the west, 24.06 per cent.

The Chronicle declares that "it has become more than ever apparent that increased building construction is one of the most necessary and important problems of our economic activities affect directly many other aspects of trade and industry."

ACTOR GALLEY SLAVES

Young Americans of exhibitionist tendencies who think it would be great to draw a big salary for appearing in films should pay due heed to the plight of attractive Sonja Henie. The Norwegian girl, now on a skating tour, threatens to quit Hollywood because the grind of making pictures is too tough.

"I can't stand the strain—working from early morning to seven or eight o'clock at night," says Miss Henie. "I train hard and am keeping at top speed with anybody, but not as much as they (the movies) demand."

Many would-be Gary Coopers and Joan Crawfords will be surprised to learn that film acting is not all play. It is trite but true to remark that people cannot get something for nothing in this world. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

An Enlarged Heart May Cause No Symptoms

Whilst lecturing to a class of public health nurses I stated that physical exercise is encouraged to play outdoor games. That a youngster with a normal heart could not play so hard or so long that his heart would become permanently enlarged. In fact there was no such thing as "athlete's heart." Most athletes have a heart of normal size or slightly smaller.

One nurse rather doubted this statement and told of a case which happened to a student in a neighboring city who died after a strenuous bout. I wrote to this student's physician who informed me that the student had died whilst "watching the boxing bout.

How a heart can be enlarged and still do all the work required of it, in fact more than is likely to be required, nevertheless something must have happened or is at present happening that has caused the enlargement and the cause should be investigated. If a valve has been damaged, or the individual is overweight or eats too much, there may be a valid reason for the enlargement which may cause some enlargement of the heart.

In his book, Disease of Heart and Arteries, Dr. G. R. Herrmann says:

"The subject with a dilated heart is pathologic (not normal) and is the commonest victim of the so-called heart disease. It is extremely doubtful whether the dilated heart will ever respond with detectable or noticeable enlargement to hard physical work on a number of years. An enlargement of the heart, even if it is quite extensive, does not give rise to symptoms. It is only after the heart's reserve power has been overtaxed and dilatation is present that the symptoms of a failing heart are noticed. The symptoms of a failing heart are difficult breathing, tiredness or fatigue on exertion, pain, distress and palpitation—fast hard beating of the heart."

The thought that are (a) that if the heart is normal, hard work or exercise will not cause or damage it, (b) that even if it becomes enlarged due to exercise the fact that it is enlarged means nothing unless some loss in reserve power has been lost. The loss of this reserve power will cause the symptoms mentioned, breathlessness and tiredness on slight exertion.

THE FIRST ICE CREAM

Then one day in a cafe in Palermo the wonder was effected. A young apprentice had been experimenting in attempts of his clients to keep cool iced his hand at a mixture of snow and salt. But his hand was rather good. In fact it was a confused struggle between the apprentice and hitherto devised. So the apprentice followed up his experiments. He made a wooden bowl with a metal bottom. In the lower department of the bowl he put ice and salt in layers and filled the other with cream, when lo! the original ice cream! The news spread and the apprentice who had the genius to discover ice cream had to leave him from recent disagreeable experience. A printers' strike closed down all three newspapers in that city for five days not long ago and here are some of the things that resulted from that situation:

THE FIRST merchant to establish business, A. H. Meyers, Senior, who came from Germany and established himself in Trent Port in 1807.

THE FIRST ferry licensed to operate across the Trent was in 1806, the license issued to Jacob Bleecker. The following story is told which may be worth recording: Mrs. Bleecker had in the service a wench of masculine appearance who performed all sorts of odd jobs around the premises, from running the ferry to doing the chores around the yards and stables. In Trenton, there was a retired soldier, conducted a tavern and he had a fine looking daughter and they had two children regularly and called to take them home in the evening.

One day the teacher tweaked the ear of the boy who pinched her and bid it to his mother. In the morning, when she brought the children to school, she entered and marched up to the front of the room and faced the teacher who, pale and tongue-tied, waited for her when the following conversation took place:

Black Hen: "So you been lugin' the young uns."

Teacher: "No, I hafe not."

Black Hen: "To' needn't lie about it—you lugged the young uns."

Teacher: "I did not lug the boy."

Black Hen: "But don't do it again

Til lug you," and turning she marched out leaving the teacher still trembling and pale and in a cold sweat.

Contract to be for two (2) years and to be null and void if lights are not satisfactory to Town Superintendent 20th, 1886.—Andrew Shurie in The Trenton Quinte Sun.

If There Were No Newspapers

A favorite sport of the average citizen—while he is really at his ease—is to register legitimate expression of the independence of public opinion—is to criticize the newspapers. Many write letters to the editor pointing out his manifold shortcomings and offering advice or being helpful suggestions for correcting them.

It is all good clean fun and the editor, if his funnybone is functioning properly, enjoys it as much as anybody. At the same time, by way of getting a bit of his own back, he may indulge in a little fun himself. "But what if there were no newspapers? What would happen?" is a question often came when Mr. Average Citizen found himself unable to get his morning daily or a weekly newspaper publications that he has been in the habit of buying at the corner store and takes as much for granted as death and taxes?

Well, if he is really curious, the people of Portland, Oregon, are in a position to enlighten him from recent disagreeable experience. A printers' strike closed down all three newspapers in that city for five days not long ago and here are some of the things that resulted from that situation:

Business was adversely affected because stores could not advertise.

Sports events had to be cancelled because they could not be announced. The same was true of club and society meetings.

People got married and divorced and had babies, and no one knew about it except for their closest friends.

Dogs, pocketbooks and jewels strayed, but because there were no "lost and found" columns.

Prices which wanted to hire workers were unable to do so, because readers of the paper they worked could advertise their wants.

Absurd and exaggerated rumors were rife because there were no newspapers to publish accurate information.

No one knew what entertainments to go to because the theatres had no programs.

Newspaper readers complained vigorously about the discontinuance of comic strips.

Thousands of regular and part-time workers were affected by the forced shutdown, both in the newspaper plants and in allied industries, such as paper mills, engraving firms, ink wholesalers, and transportation companies.

Before the Portland newspapers were able to resume publication, in short, the community had found out what a tremendous amount of service, both paid-for and freely-given, the press really renders. In this and other communities, then, the discovery will bear thinking over when-ever the cry arises for "doing off" the newspaper grows a trifle strenuous. —Quebec Chronicle Telegraph.

GOOD TASTE

It is a curious fact that lovers of trash on the radio are much more numerous than those who have chosen better informed minds. Thus the following was weighed and found wanting by the test of programs. Instead of being condemned to negative action, the Broadcast Listeners of America would make real progress if they encouraged discerning listeners to write fan mail, too—praising the good, damning the bad. Then there would soon get action. Fan mail should not be confined to those who monopolize of people of inferior taste.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Death of An Ocean Queen

Thomas Moore's melancholy verse—

I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted;
Whose lights are fled
Whose garlands dead

And all but he departed—

are nowhere so applicable than to that little band of Englishmen, who remain in the service of the now taking the old liner Leviathan, once queen of the Western ocean, to the scrap crossing.

There is something infinitely pathetic in the fate of a once proud ship going to the sad ship-breakers; it is perhaps the saddest form of death a ship can die. And especially is this true in the case of the Leviathan, for she was the world's largest ship and the finest, when she commenced her under our own flag, she achieved the heyday of her glory as a transport during the war.

The rest of her career was one long struggle to keep her afloat, more so because of that her ending brings a tear to the eye of all who love ships. For she had endured the vicissitudes of life with the indomitable spirit of her sex, and to the world, passing her by as she trotted at her Hoboken prison her bright-work green with verdigris, her hull splotched with red lead and with rust, she conveyed some of the majesty of her former days.

To those who saw her in her last days, when the riggers and scalers were preparing her for her last and longest voyage, she presented a spectacle of despair. Gone were her once towering masts, sundered to make room for her passage beneath the bridge of the Firth of Forth. Her great public rooms were scenes of desolation; gone were the days that thronged the grand salon; Marie of Rumania had walked these spacious state rooms; the Kaiser, before he became the hated war lord of a conquered people, admired the ancient paintings by the brush of the Flemish master, Gerard de Lairesse; their glowing oils, now subdued by dirt, hidden beneath carelessly flung covers.

The remains of the Leviathan's once splendid saloons were perhaps the most nostalgic traces of past greatness. Here the fire had covered everything, for once, as in the Biblical tragedy came to the world—"Belshazzar's Feast", by Wilson "The Historic Notebook", by Brewster; "Cromwell Dissolving Parliament"; these "etched" the "Levi" and proved even more graphically than all her log books the passing of the old.

Yes, her day is done, but those who remember her standing in and out of the River, with the raising of the staff and smoke streaming from her funnels, will salute her in her passing. And say: "There was a ship!"—New York Times.

RECESSION IN U. S. IS NOT FELT HERE CONVENTION TOLD

R. H. Langlois, Tip Top Tailors Treasurer Says Early 1938 Business Increasing

Toronto, Feb. 19 — "Our results have proved that the conditions disturbing the United States for the past five months will not affect you in the year to come."

This was the definite statement of R. H. Langlois, treasurer of Tip Top Tailors Limited when he was one of the speakers to outline Canadian conditions to a four day convention of Tip Top Tailors store managers which has concluded here.

In making his forecast for the year, Mr. Langlois said that business of the company during the six weeks of 1938 showed a healthy increase over the same period one year ago, this in spite of the fact that 1937 volume of business was one of the largest in the company's history.

"Intelligent aggressiveness in going after sales is the difference between an ordertaker and a salesman", said President Turnbull, Dundasman in welcoming the convention. He warned the manufacturers, this year, more than ever would be fighting more aggressively for the consumer's favor.

The recession in the United States, Mr. Dundasman told was due to large inventories purchased in anticipation of further inflation and labour troubles.

Today the average well-dressed man needs at least five suits, said A. M. Talbot, company sales manager, with navy blue again a necessity for "dress up" wear. For business the more conservative patterns were being favored, while loose fitting, comfortable tweeds are essential for holidays or leisure periods. Rounding out the well balanced wardrobe should be the formal tuxedo or a sports ensemble.

Approximately 50 store managers, from as far west as the Pacific Coast and as far east as Sydney were in attendance during the four day session.

Mayor Appeals to Board to Stops Frill, Extravagance so The City May Remain Solvent

Says Education in City Last Year Cost $200,000

STANDARDS HIGH

Asks Members to Cut Estimates at Least 25 Per Cent

An appeal to the Belleville Board of Education to "stop all frills, fads and extravagance so that property owners, and the city, may remain solvent" was made by Mayor Jamieson Rose at the regular Board meeting last evening.

The Mayor, prefacing his remarks with the statement and explanation, that he had not accepted the office for "the honor or glory that might have prompted others, but rather through a sense of obligation from the deep convictions he had held on a number of matters and questions" in order to put them before the people and see what could be done—reviewed the matter of educational costs in Belleville and termed "absurd" the amount spent last year totalling approximately $200,000.

Introduced by Chairman

Introduced by chairman of the Board, Chas. Hoyle, Mayor Rose in his first address to the local body admitted, that his ideas expressed were not necessarily those on which all would agree, but "the views held by a Mayor, who was determined to at least bring these matters to the attention of the people and the city he represented."

Requests Self-Thinking

"You are now commencing your first year as a board of ten trustees replacing the former somewhat unwieldy board of twenty-one and therefore more responsible seats on your shoulders," he told the Board. "It is your responsibility to carry into operation the dictates of the Department of Education, to make out your budget for 1938 and present it to the city, who in turn must charge the amount to the taxpayers. As Mayor of the city and one who has studied our system of education and taxation, I would like to make some suggestions for your consideration. In the first place we are far too much tied down about the management of our own affairs, and are far too conscientious in carrying out the other fellow's orders, even when we know he is wrong. Are you going to carry on as did your predecessors, doing the bidding of people who have became unbalanced in matters of education, or are you going to think for yourselves and express your convictions to the people and the departments which in turn dictate what you shall and shall not do? Do you realize that educational demagogues with their "Education Week," and Teachers' Federations have filled the country with propaganda in favor of more and more book-education, until our young men and our taxpayers are both being ruined, although in very different ways?

Standards Too High

"I have already stated and reiterated for your benefit, that the matriculation standards are much too high for the average boy or girl in his or her teens to pass. This is a cruel system and is ruining the youth of the country, by destroying their confidence in themselves and keeping them at school, a drag on their parents and on the country, when they are past the apprenticeship age. It is doubly cruel that employers of labour should 'fall for' this educational propaganda and require of those whom they hire in many cases, that they must have their "Matric" before they can become an elevator operator or their "B.A." before joining a shopping service or gasoline station. They are taking a cruel advantage of these youths who through no fault of their own are coming to maturity in a land that is no longer one of opportunity. And the very system that demands these high standards of useless knowledge, is largely responsible for the destitution of the populace and the consequent lack of work. The enormous costs of education — and especially secondary education—should not in justice or decency be saddled on property owners till they become insolvent and the municipalities with them.

"Education and certainly super or de luxe education is a responsibility of the whole people, although he is forced to pay for it," declared the Mayor.

Practical Experience Best

"I have just seen a letter from a boy in Scotland answering an advertisement here for an experienced seedsman. He has splendid recommendations from the Edinburgh seedhouse with which he served four years apprenticeship, and now at the age of twenty is an experienced seedsman, having spent his time from 16 to 20 studying seeds. Is that not preferable in the average boy of 20 to being experienced more or less in Chemistry, Physics, Botany and Algebra?

"In last month's Financial Post there is an article dealing with Rhodes Scholars, and showing that not one of our Big Business Rhodes Scholars has ever-made any great name for himself. Most of them have become school teachers. Do you not think that this bears out the remark formerly made that secondary education is not vital to success in life, and that most of successful men have not had much secondary education?

Mediocre Student Plugs

"I also believe and commend to your attention, that there is a psychological reason for this rather paradoxical situation, and that reason is, according to my own idea, that the youth, steeped in book learning feels he need strive no more, whereas the mediocre student knows he must continue to work hard and learn. The former therefore stands still or retrogrades while the latter forges ahead and gets somewhere in life.

"Relief and other similar taxes, but principally the costs of education, have so hamstrung the property owner, that property now has little or no value. These charges have killed one of our leading industries, the building and allied industries, put thousands out of work, put thousands more on relief, caused millions of dollars worth of property to be sold for taxes, and have largely shut off all opportunity for the youth of this country. If this matter were properly dealt with by the Board of Trustees I would pour into the building industry, jobs would open up for all, and relief costs would disappear. I therefore suggest that at a Board of Trustees you should study this whole question for yourselves and recommend to the City Council and the Government your findings, if any," he continued.

Some Improvements Urged

"My own ideas are that your matriculation standard is shamefully high. That a "Leaving Certificate" should be attached to every normal or average child of 15. That free education should close then, and those winter night school instruction be given, free if necessary, to those boys who have left school at 15 can study subjects necessary to their chosen work.

"That scholarships be arranged as is done elsewhere, so that those desirous for further education can obtain it.

"That you engage teachers, and particularly high school teachers, in the open market and absolutely disregard the dictation of the teachers to commence.

"That the salaries paid, especially to beginners, should be brought in line with those paid in other professions. $1700.00 is a ridiculous figure for young inexperienced high school teachers to commence.

"That the township pay the full 100% cost of educating their children and not 80% as at present.

Asks Cut of 25 Percent

"That all frills, fads and extravagance be stopped at once, so the property owner and the city may remain solvent.

"Your expenditure last year was very close to $200,000, an amount many times the amount paid in taxes to pay. That you cut your requirements for this year by 25 percent and get along without a great many luxuries, the same as is being done by those very distressed people, who must provide your funds. Many of our citizens have lost their property, and a number who are poor."

"I admit," replied the Mayor, "I don't know all the answers. Probably we could work out our salvation as England has done; England where good times prevail and smiles are seen instead of frowns. Over there they have found the remedy and applied it.

"Too Much Apathy"

"There is and has been too much apathy here. There, there were no young men, as far as I could see on my visit last year of jobs. Yet here in Belleville we have the care of two young men from the city, despairing of finding work here, going to England to make a living. Do you know that emigration from Canada exceeds by about three to one, the immigration into the country?

"What to do? Balance our budgets. If we'd start, to rectify just some of the conditions at present, we'd be able to tackle the rest as we go along."

The vote of thanks to the Mayor for his address was seconded by Trustee Ross Wotten, but not before reply had been made to Mayor Rose by Trustee H. B. Petierty, over the objection of some of the members who sought to have the motion immediately carried.

"I object to being told I'm out of order", retorted Mr. Petierty, over the objections voiced. "However, I'll say that I accord with the mover and seconder.

"Fifty years are more in the business of education as shown me than many of the Mayor's remarks which, as regards legality have; for the past fifty years we have had the same system that Dr. Ryerson gave us.

Educational System Change Due

"But does Mayor Rose know that last year an entire change in the educational system of Ontario was undertaken? And that by this time next year it is hoped to have the job completed? When this system is finally adopted it is hoped to have the matter of examinations ended. What the Mayor is asking for is on the way. There will be a tremendous change.

"Unemployment? The schools are not to blame for that: it is the employers who are to blame in asking for higher standards among those they employ.

"Teachers' salaries. . . . I don't believe the stand they have taken to put in and the time they must spend in preparing for the profession of teaching they are overpaid as the Mayor has intimated.

"Frills and fads. . . . I don't know of any or of what he means.

"I pay as much taxes as any trustee on this Board, yet I would not have education sacrificed to save any part of them. Perhaps it is not known generally, but Ontario pays the lowest grant of any province of Canada and any State of the Republic south of us. Under the new system of education which is being inaugurated, we will be forced to support a large amount of equipment in our schools", concluded Mr. Petierty.

SLATE MAY BE USED AS A BASE FOR TILE

Company at Madoc Perfects Process Which Will be Installed Soon

Use of slate for a base in the manufacture of tile has been developed by the Canadian Slate Products, Ltd., of Madoc, with the assistance of a large paint manufacturing company of Montreal, and special ovens for the treatment of the slate will be installed within the next few weeks at Madoc, it is stated by the Company.

Machines for cutting tile in all sizes, from four inches up have already been added to the Madoc plant and it is expected that this branch of the business will be a substantial addition to its activities.

The tiles are made from slate that was formerly scrapped in the cutting of roofing slate. Color filling is applied to the smooth outer surface and is then hardened by baking. The new product can be turned out in any color, and can be easily and effectively repainted, it is reported.

But, in addition, the 1938 Ford gives you other value. For your convenience, we have illustrated here the many features of the De Luxe Ford for which no extra charge is made. When you buy a De Luxe car, you want these features. That is why they are included in the Ford delivered price.

Happiness Is Big Factor In Sleep

Child Who is Sent to Bed Contented Gets Benefit of Slumber

(By LIDA GRENELLE)

From Pennsylvania a mother writes me that, her little son, Oswald, never wants to go to bed. When bedtime is announced, he wild stages a stubborn strike, accompanied by much vocal remonstrance.

She was very patient for a long time, she says, but at last came to the conclusion that the child was just getting spoiled, so dealt with him accordingly.

"Every time Oswald would start a show," she writes, "I simply picked him up and put him over my knee and gave him a good old-fashioned spanking, which I figured was what he needed; then off to bed with him, without any more arguing. Of course, he'd continue to howl, but I never paid any attention to him, or went near him. And after a while he learned that it wasn't any use, and there were no more tantrums. He'd just whimper. He'd be still whimpering, though, standing up and leaning over the side of his crib, an hour or so later.

It always seems to take the longest time for that child to get to sleep! Quite often he wakes up in the middle of the night, too, screaming, from a bad dream, I guess. And next day he's tired and cross. He has never seemed to me as particularly nervous child, but it seems funny that, at his age, he does not sleep better. I spoke to the doctor about it, and he says he's 100 per cent. physically."

Should Be Happy

To get the full benefit of a night's rest, a child should go to sleep happy. That's not sentimental nonsense, either, more than it's sentimental nonsense that we all assimilate our food better if we're under no strain while eating it, are in no hurry, and preferably in pleasant and congenial company.

Temper, anger, depression are now known (and any doctor will tell you so in case you want other authority) to let loose poisons into the blood, poisons that are destructive to good health, that exhaust the nervous system, retard digestion and prevent relaxation.

Sleep is an entirely normal and lawful bedtime. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with it, not even a fond friend or relative who just must see the children.

In the first place, when no exceptions are made, children accept bedtime much more readily. There is easier for both child and mother. Secondly, it's pleasant and amiable if time is allowed for just a little dawdling, so that no one feels hurried. A bit of fun, too, and if favorite stories are saved especially for bedtime, that, of time becomes something to look forward to, not dread.

Remember, too, that until you cure your own tendency to meet opposition with gales of defiance, tense nerves and irritation, you cannot expect to train Jimmie or Janis to any other attitude.

19TH BIRTHDAY CHAPTER 55 OF O.E.S. HONORED

Worthy Grand Matron of Ontario Present at Function

22 ORIGINAL MEMBERS

The nineteenth Birthday Party of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star was celebrated with a brilliant affair last evening in the Masonic Temple, when there was a large gathering of members and visitors. The hall presented a colorful picture with the decorations of Spring flowers of every shade and variety artistically arranged.

Guests of honor were the twenty-two still active members of the list of the original eighty who made up the first roll of the Chapter and several friends of them. Also the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, attended in a gracious welcome to them. The lady charter members were presented with corsages of roses and lily of the valley and the men with rose boutonnieres. Mrs. J. W. Barlow, organist of the chapter, made a charming reply, thanking the members for their thoughtfulness.

Worthy Grand Matron Present

A very special feature of the evening was the presence of Mrs. Zetta Keith of Watford who is Worthy Grand Matron of the Order in Ontario. She was escorted to her seat under a guard of honor, where she was given a hearty welcome and presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Other Grand Chapter officers present were Mrs. Aileen Wilcox, Grand Chaplain of Belleville; Mrs. Isobel Brown, District Deputy Grand Matron of Wellington, District No. 12. These ladies gave very inspiring addresses and complimented the Chapter and officers in the excellence of their work.

Visitors were also present from Quinte Chapter, including Mrs. F. Parsons, Worthy Matron; Mr. Albert Womacock, Worthy Patron, and many from the District, from Toronto, Mimico and Western Ontario.

Many Changes Noted

Belleville Chapter was instituted nineteen years ago in the same hall they now occupy, the only chapter then between Toronto and Brockville. Many changes have taken place in that time, several of the original members have passed away but the chapter is still in flourishing condition, its original membership of eighty now being extended to nearly three hundred. Honors have been bestowed upon it, notably the election of Mrs. Anna Boyd to the office of Grand Matron, and Quinlan (Ruth) as Grand Patron. Three of its members have been elected District Deputy Grand Matrons, three to the Grand Executive and others have been appointed Grand Officers and members of the Chapter have reason to be proud of its record of achievement of nineteen years. There is lively interest among the members resulting in much good for the Chapter and city as well.

Dainty refreshments served in the upper hall and dancing brought to a close a very delightful meeting of the Chapter.

Advice to the Lovelorn

by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

A Modern Cinderella

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My mother died several years ago and I have two sisters at home younger than I am (I'm 20) and a brother and his mother who are married. I have been in hopes of having a home of my own, but it looks as if I'll never will. My sister makes it her business to come between me and every boy I bring to the house. She tells lies and repeats things to the effect that I've never said, and my boy friends desert me, saying my dad would put a stop to them immediately if they weren't true.

Do you think I ought to leave home and go to work somewhere? I can get a place as mother's helper, $5.00 a week and my room and board. My sisters who have made my life a burden are old enough now to do the work around the house. They're 16 and 18. I've been doing it since I was 13, and think it's time they did it.

Fairida.

Before you take that job at $5 a week, talk this case out with your family doctor. He is not a person, that your sister's story-telling makes you so unhappy. Unless there is some valid reason for a belief on a girl to stay at home. If your father doesn't take your troubles seriously, isn't there someone—a teacher, family, pastor, friend—who can help you and who will be able to tell you whether it would be advisable to take this job or not? If you haven't such a friend, take the position, with the understanding that you will leave if conditions are not satisfactory.

Independent Dales

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I have been going with a very nice girl and we become engaged. Then she went away and had been out one evening and I asked if she'd like to go to a dance. She refused, saying she was too tired. Next evening I went to a dance, and there, to my horror, was my fiancee with another boy. She was sort of surprised to see me, and when I approached her behalf, was where business was a shock to me, and I don't know how I managed to get her the gate, or wait till she calls me up and explains.

Disillusioned

Well, my dear boy, didn't you go to a dance without her? Your letter tells me nothing about asking her for the next night. And in this age of independence, I don't really see why your girl wasn't free to do the same. However, as you seem to enjoy going places without each other, don't you think it would be well to consider carefully whether it would be better to put off any idea of marriage until you feel you can't do without each other.

Happily Married, Yet He Drinks

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am married and have three lovely children, and the most wonderful husband in the world. But he is easily tempted in drinking and I don't know how I can get him away from the habit. When he takes one drink he will take more until he falls down. I've saved enough money for a down-payment on a home, but am afraid to take the chance.

I have talked it over with him in a nice way, and we are very devoted to each other. He thinks the world of me and the children, and would never think of us by saying a cruel word. I've worked and helped him out, since we were married, and have saved the money.

We hope to buy a small farm, and bring, I'm ill with flu make it easy and saving the dollars. Is there a case of anything I could give him to turn him against drinking, or could you get something from a doctor?

V. R.

These days so many are drinking for a few moments of forgetfulness, anything to take their minds off their troubles. But that doesn't seem to be the case with your husband, who is happy in his family life and is blessed with a thrifty wife who knows how to save money.

Cures have been claimed for the Keeley cure habit, and there are institutions where addicts are received as patients. Why not consult your family doctor or the physician in charge of Public Health Service in your district, and ask his advice? You want the best possible medical advice, and it would be risky, it seems to me, to write to anyone but a doctor unless you do so under the direction of a competent, medical man.

You have my very deepest sympathy, and I hope you'll write again and be able to give me a happier account of your husband.

Mid-Winter Treatments Needed To Improve the Hair and Scalp

PRISCILLA LANE
Takes the best of care of her lovely hair

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

What is the mirror's report about your hair, you girls who dance along the floor this winter? Is the high plumage looking wilted? It is the season, at this discomfort, when with being blanketed with felt hats and having no coiffure other than the shampoo and finger wave.

Do you brush it? Answer now, honest Injun! You never do, well bet a cookie. You do the pretty rosia around your finger with the aid of the comb, and that's all there is to it.

Dip into the beauty budget and give yourself a present; dozen scalp treatments at your favorite beauty shop. You could do a lot yourself in the way of conditioning the hair, but when bedtime comes, the best you can do is to cold cream your face and lotion your pretty white hands. It is not enough. Cosmetics were made to help your hair. It thins with the birthdays. It can't thrive without scalp friction and a reasonable amount of the silky strands now and then.

We're set against putting nail polish over the white eaves. This trick changes the shape of the nail, does not improve it. We suspect the best of us are those who have do not get the cleansing attentions that are due them. We may be wrong, but we have our ideas.

The half moon at the base should be preserved. Put a little of the veneer on the brush, use the brush with upward strokes, wipe away any of the fluid that has trickled over the cuticle at the sides.

The moment the varnish goes patchy it should be whisked away. Nothing looks shabbier or more untidy than nail veneer that is not a smooth, even coat.

If you have thickened a bit amidships, try postal breathing. That means filling your lungs to the limit, expanding your chest to the limit. Take a tape measure, see what you can do in the way of expansion.

Place the hands, clasped, behind the back at the waistline. Stretch the body tall. Inhale deeply through the nostrils, exhale slowly through the mouth. With the inhalation the tummy flattens and the chest expands. It's splendid for putting roses in your cheeks and cheaper than buying rouge. You pluck your bubbles out of the air.

The biggest known iron meteorite was found in southwest Africa and weighs some 50 to 70 tons, but there are reports, not yet authenticated, of an iron mass in western Africa so big that it might weigh over a million tons.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

LEISURE IS PLEASANT when one wears a nice lounging outfit. A charming pyjama suit with blouse to dance by, collarless, cut-away with a medium royal blue velvet bolero embroidered in silver white and green to match the pyjama fabric.

EASY TO WEAR is the turban of soft fabric moulded to the head, a lovely model with heavy thick drapings intricately worked in front, is of purple and red silk jersey with a red veil over all.

Yards and yards of fabric are used for some of the wide-skirted evening models. A beauty is of pink chiffon with slim panels joining the skirt godets, giving additional fullness. Rhinestones and bugles are scattered sparingly on molded bodice and skirt.

Big and soft bags seem to be popular just now. A new model is in bright yellow capeskin with all-over quilting and clever draping. With the bag comes a matching belt plus a flower.

Hands out for some good looking new gloves. A new model is of black kid with a pie wedge of black kid done in intricate drapes and shirrings.

A sure winner on any cruise and for spring wear is the three-piece suit in soft fabric done in a soft oatmeal beige. One model has zuzedo fronts of blonde lynx.

Yes, this is the correct signature for your notes.

No Help Needed

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young man calling on me and I hung his coat in the hall closet. When he left I went to him to leave, I got his coat and helped him put it on. I doubt very much if I did right. I did not think it didn't seem polite just to hand him the coat, . . . Will you please advice me about this? If I didn't do the right thing, it is very serious error? . . . Feel no embarrassment that I don't want to see again.

I am nineteen and he is about a year younger.

M.

This isn't a very "serious error", and your worry about it is quite out of proportion to what you did. After neither is there any reason why they should think that's anything. I'm glad that you wrote me, so that we can clear this up, and then you won't embarrass yourself again. And it's helpful to learn these Big Little Things at nineteen, given you confidence. The next time a young man comes to see you, don't take his hat, coat, or cane. Simply help him put his coat on. He'd rather take care of those things himself. So tell him where to hang his hat and coat. . . . "Won't you put your hat and coat here in the closet, Bob" . . . and let him put on his own overcoat without your help.

Negley Farson, whose "Way of a Transgressor" revealed him as a roaming journalist with a zest for living, has travelled to South America in his latest book, "Transgressor—The Story of South America." Dealing with the prophecy of Theodore Roosevelt that "the continent of significant destiny in this twentieth century will be South America", Mr. Farson writes more of politics than of his transgressions. He went to South America because of a journalistic commission offered him to interview Presidents and he accepted "not for the purpose of seeing the world, but merely," as he writes, "to see what effect the world would have upon me". Unlike W. H. Hudson, or Philip Gosdalla, Mr. Farson is not amazed by the wonders of South American landscape but is at his best when he reports of the new pattern of government in Colombia. His interview with Dr. Alfonso Lopez, Liberal President of Colombia, is one of the highlights of the book. Mr. Farson has clarified for readers, the confused politics of four republics of South America, with his shrewd and witty comments.

Captain Henry Landau, British secret service agent during the Great War, has stripped away the glamour that usually surrounds espionage in his book, "The Enemy Within". In his inside story of German sabotage in America, Captain Landau shows the spies as hunted creatures, not the intelligent who risk their lives and freedom for much assorted misinformation. Captain Landau's experiences in Holland and France for uncanny astuteness in the art of espionage and under the British Flag . . . add weight to his analysis of spy methods in America. He was also unfortunate in hearing Captain Landau during his visit to Toronto last year, or who have enjoyed his books "Alls Fair" and "Secrets of the Secret Service" as well as "The Enemy Within" a highly entertaining adventure.

The author of "Magnolia Street" has, in his latest book, found a theme which displays his gifts for character delineation. "The Siege of Moses the Lawgiver" is a volume which treads on dangerous ground in the life of Moses in all its phases, as prince in Pharaoh's court and as leader of Israel. Long and moving, then sets out in the path of Moses and his followers across the rich delta country, to the Red Sea, through the valleys of Sinai until he reaches the Holy mountain. This books is not only a travelogue in the accepted sense but is also a study of the religious problems of which Moses is himself a symbol. The book is illustrated with twenty-four fine photographs in sepia.

A vivid account of the hardships and courage of a missionary is given by Rosalind Goforth in her biography of her husband, "Goforth of China". This book will be particularly interesting to Belleville readers at this time, since Dr. Goforth, son of the late Jonathan Goforth spoke in the city this week.—K. G.

Aid Young Who Have Handicaps

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

NEXT TIME you are in Des Moines, Ia., visit the famous school there for handicapped children. When in San Francisco, spend a day at the Sunshine school. As you observe in such citadels of human service you will be inspired.

Speaking at the dedication of the Sunshine School, last November, U. S. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker said:

"Perhaps we should first define what is meant by handicapped. Is there one of us exempt from the dragging clutch of physical deficiency? Even in the ordinary class at school, is there one perfect specimen? Yet every eye out of focus, every ear less sensitive, every organ hidden in the recesses of our bodies though it be, which fails in complete functioning, every faulty gland, every ill nourished nerve, is a handicap to the organism....We, then, the apparently normals taking a frank appraisal of ourselves, need very much akin to these young people outwardly worse off. It may be then that they should pity us if they knew the whole truth....

"Homer was blind; Somosthenes stuttered; St. Paul concealed and fought some physical ill all his life. Beethoven, deaf, still unfolded his musical genius. He is inspiration of the world. Stevenson wrote on even though dying with tuberculosis; Milton, deaf; Helmuetz, perhaps the greatest electrical wizard of this century, a gnarled and twisted hunchback—it is a glorious and endless list. And to them we might add many notable figures not too far from home—boys and girls possessing the surpassing their whole-hodied contemporaries in daily achievement....

Funds for Help

Heading before congress recently for the passage of a bill to provide for the education of all types of physically handicapped children through federal aid to the states, Dr. Studebaker said:

"The fact is that today a large majority of the states and local communities of the country are not giving physically handicapped children a square deal in the field of education....

"Over (of) these 2,000,000 who are physically handicapped.... there are only about 160,000.... who are given the special school facilities which their needs demand, leaving more than 1,900,000 children in the United States who are struggling along trying to be social assets in the complex and competitive world, who start life physically handicapped; and in addition to this handicap them because we do not give them a chance educationally....Not more than 20 states, as states, have assumed responsibility for the education of these children."

The International Council for Exceptional Children will convene in Buffalo, Feb. 17-18, 1938.

Modernized Meat Sandwiches

Season ground beef with salt and pepper and shape into thin patties, two for each serving. Make bread into a savory bread dressing and put on top of half of the patties. Place the others on top and pinch the edges together. Broil or pan-broil until the meat is done. The dressing will be deliciously flavored with meat juices.

NEW SPRING HATS, SHOES HERALD STYLISH SEASON

High, Low Crowns Predominate in Millinery Fashion Picture; Footgear is Varied, Colorful

By LISBETH

WHAT ABOUT our heads and feet in the new exciting spring fashions that make us anxious to have the warmer weather actually here and which help us to endure the cold and storm of February and March?

Hats, especially, are as varied as one can well imagine. Presumably, the first of the season hats will be small. But if they are they will be shortly followed by some large and very picturesque chapeaux. Such are shown here, for instance.

High crowns and low—practically and medium sized hats.

I've said before that a light hat to wear with your dark clothes is a very refreshing item to strive for right now. You can match said light colored hat with a bag and gloves, and so hurry the season along a little.

And you can also wear a dark hat, but trim it with something bright colored like a feather or flower that gives the sprightlike touch.

As to shoes, they too are of many kinds and colors. This brown alligator high-tongue step-in with matching bag, is smart right now. It also comes in green, blue, black and Burgundy alligator.

Sunlight Has Many Uses In Medical Treatments

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SUN always has been regarded as the giver and preserver of life. All primitive peoples worshipped the return of the sun at the time of the spring solstice, and many religious ceremonies to commemorate the event.

It was first used deliberately for the purposes of treatment in the third century, when Antyllus, a famous physician of the Roman empire, recommended sunbaths in the treatment of skin diseases. About the year 1000, Avicenna, the great Arabian physician of the tenth century, recommended the sun's rays for wounds. The French surgeon, used red light in smallpox.

In recent times, however, the first widespread use of sunlight was begun by Finsen, a Swiss physician living at St. Moritz. He noticed that the Swiss herdsmen cured their meat by sunlight. In 1903 he was the first recognized by fact having a patient who had an abdominal wound full of pus and exposing the contents to the sunlight. The effect was remarkable. In a short time the wound was completely healed.

Treats Tuberculous Children

Almost at the same time, Rollier, also a Swiss, began his famous treatment of tuberculous joints in children by the use of sunlight. He selected a spot high up in the Swiss Alps.

He tells the story of the incident which prompted him to use sunlight; that he had a little dog from whom spine he had removed a tumor. He dressed the wound and was determined to keep it covered with a bandage, which the dog was just as determined to remove. He did this several times, and one day Dr. Rollier came on the dog by accident and found out the reason for his persistence. Instinct had prompted the dog to lie with the wound exposed to the sunlight and it was soon healed.

The first artificial sunlight was used by Dr. Niels Finsen. It is not remarkable that this invention should have been made by a man who lived far north in Scandinavia, where for long periods of the year the days are almost completely dark.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

MRS. J. P.: "How is the skin test for tuberculosis analyzed, and what is the advantage of it? If the germ were found in a child who was exposed to tuberculosis, would that mean he had it or would always be subject to it, or could he rid himself of the germ by growing out of it or in some other way? What is the normal weight gain for children?"

The tuberculin test is a reaction or redness in the skin around the sight of the injection of the tuberculin. It had best be interpreted, however, by a physician. The advantage of it is that it is about 80 pounds at 16 years.

the most sensitive test we have to the possibility of tuberculosis having once been in the body.

In answer to your second question, tuberculosis at some time or other infects most human beings, and in the course of time most of them overcome it.

The normal weight gain in children is best judged by looking at an average weight chart. From this you will see that the average weight is about 34 pounds at 5 years; about 50 pounds at 10 years; about 64 pounds at 13 years, and about 80 pounds at 16 years.

Men Need "Beauty" Hints, Too

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

TODAY'S column will be devoted exclusively to the Forgotten Man. Our conscious has been pricking us ever since we had some rather awkward requests from several men friends. They've been telling us were plenty of places where women could go get information about improving their personal appearances, but what was a poor fellow to do?

Well, we hope you like it, and we hope that some wires and several hearts will find our jaunt into a man's world helpful to their nearest and dearest.

The majority of you men who worry, either secretly or openly about your looks, fret about loosing hair. So we thought that a few hints to prevent falling hair and to thicken thinning hair would be in order. The first step toward having any sort of a crowning glory is to get over a lot of your masculine habits that are even discouraging to a set of hair that has started out with the best intentions in the world.

Don't wet your hair every time you comb it. And don't drown it every time you take a shower. Try to get over the idea that hair has to be washed two or three times every two weeks. For most normal heads, once every three weeks, is enough. When shaving a hot see that the headband is not so snug that it makes a line on your forehead. If that happens it's too tight and impedes circulation. This is true of the scalp, too.

Brush Your Hair

Now for some constructive suggestions. Get a pair of military brushes that have really good stiff bristles. Then give your hair a thorough brushing at least twice a day, (I know, but take the time.) This will stimulate the circulation of the blood and the little follicles will be supplied with the nourishment that is so necessary.

Kenneth Howell

Who has a nice head of hair

Never clamp the brushes together after using them. Put them down bristles upward so they can air. Have the brushes washed at least once a week, and you will find that the daily brushing will keep your hair quite clean and you will not need numerous shampoos.

Have a scalp massage as often as convenient and don't let the barber put on a lotion with too strong an alcoholic content. The head just doesn't like it and it is terribly drying to the natural oils. If it is necessary to use something to make your hair lie down and stay, just-looking pick a tonic or lotion that contains ingredients that encourage the growth of hair. There are lots of them on the market.

Gold Accents Smart Frocks

By Central Press

"ONE TOUCH of Nature makes the whole world kin," says our poet, and one—or maybe two or three—touches of gold make the very smart little dress right up to the minute.

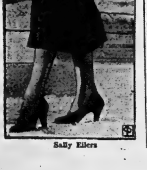
Gold kid straps and buckles do the trick for Sally Eilers, screen player, who is shown wearing a high-necked, slender - black Rusilana dress with the gold touches at waist and neckline.

This casual little frock—good for so many occasions—features a draped and shirred bodice, and a slightly flared skirt. Black suede accessories and an octangular off-the-face beret of suede complete the picture.

Style Whimsies

Veils are worn around the hat and tied at the back of the head. Even newer is the veil that is caught under the chin. A still longer version of this type of veil is called the gilet veil and is tucked under the suit jacket. Clever, these milliners.

Flowers are being featured in the new spring prints, with accent on scattered single flowers or groups in irregular arrangements.



Three-piece suits are expected to be leaders in the fall.

A hat from Talbot has a straw bandeau much like a little ladies' which passes around the back of the head to hold the chapeau in place.

Cultivate Cheerful Viewpoint

By VIRGINIA LEE

SOME PEOPLE have ill health, deformities, handicaps of various kinds, glass eyes, wooden legs, etc., poverty, crime, unhappy homes and many other painful relations to break them down. And surprising as it seems, they often keep fairly cheerful and hopeful through it all. The gallantry of folk—as I have often said before in this column—constantly amazes me.

And some feel that their lives are ruined when they have to wear artificial teeth or are too fat or too thin, can't talk fluently or make friends easily. When as a girl I complained that my feet were large, mother used to say, "Be glad you are not lame, my dear."

That's the spirit, of course, and the type of person who goes about making his or her mark, and expecting everyone they know to sympathize with them, get to be awful bores.

Childhood Inhibitions

I was moaning a bit myself the other day about folk who go "weeping" about all the time, and a friend with a knowledge of psychology said that of course people got their inhibitions from their childhood; that they might have the desire to change their conditions so as to make themselves happier, but that their inheritance from forbears and childhood habits of mind might prevent them from conquering them out. The spirit would be willing, but it also would be weak.

That seems a little hopeless and not altogether true. I believe we all can cultivate a cheerful point of view, and train ourselves to see that there is a bright as well as a dark side to everything. There wouldn't be much use in writing a column of advice to people who couldn't possibly change the conditions under which they are living or rise above their troubles and make the best of them. Fortunate indeed is the child whose parents are honest, truthful, cheerful, courageous and self-reliant, and who teach their children to be the same. But a young person can see wherein their own bringing up is at fault and train themselves in these virtues. Although I must admit that it is much harder to do so than if they come naturally in the home.

K.: You did not enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for a personal answer. However, I do not know of any lonely boys that you could write to. I think the best thing to do is to go out with your girl friends, and perhaps one of them will meet other boys and have another friend with whom to go.

Spaghetti Is Main Dish In Tasty Luncheon Menu

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

LUNCHEON

Spaghetti

Whole Wheat Bread and Butter

Celery or Green Salad

Canned Peaches

Sour Cream Cookies

Milk or Tea

I have tested these two recipes very many times and they are quite satisfactory. I never can remember just the right amount of flour to add to the cooky batter, but it depends somewhat, of course, on whether you use purpose flour or pastry flour. I am going to make some in a day or so and will jot it down then.

Today's Recipes

SOUR CREAM COOKIES — One cup butter or other shortening, two cups sugar, two eggs, one cup sour milk or cream, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon nutmeg, flour to make a soft dough. This amount will make 30 large cookies.

SPAGHETTI — Cut eight slices of bacon in small pieces, add two onions, cut fine, and fry until brown. Add one can tomatoes and let cook one-half hour. Cook spaghetti in salted water until soft, then mix all together and put in baking dish and grate cheese on top. Put in oven and bake for 15 minutes.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Plum Sherbet

Twelve canned green gage plums, one-fourth cup powdered sugar, one-half cup plum juice, one-half cup white corn syrup, few grains salt, one cup heavy cream. Drain plums and reserve one-half cup of the juice. Rub stoned plums through sieve. Add sugar, powdered sugar and stir until dissolved. Combine the plum juice, syrup and salt, blended well, add plum and sugar mixture to allow to stand for a few minutes. Add cream whipped in thin stream, stirring gently all the time. Pour at once into refrigerator tray and freeze quickly.

Chocolate Orange Frosting

Two squares unsweetened chocolate, one and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, tablespoon orange juice, one tablespoon grated orange rind. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk; stir over boiling water five minutes, or until mixture thickens. Add orange juice and rind and blend thoroughly. Spread on cake. Garnish with strips of milk-chilled orange peel if desired. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two (nine-inch) layers, or top and sides of four cakes generously, or about 24 cup cakes.

Herbs Staging Come Back

The use of herbs in American cooking is having a definite vogue after far too long a period of neglect. In the earlier days of American history, when every family had its herb garden, the use of these seasonings was a matter of course, but with the development of city life the art of herb seasoning went into the decline.

The present revival of herb interest has been made possible by the spice industry which has added to its line of products many of the herbs in dried form. For further convenience in cooking many of them are also available in powdered form, which makes for easy amalgamation with other ingredients in the recipes.

Refrigerator Efficiency

Your refrigerator will work better and cost less to maintain if you don't pack it so full that cold air cannot circulate around the various containers. Keep foods covered, and fill ice trays to within a fourth of an inch of top.

Keep inside of refrigerator sweet and clean with a mild solution of soda and water or borax and water, and if you spill anything wipe it up immediately. If the exterior is of lacquer, a good waxing every five or six months will keep up its finish beautifully.

Spicy Relish Helps

A spicy relish served with the usually dull boiled dinner adds just the necessary note of flavor. In addition to the many types of spiced pickles and spiced vinegar fruits there are many condiments which should make regular appearances at the family table:

Prepared mustard with corned beef, boiled ham, and boiled fish. Tomato catsup with boiled lamb. Chili sauce for boiled lamb.

Mint jelly for all meat stews.

Devil's Food Waffle Sandwiches

One-half cup shortening, three-fourths cup sugar, two eggs, two squares unsweetened chocolate, and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, cream shortening, gradually adding sugar. Add beaten eggs and vanilla. Melt and thoroughly blend the chocolate; then combine with sifted dry ingredients. Bake in waffle iron, not too hot. Divide into sections and serve as sandwiches with a filling of vanilla ice cream or ice cream and whipped until stiff and slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Poems That Live

THE HARP OF SORROW

Sorrow has a harp of seven strings
And plays on it unceasing all the years.
The first sizing sings of love that dies
The second sings of lost hopes denied;
The third of happiness forgot and fled,
Of vigil kept in vain the fourth cord sings,
And the fifth string of roses dropped away.
The sixth string calls and is unanswered,
The seventh with your name for ever rings.
I listen for its singing all the days!

Flyers Gain Edge in Playoff Series for the Group Title Defeating Peterborough 1-0

Contest Played on Heavy, Water-Covered Ice Friday Night

TEMPERS FLARE

Cooler Heads Prevent a Free-For-All at End of Game

Eric McKelsey's last-minute goal gave the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" a one to nothing victory and the edge over Peterboro in the first game of the local senior "B" play-offs in the O.H.A. when the player proved an opportunist and scored in true Mc-Nevil fashion late in the third period after seeing the problem of scoring hockey at the Belleville Arena last night.

The smallest crowd of the season, coupled with water-covered ice that made good hockey practically impossible throughout the entire pastime, resulted in a listless, free tiny period but the game livened considerably in the third stanza that saw the "airmen" forge forward as the aggressors, after the Peties had carried the play for the greater part of the night. In the heavy going on wet ice the puck was smothered time throughout the entire game and resulted in the respective players giving the referee and trusting to good fortune. Combination was out of the question as the puck bounced and bobbled about in the most funny manner.

Defends 'Oss Early.

Manager Tommy Lawrence gladdened the hearts of the home town fans when he trotted out Johnnie Lalonde, who received a rousing ovation, but "the big boy" was in no condition to play hockey and after being deliberately charged by Archie Weir, husky Peterboro defenceman, Lalonde was forced to retire with his injured shoulder throbbing with pain.

For two periods the rival teams literally went through the motions of playing hockey, as the inability to control the puck, coupled with the slow footing finally resulted in temperamental, personal feelings entering into the contest and the game ended in a general fistic melee with as Partridge and Vitarelli came to blows in a fight that continued into the dressing rooms and only cooler heads averted a serious situation.

The Air Force victory gives Tommy Lawrence charges a two game advantage in a best-in-five series and the second game of the round being scheduled to be played in Peterboro on Tuesday.

To pick or suggest individual stars of the game would be an injustice as the playing honors were most impartial. For generalship, however Doug Brennan, former New York Ranger boy appearing in a Flyers' hero uniform stood out for the Peties with Eric Vitarelli providing the class sparks. Both goalies were called upon to make phenomenal stops at times, due to the bouncing rubber. Peter Peters' only opponent was, Bill Calladine and "Shrimp" McDougall turned in fine efforts while under-sized Partridge was a tireless worker.

Elliott Works Hard.

To select an Air Force star would be an infusion, but George Elliott, the Flyers' captain turned in his best game of the season, especially defensively as the lanky lefty used his checks to assist in the halting of many flying Peterboro attacks. Former front line ace of the Flyers, was moved back on the defence to fill the vacancy left by Lalonde's departure and the sturdy Ottawa native actually came into his own in that department, as Cowley looked the best while on the second line of defence. Jim Hawley twins kicked in with splendid efforts, with brother Bernie being one of the standouts of the night going both ways. Wiggett, Legris and Halward assisted the Partridge steadied the Flyers with his superb generalship.

To the heavy going the puck was hard to control. Ernie McKelsey had the initial shot on net, a long drifter. Play was ragged as the opposing scrubs struggled for control. Mc-Ginn came out to save from the blueline and Cowley was tusled. The puck was rolling and the game resembled a typical shinny match as the referee was unable to find the rubber. Gibson was given a busy session by Vitarelli and Calladine without success. Harding came out to beat Wiggett at close quarters but Gibson rose some rough play crept into the game as a listless first period ended scoreless.

To open the second stanza both teams were applauded a long range. Ernie McKelsey brought Harding to his knees with a hard low drive that the Flyers' goalie turned aside. The puck became more difficult and combination was next to impossible. The first excitement of the game came when Eric Lemke, Peterboro slinger of roughing Barnes and the Peties followed by applying the power play of the referee and did not score. Lecompte's shot hit the post and as the Flyers carried the play. The period ended with neither team having any advantage.

Eric McKelsey Scores.

The third period opened with personal feelings predominating and heavy charging predominating. Elliott was chased for charging Calladine and the latter dumped up but no damage resulted. Weir charged Eric McKelsey for a penalty and Legris caused a pile-up as he nearly scored on a power play. Partridge went in and tangled with Harding out of the net. Halward took the rebound and Harding again saved but it remained to have Eric McKelsey race by a host of the opposition and drive a hard one home. Legris and Barnes tangled and went off. Trailing in the score the Peties moved forward en mass and gave Gibson a busy last minute session, but the Flyers' defence held and the game ended with Partridge and Vitarelli exchanging blows.

Queens Finish Loop With Win Over U. of M.

One game away from ten more intercollegiate titles, McGill University pinned all its hopes today on a meeting with University of Toronto here a week from Monday.

Victory in that contest would give McGill the title in the International Intercollegiate League and the Canadian Intercollegiate League. Tied atop both standings with Queen's, McGill has only the Toronto game to play. It affects both standings.

Thus McConnell led the Redmen to their ninth victory last night, an 11-1 decision over University of Montreal, while Queen's was finishing out its string with a 4-3 win over Hamilton Wings. McGill's only loss all season has come at the hands of Queen's, which has been beaten twice.

DETROIT ON SPOT

Loss to Chicago Would be Serious to Playoff Chances

Some 5f the glitter has gone from the first-place duel in the National Hockey League's American division and attention shifted a little today to the battle for the third and last playoff berth.

When the leading Boston Bruins slapped down New York Rangers 3-2 Thursday, they gained a five-point margin and dispelled Rangers' immediate chances of catching up. The two clubs go at one another tomorrow night in Boston, but at the same time Detroit Red Wings will be trying to draw nearer the Black Hawks in Chicago. Bruins and the Rangers have clinched playoff spots while Hawks and Wings are engaged in a life-and-death struggle for third position.

Chicago's forces, made up mainly of veterans and a patchwork array that Bill Stewart has assembled from here and there, have gained credit all around the league for their stand against Detroit's late challenge. World champions of the last two seasons, the Red Wings have made reports more in an attempt to catch up after a woeful start, and could beat when Hawks have dug in and held on.

Wings Trying Hard.

But Jack Adams' club will be harder than ever to stop in its last-ditch drive. Sparked by Ebbie Goodfellow and Doug Young have shown their abilities under pressure. Norm Smith has raised the league's best goalie last winter.

The Chicago game looks like a sound spot from which Wings might tee off in a final drive. Winning there would draw to within two points of the Hawks but a loss would drop them six points behind.

The Boston battle draws secondary importance then in a week-end program of five games. New York Americans invade Toronto to play the Maple Leafs tonight, Montreal Maroons and play hosts to the Leafs tomorrow afternoon and Canadiens continue their intra-Montreal rivalry as Maroons carry on what seems a vain search for their first win in Canadiens the Habitants four times in six starts and Canadiens are still badly crippled.

Don Willson will return to the Canadien lineup after a two-week absence with a wrist fracture but Babe Siebert, Armand Mondou and Toe Blake are still out with injuries.

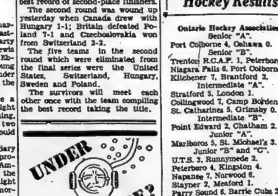
5 TEAMS IN FINAL

Survivors Play Each Other Once With Best Record Winning

Praha, Feb. 19.—(CP)—History repeated itself today in the world's amateur hockey championships as three of the Nations represented in the second round qualified for this year's final.

They were Canada, Great Britain and Germany. The fourth team is Czechoslovakia which replaces Switzerland, a finalist a year ago, when Kimberley Dynamiters won at London.

And, as last year, the game between Canada and Great Britain looms as the decisive one. Both teams have gone through the current tournament undefeated and with but one tie each. A year ago Canada defeated Britain 3-0 in the final game.



Canada, represented by an Ontario squad playing as the Sudbury Wolves, entered the final through topping its second-round pool tie which it defeated Germany and tied Hungary.

Britain defeated both Sweden and Poland to head its pool while Czechoslovakia won over both Switzerland and the United States to take first place in the final. Germany qualified through having the best record of second-place finishers.

The second round was wound up yesterday when Canada drew with Hungary 1-1; Britain defeated Poland 7-1 and Czechoslovakia won from Switzerland 2-1.

The five teams in the second round which were eliminated from the final series were the United States, Switzerland, Hungary, Sweden and Poland.

The survivors will meet each other once with the team compiling the best record taking the title.

There will establish winners of the Royal York trophy, main event of the curling meet, of the second Sir Birks-Ellis-Eyrie trophy and of the grand aggregate prize, awarded to the rink with the most points won.

Champions decided yesterday were: Dave Walker, Fort William, who won the North American Line trophy and the Seagram trophy; I. B. Christie, North Bay, winner of the Canada Dry Trophy and T. S. Graham's Toronto, who gained the Sebetting Trophy in the eight-play.

Outstanding feature of yesterday's play was Walker's capture of both the North American and Seagram, a feat unduplicated since 1934, when George Robinson of Newmarket won the two. Robinson had the same record as Walker, 13 games won to one lost.
